Editorial

"Evil is wrought by want of thought,
As well as wickedness of heart."

A writer propounds to preachers this inquiry: "Unless you get men from the earthly to the heavenly type of life, what boots your sermons, with all their ratiocination and rhetoric?" This question is well worth pondering. Sermons that please may not be sermons that save.

The poet says: "In vain fancy tries to paint the moment after death." This is probably quite true. Naught of experience can tell what lies beyond this mortal life, and the day may be near at hand when the veil of flesh will fall away for some of us. Are we trusting in the Lord, and ready?

One does not need to have a prominent place in the Church to be useful. The disciple whose character shines with the light of purity and who keeps quietly busy in the Master's service exerts an influence that can not be measured this side of eternity, and great will be his reward. Here is a field wide enough for all.

We noticed in the papers during the holidays reports of scores and hundreds of baskets filled with things to eat being distributed to needy families by the Salvation Army and certain benevolent orders, but we did not see anywhere an account of this being done by Methodists. Are we as a Church ceasing to be interested in the poor?

The expression of "the beloved disciple, "God is love," is not a definition of God, but what the logicians call "a judgment," concerning him. Love is a thing of the affections, and the Divine personality is by no means limited to them. It is not necessary in order to set forth impressively the loving nature of the Heavenly father to make that glorious characteristic the sum total of his being, to the obliteration of his intellect and his will. The wise expositor of the Word guards against any such exaggeration.

Every Christian may be a winner of souls, and this is earth's loftiest occupation. What other effort has the promise of so rich and enduring a reward? "They that turn many to righteousness shall shine as the stars forever and ever." But this is the Church's most difficult work. It is far easier to help run a bazaar, to aid in looking after the parsonage, or to assist in getting up the collections than it is to lead the lost into the way of life, or the worldly-minded to a complete surrender of themselves to the Master. To be an effective spiritual worker one must abide in Christ and be led of the Holy Spirit. To follow Jesus half-heartedly is to disqualify one's self for this high service, which is nearest our Lord's heart and which interests the angels around his throne. The Church that does not truly minister spiritually to the people within its reach, is but miserably dawdling, no matter what else it may do.

THE NEW YEAR.

In the providence of God, another year has been added to the past and a new one has begun. It has dawned amid circumstances that are abnormal and most perplexing. If under what might be termed ordinary conditions we cannot tell "what a day may bring forth," to a far greater extent is that true now. We face the future realizing that the foundations of human society are being shaken as they have not been in centuries, and no finite mind can tell what may come out of the present cataclysmal chaos. To be sure, many voices are heard prophesying what is to be immediately after the great war is ended, but such prognostications are mere speculations. The history of the mighty conflict up to the present moment furnishes ample proof of this statement. Who, for instance, would have predicted two years ago that the situation in Russia would be what it is to-day, or that the United States would now be preparing to send millions of soldiers to France? The truth is this is a time when men of profound thought are disposed to silence, awaiting the light of further developments, rather than to a reckless hazarding of opinions as to what may be looked for in the near-by coming years. Now as ever, the superficial are the most garrulous.

As professed Christians, we are a part of the world and we have our duties and responsibilities in the stupendous struggle that is now taking place, and these we should faithfully endeavor to discharge. Both the Nation and the Heavenly Father have claims upon us, and this is an hour in which we need to consider earnestly the memorable words of the great Teacher: "Render, therefore, unto Caesar the things which are Caesar's, and unto God the thing's that are God's."

To our country, we owe loyalty, obedience to its laws, and an earnest, faithful support, as the Government may seek to execute its purposes in the present grave crisis. We may not in all cases see the wisdom of its policies, but when the constituted authorities speak, we should acquiesce in them, whether they commend themselves to our judgment or not, unless it should be felt that they conflict with some higher obligation that we owe to Deity, of which there is little likelihood. (Our Government is now showing a commendable respect for the religious convictions of men, in that it is even going to the extent of declining to force into the military service persons belonging to denominations which teach that war is never justifiable.) In this free democracy every qualified citizen may at the proper time and in the legally prescribed way have a part in the formulation of its policies; but when they are adopted, opposition, for the time being at least, should cease and the majority should rule. Especially is this needful now when our Nation is at war, and in consideration of the fact that our population is so largely cosmopolitan. The call rings loud to every true American to measure up in this period of storm and stress to a full measure of patriotic devotion to his country. It may be that the year 1918 will involve us in such sacrifices and sorrows as we do not now dream of—if so, may we not be found wanting in the elements that shall enable us to bear ourselves in a manner worthy of descendants of those who built this noble Republic, and of which those who may come after us will not need to be ashamed!

But in "teaching our fingers to fight and our hands to war," let us not forget our obligations to Him who brought us into being and in whose keeping is our future destiny. We owe to him the recognition of his divine sovereignty, the homage and adoration of our hearts, the praises of our lips, and the faithful observance in our lives of all his commandments. And let us, amid the confusion that now confronts us, cling unwaveringly to our faith in Christ. We are far from being a fatalist or universalist; we do not hold that our Lord will save all men in spite of themselves, or that he must swing the world steadily toward the light of the Milennium, without any retrogressive perturbations—past history, as we see it, furnishes no warrant for such a conclusion. But we do believe that the ascended Savior keeps watch over his faithful disciples and that, whatever seeming disaster may overtake one of them on earth, his future is "as bright as the promises of God;" and, furthermore, it is our conviction that, however long it may take, and though many generations may wreck themselves by indulgence in sin, the reign of righteousness will finally be established upon this planet, making it truly a "Paradise restored." Are we not told in the inspired Word," that one day with the Lord is as a thousand years, and a thousand years as one day?"

Two concluding suggestions we offer for the new year upon which we are entering. 1. Let each of us strive to make it count for the utmost possible in the attainment of personal holiness. The mind that was in Christ Jesus is the best acquisition that a man can make on earth. It fits him for the noblest living and largest service, both in his present sphere and the one which is to come. One cannot do what God wants him to do without being what God wants him to be. The holiest are in spiritual power the mightiest. Nor does purity of heart ever come unsought. The key to its acquirement is contained in those meaningful words of the Master, "Blessed are they that hunger and thirst after righteousness, for they shall be filled."

2. Let us earnestly endeavor to increase the spirituality of the Church. This is undoubtedly its greatest need. No congregation is spiritually stronger than the converted element in it. Unsaved people in a church (other than those which are earnest seekers after salvation) generally weaken it more than they strengthen it. They are usually disposed to take charge of its machinery, to fasten their ideals upon it, and to scatter among its members the paralyzing contagion of a worldly spirit. Herein to-day lies Zion's greatest peril. The proclaimed mission of Methodism is to spread Scriptural holiness over these lands." How can we spread that which we do not possess? Only such as we have, can we give to others. In no other way can we serve God and human society so effectively as by living a truly Christlike life, and thus becoming agents through its government absolutely under the control of the organizers, and the laymen had neither part nor parcel in the control or government of the Church. Inasmuch as the preachers were to dedicate their lives to Church work, and give all their time and talents to the Church—

(a) They could not follow secular occupations for a livelihood;

(b) They, and they only, could wisely administer the government of their creation; at least, they would know infinitely more about that government than would those who did not make it a daily study. That is a predicate grounded in reason, and is a logical conclusion.

(c) The laity gave six days to secular pursuits, and rested the seventh from labor, and attended divine service.

(d) For membership in the Church, and the spiritual benefits received, the laity were under moral obligations to support the Church financially.

Such were the principles embodied in the polities of the Methodist Societies and the Methodist Episcopal Church from their beginning, down to 1866-70, without any material variations. The Church was controlled absolutely by the ministry. Had the laymen any just cause for complaint for not being admitted as a co-governing class? Certainly not—not only because of the reasons already named, but for other reasons:

(a) The Bishops and the preachers had the legal and moral right to organize the Church they did form. No one was bound to enter it, but membership therein was purely voluntary; and when taken could be withdrawn at will. Any one who entered into the organization did so under the existing conditions, and not under conditions that did not exist and was morally bound by the existing conditions, and estopped himself from claiming rightfully, more than what was offered and accepted on entry.

If the foregoing historical facts be correctly stated, and my reasoning thereon be sound, then, I make the assertion, that for one hundred and thirty-three years, from 1784 to the present, no right or privilege ever vested in the laymen has been cut off or abridged. In 1866-70, their rights and privileges were multiplied by the ministry, not as an inherent right to be demanded by the laity, but as a voluntary gift to them. Of course the gift, whether wise or unwise, was supposed to be for the benefit of the Church. The privileges and powers of the laymen have been advanced until they make the bodies of our Church and Quarterly Conference, and a majority in our District Conferences. They have representation in the Annual Conference, and, as a rule, equal representation on all standing and special committees; and there can elect from their own number as many delegates to the ensuing General Conference as there are ministerial delegates elected by the preachers of the Conference; so that, in the great lawmaking body of the Church, and in the election of Bishops, the laymen have as much power as the ministry has.

On the organization of the Methodist Episcopal Church in 1784, the episcopal form of government was adopted. In its constitution it was provided that there should be no change of any rule "so as to do away episcopacy, or destroy the plan of our itinerant general superintendency." This emphatic declaration is terse and strong, and is not susceptible of having its only meaning explained away. The episcopacy, and a virile one, too, is the very bed-rock of our Church polity. Destroy this fundamental in substance, even if the empty name be retained, and we "do away with episcopacy" and depart from episcopal Methodism; and in fact, build another Church. So far as the episcopacy is emasculated, just so far is there a departure from a time-honored principle that has proved to be the most effective of any known to Protestant Churches.

The first effort to enfeeble the episcopacy was made by O'Kelly in 1792. He was a strong character—in fact, a leader second only to Asbury. He was bold, was no sneak, but, admitting himself to be the father of the resolution he introduced in the General Conference to take from the episcopacy the ultimate right of the appointment of preachers, he fought openly; and, when vanquished, withdrew and formed the "Republican" Methodist Church. He was a stickler for that "democracy" for which some are now so clamorous, and organized a church wherein the principle could have a full and fair trial. For a time, he had a measure of success. He drew thousands from the M. E. Church, which for the preceding six years had doubled its membership every three years, until it dropped from 76,000 to 56,500, and did not reach the maximum again until 1801, when it again entered upon a successful career. But the Republican Methodist Church dwindled into a negligible concern, and is now known only in history, and as a miserable failure in church engineering.

Next, those opposed to the episcopacy as a principle, sloughed off and formed the Methodist Protestant Church. Its religious tenets squared with those of the mother Church, but the episcopacy was eliminated. The secession was in 1828. Today its membership is below 200,000, and declining, while Episcopal Methodism, North and South, numbers over five and one-half millions of members, including some 340,000 Negro members, and 1,140,000 in three colored Methodist Episcopal Churches—in all, over 7,000,000 members, exclusive of those in foreign countries.

If we want a lesson from a limited episcopacy, go read the history of the United Brethren Church, which is almost of the same age as Episcopal Methodism, and has the same creed in doctrine, virtually, and learn that its Church roll shows a membership of only 325,000. That Church elects its Bishops for a term of four years—that for which some are now clamoring in our Church. Does history teach anything? If so, can we safely ignore the lessons taught? Why, in the name of reason, should we abandon a principle in church polity which has been the most successful ever known in Protestant history for experiment with one that has proved far less effective?

The phenomenal success of Episcopal Methodism has demonstrated the superior wisdom of the fathers of 1784 in the construction of Methodism on a strictly episcopal basis. Shall we turn from light to darkness?

In further proof of the efficiency of the episcopacy as exemplified by our own Church, it is noted that in 1860 it had a white membership of 542,000. During the War between the States it was devastated and impoverished, and in 1866 its white membership has declined over 110,000. Now it numbers over two million members, and has attained this phenomenal success, although since 1866 the Methodist Episcopal Church has operated in the Southern and border States, where our Church has almost exclusively operated. And all this success under a polity that some are seeking to knock into smithereens! Verily, the ways of some "loyal" Southern Methodists are past finding out.

Despite the separation in 1844 of the Methodist Episcopal Church, resulting in two Episcopal Methodist Churches, the two grew more rapidly in membership than did the one, and have led Protestantism in the United States in securing members.

The General Conference of 1844 is memorable on account of the greatest ecclesiastical debate known to Church history. The question discussed, and over which the separation resulted, was the mutual relation between the Episcopacy and the General Conference. The Northern delegates, who were in the majority, contended that, inasmuch as the General Conference elected the Bishops, they were the creatures of the Conference, and subject to removal, or to be silenced by the Conference at will; or when deemed expedient for the Church's good. The Southern delegates insisted that the Episcopacy was older than, and not created by, the General Conference, and that a Bishop could not be silenced or removed, except by resignation, by death, or by due trial for immorality, or misconduct in office, conviction and expulsion. As there could be no compromise, a plan of separation was agreed upon, and the Conference ended, and the M. E. Church, South, was organized, and embodied in its basic principle was the one maintained by the Southern delegates in 1844. No Church leader in our Southern Methodism, so far as this writer is advised, has ever questioned the soundness of that principle. Mr. Eleazer, an active promoter in the effort to destroy the polity of our Church, in the Christian Advocate (Nashville), in its number of November 2, 1917, in a reply to Rev. C. A. Battle, used this language: "Our Methodist Episcopal brethren hold that, since the Bishops are elected by the General Conference, that body also has a perfect right to relieve them of office whenever it sees fit. A very sensible view, too, it would seem, and one that, I am told, works well."

The virtual assumption that our fathers of 1844 were in error, and that the fundamental principle of our Church polity was likewise an error, and the surrender of all the Southern delegates contended for in the General Conference of 1844, is in fact the mud-sill principle underlying the structure sought to be erected by the ministerial plotters against the polity of our Church.

Our Church is not a democracy in polity, nor in fact can be, unless we exchange the episcopate for a congregational form of government, in which every member, adult and child, has a voice in all church matters, and every congregation is a law unto itself, and supreme. That democratic twaddle should cease.

But it is insisted by some that our polity should become more democratic than it is, and thus get nearer the people. It is a sufficient answer to say that that Church is nearest to the masses that gathers the most of the people into its fold; and by that test Episcopal Methodism is nearest the masses, for it gets hold of more of them than does any other polity known to Protestantism. That is history.

Some, ignorantly or otherwise, urge that our episcopacy is an autocracy, and that our Bishops are autocrats in their office.

Lexicographers tell us that an autocracy "is a government exercised by a single person: self-derived power." (That is far from our Church government.) And that an autocrat is "an absolute sovereign, or ruler." If absolute in power, then he is supreme, and his will is the supreme law. But every intelligent Methodist knows that our Bishops, in the discharge of their duties, are completely hedged in by law, a wilful violation of which subjects them to trial, conviction and removal. Any one who asserts that our bishops, in the discharge of the duties imposed upon them by the laws of our Church, are autocrats, either speaks ignorantly or insincerely. It is to be hoped that our Church papers will no more be burdened with such nonsense. Let us deal in facts and reason.

A WOMAN'S PRAYER.

By Alice Gorton Wynn.

Two boys, dear God, of my flesh and blood
Are in trench-scarred France somewhere.
Two more will cross the ocean's flood
And join the forces there.

From submarine and German shell,
Protect by Thy strong arm;
Of deadly gas like fumes of hell,
O God, shield them from harm.

Lord, bring back safe these boys of ours,
They are so dear to us;
Back to this land of sun and flowers,
The brave and chivalrous.

But if their lives must be the price
Of universal peace,
And we this awful sacrifice,
Must make for man's release;

If they must fall in France somewhere,
Or sleep on ocean sand,
God grant they reach a home more fair
Than even Dixie Land.

The Belgian Army is said to be much stronger and much better equipped now than it was in 1914, its ranks having been recruited by men who slipped through the German lines. It at present musters ten full divisions and is holding about twenty miles of the battle front in France.

whom the regenerating and cleansing power of the Holy Spirit can efficiently work. Such disciples are the "light of the world"—"the salt of the earth," that must save mankind. Never were they more needed than now; nor will they be less needed when the cannons shall have ceased to roar and the stricken nations are struggling amid the wreckage and ruin left in the wake of this colossal war. For, whatever other new things may emerge from the raging conflict, out of it will come no new true religion. "The faith once delivered unto the saints" will still be the only faith that can lead men to God, to holy living and high service in this world, and to an everlasting home in the sky. Such is the clear teaching of the Word of the Lord, which shall abide forever.

EDITORIAL JOTTINGS.

It could not be denied that the Eleazer-Fritts "Movement for Revision" (this is the name with which its friends have now christened it) came from the Vanderbilt atmosphere; but some of our editors have insisted that it had none of "the old Vanderbilt spirit." But how they found it possible to separate the Vanderbilt atmosphere and spirit none of its palliators have yet told us. Anyhow, all the bristles of the thing were up against the Bishops and the Church.

A correspondent of the Nashville Christian Advocate thinks it would be a most religious thing for the two great Episcopal Methodisms of the United States to unite. There are quite a few Southern Methodists who cannot see the religiousness of joining in the repudiation of the Scriptural teachings of John Wesley and having our young preachers taught the rationalistic new "Course of Study" that the Northern Methodists have adopted, and against which a number of their Annual Conferences are now helplessly protesting.

We clip the following from The Central Methodist (Lexington, Ky.): "New Orleans, La.—A newspaper received here to-day tells of an alligator near Bell Isle, British Honduras, swallowing twin babies, as the mother washed clothes on the bank of the river The babies were said to be in a basket, when a huge alligator came out of the river and swallowed them. The mother called the father from a near-by farm and he killed the alligator. The babies were taken from the alligator almost unmarked." If this report is true, there ought to be no further quibbling about the whale swallowing Jonah.

War-time poetry continues to flow forth. A prominent citizen of New Orleans is said to have indited a few days ago the following lines, which were carried to the office of the Hon. John M. Parker, Food Administrator for Louisiana, and from there forwarded to Mr. Hoover at Washington:

"My Tuesdays are meatless
My Wednesdays are wheatless
I am getting more eatless each day.
My home it is headless,
My bed it is sheetless,
They're all sent to the Y. M. C. A.
The barrooms are treatless,
My coffee is sweetless,
Each day I get poorer and wiser;
My stockings are feetless,
My trousers are seatless—
My God, how I do hate the Kaiser!"

To the Friends of Civic Righteousness in Louisiana.

Dear Co-workers: During past years the W. C. T. U., the Anti-Saloon League of America, and other organizations have been praying, working and sacrificing, with the hope of getting the Congress of the U. S. A. to submit to the States an amendment to the Federal Constitution, prohibiting the manufacture, importation and exportation of all alcoholic liquors for beverage purposes. On December 17 last this long-looked-for event was realized amidst the shouts and tears of earnest workers, some of whom have grown gray in the service. "WE WENT OVER THE TOP."

This transfers the fight back to the States. If you are a friend to national prohibition, now is the time to prove your faith by your works.

Are your representatives in the State Legislature ready to vote to ratify the national prohibition amendment? Next, you may say you don't know. If you are interested, you will find out at once. If they are, stand by them; if they are not, see that the men who go from your Parish to Baton Rouge to represent you in the State Senate and House of Representatives in 1920 are pledged to vote to ratify the National Prohibition Amendment.

You may hear a great deal about State's rights. Tell them that we believe the inalienable right of every State is to be permitted to participate in amending the Federal Constitution.

We are in this fight to win. We need your help. The time for action has come. WHAT ARE YOU GOING TO DO?

The brewers, most of whom are very close to the German-American Alliance, have suddenly become ultra-moral, and are howling for beer to be exempt. Every man who is capable of casting an intelligent ballot on this subject knows that the dirtiest saloons in America have been owned secretly or otherwise by the brewers. Now that the day of execution is approaching, they, the brewers, are making faces at the whiskey people. They remind me of the country boy who was delighted to find a brand-new puppy had arrived on the place, but was disappointed to find that the pup was blind, or rather his eyes were closed. After several daily visits to the pup, he became so disgusted he seized him by the hind legs and struck the back of his head against a stone. In the death struggle, the pup opened his eyes, whereupon the boy remarked this is a devil of a time to open your eyes. Please write and let us know what you are doing.

American soldiers were said to be thick in Paris, France, during the Christmas holidays.

The Suez Canal, which has played such a notable part in the affairs of the world, recently passed the 48th year of its existence. It was opened for service on Nov. 16, 1869.

The recent American Red Cross "drive" to secure ten million new members went triumphantly "over the top." The indications were on December 24 that at least thirteen million names had been added to the membership of this worthy order.

It has been announced that work will soon be begun on a chain of high power stations, looking to the establishment of a wireless communication service between the United States, Mexico, and Central and South America. The name of the organization behind this movement is the Pan-American Wireless Telegraph and Telephone Company.

Some of its citizens are reported to be advocating a division of Texas into three States. It is stated that under the provisions by which Texas was admitted into the Union the people of that commonwealth were given the right to divide its territory into as many as five States, if they should so elect, without any action on the part of Congress.

The administration of Premier Borden won a victory over the opposition, led by Sir Wilfred Laurier, in the recent Canadian elections. The issue was the question of conscription, the Premier standing for its maintenance. The press dispatches stated that the English Provinces voted overwhelmingly for the draft system, and the French Provinces against it.

Forty-one Red Cross nurses left New Orleans for France on Monday, December 17. They were all graduate nurses, who, with a few exceptions, got their training in New Orleans. This makes 67 who have gone to the front from the Base Hospital Unit organized in this city. There was quite a gathering of people to witness the departure of these young women, and a brass band played patriotic and martial selections.

Senator Francis T Newlands, of Nevada, died of heart failure at his home in Washington City on December 24. He was born near Natchez, Miss., August 28, 1848, attended Yale University, and was later graduated from the Columbian Law School of Washington City. After serving five terms as a member of the National House of Representatives, he was elected to the United States Senate in 1903, and was subsequently re-elected. His congressional career was a very creditable one.

Dr. Louis R. Welzmiller, Physical Director of the West Side Y. M. C. A., New York City, fears that there will be an epidemic of "knitting nervousness" among the women of America unless they learn to exercise more prudence. He has publicly offered them the following advice: "Don't hunch over while knitting; sit upright, and when your mind tells you that you have knitted enough, quit. There are 365 days in a year, and no matter how much you may love a soldier or a sailor, you can not finish a sweater in 24 hours."

At a recent meeting of the heads of the several State Colleges in Mississippi, it was discovered that the amounts of money felt to be urgently needed by them for improvements at present footed up to $914,000, and a resolution was adopted to request the next Legislature for a bond issue to cover that sum. It is reported that Governor Bilbo is standing for this program. As a rule, we favor liberal appropriations for educational purposes, but it would seem that, with the world-war raging and the uncertainty as to what may be ahead, this is not a good time for a State to pile up a heavy public debt. Such a policy is scarcely in keeping with the preachment of the National Government as to the necessity for rigid economy.

Twelve thousand poor white children of this city received gifts at the distribution of toys and dolls, made on December 24, under the direction of representatives of The Times-Picayune, which had been instrumental in raising the funds by means of which they were purchased. This way of remembering the little ones of needy families has been a regular feature of Christmas in New Orleans for 22 years. A similar distribution of presents was made to 7000 poor Negro children on Christmas morning. This practice was started 4 years ago, this being the fifth time that such a distribution has been made to colored children. This is, indeed, a beautiful custom, and The Times-Picayune is much to be commended for making it possible.

MORE ABOUT THE MORMON COMMUNITY.

Dear Brethren: Brother Holder and Brother Connor have asked me to keep in touch with the church building enterprise we have begun in that Mormon community. I am in a very receptive attitude for money. My appeal in the Advocate a month ago brought a check for $100 from one man a hundred miles away as well as a number of smaller checks. Are there not many others who will help us oust these Mormons from our State? I have been informed that they are talking of establishing a school in that community and of bringing a teacher from Utah. If the pastors will only furnish me the names of ten of their best paying members, together with the name of the President of their Missionary Society, they will greatly aid this worthy cause. Hoping to have an early reply, I remain, Cordially,

Our Advocate Campaign.

SOME SUGGESTIONS.

January 20 to 28 will be "Advocate Week" in the Louisiana and the North Mississippi Conferences, when it is expected that an active campaign will be made in every charge to secure new subscriptions and the renewal of all old ones. This campaign is being put on by order of the Annual Conferences. Every pastor, to be ready for this occasion, will desire to know two things: 1. Who is taking the Advocate in his charge, with the time of expiration of each subscription. 2. What number of new subscribers he is expected to secure. Information concerning the first question may be had by writing the Advocate office, giving the names of all post-offices in the charge. Information concerning question 2 may be had by any pastor if he will communicate with his presiding elder, though it is expected that every preacher will be notified as to this.

Having obtained this information, let every pastor think out and adopt the plan that he feels will work best with his people. But he should be certain to have in mind some definite plan of procedure before "Advocate Week" arrives.

The following occurs to us as probably a pretty good way to proceed: After having ascertained what families get the Advocate, take your church register, and make out a list of those who do not receive it. On Sunday, January 20, preach a sermon or make a talk on the importance of having Christian literature in the home, calling special attention to the Advocate and telling how many take it, and how many do not (not giving names). Then state how you would like to see the paper in all the families of your charge, and how it needs the support of our Methodist people, after which subscriptions might be solicited publicly, or by having slips of paper passed through the congregation.

But let this be but a beginning of the effort to secure subscriptions; following this, there should be a personal canvass, by the pastor or some other tactful person, of every family not receiving the paper. To be sure, there will be some trouble in this, but think what it would mean to the Methodism of Louisiana and Mississippi and all the general interests of the Church to get a Church paper in every Methodist home in these two States, or even approximately so! Put vim and vigor into the campaign, and your efforts will not be unavailing. According to your faith and activity, will be the measure of your success.

Another thing. There are some poor people in nearly every charge who do not feel able to take a Church paper. Why not secure from your congregation the small sum that it would take to send it to them?

Would it not be fine if in this campaign we could bring some of the charges in our territory up to the standard of having the Advocate to reach every Methodist family in them? Why not? Is there not some pastor who can start such a roll of honor? If there is, we should like to show his face to the public on one of the Advocate's best pages.

(The Advocate campaign in the Mississippi Conference will cover the first two weeks in February. All that we have said in the foregoing utterance will apply also to the pastors of that Conference, except that we would recommend that the sermon on "Christian Literature" be preached on Sunday, February 2, instead of January 20, the personal canvass being made the week following.)

Notes.

Rev. L. M. Lipscomb, presiding elder of the Winona District, says: "I will do my best to make 'Advocate Week' a success in this district." This was to be expected of this capable worker, who carries all the interests of the Church on his heart.

Writing to the Publisher, Rev. J. R. Jones, of the Seashore District, gives the following encouraging assurance: "I shall take pleasure in representing the Advocate at my District Stewards' Meeting and throughout the district." Such a statement from Brother Jones means much.

THE JUDICIAL FUNCTIONS OF THE BISHOPS.

Bishop E. E. Hoss.

For several months the papers of the Church have been loaded down with clamorous protests against the exercise of judicial powers by the Bishops. As far as I have been able to see, however, not one of the protestants has ventured to offer specific allegations as to the evils that either have resulted, or are likely to result, from our existing and immemorial usage in this respect. Let us get down to facts.

To begin with, let me say that the only legal questions on which our Bishops are allowed and required to give opinions are such as arise naturally in the ongoing of Conference business, and must be decided by somebody on the spot. As in State, so in Church, it is a matter of grave importance that all decisions on law points should be made promptly. Delayed justice is often denied. This at least may be said of our system, that it reaches its conclusions on the spot. The individual Bishop, who is sure, in spite of all his shortcomings, to be a man experienced in all affairs that pertain to the Church, and is likely to be a fair and impartial man, must render an opinion when he is called upon to do so. This opinion, moreover, must be reviewed by the College of Bishops, which is pretty certain, in its capacity as an appeal court, to detect and correct whatever blunders may be made by its individual members.

Whether practical justice is secured by this arrangement is a question that is to be determined by an actual investigation of the facts of history. "The proof of the pudding is in the chewing of the bag." Our Book of Discipline, paragraphs 527 to 678, contains all the unrepealed Episcopal decisions that have been rendered during the past sixty years. Now, no man is entirely competent to have an opinion on this whole subject until he has first carefully read and pondered this section of the Discipline from beginning to end. I claim to have done that with conscientious thoroughness, and might, therefore, insist upon the possession of some ability to speak, the ability, at least, that comes from a fair knowledge of what I am talking about.

Not wishing, however, to set up my own judgment as conclusive in the matter, I addressed a letter to that distinguished lawyer, Hon. H. H. White, of Louisiana, asking him to do me the favor to examine that part of the Discipline to which I have reference, and to tell me whether he could find it in a single paragraph or sentence that trespasses upon the rights of any preacher or layman. Here is his answer—it could not be more explicit than it is: "In accordance with your request, I have read the Episcopal rulings in the Discipline, and can truthfully say that I fail to find a single line in any decison which even remotely trespasses upon the rights of any layman or minister. To my mind the rulings are all sound, legal, and broad-minded. They perfectly safeguard the rights of the laymen, the ministers, and the Church."

If there is anybody who on actual examination can show anything to contradict this able and conscientious lawyer, he is invited to do so. Until somebody accepts this challenge, and brings a valid allegation against that portion of our Discipline, I respectfully submit that he has no right to play the critic of it.

May I be allowed to say still further that if the Church should conclude that any of these Episcopal rulings are wrong and oppressive at any point, there is a most potent remedy. The law as interpreted by the College of Bishops can easily be repealed by a majority vote of the General Conference. It will hardly be claimed that less than a majority vote should be authorized to do this.—Texas Christian Advocate.

Mississippi's monument to the women of the Confederacy was unveiled at Jackson on December 10, the day on which the one-hundredth anniversary of the admission of the State into the Union was celebrated. This monument was erected by the Daughters of the Confederacy, and the unveiling exercises were under their direction.

A NOTABLE OCCASION!

St. Mark's Methodist Church Dedicated.

By Rev. W. W. Holmes.

December 23 was set as the date for the formal opening of the St. Mark's Methodist Episcopal Church, South, New Orleans. The splendid congregation was made up largely of the Italian and other European peoples. Rev. A. Palmisano, a local preacher and a business man of large influence among the Italians, led in the opening prayer. Rev. W. E. Thomas, superintendent of City Missions, acted as master of ceremonies. The Italian preacher, Rev. G. V. Romano, delivered an address in Italian. Brother Romano is a preacher of extraordinary ability and power. He is heard gladly by his own people. The Italian people appreciate him as a scholar, an eloquent preacher, and a man of God. Mr. C. F. Niebergal, State President of the Woman's Missionary Society, gave a word of greeting from the women of the State and of the city. This church has in a large way been made possible through the work done by our good women at St. Mark's Hall. The Sunday school has been brought to its high standard of efficiency through the Superintendency of Mr. J. D. Saint. Hon. S. A. Montgomery delivered a most excellent address, and in other ways contributed largely to the success of the program. The music was furnished by the choir of Second Church and the Italian Sunday school and congregation. After a few remarks by the writer, Brother Thomas gave a brief financial statement showing that there was an indebtedness of $1122 on the building and furnishings. A collection was taken and the whole amount was secured. We "went over the top," with $17 to the good. This was a splendid achievement for our new mission church. All honor to Brother Thomas and his fine corps of workers! The building of this commodious church in the heart of New Orleans, and its beginning under such favorable auspices, bespeak for it a large sphere of usefulness. When the collection, which was more than enough to meet the outstanding obligations, was taken, the congregation joined in singing "Praise God From Whom All Blessings Flow." In great rejoicing and thanksgiving, the building was dedicated to the worship of God.

PATRIOTISM OF THE PARSONAGE.

Dear Dr. Meek: I find that the Methodist parsonages are well represented in the army. If the brethren of the North Mississippi Conference will kindly furnish me with the names of the sons and brothers of our preachers, giving the department in which they are serving, I shall prepare the same for publication in the Advocate and furnish it as regularly as the information comes to my hands.

Brethren on charges from which sons of our deceased preachers have been called will please see to it that such names are promptly sent to me. This applies to brothers as well as sons of the deceased preachers. This record will be of great interest to all preachers and thousands of the laymen.

Yours for service,
W. W. JONES,
Box 112, Lula, Miss.

P. S.—In sending the names, please give the name of the father as well as the son, that we may know whose boy it is.

WAR CONDITIONS
— REFLECTED IN —
TELEPHONE SERVICE

Among the unforeseen conditions which the war has imposed upon us is the necessity of practically suspending the commercial development of our business.

Confronted with an unusual increase in the use of the telephone and a strong demand for new and additional service, we cannot accept or fill orders except subject to practically an indefinite delay.

This situation is due to the importance of conserving our supplies so that the government's requirements may be promptly met by giving the War Department service anywhere and at any time the request is made.

NOTES.

War-time prohibition is a good thing and is worth battling for; but all-time prohibition is vastly better—and this we must have, writing the provision for it in the Federal Constitution.

Premier Borden has proclaimed a new liquor law for Canada, which forbids all importations of liquors. The manufacture of whiskey and beer is also to be prohibited, but just when this feature of the new policy will take effect has not yet been announced.

District Judge George W. Clark handed down a judicial opinion on December 24 that it is a violation of the prohibition law of Oklahoma for common carriers to transport into that State even wine for sacramental purposes. It was stated that the question would be carried to the Supreme Court.

President Wilson has issued a proclamation reducing the alcoholic content of beer brewed after January 1, 1918, to 2.75 per cent by weight, and prohibiting the use in the manufacture of more than 70 per cent of the average amount of foods, fruits, and food materials used in such manufacture during the preceding one year period ending on that date. With the alcoholic content measured by weight it is said that there will be about 3 per cent of alcohol in beer figured by volume.

Colonel Roosevelt has written Dr. Clarence True Wilson, of the National Temperance Board, a letter in which he declared himself in favor of "war-time prohibition, not only for fighting men, but for citizens working on railroads and in mines, factories and shipyards." Col. Roosevelt, furthermore, stated that his sons at the front in France had written him concerning the harm done to men in the army by permitting the sale of liquor to them, and stating that they believe in absolute prohibition in war-time—one of them even going so far as to add that his experience had made a permanent prohibitionist of him.

According to The Times-Picayune, only ten State Legislatures will be in session during the year 1918. Those of Louisiana, Mississippi and Virginia are included in this number. Dr. James Cannon, Jr., of Richmond, calls attention to the fact that the assembly of the last-named State will be in session within thirty days, and expresses the hope that Virginia may be the first State to ratify the national prohibition amendment, and that it may be done unanimously. The two United States Senators and all the Congressmen from Virginia voted to submit this amendment, as was also the case in Mississippi, while the Louisiana delegation broke even on the issue. In our opinion, there is little doubt about what the Mississippi Legislature will do. But what about the Legislature of Louisiana? Is it not time for the prohibitionists of this State to have a Conference concerning this matter, and to be up and doing?

"MANY SALOONS CLOSING."

The Times-Picayune of December 25 carried an editorial under the above caption, from which we take the following:

"Besides these prohibitory laws, closing down saloons, the high price of liquors, due to increased taxation, has had the same effect. Saloon licenses in Louisiana expire on the last of this month, and it is now evident that there will be a marked decrease in the number of applicants for new licenses for next year. This is due to the high price of whiskey because of new taxes and because of the short supply in the parishes. The parish saloon licenses are generally very high, and the saloon men declare that they cannot, under present conditions, carry on their former business with any profit. It is estimated that at least 500 saloons will be closed in Louisiana for these reasons. As thirty-three of the sixty-three country parishes are already dry through local option law and elections, the closure of saloons for other reasons will probably cut down the total number to half what they were before the present movement began.

"In New Orleans a number of saloons have already closed. It is estimated that some 180, or 10 per cent, more will close altogether within the year, retiring from the sale of whiskey or beer altogether, and going into some other line of business, and that about 40 per cent will abandon the sale of whiskey and confine themselves to the wines and beer. It is by long odds the greatest movement ever recorded in that direction, and it is not confined to Louisiana, but is general throughout the country, and indeed throughout North America."

THE ALEXANDRIA CANTONMENT.

Dear Dr. Meek: It is important to call to the immediate attention of the presiding elders and preachers of the Louisiana Conference the resolution unanimously passed at the last session of the Conference to devote $3000 to the work of reaching the Methodist soldiers in the several cantonments in the State of Louisiana. A committee was appointed of one person from each district to give direction to these activities, and it is imperative that the committee meet at the earliest opportunity at Alexandria, La., to give the matter most careful consideration. The committee consists of Dr. S. H. Werlein, chairman; Dr. George S. Sexton, and Messrs. O. A. Wright, H. H. White, W. S. Holmes, D. B. Carre, and R. D. Webb.

The undersigned requests the committee to meet at the First Methodist Church, Alexandria, La., on Tuesday at 2:30 p. m., January 8, 1918.

Mr. Jacobson, representing the War Department Commission on Training Camp activities, has already furnished a list of approximately 1000 names of Methodist soldiers, with 2000 more to follow. These young men come from Methodist homes all over the United States. Some means must be brought into immediate use that will make it possible to reach these young men. This will require clerical assistance, postage and suitable stationery. I am on the ground and desire to put into activity the most effectual plans for coming in touch with these young men.

The resolution passed at the Conference provided that the Conference Board of Missions distribute the entire amount of money to be raised on the basis of the missionary appropriation. In order that every district may ascertain its quota, it is important that the Board do its work at once and notify the presiding elders and preachers.

In order that no more time may be lost, let every preacher without delay bring the matter before his congregation and take a collection. It will be a popular appeal, and every member will doubtless cheerfully and liberally respond. This money should be sent to Mr. S. H. Meyer, 116 St. Charles Street, New Orleans, La., who will act as treasurer for this special fund.

Letters are constantly being received addressed to the "Pastor of the Methodist Church at Alexandria, La.," asking that as far as possible some special, friendly attention be given sons from Methodist homes. The importance of prompt action on the part of all our preachers must be clearly evident, since in order to do this work money must be available to meet the expenses.

Again, the attention of the committee is called to the time and place of the meeting, Tuesday at 2:30 p. m., January 8, 1918, Alexandria, La.

Alexandria, La. S. H. WERLEIN

WELL SAID.

Cardinal Gibbons in an address to Roman Catholic women beautifully comments upon the adage, "The pen is mightier than the sword:" "May I affirm, with equal truth, that the needle is mightier than the sword? The sword is a weapon of destruction, while the needle is an instrument of construction. The sword is made to wound and slay the human body, the needle to preserve, cherish, and comfort the body by protecting it from the inclemency of the weather. And now, my dear ladies, while you are seated over your work and busy hands are plying the needle, let your hearts expand in sympathy for the loved ones who are so far away and let your lips read a prayer that they may return safe and sound to their loved ones at home."

Church News

Dr. Wilfred T. Grenfell, of the Labrador Mission, is again in the United States on a visit.

Dr. J. W. Lee's book, "The Religion of Science," has been translated into the Japanese language.

The Midland Methodist of Dec. 19, says: "Bishop Waterhouse continues to improve in health." This is most gratifying news.

The largest Annual Conference in Southern Methodism is the Virginia Conference, which has a membership of 129,806. This Conference had last year a net gain of 3220 members.

In a recent public address, Hon. Lloyd George, the British Prime Minister, declared that the city of Jerusalem will never again be permitted to come under the control of the Mohammedans.

Rabbi David Goldberg, of Cosicana, Texas, has the distinction of being the first Jewish chaplain appointed to the United States Navy. He was born in Russia and came to this country about nine years ago.

The Freedmen's Bureau of the Methodist Episcopal Church, recently in session at Cincinnati, Ohio, appropriated $16,000 more for educational work among their colored membership than was appropriated last year. The total amount to be thus applied is $700,000.

The Court Street Church of Lynchburg, Va., has agreed to raise $1000 toward the "War Fund" of the Virginia Conference, which has for its object the support and equipment of three ministers commissioned to work among the soldiers in training in the Old Dominion.

Rev. W. C. Kirkland, the editor of the Southern Christian Advocate, the organ of South Carolina Methodism, has raised nearly $2500 in the campaign which he is conducting to secure funds for purchasing a permanent home for that periodical. The Southern Christian Advocate was established in 1837.

One hundred and three acres of land, one mile west of Jackson, Tenn., have been purchased as a new site for the Memphis Conference Female Institute. A campaign is under way to raise $500,000 for this institution, which is being directed by Rev. Cleanth Brooks, Rev. A. E. Clement, and Hon G. T. Fitzhugh of Memphis.

Dr. John O. Willson, President of Lander College, Greenwood, S. C., has extended the Christmas and New Year vacation of the teachers and students of that institution until January 14, this step being taken at the request of the State Fuel Administrator. This time will be made up by extending the session further into the summer.

The Bishops of the A. M. E., the A. M. E. Zion, and the C. M. E. Churches will have a joint meeting in Washington, D. C., some time this month. These three Negro Churches have a combined strength of nearly a million and a half communicants. It is understood that they are meeting to consider the general interests of the Negro race in the United States in the present war period.

From the Florida Christian Advocate of December 20, we take the following concerning Bishop Denny's service at the late session of the Florida Annual Conference: "Bishop Collins Denny won all hearts by his brotherly spirit, his fair and impartial presidency, and his evident mastery of the duties of his office. Even more than at Ocala, he gave satisfaction to the Conference, both in the chair and out of it."

Bishop E. H. Hughes, of the Northern Methodist Church, writing in Zoin's Herald of Dec. 12 of his Church's method of operating among the Negroes, says: "We have raised up already the finest and cleanest body of Negro preachers on this planet." This sweeping assertion is worth little unless it can be shown that Bishop Hughes has had an equal opportunity to know the ministers of the other colored Churches, which we dare say he has not.

ANIMALS' FUN.

A thick fleeced lamb came trotting by.
"Pray, whither now, my lamb?" quoth I.
"To have," said he, with ne'er a stop,
"My wool clipped off at the Ba-Ba Shop."

I asked the dog, "Why all this din?"
Said he, "I'm fashioned outside in,
And all my nights and days I've tried
My best to get the bark outside."

A hen was cackling loud and long,
Said I to her, "How strange your song!"
Said she, "'Tis scarce a song, in fact,
It's just a lay, to be eggs-act."

I asked the cat, "Pray, tell me why
You love to sing?" She blinked her eye.
"My pur-puss, sir, as you can see,
Is to a-mews myself," said she.

A SURPRISING NEIGHBOR.

"Where are you going, Buddy?" Cynthia Lee inquired hoarsely as Jack, securely cloaked and protected against the cold weather, passed along the hall, whistling a cheery air.

"Over to Dick Dodd's to make a snow man and throw snowballs at folks that pass his house," the brother answered carelessly, as he stopped for a moment at the half open door of the bedroom where his little sister was confined on account of a very bad eold.

"Oh, I'm so sorry you're going out this afternoon! I'm dreadfully lonesome, and I wanted you to read me all the stories in my new book," Cynthia observed regretfully.

"Pshaw! That's a silly book. I don't like girls' stories. Anyhow, I don't want to waste a fine afternoon like this indoors when Diek's out there having a fine time in the snow." So saying, Jack banged the hall door and ran whistling down the street. As he neared his chum's home he uttered a shrill sort of yell, which was the comrade's call; but there was no response, and the snow man in the yard boasted no arms or head. He had been left in a state of incompleteness. Jack rang the doorbell loudly. "Where's Diek?" he asked of the servant who let him in.

"Upstairs," said the maid. "Run right up."

"All right," Jack replied. And he started to enter the room at the head of the stairs.

"No, Dick is not in his room; he's in the nursery, at the end of the hall," the servant directed.

"I wonder what he's doing in here," Jack was thinking as he knocked at the nursery door.

"Come in," two voices called. And the guest entered, but he could hardly believe what he saw. For there was Dick Dodd, the leader of all the boyish games, playing dolls with his little sister May.

"Hello, Jack. Come join us in our game," Dick called, unabashed. "Sis' May is sick of a cold today and couldn't get out; and mother had to go to town, and there was nobody to keep her company. So I'm pretending I'm her doll's chauffeur as she goes out for a ride in her new motor."

Jack gazed silently at the toy automobile occupied by a large, flaxen-haired bisque lady with staring marble eyes, and then at the frail little girl propped up with pillows on the couch, and then at his chum, who was doing all he could to entertain his little sister during her illness.

"No, thanks. I reckon I can't stop to-day. I'll come again," he said, as he turned and left the room.

Jack hurried home through the deep snow. A wistful face looked out the window of a small bedroom as he neared the house. "I guess I'd better run in and read to Cynthy awhile," he resolved as he entered the hall.—The Child's Gem.

A YOUNG HERO.

One afternoon, almost a century and a half ago, three young lads were idling along a country lane in Ireland.

"Come on, let's go swimming," said one of the boys.

"O, yes," chimed in the second, tossing up his cap into the air. "Come on, Arthur. You haven't any objections, have you?"

The lad called Arthur, a blue-eyed, freckled-faced fellow with a shock of brown hair that half covered his high forehead, hesitated briefly before he answered.

"No, I haven't any objections, and I think a swim would do us all good, but we promised old man Goodhue that we would hoe his garden for him, and we ought to keep our word."

"Oh, come on, don't be a ninny, Arthur," cried the first lad. "As if you, an earl's son, would hoe a poor man's garden."

"But we promised," replied Arthur, "and besides, he is an old soldier, and I mean to be a soldier, too, and a soldier must always do his duty."

"Oh, pshaw; as if it was your duty to hoe for an old man's garden. I am going to the river." This from the second boy.

"And I am going to keep my word," answered Arthur, sturdily. "I can have my swim afterward."

"Well, I wish you joy in your task," shouted the others, as they kept on their course to the swimming hole, where the boys of Dublin School were accustomed to take their weekly swim.

The boy called Arthur turned in at the rustic gate of a poor cottage, where an old man with a crutch and a wooden leg greeted him.

"Well, you have not forgotten the old soldier," he said. "Some boys would."

"I try to keep my word on all occasions, and I could not forget a man who lost his leg at Culloden."

The old man gazed at the proud face and grave eyes of the boy, and something that he saw there made him say, "My lad, you will be a great man some day."

The boy's face flushed. Praise from an old soldier was very pleasant.

"But I want to be a great soldier, like our Marlborough and like King Frederick of Prussia."

"Well, if you are a soldier you will be great, too. Determination, hard work and faithfulness to duty will help anyone to succeed."

With these encouraging words lingering in his ear, the boy stripped off his coat and vest and went to work. It was toil he was unaccustomed to, and before an hour's time his hands were sore and he was dusty from head to toe. But he worked on with a brave spirit till the task was done.

It was that very afternoon, an eventful day as it happened in the career of the young student, as he was returning from his belated swim in the river, that he showed himself a hero of another kind. A carriage, driven by a coachman in livery, was dashing along one of the streets of Dublin. Suddenly, and without apparent cause, the leading horses took fright. In the driver's attempt to hold in the frantic steeds, one of the reins snapped in twain, and the coachman sat dazed and helpless in his seat. A glimpse of a young girl's face, pale with terror, and that of a middle aged gentleman, evidently her father, and the frightened, tearing horses, and the heavy coach lurching dangerously from side to side, was enough to set young Arthur's feet aflying. Darting swiftly across an intervening street, running at right angles to the other, the lad rushed out in front of the galloping horses. A leap like that of a bloodhound, and he had the frightened animals by the bridle.

He was lifted from his feet, but he clung like grim death. He could not be shaken off. Dragged forcibly along, he did not relinquish his grasp, and at last succeeded in checking their mad pace. In a few minutes more they came to a halt, and as the coachman and outriders sprang to the ground, the coach door opened and the gray-haired gentleman and the girl alighted. The gentleman said in surprise:

"Why, if this is not my friend, Lord Mornington's son! You have saved our lives and proved yourself a hero. I am Lord Longford, and this is my daughter, Catherine Pakenham. Young man, I predict great things for you. England will not hold your fame," and as he marked the lad's flashing eyes he placed his hands upon the boy's head as if pronouncing a benediction, "and dying, you will sleep with England's great ones."

These words all came true, for our young Arthur became the great Duke of Wellington, field marshal, conqueror of Napoleon, and peer of the realm, who was accorded honors beyond those given to any other of England's heroes. Great victories were to be his, great honors and moments of supreme exaltation, but never in a life that was destined to reach the summit of earthly glory did he show [illegible] keeping his word with [illegible] he ever performed a [illegible] saved the life of his future wife [illegible] United Presbyterian.

THE PEACE OVERTURES OF THE CENTRAL POWERS.

During the Christmas season, through Count Czernin, the Austrian Foreign Minister, the four Central Powers submitted to the Bolshevik government of Russia certain peace terms, conditioned upon their acceptance also by all of Russia's former allies. The substance of these proposals were as follows:

1. The Central Powers to evacuate all occupied foreign territory.

2. To restore the political independence of all the nations that have lost it during the war. This would include Belgium, Servia, Montenegro, and Roumania.

3. The status of minority races not politically independent to be determined, not internationally, but by the government having jurisdiction over them, in consultation with such peoples. This is understood, however, to indicate a willingness on the part of Germany and Austria to make some guarantees to the foreign peoples beneath their sway, in which Russia and the United States have shown a special interest.

4. The assumption of no special indemnities upon the part of the Central Powers. All the powers involved on both side to renounce indemnification for war costs and damages; each, however, to pay the other governments for the maintenance of its prisoners. Mention is also made of Russia's suggestion that all the warring powers unite in raising a common fund to restore the countries most injured by the war.

5. The return of the German colonies. The general statement is construed as indicating a refusal upon the part of Germany to cede Alsace-Lorraine to France, and upon the part of Austria-Hungary to make any cessions of territory to Italy.

Officials of practically all the Allied Powers have declared these terms to be unacceptable, and that the war will not be affected by them. Though these proposals were conditioned upon their acceptance by all of the Allied Nations, it is generally expected that an effort will be made by Germany and her associates to effect a separate peace with Russia. However, the Bolshevik government seems to be in a very precarious condition, and such a peace, if made, may amount to very little.

There has been a good deal of speculation as to whether the Central Powers are sincere in their offer of peace, or whether in making it they are only seeking to gain some advantage. We are inclined to think that they see defeat ahead and that their proposition is in the nature of a feeler designed to secure, if possible, some idea of the terms which may be had at the hands of the Allies.

We do not see, however, how the Allies can afford to think of ending the war upon any such terms as those laid down, which moreover, are somewhat discredited by having come in an indirect manner. As we see it, acceptable conditions for terminating the conflict must include not only the abandonment, but the rehabilitation of, Belgium, Servia, Montenegro, Roumania, and Poland, and the indemnification of France, and possibly also, to some extent, of England; and, furthermore, some arrangement that would forever make impossible the outbreak of another such war, such perhaps as dismantling the forts of Germany and a restriction upon the size of her army and navy.

We think that this peace parley is a confession of weakness by Germany and her allies; but we ought not for one moment to cherish the notion that their collapse is near at hand or to cease to prepare less vigorously to fight a victorious war.

In this connection, we will say that we have seen nothing bearing upon the important question of peace that impressed us as being more sensible and Christian than the following utterance made by Cardinal Gibbons, of Baltimore, on Christmas day:

"I belive that the best way to end the war early in the coming year is for the Central Powers to make a definite proposition and one that will embrace all their aims and demands.

"On the part of the United States, I believe that the best governmental action would be for the officials to put themselves in a receptive mood for the generous consideration of any peace offer that might come from the Central Powers.

"I think that all Americans should put themselves in a position to sympathetically receive and consider any offer embodying fundamental concessions that would commend themselves to the Teutonic Allies and to weigh their propositions in a dispassionate and broad-minded way."

NO DISTINCT REGIONAL CONFERENCES TO BE PROVIDED.

From the Central Christian Advocate (Kansas City) of December 27, of which Dr. Claudius B. Spencer, a member of the Northern Methodist Commission on Unification, is the able editor, we take the following:

"The Joint Commission seems to be agreed that the membership of the General Conference shall also be and constitute the members of the Quadrennial Conferences, which, it will be remembered, do all the legislating for the churches and membership represented in that body. They will also elect all the Bishops, Secretaries, Boards, Editors, and Connectional officers of every kind." (Of course, Dr. Spencer means such legislating as is not done by the General Conference, which the enumerated powers of that body show would be very little, and in the case of the Bishops nominated or elected they would have to be confirmed by the General Conference, and under certain minor restrictions, easily met, they could be used in any other section of the Church.—Ed. N. O. Advocate.)

Thus it seems that the program tentatively agreed upon is to have no Regional Conferences at all, in the proper sense of that term as it was originally understood in the union negotiations, each of the so-called Quadrennial Conferences being made up of the delegates to the General Conference from a certain prescribed area, and being a sort of adjunct to that great assembly. An arrangement very much like this already exists in the Northern Church, the delegates to the General Conference from each of the several administrational areas meeting separately, at the time that the General Conference sits, to elect certain officials, to perform certain delegated administrative functions, etc.

Down to these subsidiary, brief meetings, composed of members temporarily withdrawn from the great General Conference, the three or four original Regional Conferences that were expected to be made up of delegates independently chosen and to be largely autonomous, have dwindled. And these subsidiary bodies may be rearranged, made over, or multiplied by the powerful General Conference, which under the pending program would never be without a large Northern majority.

There is not the slightest doubt that the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, is face to face with the question as to whether she is willing to come completely under the domination of the Church, North. It is no answer to this statement to say that no arrangement is being made for the Southern Church that is not being made for the Northern Church. That could be said if the two bodies were being directly merged, without any side arrangements at all; yet every one knows that if an organization with 2,000,000 members should unite with one having 4,000,000 members, without any protection being guaranteed to the smaller body, it would be nothing less than overwhelmed and absorbed.

It has been universally admitted heretofore that "an adequate protection of minorities" was absolutely necessary to make possible the unification of American Methodism—even the Northern Commissioners expressly so reported to their General Conference at Minneapolis in 1912—yet a Southern Commissioner has lately in effect taken the position that no complaint should be made because of the absence of such protection; that precisely the same handling of the two Churches in bringing them together is all that any one has a right to expect; that the smaller body needs no more safeguarding than the larger. How can Southern Methodists be otherwise than apprehensive when a Commissioner who is charged with the sacred duty of caring for the priceless interests of their beloved Church shows no clearer comprehension than this of the vast and far-reaching issues involved?

AN IMPERATIVE CALL.

The statement by Dr. S. H. Werlein, which appears on Page Six of this issue of the Advocate, deals with a matter of much importance. Our Church has at this time no more imperative duty than that of doing her full part toward looking after the soldiers in the various cantonments within the bounds of her territory. The Louisiana Conference acted wisely in taking steps to raise a fund for this purpose, and the Committee that has been designated to lead in this undertaking is an excellent one. We trust that there will be a full attendance at the meeting that Dr. Werlein has called, and that this commendable movement will be pushed with vigor and dispatch.

Let our pastors throughout the State and all others who are expected to co-operate give this cause the prompt and active support which it deserves. We believe that our people in Louisiana will respond generously to this appeal if it is faithfully presented to them. And it would, we think, be a proper thing if some of the other Conferences which have no cantonment work to look after, but from which troops have been sent to Louisiana, would take a hand in the raising of this fund. Why not? Surely such an obligation as this should not be restricted to Conference boundaries.

NOT THE PLACE TO DO IT.

Bishop Candler is reported to have said in a sermon at the late session of the South Georgia Conference: "I am not opposed to killing a few Germans, but do not do it in the pulpit." This strikingly-put exhortation is timely. Our churches should be thoroughly loyal to our country and co-operate heartily in all the benevolent activities that the great world-war has made necessary, but we do not think that their pulpits should abandon the Gospel of Christ for inflammatory utterances concerning the great conflict now raging. There are plenty of other forums for all discussions of that kind that may be needed. Let the preacher in the house of God on the holy Sabbath deal with the eternal interests of deathless souls, which may soon stand before the judgment throne of Deity. Commendable as it is, patriotism alone cannot save men.

Touching upon this question, a writer in a recent issue of the Wesleyan Christian Advocate said:

"It is going to take a courageous pulpit to be true to the Gospel in the present conditions; a weak and demagogic pulpit can gain popularity by becoming an echo of Congress or of the President, and even by vindictive denunciation of our enemies. I do not believe that our great President, true to the great principles of the Church in which his father was a distinguished minister, desires that kind of support from the American pulpit."

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

The year of 1917 brought us war. Shall we not pray that 1918 may bring us peace?

Rev. W. E. Dickens, of Pachuta, Miss., says: "We are now in our new home, and are pleased with the prospect. We are hoping to have a great year."

Rev. R. H. Barr, writes as follows: "I have just reached my new charge and am much pleased with it. Please state in the Advocate that my address henceforth will be Foxworth, Miss."

Rev. W. H. Coleman, pastor of the First M. E. Church, South, of New Orleans, was reported to be ill the first part of this week. We trust that his sickness will be of brief duration.

In a note to our office Rev. H. P. Lewis, Sr., of Jackson, Miss., states that he has been connected with the Mississippi Conference since November, 1857—sixty years. His has, indeed, been a long and worthy record.

Rev. and Mrs. C. A. Battle, of Baton Rouge, La., entertained Brother R. H. Harper, Brother H. W. May, and Brother Seegers at dinner one day last week. We dare say that good fellowship abounded and that there was "table talk" worth hearing on that occasion.

Rev. J. F. Foster, of Shreveport, La., pastor of the Bayou La Chute charge, spent several days in New Orleans last week, and while here was several times in the Advocate office. We are always glad to see Brother Foster, who carries sunshine wherever he goes.

Rev. W. F. Baggett writes as follows: "We arrived at Carriere, Miss., our new field, on December 20, and were given a pleasant reception by the good people. They had prepared dinner for us at the parsonage, and soon after we came in they left—we did the rest."

Rev. J. B. Randolph reports that he has been cordially received at Okolona, Miss., and that he is expecting a good year. Another correspondent informs us that Okolona has advanced the assessment made for the pastor's salary $200, and is planning to pay it monthly.

Rev. H. W. May, presiding elder of the Baton Rouge District, preached at First Church, Baton Rouge, on December 23. Complimentary echoes of his sermon on that occasion have reached our office. Brother May reports that the work in his territory is starting off well.

Rev. Geo. P. Fikes, until recently a member of the Mississippi Conference, thus writes: "I was transferred by Bishop Murrah to the N. Arkansas Conference and have been appointed by Bishop Mouzon to West Searcy, Ark.—a fine place, with a fine people, in a fine country."

Rev. M. M. Black, of Jackson, Miss., Commissioner for Millsaps College, spent Sunday, December 23, with relatives in Natchez, and preached for Rev. W. H. Saunders, the pastor of Jefferson Street Church, at the evening hour. His discourse was an able and impressive one.

Rev. T. H. Lipscomb, presiding elder of the Aberdeen District, informs us that Rev. John Wesley Joues has been appointed to the Houston (Miss.) Circuit. Brother Lipscomb states that this charge developed remarkably last year under the pastoral care of Rev. W. M. Commander.

From Fernwood, Miss., Rev. A. M. Broadfoot writes: "I have been given a cordial reception, and I feel that I am among the best people in the Mississippi Conference. I have started upon the work of the new year amid many encouraging signs and expressions of loving co-operation."

Rev. J. R. Jones, presiding elder of the Seashore (Miss.) District, says: "Escatawpa, left to be supplied at the last session of our Conference, has been filled by the apointment to it of Rev. J. C. Ellis, Jr., a son of our pastor at Topisaw, Miss. He is a sprightly young man and bids fair to do well."

"Watch Night" services were scheduled to be held at our First Church, at the Algiers Church, at Felicity Church, and at the Carrollton Avenue Church, all of this city. Rev. C. A. Battle, of Baton Rouge, was one of the speakers at "Old Felicity," which he served as pastor a few years ago with great acceptability.

Rev. A. H. Williams, of Cochrane, Ala., writes: "We have had a good beginning at Cochrane, Dancy, and Pinola, on the A. T. and N. Railroad (Columbus, Miss., District), and things look encouraging." We venture to say that the people of the Cochrane charge will be delighted with Brother Williams' preaching.

Mrs. Laura M. White, who is connected with our French Mission work near Houma, La., and Miss M. D. Thomson, of New Orleans, in company with Rev. A. J. Gearheard, were pleasant callers at the Advocate office last Saturday afternoon. Mrs. White spoke encouragingly of the outlook in the great field in which she is laboring.

Brother and Sister J. D. Watkins have rented their farm near Byhalia, Miss., and have gone to Indianola, Miss., where they will reside with their daughter, Mrs. Will Ray. We regret to learn that Brother Watkins' health is not good, but we hope that it will soon improve. May the way of these friends of the Advocate grow brighter with the passing days!

Rev. C. R. A. Brantley, of Vardaman, Miss., sends us three subscriptions from his charge, for which he has our thanks. He says: "I am here at my post, and things seem to be moving off well, considering the weather, etc. I feel, however, that they will move still better if I can get my people to read the Advocate. I hope to send you other subscriptions very soon."

Mrs. Gohn C. Jones, and her daughter, Miss Lula Jones, of Belen, Miss., brightened the Advocate office with their presence Monday of last week; but, much to his regret, the Editor, being out, missed seeing them. He was often a guest in the home of Brother and Sister Jones when he was the presiding elder of the Greenville District and has never forgotten their kindness to him.

Rev. J. C. Mims, who until recently was a member of the Central Texas Conference, was a welcome visitor to our office last week. Brother Mims expects to spend the winter in New Orleans. Later he will go to the University of Chicago to take up some lines of study. He recently spent a Sunday in Clarksdale, Miss., preaching while there for our pastor in that city, Rev. R. O. Brown.

The statement by Rev. A. W. Turner, which we are publishing this week, should be to the prohibitionists of Louisiana a call to battle. The clock of opportunity has struck for the temperance forces of this State, and they should without delay bestir themselves to accomplish the utmost possible. Set the banner forward, Brother Turner, that all the opponents of the liquor traffic may rally around it.

Rev. D. R. McDougal is in place at Calhoun City, Miss., and has made his first round on his new charge. He finds that there is plenty to do, but says, "I am resolved to give the people here the best that I have in stock." He has called for a list of the Advocate's subscribers, that he may have the Conference organ as a co-worker. We hazard the prediction that good things will be heard from Calhoun City this year.

Rev. C. C. Miller, of Morgan City, La., called at our office on Monday, December 31, having stopped in New Orleans on his way to Nashville, Tenn., whither he was going to attend the annual meeting of the Missionary Secretaries of the Annual Conferences. Brother Miller stated that he had been kindly received in his new charge, and that he feels that the lines this year have indeed fallen to him in pleasant places.

The new Napoleon Avenue Presbyterian Church of this city was dedicated last Sunday afternoon, the dedicatory sermon being preached by Dr. James I Vance, of Nashville, Tenn., to an audience estimated at 800 people. This splendid structure, together with the lot, cost $100,000. It fronts on St. Charles Street. The Rev. Dr. U. D. Mooney is the pastor. The plan is to erect a manse on a lot adjoining the church in the near future.

In a personal letter to the Editor, Hon. W. W. Magruder, of Starkville, Miss., thus refers to the death of Rev. W. S. Harrison: "Brother Harrison's death is a great loss to our Sunday school, to our church, and to our community. He was one of our great, good men." Brother Magruder is the superintendent of our Sunday school in Starkville and an official in our church there; hence he is in a position to speak authoritatively concerning Brother Harrison's worth and work.

From Minter, Miss., Rev. L. W. Cain writes: "I feel that God will help us to do a telling work for the Master here. After eighteen months of service, I left the Sunflower Circuit an established $1200 charge." Brother Cain's first-born child, L. W., Jr., gave up the study of medicine to serve his country and is a sergeant in Company I, 151th Infantry, which is now at Camp Beauregard. He is much missed by the dear ones at home, who are proud, however, of his patriotic devotion to his country.

From a letter from Rev. S. L. Pope, pastor of our First Church at Columbus, Miss., we extract the following: "We have taken up the work here and have found the people cordial and alive to the great interests of the Kingdom. Brother Duren wrought well here for the past four years and was deservedly popular. He has entered with great zeal upon his work as the leader of our forces in the Columbus District, and I predict that he will make one of the great presiding elders of our Conference."

We take the following from a recent issue of the Nashville Christian Advocate: "Rev. I. D. Borders, until recently pastor of Melrose Church, Kansas City, left this week for service 'somewhere in France.' He goes as a captain, having secured his commission after several months of training at Fort Sheridan. Captain Borders gladly accepted the opportunity for service at the front and goes to give his best to his country and the cause of human freedom. To his friends throughout the Church, he sends a message of affectionate farewell. The good wishes and prayers of many go with him."

It is with sincere sorrow that we reproduce the following dispatch, taken from the Daily States: "Fort Worth, Texas, Dec. 29.—Dr. A. L. Andrews, pastor of the First Methodist Church of this city, his wife and his son, William, were instantly killed late Friday, when an automobile in which they were coming to Fort Worth crashed into the Sunshine Special on the Missouri Pacific Railroad at a crossing near Dalworth. The car was demolished." Dr. Andrews, whom we know personally, was one of the most efficient pastors in Southern Methodism, and in his death the Church has sustained a great loss.

From the Kosciusko (Miss.) Herald of December 20, we take the following: "Rev. E. H. Cunningham, the new pastor of the Methodist Church here, preached his first sermon last Sunday morning. The audience that greeted him was a fairly good one, considering the severely cold weather and the icy condition of the sidewalks. Mr. Cunningham delivered a very able sermon, in the course of which he touched upon the war in which we, as a nation, are involved and paid a very high tribute to our beloved President, Woodrow Wilson. His discourse struck a responsive chord in the hearts of his hearers."

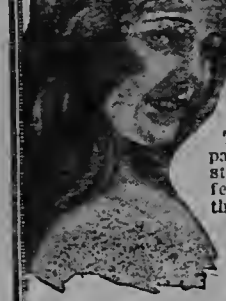
ANOTHER YEAR.

By Wm. C. Allen.

The experiences of every year may be compared to those associated with ascending the wonderful canyons of the mighty West. Those deep valleys —the Spanish word "canyon" means "tube in the mountain"— penetrate the rugged wilderness of rocks and woodland and often afford the only route whereby the summit of some splendid peak may finally be reached. The brave traveler sets out for his destination, just as we at the beginning of each twelve-month with renewed courage consider the coming year.

These canyons, like the succeeding weeks in the lives of many of us, afford an ever-shifting scene. Sometimes they are arid; no gushing waters are near to refresh the weary inland voyager. Again they may be the only outlets for the limpid springs of water that merge into living streams at his tired feet. Obstacles unexpectedly frustrate his intent. Huge boulders may intervene. Sometimes a lovely spot of green mosses and dainty wild flowers allure to an hour's repose. Many a halt is necessary wherein to accumulate fresh strength for the upward march. The climb is renewed. Gigantic precipices tower on every side. How helpless is the traveler in the circumstances surrounding him! Sometimes all view of the outer world is cut off. Only a blue ribbon of God's beautiful sky is above. There seems no way of escape. To retreat would be cowardly. Faith is once more invoked and he presses onward. Just when the adamantine rocks crowd most relentlessly before him, he discovers an unexpected turn to right or left. How glad he is that he went right forward. Trust and courage have met with a sure reward. At last the summit is attained. The things that obstructed his progress seem in retrospect very small. Heaven is above him and the world lies at his feet. In the quiet of the rare upper atmosphere he is very close to God.

So to the Christian are the passing years. The incidents of life may crowd never so hard, the water springs may temporarily cease to flow, the flowerlets of joy may not be seen because we think of our feet bruised and torn. The cruel, hard walls of circumstances may at times seem to hopelessly enclose us. Shall we give up? No! We continue the material and spiritual struggle. We consider the end of our eventful and wonderful life-journey—of the sun-bathed splendor of the upper world.



Every year takes the child of faith valorously upward toward his beautiful Heaven. Each succeeding twelve-month finds the child of God one year nearer to the celestial joy.

WONDERFUL EGG PRODUCER

Any poultry raiser can easily double his profits by doubling the egg production of his hens. A scientific tonic has been discovered that revitalizes the flock and makes hens work all the time. The tonic is called "More Eggs." Give your hens a few cents' worth of "More Eggs" and you will be amazed and delighted with results. A dollar's worth of "More Eggs" will double this year's production of eggs, so if you wish to try this great profit maker, write E. J. Reefer, Poultry Expert, 6401 Reefer Building, Kansas City, Mo., who will send you a season's supply of "More Eggs" Tonic for $1 (prepaid). So confident is Mr. Reefer of the results that a million-dollar bank guarantees if you are not absolutely satisfied your dollar will be returned on request and the "More Eggs" costs you nothing. Send a dollar to-day or ask Mr. Reefer for his free poultry book that tells the experience of a man who has made a fortune out of poultry. —Adv.

In the death of Mr. WILLIAM H. REYNOLDS, which occurred on Oct. 21, 1917, the church at Starkville and the entire community have cause to shed bitter tears of sorrow, and also cause for great joy in the rich legacy of character left for their encouragement. He was a quiet, unobtrusive man, but all who knew him felt the force of a character which stood for all that is best in human life. His piety was of the gentle, pervasive variety, with never a tinge of mere pretense. He was liberal in support of his church and in his quiet way upheld the truest ideals of church life. His honesty was unimpeachable. As a magistrate, for thirty-five years his administration of justice was in the highest degree commendable. Time and again he breasted the strong currents of public opinion in favor of justice, humanity and right. As a lover of peace and concord, he often effected peaceful settlements when legal procedure would have been to his financial advantage. As a loyal son of his section, he fought bravely through the great Civil War from beginning to end, and carried the marks of his wounds to the grave. After the war, he married one of the noblest women of this community, and in poverty, by the hardest labor, on the lowest rung of toil, they together laid the foundation of a competence. At about the age of seventy-five, loved, honored, and widely respected, he, in the presence of his family and loved ones, passed peacefully to his reward.

W. S. HARRISON
Starkville, Miss.

IN MEMORIAM.

(A tribute to Rev. W. S. Harrison from the "W. S. Harrison Bible Class" of the Sunday school of the M. E. Church, South, at Starkville, Miss.)

We are here to-day to pay this tribute of our affection and esteem to our beloved and now deceased teacher, Rev. W. S. Harrison, and to record in this memorial our estimate of his worth. This we do affectionately, but very imperfectly, because the salient features characterizing Brother Harrison are hard to relate in so brief a space.

Three characteristics stand out in bold relief to us:

First: He was a man of intellect. No student sat under his instruction, during even one lesson, without knowing this well. His deep study lent him a knowledge of the things he professed, and his practice in expression gave him a fluency and clearness seldom equaled. He had drunk deep from the springs of information and his deliverances were, therefore, illuminating.

Second: He was a man of faith. Passing through the ordeals and the baneful aftermath of the Civil War, and seeing the greatest by far of all cataclysms of human greed manifest by human slaughter, still he was calm, self-poised, resting in the eternal verities of the final triumph being in righteousness. Never a word of reproach further than condemnation of wrong—withal no hint of vengeance to spend nor of greed to satisfy. When called upon for testimony in the open meeting, he would give his experience as the basis, and thus challenge all listeners to a faith thus embodied.

Third: He was a spiritual man. By this we mean that he set up no material excellence or achievement as of first place. His ambitions did not lead him into a scramble for temporal place or power; the excellencies of the Kingdom of God were his excellencies. Recognizing a birth in the image of his Maker and looking up to Him in reverent faith, he caught the spiritual vision. The Fatherhood of God was to him an eternal verity and his knowledge of the brotherhood of man was a daily experience.

Thus he grasped with the right hand the power of God and with the left the brotherhood of man. These swept him rejoicing into the Kingdom; for naught less than a spiritual vision could have made that day of transition from earth to heaven a "glad day" to him!

But now the harpstring is broken—no more we hear the sweet cadence of his speech or look upon his presence. Nor shall we see his like again. Old things have passed away; the new that shall come to us instead will be but a supply, not a replacement.

And may we conclude this brief tribute with his own parting exhortation—that we carry the work on, striving to emulate his ideals? Thereby, we will prepare ourselves a like "glad day" for entrance through the gates into the City of the Living God.

Cordially submitted,
Signed: Mrs. W. W. Magruder, G. G. Snow, J. J. Gill, Committee.
Starkville, Miss., Dec. 16, 1917.

UNION'S NEW PRESIDENT.

"It is announced that Dr. Arthur C. McGiffert has become President of Union Theological Seminary. It is fitting that he should be. He represents the destructive, rationalizing, German type of scholarship which has broken down that institution from being an evangelical seminary. Dr. McGiffert is not a member of the Presbyterian Church, withdrawing from the Presbyterian to the Congregational ministry years ago, in the face of a prosecution for unsatisfactory teachings. It now becomes plainer than ever before that young men who wish to have evangelical relationships should not attend Union Seminary." —Herald and Presbyter.

The Presbyterian speaks of the matter as follows:

"In regard to modern destructive criticism Dr. McGiffert is an extremist What Lenine is to Russian Socialism, what Von Tirpitz is to autocratic militarism, such is Dr. McGiffert to anti-evangelical destructivism. In his election, Union Seminary nails to its top mast the banner of Germanized theology. In this it is frankly honest. Some men connected with the Seminary are more moderate, but the whole trend of the seminary since it broke away from the Presbyterian Church has been toward the religion of the German genius. Henceforth, Union Seminary publishes most openly its real plan and purpose, and the candidate for an evangelical church who turneth in thither is not wise."

Among the books in the new Course of Study for our young preachers that our Bishops have illegally forced upon the Methodist Episcopal Church, is one by this same Dr. McGiffert, and another by George A. Coe, a professor in this same hotbed of infidelity. John Wesley's sermons, which from the first have always been in this course, were thrown out to make room for the works of these un-Methodistic and faith-wrecking teachers. It is a high-handed outrage, and we as a Church have thereby been disgraced before evangelical Christendom.—Dr. L. W. Munhall, in The Eastern Methodist.

"Another year is dawning,
Dear Master, let it be,
In working or in waiting,
Another year with thee."

The Old Year with all its joys and sorrows lies behiud us and we enter upon the New Year feeling that unless it is another year with Him it shall be lived in vain. The oft repeated phrase "Happy New Year!" seems almost a mockery now when so many hearts are sad and heavy over the sacrifice to service of their dearest and best. But, if we look deeper into the meaning of the words we can find a new and richer significance; for if "the joy of the Lord" is ours sorrow may encompass us, but back of it all will be that deep and abiding peace which leads to happiness in Him.

As we stand upon the threshold of this new year, we know not what awaits us and we entreat our women all over the Southland to draw closer to the Master and live in more perfect accord with His will than ever before. May we realize that because some have failed to hold aloft the cross of Christ the horrors of this dreadful war have come upon us. We have been too busy with material things and too little time has been spent at the Master's feet.

We are living in a time when great demands are being made upon us, and whether it be for our wealth, our time, or the choicest lives in our homes all are gladly surrendered to aid our country. Are we as eager, as anxious to give these same precious gifts, and in as great abundance, to our King Immanuel? No longer must we deal in dimes and dollars but we must pour out our wealth at His feet to be used for the advancement of His kingdom.

Already intense suffering is the fate of many of our representatives in foreign lands, due to the fall in the rate of exchange, a fact that has been dwelt upon in every denominational as well as missionary paper. Still we are letting these urgent appeals go unheeded, thinking perhaps some other community will take them up—so prone are we to shift our responsibilities. Let us throw off this cloak of indifference and gladly embrace every opportunity to help in the world-wide war against sin. Let us give and work as though the whole transaction depended upon us, and seemingly impossible tasks will be accomplished, for "with Him all things are possible."

Let each and every one of us determine at the beginning of the year to know and do and love the will of God, and then we shall realize, as Henry Drummond says, "there is no happiness in having or in getting, but only in giving."

THE PROBLEM OF THE ALIENS IN AMERICA.

Closing the gate to the alien is really no solution of our immigration problem. The alien is already here. Besides, is it a Christian solution? "There is no difference between the Jew and the Greek, for the same Lord over all is rich unto all that call upon him."

America cannot, if it would, be a hermit nation. The day is past for any people to bar themselves off from the rest of mankind. In these days of wireless telegraphy and aerial navigation and universal language, the pulse-beat of the race kin cannot be ignored. There are no longer any desert solitudes. The races have become the people.

The problem can be solved only by the Gospel of Christ. We are not afraid of any shipload of foreigners who come to us loyal to the Cross of Christ. They cannot come too soon or too often. We welcome them. But what if they are not Christians? What if they are only nominal Christians? Is it not evident that our salvation as a nation depends upon our making them Christians? There is a stronger bond than love of country. It is love of Christ. And when men find Christ, they are one, though they come from the ends of the earth.

Therefore, this question is a great missionary problem. It rises up before us. It is imperative. In what is no doubt a providence, God has brought the ends of the earth to us. We were slow in taking the Gospel to them. The Savior seems now to be saying: "I have waited long, but my people are slow to go. After nineteen hundred years, two-thirds of the world are without the Gospel. I will bring the nations to my people." They are here at our doors. It is a glorious missionary opportunity.

The success or failure of foreign missions is going to be settled here at home. If we cannot Christianize the heathen in a Christian country, we will never do it in a heathen country. God has driven us into a corner, and is saying to the Church: "Now do your duty or die!" There never was a greater opportunity than that which now confronts Protestant Christianity in America to evangelize the alien. And the alien is convertible. He can be Christianized. Christ is not only "the power of God unto salvation" to Sons of the American Revolution, to Colonial Dames, to Daughters of the Confederacy, to members of the Grand Army of the Republic, but to the Italian in the ditch, to the Hungarian in the coal mines, to the Pole in the packing-houses, to the Jew from the steppes of Russia, to the Hindu from the filth of India. The tide of immigration rolls in, carrying on its crest a matchless opportunity to the Christian Church.

Are we meeting it? What does the immigrant think of our Christianity? That we believe it? Do we give him Christian treatment? Not always. A Ruthenian priest says: "My people do not live in America. They live underneath America. America goes on over their heads. My people do not love America. Why should they, from what they see of it?' The wretchedness of many of these aliens in a strange land is enough to move to pity the sternest of that guild whose shibboleth is: "America for the Americans!"

Only Christianity can solve the problem, but it will take a new brand of Christianity, not this formal, faint-hearted, self-indulgent, dress-parade Christianity, but one that can stand had smells and foul sights, and go down to the gates of hell to save a lost soul, that has enough of Christ in it to love iniquity into goodness, and hostility into brotherhood! — Rev. James I. Vance.

DAY OF PRAYER FOR FOREIGN MISSIONS, FRIDAY, JAN. 11.

The Executive Committee of the Federation of Women's Boards at its meeting in New York City, October 5, 1917, appointed Friday, January 11, 1918, as a Day of Prayer for Foreign Missions. All women's missionary organizations, denominational and interdenominational, are requested to observe it in truth as a day of prayer. Never was intercessory prayer more needed than to-day, when the world is full of suffering and sorrow.

The hours to be observed are from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m., the noon hour being optional. An outline of the program will be found in the December Missionary Voice.

Tobacco Habit Easily Conquered

A New Yorker of wide experience has written a book telling how the tobacco or snuff habit may be easily and completely banished in three days with delightful benefit. The author, Edward J. Woods, 1629-A, Station E, New York City, will mail his book free on request. The health improves wonderfully after the nicotine poison is out of the system. Calmness, tranquil sleep, clear eyes, normal appetite, good digestion, manly vigor, strong memory and a general gain in efficiency are among the many benefits reported. Get rid of that nervous feeling; no more need of pipe, cigar, cigarette, snuff or chewing tobacco to pacify morbid desire.

SOUR, ACID STOMACHS, GASES OR INDIGESTION

Each "Pape's Diapepsin" digests 3000 grains food, ending all stomach misery in five minutes.

Time it! In five minutes all stomach distress will go. No indigestion, heartburn, sourness or belching of gas, acid, or eructations of undigested food, no dizziness, bloating, foul breath or headache.

Pape's Diapepsin is noted for its speed in regulating upset stomachs. It is the surest, quickest stomach remedy in the whole world and besides it is harmless. Put an end to stomach trouble forever by getting a large fifty-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin from any drug store. You realize in five minutes how needless it is to suffer from indigestion, dyspepsia or any stomach disorder. It's the quickest, surest and most harmless stomach doctor in the world.

"If we are not hungering and thirsting after righteousness, we shall be sure to be hungering and thirsting after worldliness."

ATTENTION! Sick Women

To do your duty during these trying times your health should be your first consideration. These two women tell how they found health.

Hellam, Pa.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for female troubles and a displacement. I felt all run down and was very weak. I had been treated by a physician without results, so decided to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial, and felt better right away. I am keeping house since last April and doing all my housework, where before I was unable to do any work. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is certainly the best medicine a woman can take when in this condition. I give you permission to publish this letter."—Mrs. E. R. CRUMLING, R. No. 1, Hellam, Pa.

Lowell, Mich.—"I suffered from cramps and dragging down pains, was irregular and had female weakness and displacement. I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound which gave me relief at once and restored my health. I should like to recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's remedies to all suffering women who are troubled in a similar way."—Mrs. ELISE HEIM, R. No. 6, Box 83, Lowell, Mich.

BUILDING DEBT IS PAID.

St. Mark's M. E. Church, South, in Rampart Street, Dedicated.

With $1115 subscribed by the congregation in half an hour, or $17 more than needed to finish paying for the building, what was originally intended to be a simple opening of St. Mark's M. E. Church, South, 1140 North Rampart street, was turned into a formal dedication Sunday afternoon, Dec. 23. No Methodist Church can be dedicated until it is paid for or the money assured. This is the mission that has sprung from the settlement work, started a decade ago below Canal Street. For several years the church has been using St. Mark's Hall, in Esplanade Avenue, as a place of worship. Some months ago, however, the Rev. W. E. Thomas, superintendent of missions, began to work for a separate building, and Sunday's dedication was the result. The church will be renamed shortly. Though the architectural construction is of the plainest, the lines of the church are pleasing, and the interior, is built in timbered effect, with neat panels, is inviting. The painting is in harmonious colors. Besides the main auditorium there is a Sunday school room and vestry.—Times-Picayune.

HOMER, LA.

My Dear Doctor Meek: We held a white Christmas service here on last Sunday evening, Dec. 23. The church was filled to its capacity and the service was effective. A number of people expressed their purpose of reconsecration to God, and a handsome offering was taken for the Army and Navy work of the American Bible Society.

We are looking forward to a good year at this point. There are three churches here that belong to denominations that call their pastors. All of these are at present without preachers. Two of them have been without pastors for some time. None of them know where to get a man. We are often told that the constant moving of Methodist preachers is a feature that some do not like. However, our people do not have trouble in getting men when they are needed. Yours faithfully,

W. L. DOSS, Jr.

Unimpeachable—If you were to see the unqualled volume of unimpeachable testimony in favor of Hood's Sarsaparilla, you would upbraid yourself for so long delaying to take this effective medicine for that blood disease from which you are suffering.—Adv.

THREE NOTABLE GARDENS.

Three gardens stand out prominently In the Bible and play a most important part in our lives. The sin of the Garden of Eden would close the gate of the garden of Paradise to mankind. The surrender in the Garden of Gethsemane opened the gates of Paradise to all those that accepted the salvation thus provided.—Alan Pressley Wilson.

If Back Hurts Use Salts f r Kidneys

Eat less meat if Kidneys feel like lead or Bladder bothers you —Meat forms uric acid.

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean, and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is harmless to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity. It also neutralizes the acids so they no longer irritate, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is harmless inexpensive, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everybody should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean, thus avoiding serious complications.

A well known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

To Drive Out Malaria And Build Up The System

Take the Old Standard GROVE'S TASTELESS chill TONIC. You know what you are taking, as the formula is printed on every label, showing it is Quinine and Iron in a tasteless form. The Quinine drives out malaria, the Iron builds up the system. 60 cents.

10 CENT "CASCARETS" IF BILIOUS OR COSTIVE

For Sick Headache, Sour Stomach, Sluggish Liver and Bowels—They work while you sleep.

Furred Tongue, Bad Taste, Indigestion, Sallow Skin and Miserable Headaches come from a torpid liver and clogged bowels, which cause your stomach to become filled with undigested food, which sours and ferments like garbage in a swill barrel. That's the first step to untold misery—indigestion, foul gases, bad breath, yellow skin, mental fears, everything that is horrible and nauseating. A Cascaret to-night will give your constipated bowels a thorough cleansing and straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist will keep you feeling good for months.

Avoid Dangerous Drugs

Don't dose yourself with poisonous drugs that destroy the delicate lining of the stomach and the intestinal tract, when you can stimulate your sluggish liver by using Granger Liver Regulator. This standard medicine contains no poisonous calomel. It contains no injurious alcohol. It does not cause unpleasant after effects. A dose or so will soon relieve sick headache, indigestion, constipation, depression, languor and all other ailments caused by a torpid liver. Granger Liver Regulator is composed entirely of selected roots, barks and herbs of special medicinal value. It may be freely taken by any member of the family. Just try a few doses, and see for yourself what a splendid medicine this is and how thoroly it cleanses the system of impurities. Price, 25c a box. Sold by all druggists. Demand Granger Liver Regulator and accept no substitute.

With the Fingers! Says Corns Lift Out Without Any Pain

Sore corns, hard corns, soft corns or any kind of a corn can shortly be lifted right out with the fingers if you will apply directly upon the corn a few drops of freezone, says a Cincinnati authority.

It is claimed that at small cost one can get a quarter of an ounce of freezone at any drug store, which is sufficient to rid one's feet of every corn or callus without pain or soreness or the danger of infection.

This new drug is an ether compound, and while sticky, dries the moment it is applied and does not inflame or even irritate the surrounding tissue.

This announcement will interest many women here, for it is said that the present high-heel footwear is putting corns on practically every woman's feet.—Adv.

HE HAS IRON IN HIS BLOOD

That is why he is such a great winner, accomplishes so much, why he overcomes obstacles and knows no such thing as failure

Iron in the successful formula for Peptiron, which also includes pepsin, nux, celery and other tonics, sedatives and digestives, helps to give strength, color and body to the blood; reddens pale cheeks, steadies the nerves, nourishes and gives stamina to the whole body.

Peptiron is in pill form, chocolate coated, pleasant to take, easily assimilated—the most successful combination of iron that its makers, C. I. Hood Co., Lowell, Mass., know of.

It is the medicine for you.

It will put iron into your blood.

Scientific Treatment For Rheumatism.

Rheumatism is caused by uric acid in the blood. In order to be cured of rheumatism it is necessary to neutralize this acid. RENWAR is a salt combination scientifically prepared to neutralize the uric acid in the blood. There is nothing in Renwar to injure the stomach or affect the heart. It acts solely upon uric acid, completely eliminating it from the blood and thereby relieving your rheumatism. It is harmless but effective. Positively guaranteed by money-back offer. It is a godsend to sufferers from rheumatism. Renwar also corrects constipation. Mr. J. M. Willis of the Nashville Railway and Light Company says: "I must say that Renwar far surpassed my expectations, for it gave me almost immediate relief; too much can not be spoken in behalf of 'Renwar' for rheumatism." Sold by druggists; price 50 cents, or by mail from WARNER DRUG COMPANY, NASHVILLE, TENN.

The district stewards are called to meet in the Methodist Church at Brookhaven, January 9, 1918, at 1:30 p. m. The pastors of the district are cordially invited to this meeting.

Dear Dr. Meek: These good people were enthusiastic in the reception of their new preacher. Brother J. M. Bradley was kind enough to do his part toward seeing that I should receive a hearty welcome, which I appreciate very much indeed. We are much pleased with our new home and parish. Everything looks like we are going to have a happy and prosperous year together. Brother Lipscomb and his interesting family have been as thoughtful of our interests as they could be, all of which we deeply appreciate. We are looking forward with pleasure to our association with Brother Lipscomb and his family.

J. TILLERY LEWIS.

Tucker, La.

Dear Brother Meek: This is to say that, in response to the very urgent appeal of our great, wise, and good President, contained in your issue of Dec. 13, for the help of the starving Syrians and Armenians, the Epworth League of the Deerford M. E. Church, South, Deerford, La., got busy, and, as a result of their efforts, I am pleased to be able to report to you that the amount of $10 was raised, and that the writer, their Secretary, was instructed to send the said amount at once to Rev. E. B. Chappell, D. D., Nashville, Tenn., as you suggested in the Advocate. I am trusting that the money which we have raised and sent this day will, along with many other thousands of contributions, reach Dr. Chappell promptly, and that "our bit" may be received in time to do its part in the alleviation of these suffering Christians.

I am glad to report that we had a nice service at our church yesterday, despite the fact that the weather was inclement outside. After preaching a Red Cross auxiliary was organized and I think that the ladies mean to be very active in the work for the benefit of the soldiers and sailors. May God grant us a speedy victory in the war!

Yours sincerely,
JOE W. TUCKER, Jr.,
Secretary.

MORAL CLEAN-UP.

The crusade against the restricted districts is gathering strength throughout the nation. To such extent has the sentiment reached that the prediction is made that the cleaning-up process will continue after the restoration of peace, and that the future will be marked by a wonderful improvement of the moral and sanitary condition of the American people.—Madison (La.) Journal.

A TREND THAT SHOULD BE CHECKED.

For years there has been a trend of young men from the country districts to the towns and cities. Boys have imagined, and, perhaps, still to some extent imagine, that country life is too dull and that work on the farm is inclined to get their hands and clothes dirty. As a result, thousands of young men who would have made excellent farmers have moved to the towns and cities and developed into nothing worth while.—Lake Charles American Press.

THE STAR OF BETHLEHEM.

This old sobbing world of ours is one year older than it was when the last Christmas carol was chanted. It has had another twelvemonth of experiments and of experience, of advancement on many lines of human research and acquisition. But it has not outgrown Jesus Christ. For Him it has discovered no substitute. The star of Bethlehem is the only star that never sets. Jesus Christ alone can satisfy all human necessities and the loftiest of human inspirations. Christianity is the only universal religion, the only one adapted to all ages of life, to all human conditions, to all races and all nationalities. Other lights have arisen, waned and vanished forever. The Greek mythology is as utterly shaken to ruin as its own splendid Parthenon. The chief religions of Asia—Brahmanical, Buddhist, and Moslem—all are limited and local; they are all moribund. While they make no inroads on Christianity, the religion of Bethlehem and Calvary makes constant inroads upon them. The systems of error which Paul and Peter fought have vanished out of sight, and the whole east is catching glimpses of the star that first dawned over Judea's sky. In spiritual dynamics blood tells, and God has trusted His gospel of salvation to the most powerful races on the globe.—Rev. Theodore L. Cuyler, D.D.

GOD'S WAY.

We talk about God's remembering us as if it were a special effort. But if we could only know how truly we belong to God it would be different. God's remembrance of us is the natural claiming of our life by him as a true part of his own.—Phillips Brooks.

HEADACHES AND OTHER ACHES AND PAINS.

Pain keeps the thoughts of the sufferer continuously on the ailment that is that causing the pain, and in this way it acts to retard recovery.

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills are their own best advertisers. The wonderful degree of success that they have met with for more than 25 years has been entirely due to their efficiency.

Users are willing to concede that these pills do all that is claimed for them. That is, they promptly relieve headache, backache, neuralgia, rheumatic pains, monthly pains, and almost every other kind of ache or pain and do this without any bad after-effects.

And if the sufferer finds rest from the pain that weakens the mind and harrasses the nerves pending treatment for the cause of the pain he certainly should be satisfied.

Furthermore, Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills do not constipate, do not derange the stomach or leave any disagreeable after-effects when taken as directed.

If you suffer from any ache or pain you will not be out any money to try these pills. Go to your druggist and purchase one box of Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills. Use them as directed and if the results are not satisfactory return the empty package to the druggist and he will immediately return you your money. No questions will be asked. You are the judge of the merits of these pills. Could anything be fairer than this?

MILES MEDICAL CO., Elkhart, Ind.

DEAR FRIENDS:—Let me tell you about my sad misfortune. I am a poor crippled boy, fell and hurt my side and back when I was a little boy out hunting; went to bed and never got up. I have been down in bed 19 years, and it seems so bad to be so I can't walk to go anywhere. I want an automobile so I can be put out in it and taken out; think it would help me. I am going to try to sell enough Deep River Grit Whetstones to get me an automobile. They are very fine and beautiful stones and put the sharpest cutting edge on knives and tools. Kind friend, just think of what an awful helpless and desolate condition I am in, being here confined to my bed for 19 long, weary years, suffering all the time and deprived of ever walking about any more in this world. It breaks my heart, but I will try to trust in God and I hope when you hear about me you will help me get the car, and all I ask is that you send me one dollar for one of these stones, so I can get the car, and it will almost mean new legs for me. Please don't forget me, and may God bless you.

Yours in misfortune,
JOE MORPHEW,

REFINED PATRIOTISM.

The International Sunday School Lesson Committee held its semi-annual meeting in Philadelphia, Pa., December 4 and 5. E. B. Chappell and C. D Bulla, the representatives of our Church, were in attendance.

The committee approved and released the Improved Uniform Lesson for 1920; a three months' course on "The Aims, Motives, and Methods o Modern Missions;" and a year's course of study for Adult Bible Classes entitled, "The Christian in Daily Life."

At the concluding session Dr. F. C Eiselen, of Northwestern University offered the following resolution: "The International Sunday School Lesso Committee in regular session assembled in Philadelphia this fifth day o December, 1917, desires to convey to President Wilson its keen appreciation of the high Christian ideals set forth in his historic message to Congress and to pledge our loyalty and co-operation in all the efforts of the government to realize these ideals in our international relations."

Dr. J. M. Duncan, of Toronto, Ontario, said: "As a Canadian I second the motion to adopt the resolution." Dr. Eiselen rose and in the solemn calm said with deep emotion: "Mr Chairman, I made the motion to adopt and I was born in Germany." The members of the Lesson Committee were thrilled with admiration for a patriotism that cost so much. "He knoweth the way that I take; when he hath tried me, I sall come fortb as gold."—Charles D. Bulla.

ALLENBY'S VICTORY RECALLS PROPHECY.

London, Dec. 20.—The capture of Jerusalem has led to a discussion of the remarkable prophecy uttered when the Kaiser made his theatric entry into the city on a white charger, dressed to look as much like a crusader as possible. It was said then, according to an ancient prophecy, that the liberator of Jerusalem would enter it, not on horseback, but afoot, and would represent Allah and God.

Now that Gen. Allenby has entered Jerusalem afoot, his name with very little straining combines those of Allah and "Nehby," which means God in the Islamic tongue.

The discovery has been given the necessary touch of fatalism to his victory to make it more impressive than ever to eastern minds.—The Commercial Appeal.

Comb Sage Tea in Faded or Gray Hair

Look young! Common garden Sage and Sulphur darkens so naturally nobody can tell.

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and attractive with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyetb's Sage and Sulphur Compound" you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, all ready to use, for about 50 cents. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—It's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural color and looks glossy, soft and beautiful. This preparation is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

doesn't become you and it is as unruly as it is unbecoming. The hair should be soft and light and should hold its original luster when it is healthy. The quickest and surest way to deprive the hair of its original luster is to leave it alone to look out for itself. Each separate hair is an individual delicate structure in itself and every hair on your head, in order to contribute its share of beauty should be perfectly fed with the natural hair oil, which comprises its food. Starve your hair and, like anything else, it will die. Feed your hair with nature's hair food, 'La Creole." This excellent hair food, first discovered by the Creoles of Louisiana fifty years ago and preserved by them, proved a treatment from which sprang their reputation for beautiful hair. It has since been offered the public and has served to beautify the hair of thousands of the tasteful and fastidious.

A LETTER FROM THE SKY.

Mrs. Clay McGaughy of Tupelo, Miss., has received a letter from her son, Clay, Jr., written while he was in an airplane more than 7000 feet in the air. Young McGaughy enlisted in the Mississippi Guard, but has been transferred to the aviation section, signal corps, and is training at Fort Sill, Okla. This is his letter:

"Dear Mamma: I am above the clouds for my first time, at 6700 feet. We are just nosing out of a thick strata of smoke, through which you could see no distance. The smoke stratas are in thick banks.

"The horizon is beautiful, with clouds lying below—am now 7000 feet in the air while writing this. Wish you could see, though it is pretty cold, one purple sea in which the clouds look something like huge cotton mountains.

"Now at 7300 feet. One cloud directly below obscures the earth. Am over Lawton. Can see other planes going home.

"Going down. CLAY."

TELLS WHY CHICKS DIE.

E. J. Reefer, poultry expert, of 640 Reefer Bldg., Kansas City, Mo., is giving away free a new book which tells of a simple home solution that raises 98 per cent of all chicks hatched and cures white diarrhoea over night. All poultry raisers should write for this valuable free book.—Adv.

And earn the martyr's crown of light;
Yet he who lives for God may be
A greater conqueror in His sight."

The concealment of the future is merciful. The certainty of trouble would unnerve us, and the certainty of happiness intoxicate us.—Hom. Magazine.

CHRIST'S SAVING POWER.

Great is Christ's saving power. Has it, then, no limits? It has more than most imagine. It is limited by the freedom of the human will, so that there are more sins committed than sins forsaken. Is he able to check the natural consequences of sin? The repentant sinner may be forgiven, but that does not rebuild the burned barn, restore the stolen money, bring back to life the murdered victim, cure the disease caused by the sin or heal the sorrow. Christ can save a man from the divine punishment and from bondage to sin. Is there anything else accomplished by his salvation?—E. H. Byington.

FOREIGN MISSIONS.

1917 U. S. and Canadian Subscriptions Amounted to $20,405,861.

New York, Dec. 26.—Foreign missions in the United States and Canada received total subscriptions of $20,405,861 in 1917; of which $19,166,864 was from the United States and $1,240,997 from Canada, according to a report by the foreign missions conference of North America, made public here to-day. Nineteen organizations in Canada and 178 in the United States were represented in the figures.

While the combined total is almost exactly that of a year ago, the figures show that Canada, regardless of the burdens of war, subscribed approximately $100,000 more than a year ago, while the United States contributed the same amount less.

"There are at work in the mission lands of Asia, Africa and Oceania," the report continues, "8576 missionaries from the United States and 782 from Canada. The native staff working with these North American missionaries number 40,502. In addition there are 1559 American and 104 Canadian missionaries at work in Latin-American, and 250 in certain of the European countries. There are 498 physicians, including 167 women, at work in 363 hospitals and 537 dispensaries in areas where medical need is the greatest

"More than 1,100,000 communicants are related to the growing churches in the various lands which these missionaries from North America are helping to orrganize and develop."—Times-Picayune.

SLIGHTLY SOILED.

Two theological students were walking along an "old clothes" street in the Whitechapel district of London. Suddenly one exclaimed, "What a splendid text for a sermon to young men!" pointing to a suit of clothes that hung swaying in the breeze at the side of a window. "Slightly Soiled. Greatly Reduced in Price." "That's it exactly," he went on. "We young people get soiled so slightly, just seeing a vulgar show in a theater, just reading a coarse book, just allowing ourselves a little indulgence in dishonest or lustful thoughts, just slightly soiled, and lo! when the time comes for our manhood to be appraised, we are 'greatly reduced in price.' Our charm, our strength is gone. The consecration of youth is gone. We are just part and parcel of the general, shop-soiled stock."—Congregationalist.

GIVE "SYRUP OF FIGS" TO CONSTIPATED CHILD

Delicious "Fruit Laxative" can't harm tender little Stomach, liver and bowels.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, your little one's stomach, liver and bowels need cleansing at once. When peevish, cross, listless, doesn't sleep, eat or act naturally, or is feverish, stomach sour, breath bad; has sore throat, diarrhœa, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of its little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which contains full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups.

I declare, now that I am dying, I would not have spent my life otherwise for the whole world.—David Brainerd.

THICK, GLOSSY HAIR FREE FROM DANDRUFF

Girls! Try it! Hair gets soft, fluffy and beautiful—Get a 25 cent bottle of Danderine.

If you care for heavy hair that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine.

Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff. You can not have nice heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp; the hair roots famish, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast. Surely get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store and just try it.

Nothing earthly will make me give up my work in despair. I encourage myself in the Lord my God and go forward.—Words of David Livingstone shortly before his death.

"The test of greatness with God is not how high we have got up, but how low we are willing to go down."

CALOMEL MAKES YOU SICK, UGH!

"Dodson's Liver Tone" Better Than Calomel and Can Not Salivate.

Calomel loses you a day! You know what calomel is. it's mercury; quicksilver. Calomel is dangerous. It crashes into your bile like dynamite, cramping and sickening you. Calomel attacks the bones and should never be put into your system.

When you feel bilious, sluggish, constipated and all knocked out and believe you need a dose of dangerous calomel just remember that your druggist sells for 50 cents a large bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone, which is entirely vegetable and pleasant to take and is a perfect substitute for calomel. It is guaranteed to start your liver without stirring you up inside, and can not salivate.

Don't take calomel! It makes you sick the net day; it loses you a day's work. Dodson's Liver Tone straightens you right up and you feel great. Give it to the children because it is perfectly harmless and doesn't gripe.

FISHERS OF MEN.

A pastor should he "a fisher of men." He should know who the unsaved in his charge are, have them on his mind and heart, pray for them, tactfully keep in personal touch with them as much as possible, and try to preach in a way to lead them to the Master. This is a glorious work; but alas, how difficult it is! One needs all the skill that one can muster and the constant guidance of the Holy Spirit to be efficient in the mighty task of winning precious souls.

MAKE THEM AS LIBERAL AS POSSIBLE.

We have noticed that there are in some of the Annual Conferences movements of a general nature to create a sentiment in favor of increasing the salaries of the preachers. In view of the fact that the cost of living is so high in this war time, such efforts are, we think, most timely. As is well known, it is the men who work for salaries and who have nothing to sell who are being most pinched by the prevailing high prices. Pastors are included in this class. And, besides, they have necessary expenses that the average salaried man does not. Public sentiment demands that a minister and his family shall be neatly dressed, and if a preacher is to he efficient, he must have money to buy such books and periodicals as will enable him to keep informed and abreast of the times. Furthermore, it is a matter of much importance for a pastor to be free from financial worry. He cannot render the best spiritual service to his parishioners unless he is.

The presiding elders in the Advocate's territory are now on their first rounds of quarterly conferences, and within the next few weeks the assessments for ministerial support will he made in all our charges in Louisiana and Mississippi. We would, therefore, urgo the officials in every pastorate to be as liberal as they reasonably can in making these estimates. They need not fear that they will in any instance pay too much. A pastor has many calls upon him from the poor, the sick, and other sources of which his people know little or nothing. When in the pastorate we sometimes found it necessary to help for weeks needy families, and occasionally it devolved largely upon us to bear the expenses of a funeral. The most liberal givers to worthy causes that we know are Methodist preachers. And there are few of them, considering their ability and the amount of work that they do, who do not deserve a better support than they receive. Do your best for them, dear brother stewards.

A LOGICAL RESULT.

We have noticed for some time in some of our papers a disposition to dwell upon the fact that the figures are likely to show a very small net gain for our Church during the year 1917. This would be well enough if the clear purpose of it were to emphasize the need of falling on our knees and getting closer to God, and of then bestirring ourselves to bring more people to Christ and into the Church. But the manner in which the larger gains of the Northern Methodist Church are being set over against ours rather indicates that a predicate is being laid for something else than an appeal to our people for greater consecration and earnestness in reaching the unsaved and bringing them into the fold. We shall be surprised if pretty soon we are not hearing that, because of our meager increase in membership, we need to revise our polity in this or that respect, after the fashion of the Northern Methodists, with whom some are bent upon uniting our Church, apparently at any cost.

As a matter of fact, it is not surprising that our Church has not had large ingatherings for the past few years. Since the Asheville General Conference, in 1910, there has been a constant disturbance throughout the Connection over the Vanderbilt issue, and to it this year has been added the excitement of the union agitation and the Eleazer-Fritts assault upon our economy. With our papers carrying the most terrific arraignments of our Church government conceivable; with our Bishops denounced as autocrats, of whom our preachers are afraid; with all the talk that we have had about oppression, secret episcopal sessions, the iniquities of the unit rule, and with the flamboyant pronouncements of the extreme unionists that our Church may be expected to cease to exist within the next three or four years, at the fartherest—how could members be expected to flock into it? Why, one of our leading Advocates actually carried not long since an article from Dr. John C. Granberry in which he affirmed that the man who rallied around the banner of liberty that Mr. Eleazer had unfurled, to battle against the autocracy of our Episcopacy, would as truly help to make "the world safe for democracy," as if he should go to France to fight in the trenches, or words to that effect! Who would want to unite with a Church governed in part by such an Episcopacy as that?

There is little the matter with our Church government. Prior to 1911, the year that the last Ecumenical Methodist Conference met in Toronto—only six years ago—we had been for some time far outstripping the Northern Methodists, and if we will stop the hurtful wrangling that is going on among us, seek the annointing of the Holy Spirit, and preach the true Gospel of Christ as in the days agone, we douht not that we shall do so again.

But if we keep up the union agitation and other hurtful propagandas, we may expect to see our membership increase yet more slowly, or perhaps actually decline. Persons who desire to do something worth while for the Master want a better foundation to build upon than shifting sands, which may soon he swept away. It is no uncommon thing now to hear Southern Methodists saying that they are tired of the present uproar and that if it continues they will have to seek another ecclesiastical home.

We are undoubtedly face to face with the question as to whether we shall set up the banner of loyalty and save our noble Church; or whether we shall continue to tolerate, if not encourage, a policy of disaffection and disintegration, and let it go to ruin. Which shall it be?

SOME UNIONISTIC SOPHISTRY.

The Arkansas Methodist of December 20, under the caption "Some Northern Views," carried an editorial, mostly quoted, from which we take the following:

Beleving in the sincerity and high purpose of our brethren of Northern Methodism, we have not appreciated the cloud of suspicion which certain of our own editors and writers have raised. However, it is accomplishing good in causing some Northern editors to define their positions more clearly. In order that their editorials may not he misunderstood, they should be reproduced in full. Lack of space forbids; hence at the risk of misrepresenting them, a few excerpts will be made.

Dr. C. B. Spencer, editor of the Central Christian Advocate, writes: "Our commissioners and the Church behind them have no hidden hand, no secret designs or ambitions; they do wish to honorably, mutually unite Methodism in this land. They have but one question: What is best? They have but one rule: The rule adopted by the General Conference at Saratoga when it laid these instructions to the commissioners down as mandatory: 'So earnestly do we believe that the union of the two Episcopal Methodisms is the will of God, and so earnestly and devoutly do we desire that these two Churches may be one, that we hereby authorize and instruct the Commissioners of the Methodist Episcopal Church to conduct the negotiations in a generous and brotherly spirit.'"

On the race question Dr. Spencer writes, in part: "As to 'separate churches,' we have them and the Church, South, does not. Circumstances of travel and observation have given us a fairly wide acquaintance with the congregations of the Methodist Episcopal Church. And pausing to check up our impressions, we conclude that we do not know, personally, from ocean to ocean, of five white churches which have colored members. We have provided churches for them—350,000 of them." * * * "The racial cleavage is as complete here as it is in the South; race consciousness and race responsibility are facts not of zone or of section, but of human nature, whether in Palestine, India, the Balkans, the Pacific Coast, or the far South."

Writing of the possible absorption of our own Church, Dr. Spencer says: "A leading Advocate of the Church, South, publishes a map of the proposed division of the United States into the Regional Conferences, and as a result paints the pure camouflage that the Church, South, is about to he absorbed and destroyed. May we not inquire how it is to be done?. By whom, or who wants it? All that absorption, if not destruction, is on the other foot By that plan the Methodist Episcopal Church contributes to the Southern Regional Conferences 325,000 white members, in 3,250 churches, with sorry to vex them, but I'm here. I have been here fifty years. I have ridden up with the drivers; I have had a seat with the passengers; I have straddled the coupling pole; when there was no room there, I have trotted along by the side of the wagon; and I expect to stay with the team to the end. But if they unite, they throw me over. No General Conference has a right to force me to be a member of another church. I will never leave the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. But if the old ship goes down like the Titanic, I'll have to swim away from the wreck. I deplore the possibility of blotting this brilliant star from the constellation of American Christianity. You may call it sentiment, and you may denounce it as narrow, but I scorn the condition on which we will have to unite with the Methodist Episcopal Church: that we break with our past, and henceforth accept the yoke of the North. Why, Meek, the leading exponents of New England Methodism, like Townsend, and Mudge, and Perrin, and Parkhurst, have recently published sentiments that make it impossible for any self-respecting Southerner to unite with them. They still speak of the war as a "Rebellion;" Davis, and Lee, and Jackson, and Gordon, and all the rest, were traitors; all of us were benighted barbarians; and a race of cruel slave-drivers Then these very same men have the audacity to tell us to let "by-gones be by-gones." I know what I am talking about, for I read the stuff they send out. I am living in to-day. My face is to the future. My son is with the flag. I am ready for whatever service I can render my country. But if anybody thinks that I am going to adopt the creed of the North about the past they have it down wrong. It will take several tankards of Saratoga millennial ale to befoozle me into even seeming to do that. I don't want any union with people who talk about my people and their past as the Northern Methodists do Do you understand that, Dr. R. A. Meek? All right. Then if you can't do any better, come up and help me enjoy Nabors' gobbler.

PUT THE LAYMEN TO WORK.

An Appeal to the Pastors and Lay Leaders of the North Mississippi Conference.

Dear Brethren: The Christmas season is over, and the work of the new Conference year must begin in earnest. It is trite, but very true and worth repeating to remind you that much—perhaps the success of the entire year—will depend on how the pastor and people begin, how they plan, and how they adjust themselves to their respective tasks. Laxity, sluggishness, mistakes, and lack of faith and courage now, will tell surely, irreparably maybe, on the success of your charge from now to the next Conference. This is true every year, but its gravity and scope cannot be too seriously considered as we enter a year that promises to be fateful for the entire world.

In the trying, darker days ahead, the churches will need all the human wisdom and all even of divine wisdom and power they may, by grace, command, in order adequately to minister to a stricken and straitened people at home and abroad. This is inevitable, unless in infinite wisdom and mercy God shall soon speak peace to the nations of the earth. The gratifying reports at the last Conference should not lead us to conclude that we may at all certainly count on such reports at the next Conference. Crops may not be so good the coming year, and prices will probably go higher and higher. War taxes and patriotic calls more numerous and heavy, we may as well expect and prepare to meet. Not many months ahead, news from the front will doubtless begin to bring shadows over every church and broken hearts in many homes. All this means, as I see it, that church financing will be more difficult, and that the time, the faith, and the strength of the pastors will be taxed as perhaps never before.

Sympathetic, systematic co-operation of the pastor and members will be the only solution of the increasingly complex problems of every church. As Conference lay leader, I therefore appeal to the pastors to organize in every charge, as soon as possible, the Committee on Lay Activities provided for in the Discipline. Brethren, for your own sakes, for their sakes, put the laymen to work. Get the pamphlet on "Lay Activities in the Local Church" free from the Publishing House, and you will see how simple and sensible is the plan. Within the next month or two, before the time gets harder, put through with your laymen an "every member canvass" of your charge; and thus, at the outset of the year, secure in cash or good subscriptions all your Conference collections. Don't say it will not work until you have given the plan a fair trial. Others have worked it, and more this year will try it, I believe, than ever before. For it is evident that conditions now demand of the churches what cannot be accomplished except jointly by the pastor and laymen—and in no other way so thoroughly and helpfully to both.

To the charge lay leaders, I also earnestly appeal. I would urge you to unite heartily and perseveringly with the pastor in putting more laymen of his church to work. A few in each church have gone nobly; but they should not and cannot do all that is required of any active, efficient church, especially under the changed conditions of modern life in town and country. I would also ask the lay leaders to send for and to study the pamphlet on "Lay Activities in the Local Church," and thus qualify themselves as fully as possible for the responsible positions they hold—particularly in the way of helping the pastor to enlarge the activities of the laymen, according to the plan outlined in the Discipline. In the smaller churches it may be necessary, and in others it may be advisable, not to divide the Committee on Lay Activities into sub-committees, but attempt at first only the larger features of the general plan through the committee as a whole. From the adult Bible classes of the Sunday school, an efficient committee might be largely chosen, and other loyal and capable men and women of the church could be added to it.

Finally, brethren, we well know that our success is to be in more organization or in up-to-date, modern church efficiency methods. But we are equally certain that buried talents and unused resources bring the opposite of blessing alike to the individual and the church. To avoid the latter, let us labor together this Conference year, under divine guidance, to bring all the tithes spiritual and material into the storehouse, so that from the windows of heaven God's bounty in overflowing measure, according to his promise, may be poured upon our beloved Church. Then, indeed, may it be said, "God is in the midst of her; she shall not be moved; God shall help her, and that right early." For this, and for no less, let us devoutly work and pray. Fraternally,

DABNEY LIPSCOMB,
Conference Lay Leader.

PROGRESS AT PAINE COLLEGE.

This is proving to be a year of remarkable prosperity at Paine College, our institution at Augusta, Ga., for the colored race. To date 280 students have enrolled, and scores of others have been turned away for lack of room. Among these in attendance there are over fifty young ministers of the Colored Methodist Episcopal Church preparing for larger and more efficient service.

Paine Annex is filled, too. In fact, we could fill another dormitory the size of Bennett Hall. The ladies of your Missionary Society can tell you what Paine Annex is. Ask them. May God richly bless them for their deep and practical interest in the welfare of their sisters in black!

Our chief hindrance has been a debt of $15,000. This has hampered the institution for several years. But at this writing the sum of $7,316.66 has been raised in cash on the debt, and nearly $3000 more in subscriptions is in hand. Nothing succeeds like success, and it now begins to look as if this debt will soon be a thing of the past.

One layman has sent us his check for $1000. Two other laymen have sent in checks for $500 each. The North Georgia Conference raised in cash and subscriptions $1,[illegible]. The North Carolina Conference contributed with $540, while the Upper South Carolina Conference generously raised $735 for us. Several other Conferences have made liberal contributions to our work, and several of our leading preachers and laymen have rendered signal service in the raising of these funds. We are deeply grateful for this encouraging aid.

But now we must get the remaining $5000. Thousands of consecrated and intelligent Southern Methodists are much interested in the highest welfare of the Negro race. Let every such person send us at their earliest convenience a contribution however large or small. Make all checks payable to Paine College, and address all letters to Paine College, Augusta, Ga. The names of all contributors will be placed on the mailing list of the College publication, and all contributions will be gratefully acknowledged

Secular News

Senator William Marconi, the inventor of wireless telegraphy, has been appointed War Commissioner from Italy to the United States.

It is stated that the United States is now holding as prisoners 1250 Germans and Austrians. They are made to work, being housed, fed, and guarded by agents of our Government.

A resolution to permit Miss Ruth Law, the aviatrix, to become a member of the United States Aviation Corps has been introduced in Congress by Representative Hubert, of New York.

The British war casualties for the month of December foot up 75,29[illegible] The month preceding the number was 120,089, being unusually large as a result of the heavy fighting on the Cambrai front.

On December 30 Glenn Falls, New York, reported the thermometer to be 69 degrees below zero, and at Dawson, Yukon, it was reported to be standing at 83 below. Such figures make us feel all the more glad that we are a Southerner.

Crime, according to the German press, is rapidly increasing in Germany and Austria Robbery and theft are said to have been prevailing to such an extent that there is a general feeling of uneasiness, and that some communities are so terrorized that little effort is made to bring the thieves to justice.

It is suggested that the chief reason why Germany would not be willing to surrender Lorraine as a means of bringing peace is because of its rich deposits of iron. In 1913 Germany mined 28,750,000 tons of iron, and of this amount 21,250,000 came from German Lorraine French Lorraine also is exceedingly rich in iron ore, furnishing France in 1913 with 20,000,000 of the 21,750,000 tons that she mined.

The rate of mortality in New York City for 1917 was the lowest in thirty years, being 13.78 per thousand. In 1915 it was 13.89, and in 1910 it was 16 This lowering of the death rate is said to have been chiefly accomplished by the reduction of mortality among children. The present population of New York is estimated at 5,737,192, and it is stated that about 75,000 men have gone from that city into the military service.

The impression seems to be gaining ground that there is serious friction between Germany and Turkey. The latter, having lost Palestine, Arabia, and Mesopotamia, with a prospect of their remaining permanently in other hands, is said to feel that she has been allowed to become the chief sufferer in the war. Some are even intimating that there is a possibility, by shrewd diplomacy, of influencing the Turks to abandon their alliance with the Teutonic powers.

The Congregationalist pertinently remarks: "The new German chancellor is seventy year old." We know a church which turned down the other day a capable man chiefly because he had passed his forty-fifth birthday.

contemplated General Conference would have as much power over all the territory of the new Church, including the South, as our General Conference now has over its territory; that the General Conference, under the pending arrangement, would in every intsance have of necessity a large Northern majority; that the Regional Conferences would have no legislative powers of consequence, and that the General Conference would have power to rearrange, to increase, to modify them, etc.

Now, with these facts in mind, note carefully Dr. Spencer's utterance: "Who wants it (the territory and property of the Church, South)? All the absorption or destruction is on the other foot. By that plan the Methodist Epscopal Church contributes to the Southern Regional Conferences, 325,000 white members, in 3250 churches, with property worth not far from eighteen million dollars. We hope that our brothers constituting the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, will treat them as brothers; for human nature is human nature, and they may get a little homesick for the old home folks now and again."

This flourish is really laughable. Let us examine it. In what body would the title to the 3250 churches mentioned inhere, and to what body would the 325,000 Northern Methodists referred to belong? The united Methodist Episcopal Church. Through what agent would that Church hold and control this property and govern these members? Through the General Conference. Who would dominate that General Conference? The Northern Methodists invariably? Therefore the Northern Methodists would still really have these 3250 churches and these 325,000 members, and besides they would have a controlling grip on all the property now held by the M. E. Church, South, and all the members now belonging to it who entered the new organization. The fact that they might let the former Southern Methodists continue to use this property, under their direction, does not at all negative the fact that their controlling hand would be upon it and that they would have the power to do as they might please with it. AS WE SHOWED IN DR. SPENCER'S OWN WORDS LAST WEEK, THERE ARE TO BE NO DISTINCT REGIONAL CONFERENCES, these so-called Conferences being mere adjuncts to the powerful, well-nigh supreme, General Conference that is being arranged for, meeting at the same time and place. We trust that our brother now sees how it would be done. The truth is, the argument which Dr. Spencer has here used is a warmed-over one, which he employed in his book on unification a couple of years ago, when the Regional Conferences were expected to he largely independent and autonomous and he was trying to hammer them down. It then had some force, but it does not apply under the pending arrangement which would practically surrender the Southern Church and all its interests into the hands of the Northern Methodists.

Dr. Millar's Slur.

To the aspersion by Dr. Millar of ourself and other Southern editors and writers who have shown some concern for the welfare of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South (this is only one of a number of such thrusts that he has made—the others we have ignored), we shall make no extended reply. The fact that he has picked up and circulated, with his endorsement, these weak and misleading statements of Dr. Spencer is quite enough to give the measure of the man. In the course of the unification discussion he has been one of those who have echoed the utterances of the most extreme unionists and who have been intolerant of any discussion of the obstacles in the way of merging the two Churches, winning thereby compliments from the Northern Methodist press; but if he has ever sounded a single clear and strong note in defense of anything distinctive in Southern Methodism or in the South, it has escaped our attention. Even when our Episcopacy was disparaged by a Northern Methodist Bishop at a public gathering in his own State and his depreciatory words were scattered abroad by the secular papers, not a word did this supposed watchman on the wall have to say in its defense. For our part, after reading his paper ever since the unification issue was raised, we do not doubt that he would be willing, if necessary, to unify the two Churches even on the Saratoga basis. Such has been his course, and, so far as we are concerned, he is more than welcome to all the glory and distinction that it may bring him, even if it should include the printing of his picture and a write-up in Zion's Herald.

However, we cannot but wonder what the noble spirits of Dr. Andrew Hunter, Dr. A. R. Winfield, and others of like majestic mold, as they look down from their home in the skies, think of the spectacle which he has presented and of what has lately been passing for Southern Methodist leadership in the commonwealth that they so splendidly adorned with their lives and labors. But we do not believe that Dr. Millar (who is a Pennsylvania-Missouri product) and his coterie rightly represent the rank and file of our Church in the goodly State of Arkansas—on the contrary, in our opinion, they would repudiate such leadership, if the situation, instead of being kept confused, were cleared up and the great principles involved were made plain to them. A record such as theirs has been in the past forbids the conclusion that they now care nothing for the noble ideals and glorious history of the Church of their fathers.

Our Advocate Campaign.

ARE YOU GETTING READY FOR IT?

"Advocate Week" for the Louisiana and North Mississippi Conferences—January 20-27. For the Mississippi Conference—the first two weeks in February. This is by order of the Annual Conferences. Are you getting ready to make an Every-Home Canvass for the Conference organ? Much depends upon the outcome of this campaign. Help us, dear friends.

TO THE METHODISTS WITHIN THE BOUNDS OF THE MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

At the last meeting of the Publishing Committee of the "New Orleans Christian Advocate," it was decided to make an earnest effort to secure at least 4000 subscribers to the "New Orleans Christian Advocate," and 1500 new subscribers were apportioned to your Conference.

The high cost of paper and other materials used in printing and the increase in postage make it necessary for the continued success of the paper that 1500 new subscribers be secured within the bounds of the Conference.

As in all other movements of the Church, the pastor is the key to the situation. He should not only represent the "Advocate" himself, but he should appoint a committee for each local church. We respectfully insist that you give the pastor and the local committee every assistance. It is very important that the work of securing the 1500 subscribers begin at once. I. W. COOPER.

Brookhaven, Miss.

THE ADVOCATE COMMENDED.

I want to commend the Advocate campaign for new subscribers. Can any one tell why more of our people do not take our splendid Church organ? We hear fault found with it, of course; but does any fair-minded, thoughtful person expect a perfect paper? It is essential that it have its different departments. Because personally I may not be interested in the Children's page, should I say eliminate that? No; it is for the children; let them read it. It takes all these to make it an all-rouud paper for the Church and the home.

The Advocate is a good Church and religious paper. It is above the average; in fact, I don't know of a better one. The price is equitable and moderate; the departments are well arranged; it is as destitute of objectionable advertisements as possible. It gives the Church news we need; the editorials are good; most communications from the brethren are of interest (we need more of these in the way of news items of interest). It is OURS and is exactly what we, by our money, brains, and hearts, are making it.

I submit the issue of December 20 as one that cannot be excelled. The Editor's Christmas Homily is timely and worth preserving. The Bishops' Address is most excellent. Brother Ramsey has given us something new in the way of Conference reports—we can take notice and improve on these from "good years" to something definite—and other good things too numerous to mention are in this issue.

Our Conference—the Mississippi—was a memorable one. Shall we not make the ensuing year the same? While it is hard for me to say amen to Bro. F. R. Power's view, that "the chief reason why our Methodism is failing to do her duty in advancing the Kingdom of our Lord, is that neither the laity nor ministry of our Church are as pious as they should be"—I question the piety of few ministers, and I am sure we have a great many truly pious laymen—yet we need to "stand ye in the ways, and see, and ask for the old paths—and walk therein" (Jer. 6:16); preach a campaign of "nevertheless I have somewhat against thee, because thou hast left thy first love" (Rev. 2:4); call the Church from a backslidden condition to consecration and prayer and sinners to repentance.

God speed the Advocate Campaign. It will help this one.

"ELITE."

FROM THE ORPHANS' HOME, JACKSON, MISS.

Dear Doctor Meek: We have just passed through a siege of measles and pneumonia at the Mississippi Orphans' Home. The disease was discovered on December 2, the day after I took possession of the office. It spread with great rapidity, and we soon had as many as seventy-five or eighty cases in bed at one time. Pneumonia developed, and to give these fatherless and motherless children every chance, at the suggestion of the attending physician, Dr. Jno. T. Berry, we placed two trained nurses in the Home. The Baptist Hospital very kindly opened its doors to our most serious cases, and, free of charge, cared for six or eight of these children. Two of these little ones died, Hilda Martin of pneumonia, and Y. Z. Porter of Bright's disease, aggravated by pneumonia. Four of the children are still under the care of a trained nurse, one having developed whooping cough. Fortunately, as we were able to discover it in time, the disease was detached and the case isolated before a general infection could occur, and we hope to stamp it out. But all this has entailed enormous expense, and we shall need the financial support of our friends.

WAR CONDITIONS

— REFLECTED IN —

TELEPHONE SERVICE

Among the unforeseen conditions which the war has imposed upon us is the necessity of practically suspending the commercial development of our business.

Confronted with an unusual increase in the use of the telephone and a strong demand for new and additional service, we cannot accept or fill orders except subject to practically an indefinite delay.

This situation is due to the importance of conserving our supplies so that the government's requirements may be promptly met by giving the War Department service anywhere and at any time the request is made.

The Great Battle

NOTES.

The Mississippi Legislature is in session at Jackson. Why not have Mississippi to lead in the ratification of the prohibition amendment that has been submitted to the States? This would be a distinction well worth winning.

A London dispatch of Dec. 30 says: "Hotels have been asked to urge their customers to buy light wines instead of beer, so that there may be a greater supply of the latter beverage for the working classes." This news item reflects no credit upon Great Britain. At such a time as this both wine and beer ought to be cut out entirely. Or, as a matter of fact, they ought to be dispensed with at all times. They have never helped to make any nation wiser, stronger, or better.

The New York World is trying to alarm the Southern Democrats by threatening that if they join in forcing National constitutional prohibition upon States that do not desire it, the Northern Democrats will no longer aid in protecting them from federal interference with race conditions in the South. Such talk as this is unworthy of a great journal. One who can think cannot deny that the race question in the South is still far from being permanently settled and that it is a matter of much importance that the Southern people should be let alone in the handling of it; but the high-minded men of this section will not think of trying to purchase security by entering into any sort of a league with the liquor interests of the Nation. They will do what they conceive to be their duty in the promotion of temperance reform, trusting an overruling Providence to assist them in caring for their other sacred interests in the coming years. The doctrine of "doing evil that good may come of it," is a most pernicious one, and never does it pay in the final working out of things.

ALASKA IS "BONE DRY."

Juneau, Alaska, Dec. 31.—Alaska will go on the list of "bone dry" States and Territories at midnight to-night. Some of the saloons which will close their doors have been operating since the days of the gold rush in 1898.

Alaska will bid an elaborate farewell to the "hooch," as liquor is known in parts of the northland.

AGGRESSIVE WORK AHEAD IN LOUISIANA.

Rev. A. W. Turner, Superintendent of the Louisiana Anti-Saloon League, issued on January 3 the following statement:

"We are going to attempt a complete organization of all our forces in preparation for a full-strength march on Baton Rouge in May, 1918. We intend making it clear that there is nothing more important before the 1918 Legislature than an immediate 'bone-dry' shipping law, and ratification of the prohibition amendment. We hope the Legislature will see fit to ratify this amendment in 1918. If it does not, there is nothing left for us to do but to carry the issue to the people in 1920.

"By obtaining action in 1918 it will be possible to eliminate prohibition as a factor in the 1920 elections, but, failing to obtain ratification, we will take the issue to the people, where we have nearly always received a fair deal when the people understand.

"I feel sure that the majority of voters in Louisiana will welcome an opportunity to wipe the liquor traffic off the map of the United States—where the distilled liquor people are already out of business save for the stocks on hand. With the distillers already out of the way by virtue of the prohibition on grain for the manufacture of intoxicants, the prohibition forces feel that half of the battle is won, and that much of the opposition they have had to contend with in the past will be missing in future campaigns.

"The brewers have always exerted a much more harmful influence in politics than the whiskey people, and there is no reason why they should not be moved on after the distillers. In fact, to my mind, the greatest of all reasons for the present sentiment for prohibition is found in the fact that the liquor people have claimed the inalienable right to make and administer the laws of the country. The American people resent this, and are going to register their verdict against the whole business, brewers and all.

"It is amusing to see the brewers making faces at the distillers and to hear them talking about beer as a temperance drink. It would be a mortal sin to separate these companions in crime, they have lived and fought together so long, and by the mighty voice and verdict of the American people they are going to die together.

"The passage of the resolution for national submission by two-thirds of the United States Congress shows the trend of public sentiment, and has put new life in our people everywhere. Thousands of persons who might have opposed State-wide prohibition will rally to our call for National prohibition, knowing the amendment is not effective in any one State until it is effective in all States.

"On with the battle! We must go over the top! Billy Kaiser and Old Anheuser have lived too long already!"

A DAY'S EXPERIENCE IN LOUISIANA.

(By Miss Laura M. White, one of the workers connected with our French Mission, near Houma, La.)

A hustle and a hurry to make a train at seven o'clock on a winter's morning, so as to reach the junction in time for the fast train from New Orleans and reach Houma in time for an engagement at noon—if possible. One always adds here "if possible" in depending upon railroad schedules during the "grinding" season, since the trains on all the branch lines are combination passenger and freight, and everything is made to wait upon the movement of the sugar cane.

A short run brought us to the junction, where we were met with the announcement that the New Orleans train was four hours late, owing to a wreck—and I may as well state here that the four hours lengthened into six hours at this point, with two more hours at the next transfer station, making simply a missed engagement and a total change of the day's program.

I prepared myself to wait as patiently as possible and to fill in the hours with reading and writing letters, having learned from experience to expect just this kind of waiting and to meet it philosophically. And, indeed, God has made of these "waits" many opportunities to say a word for Him or has brought me into touch with some one whom I might never have met in any other way.

After a short time, my attention was caught by the anxious expression on the face of the young girl who seemed to be in charge of the station. I made inquiry of her as to the details of the wreck and whether any one had been hurt or if there had been any casualties. She replied that they could get very little definite information until some one should reach the station from the wrecked train, but that the reports had been that no one was killed and there had been only one minor accident—still she felt anxious as she knew the authorities were never given to giving out information of a disturbing nature, and her father had been on the wrecked train and she could get no word from him. He had been down the line the night before to relieve a station where the operator was sick, and she was taking charge in his absence from his own station; and while she knew they would have notified her had anything happened to him, she could not help feeling uneasy and she felt the responsibility of the continued care of his station.

I asked her if she helped her father regularly with his work, and she said that she did not, except on an occasion like this, when he was called away by the road for a few hours. In the course of a long conversation with her, she told me that she had no chance to go to school, and had only reached the sixth grade. She had begun to study telegraphy and felt sorely the need of a better education. She said they had no neighbors except two rough Catholic families and that both she and her mother felt very much alone and cut off, as they were Protestants and had practically no opportunity to attend church. When she had to work at the station she was brought into contact with [illegible] men, who were frequently profane, and the family all felt keenly the impossibility of giving her better advantages.

She invited me to go over and meet her mother. I found her a woman who could speak English only in a very limited fashion. She had come from a Catholic family and her father and mother had been ostracized because they had left that Church and joined the Protestants. She told me of many instances in her own family of the graft and greed of the priests and how they had tried in every way to persecute her family, along with all others who might leave their ranks, because of their religion. She deeply deplored the necessity of having to remain where they were, cut off from church privileges, because of the fact that her husband could earn a living in no other way and knew no other work than railroading.

In my talk with the daughter, I found that she was eager for an education; and when I told her that some day we hoped to have a school in our mission where such girls as she could have the chance to study and to acquire a practical industrial education to fit themselves for real life, she asked question after question. She said that she knew her father would be glad to send her and to pay her expenses, if we should open the school before she was too old to attend.

On every side we are met with cases of this kind, and many, many who have had far more meager advantages (some day I'll write you about some cases of "Cajan" girls "down the bayous" who cannot read or write). These girls are all eager to come to school. Verily, the time is ripe and the way is open, so far as the people are concerned, to establish a Christian industrial school where girls can be trained into Christian home-makers and mothers. And there lies the hope of this section, the coming generation of children, who will miss their chance unless we can take their mothers as girls and train them. Each day I am more and more convinced that the only practical way of evangelizing this section is through the homes; and that the surest and quickest entry into the homes is through the daughters. The boys who have turned toward Protestantism are already going out to seek education in schools in other States, and their calling, in all probability, will be to other sections. Nor can they so influence the home life as can the girls. Upon these girls will depend the home ideals of the coming generation. If we could take them into such a school as I have mentioned and give them spiritual training, Bible teaching, and the practical training in home work and real home ways, it would revolutionize their homes and bring light into the dark places in this section within less than half the time it would take to accomplish such a work from the outside. No influence can so quickly bring the results that we are seeking, nor so thoroughly glorify God and hasten the coming of His kingdom.

I am happy to tell you that when the train pulled up at the junction, this girl's father stepped off unhurt, but I had no time to talk with him.

"I know what's the matter with these people," said J. Barleycorn gloomily after waking himself up, bruised and shaken, from the pavement where he had landed for the nineteenth or twentieth time, "they don't want me in their country."—R. E. K., in Syracuse Herald.

Keeps Our Bodies Warm.

Pure, rich, red blood is a necessity in the production of animal heat. It keeps our bodies warm. We all know very well that when the arteries that carry it to a limb are bound or tied, the temperature of the limb is immediately lowered.

There is a suggestion in this that, at this time of year especially, we should take Hood's Sarsaparilla, if our blood is impure, impoverished or pale. Hood's Sarsaparilla makes the blood good in quality and quantity. It has an unequalled record for radically and permanently removing blood diseases, scrofula, rheumatism and catarrh, and giving strength and tone to the whole system. It is a scientific combination of roots, barks, herbs and other medicinal substances that have long been used by successful physicians. Get it to-day.—Adv.

The Home Circle

A SILENT WITNESS.

"Mother, why are you hanging a looking-glass there?" asked James, looking at it curiously. "Such a pretty one, too," he continued. "It seems to me, I would want it where it would be seen oftener."

"I want it right here in the dining-room, where it can see," answered his mother, laughingly. "I am putting it here for a witness. This was a little more expensive than we could afford, but we thought that if it accomplished its purpose we should feel well repaid."

"A witness!" scoffed James. "It will be a poor one, I imagine, for it can't tell anything."

"We shall see about that. However, I tell you it will be the very best kind of witness, for it will tell your faults to you as well as to others."

"I'd like to know how you figure that out."

"Just wait and see. You will find out in time."

At supper James found that he and his brother, Ned, who usually had to be kept on opposite sides of the table on account of their frequent disagreements, were to sit side by side, facing the glass.

"What's that for?" demanded both at once.

"Your father and I think best to have it so," explained their mother.

The boys sat down with scowls on their faces and an air of great injury. Ned happened to raise his eyes, when the ludicrousness of those frowning reflections struck him so forcibly that it provoked a shout of laughter.

"I'd like to know what is the matter with you?" growled James, looking up to make an ugly face, when his attention also was arrested by what the truthful mirror was telling him. His startled stare added so much to Ned's glee that he began to thrust out his tongue at James. The silent reminder brought him to a sudden stop.

"I see you got caught also," remarked his father, quietly. "I have heard the old saying that truth is to be found at the bottom of a well, but we sometimes find it in the looking-glass, don't we?"

The boys were silent during the remainder of the meal. For the day following their experiences were repeated, each time with such good results that their mother was beginning to congratulate herself on the success of her plan. Talk and punishments had seemed of no avail. In her absence from home of several weeks, while attending her mother in a serious illness, the boys had acquired the habit of bickering at the table and of making faces at each other, greatly to the humiliation of their parents.

Their silent witness had been with them two days when their cousin, a bright, manly little fellow, came to visit them.

At dinner Mrs. Lane said "William, you may sit between James and Ned, where you can all enjoy yourselves."

But, oh, how two boys reddened as the mirror showed them how beautifully William's hair was combed and how their own tousled locks looked in comparison. It had been a constant effort of their mother to get them to return to their old habit of brushing their hair before coming to meals, and often they had carried a sulky face to the table on account of it. To-day she had remained discreetly silent and allowed them to see the result for themselves.

Ned spoke first.

"Mother, will you excuse me a minute?"

"Certainly," agreed his mother.

"And me, too?" questioned James.

They returned with shining faces and well-brushed hair, and smiled at each other over the changed reflection. If William noticed he was too much of a gentleman to say anything about it. But three pairs of eyes returned often to the pleasing picture.

"It is nice, isn't it?" said Mr. Lane.

"What?" asked all three at once.

"Three such good-looking boys in a row."

"Oh!" answered William; "I believe auntie had a reason for putting it there."

After William's visit was over and he had returned home, James came to his mother.

"Mother," he said "your witness is all right. I couldn't stand before, but I can now, and I vote that we keep it there."

"Vote carried by a big majority," shouted Ned. "It's like that friend Solomon talks about," he continued. "It hurts but helps, or something like that."

"Very well," promised mother; "it shall stay with you as long as you want it. A silent witness, but a good friend."—Baptist Boys and Girls.

JUST FOR FUN.

Donald and Richard wanted skates. "All right," said father, "but you will have to earn the money yourselves. Two such great boys as you are will have no trouble doing that!"

"There's no way of earning money with all this snow on the ground," said Richard.

"What!" exclaimed father, raising his eyebrows in surprise. "What's that, boys? Why, I earned my first pair of skates on a snowy morning just like this. No, no I'm not going to tell you now—think it out for yourselves."

Donald and Richard were not long in thinking it out. They took shovels and started down the street.

"Yes, certainly you may sweep my walks! I've been waiting for some boys to come along," said Mrs. Gibson, who lived in the big house, putting the fifteen cents into Donald's hand. Some of the folks had already cleaned their walks, and some laughed and said, "No, we have boys of our own," but quite a number were glad to see Donald and Richard with their snow shovels.

"Oh, here we are at Old Aunt Fussy's house! No use to ask her—she has no use for boys." Donald made a face at the house.

Richard laughed. "Oh, but she's cross! The boys just love to tease her."

"They're always trying to make her angry—they like to hear her talk and scold," grinned Donald.

"Wonder what her real name is? It was a great hit when Bob nicknamed her 'Old Aunt Fussy.' Gee, but it makes her angry."

By 11 o'clock they had earned their skates and were on the way home.

"Well, father, we've earned our skates," announced Donald at the dinner table.

"Good!" exclaimed father. "I knew you could. The street was pretty well cleaned off. I noticed it as I came along. But the little yellow cottage down next to the corner—I see the snow there hadn't been touched."

"Oh!" laughed Donald. "That's Old Aunt Fussy's house. She lives alone down there. She hasn't any money to pay for having her walks cleaned, and, besides, she's always scolding the boys. We don't like her."

"Why, that's queer," said father. "She seems very pleasant when I meet her. I don't understand. It may be possible there's something wrong with the boys."

Donald and Richard had not thought of this side of the affair. "Well, she's just fussy," said Donald. "She can't take a joke. The boys play tricks, like tick-tack on the window, you know, and they take a peach and apple now and then. They knocked at her door the other night, and—things like that. It's just for fun—they like to tease her."

Father leaned back from the table, cleared his throat, and looked at Donald and Richard. "Well, boys, maybe there's fun in that kind of doing, but I can't see it. No, I can't, and I have a poor opinion of a boy who finds his fun in teasing a lonely old woman. There are two boys whom I know pretty well, and I certainly hope they are bright enough to find their fun in some other way. I should think two boys would have cleaned her walks just because she is old and poor and lonely, and never thought of being paid for it."

Donald and Richard looked sheepishly at each other. Father was never preachy, and this was a long and rather loud speech from him. While they were thinking of this their father got up from the table. "Where is the shovel?" he asked.

"Why," began Donald, "Richard and I are going right away and sweep Aunt Fussy's walks."

"That sounds better," replied father, "a great deal better."

The boys hurried down the street and soon Aunt Fussy saw them cleaning her walks. "Oh, boys," she called, "I—I can't pay you. I—I—"

"We don't want any pay," replied Donald, smiling.

Afterward Donald carried a bucket of water for her and Richard filled the coal scuttle. Aunt Fussy was dazed. "Well, boys, I'm clean surprised. Some way I don't get on with the boys very well. I guess maybe I'm cross, but they make me so nervous throwing stones at the house and knocking at the door."

"I don't think they'll bother you any more," said Richard. "We'll see to that."

"Father's all right," said Donald, as they went home. "Wasn't that a lecture at the dinner table? Not so very many words, but the way he—"

Richard broke in. "Father doesn't lecture us very often, but when he does, it means something. We needed it this time. There's nothing wrong with Aunt Fussy as I can see, when she's treated half decent."

After that Aunt Fussy had a more peaceable time. Donald and Richard "fixed the boys."—Anne Porter Johnson, in Unknown Exchange.

HE IS LOOKING FOR YOU.

"Hello, little stranger! What is the matter?" The rough-looking wagoner softened his voice in speaking, for the child in the road was crying.

"I am lost! I can't find my father," sobbed the child.

"Is he a big man with a long, white beard?"

"Yes, that's my father."

"It's all right, then, because he is looking for you. Keep right along; and if you don't find him, he'll find you."

The child dried his tears and sprang into the road again; for if his father was looking for him, of course he could not fail to be in his arms again after a while.

Dear boy, dear girl, if you are trying to come to Christ, take courage. He is looking for you, too; and if you only persevere, you are sure to meet Him in the way, and to hear His gracious voice saying, "Come unto me."—Central Christian Advocate.

A GOOD MEMORIAL.

The Louisiana Conference, lately in session at Minden, adopted a memorial to the General Conference to make the Annual Conference Committee on Publishing Interests a quadrennial board. We think that this suggestion is a wise one, and we hope that the General Conference will act favorably upon it. A committee appointed yearly after the Annual Conference meets, and which expires with its adjournment, cannot possibly take care of matters so important as those relating to our Church publications and literature. By all means let this committee be given an existence covering a period of four years, that it may be able to formulate and execute policies looking to the improvement of our publications and a wider circulation of them.

A HIGH COMPLIMENT.

Referring to the doctrinal situation in the Northern Baptist and Presbyterian Churches, the Church News Association (New York), among other things, says: "So far as can be learned, the new theology party is strongest among the Baptists, and the orthodox party among the Presbyterians. That is, the Baptists appear more likely to go over to the new way than the Presbyterians. * * * Presbyterians of the Union Theological Seminary brand are on the defensive, with the orthodox party in control."

This is in harmony with what has been our observation in reading the Church press of the country. We have often remarked to others that the Presbyterians, North and South, are outstripping all the other Protestant Evangelical Churches in standing up for sound teaching, against the so-called "new thought"—the higher criticism and rationalism. And yet there is no more scholarly ministry in the United States than that of the Presbyterian Churches. This gives a knock-out blow to the notion that one cannot be a scholar without subscribing in a large measure to the theological folderol which some of our largest American institutions have imported from Germany.

It is a high compliment which the Church News Association has paid the Presbyterians. How we should like to see Southern Methodists in the coming years stand side by side with them in "contending earnestly for the faith once for all delivered unto the saints!"

A DISINGENUOUS STATEMENT.

Dr. Spencer, of the Central Christian Advocate (Northern Methodist), has been ringing the changes on the statement that Bishop Hoss and the other Southern Commissioners assented to the first report of the Joint Commission which recommended the placing of the Negro Methodists in one of the Regional divisions of the proposed reorganized Church. So they did. But those recommended Regional Conferences were something very different from the mere appendages to the General Conference which now hold the stage. Here is what Dr. Spencer himself said about them as they were then expected to be:

"In all matters of legislation, the section now known as the Church, South, will be as independent of the section known as the Methodist Episcopal Church as it is to-day. Nothing voted in that Sub-General Conference (the legislative body of the Regional Conference), meeting every four years, will be subject to review by any other body, no matter what the nature of that legislation. * * * There will be a Methodist Episcopal Church, South, a Methodist Episcopal Church, North, with another M. E. Church in the Far West, each electing its own Bishops and having sole jurisdiction over all matters pertaining to their respective areas; with 'uber alles,' over all, a General Conference of two houses to confer on what is left. (See Dr. Spencer's book, "That They May Be One," pages 50-52.)

Thus it will be seen that, according to Dr. Spencer's own words, the Regional jurisdiction into which Bishop Hoss and his associates proposed to let the colored Methodists go was tantamount to practically an independent Church, co-operating with several like bodies in some of its larger connectional interests to prevent friction and waste, for the Negro Regional Conference was, of course, expected to be the same as the others.

Dr. Spencer should be fair, and not mislead the public by such a misrepresentation of the Southern Commissioners as he has been scattering abroad.

A SENSIBLE VIEW.

We are carrying on another page in this issue of the Advocate the Report of the Board on Lay Activities that was adopted at the late session of the Mississippi Conference. In this paper, framed entirely by laymen, there appears the following utterance:

"We wish to express our disapproval of the methods followed by the leaders of the propaganda that has given circulation to the so-called 'Laymen's Address.' We think that there is a proper course for any proposed legislation, and that is through the channel of memorials to the General Conference."

This action is in accord with that taken by the laymen of the North Mississippi Conference. We are proud of our Mississippi laymen. The laity of the State of Paine, Galloway, Murrah, Winans, Marshall, Ahbey, Harvey Johnson, Andrews, Wheat, Sullivan, Black, Boswell, Lamar, Millsaps, Mayes, and Shands have not grown weary of the ways of Southern Methodism and become ready to rally around anarchistic or revolutionary banners. The Mississippi Conference brethren are right: if we wish to make changes in the government of our Church, there are legal and orderly processes by which it may be done, and there is no need to resort to the methods of secular politicians.

NO GROUND FOR SUCH TALK.

There has been some talk current that because of the large number of troops quartered near Atlanta and the heavy demand upon the hotels there, it might be necessary to hold our approaching General Conference somewhere else. In response to an inquiry, however, a prominent citizen of Atlanta has informed us that there is no justification whatever for any such imaginings; that the hotels give assurance that they can provide for the delegates to the General Conference as amply and at prices as reasonable as any city in the country. Why should the Nashville News Bureau catch up and give circulation all over the Church to the oracular statement of an editor in another State, that the Georgia metropolis cannot properly care for the General Conference? Is not the Committee on General Conference Entertainment competent to handle the matter?

ERRATA.

The recent issues of our paper, because of the holidays and the extremely cold weather (for which New Orleans is poorly prepared—having so little of it) were brought out under unfavorable conditions and contained a number of typographical errors. But we will not take the trouble to correct any of them, except the caption of one of our editorials last week, which should have been "No DISTINCT Regional Conferences To Be Provided," not "District" Regional Conferences, as it appeared. This mistake, however, did not extend through the entire issue of the Advocate, as it was discovered and corrected while the paper was still on the press

LET THEM GO!

The following from The Outlook of December 26 is suggestive:

"In an editorial on the 'Passing of Old Styles from the Stage,' the Dramatic Mirror says that the old-time habiliments of the banker and the statesman, the silk hat and the frock coat, have largely disappeared from real life and are also passing from the stage. 'A man wearing a top-hat in the business thoroughfares of any city at this time,' it says, 'is a sight so rare that the wearer would be a subject of comment. The frock coat worn by the heads of business has likewise gone into the storeroom * * * and these styles are disappearing from professional circles.'"

We have no antipathy to some kinds of a frock coat, but we should be pleased to know that the "stovepipe beaver hat" had become an entirely extinct species.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

The question of bringing Billy Sunday to New Orleans is again being considered by the Protestant ministers here.

Rev. J. R. James is in place at Wheeler, Miss., his new charge, and has been given a cordial reception by the people.

Mrs. Annie Sherwood Hawks, the author of many excellent gospel hymns, including "I Need Thee Every Hour, Most Gracious Lord," died at her home in Bennington, Vt., on January 3.

The Carrollton Avenue Church, this city, has increased the assessment for the pastor's salary from $1500 to $1700. Rev. A. F. Vaughan is the popular pastor of this growing congregation.

In renewing their subscription to the Advocate, Brother and Sister Jeff D. Hammett, of Camptl, La., assure us that they have a high appreciation of our paper. We are grateful for their kindly expressions.

Rev. C. P. Moss, of Shaw, Miss., says: "Things are looking good here. The official board has increased my salary from $1200 to $1350. They have also resolved to pay it monthly and have made a good start at it."

Rev. O. L. Savage, of Webb, Miss., has brought us under obligations to him for three subscriptions to the Advocate. Brother Savage may always be depended upon to take care of the interests of the Conference organ in his charge.

Dr. C. W. Byrd, pastor of our Central Church at Asheville, S. C., died suddenly from a stroke of apoplexy on January 3. He had been elected a delegate to the General Conference by the Western North Carolina Annual Conference.

Rev. C. W. Crisler, the new pastor of the Galloway Memorial Church at Jackson, Miss., has been cordially received, and, together with his great congregation, has entered hopefully upon the work of the Conference year now beginning.

Rev. L. C. Wilson, of Lake Providence, La., thus reports concerning his new charge: "The work has started off well here, and we are laying plans for a forward movement along all lines. I shall try to get the Advocate into more of our homes." Thank you, Brother Wilson.

A Baton Rouge (La.) correspondent, Jan. 7, says: "Yesterday was a great day with our First Church of this city. We had fine congregations and excellent services." Rev. C. A. Battle is the pastor of this flock, which numbers among its members many choice spirits.

Let all Methodist preachers in the North Mississippi Conference who have sons, or wards, in the Army or Navy, or in any other branch of service connected with the war, send the names of such persons to Rev. W. W. Jones, Lula, Miss. Please do this, brethren, without delay.

Mrs. M. E. Baskin, of Conway, Ark., sends a remittance to have the Advocate to continue to come to her home, seasoning her renewal subscription with a few kindly words. She assures us that it is read with interest and approval by some in the goodly city in which she resides.

Brother M. K. Scruggs, of Shaw, Miss., renews his subscription to the Advocate for two years, and in his business letter expresses the earnest hope that an honorable peace may come to the nations of the world in the near future. That sentiment strikes a responsive chord in many hurdened and anxious hearts.

At the morning hour last Sunday, Dr. J. T. Sawyer filled the pulpit of the St. Mark's M. E. Church, South, and he reports having had a good congregation and an attentive hearing. Dr. Sawyer says that all the signs indicate that Brothers Thomas and Romero are doing a splendid work in their new tabernacle at North Rampart and Governor Nicholls Streets.

Rev. V. C. Curtis, Jan. 7, writes "Brother J. E. Stephens, our pastor at Coahoma, Miss., wired me yesterday from Tishomingo, Miss., that his mother died the night before. No particulars were given; I suppose that she was buried there." Brother Stephens will have the sympathy of many in his great loss. May the Holy Spirit comfort and sustain him and the other bereaved ones!

Dr. S. H. Werlein, of Alexandria, La., was a visitor in New Orleans this week, having come to the city to consult an oculist. He stated that there were no church services in Alexandria last Sunday, the health authorities having advised against holding them as a means of safeguarding the public against spinal menengitis. It is thought, however, that the services will he resumed next Sunday.

Rev. W. H. Coleman delivered an interesting sermon to a good congregation at First Church last Sunday at 11 o'clock a. m., using as a text the words, "For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten son, that whosoever helieveth in him should not perish, hut have everlasting life." After the discourse the sacrament of the Lord's Supper was administered to a large number of communicants.

Rev. G. S. Harmon, of Poplarville, Miss., was in New Orleans last week and hrightened our sanctum with his presence for a hrief time. Brother Harmon is one of the most effective pastors in the Mississippi Conference. He had heen to Jackson in connection with the work of hringing out the journal of the last session of the Mississippi Conference, which he expects to make its appearance within the next few days.

From the Magnolia (Miss.) Gazette of January 2, we take the following: "Rev. N. B. Harmon, Jr., who is one of the Y. M. C. A. Secretaries stationed at Columhia, S. C., delivered a most interesting and instructive address at the Methodist Church here last Sunday night." This promising young minister is a son of Rev. N. B. Harmon, our pastor at Magnolia, and one of the hest known members of the Mississippi Conference.

We have on our table an attractive pamphlet entitled "The Church the Fullness of Christ and the Hope of the Universe," which contains the sermon delivered hy Bishop W. A. Candler at the first meeting of the Joint Commission on Methodist Unification at Baltimore on Decemher 28, 1916. This great utterance deserves a wide reading, and we are pleased to see that it has heen published in this form for general circulation.

We have in hand an interesting communication from Rev. J. Howard Brooks, of the North Mississippi Conference, who is engaged in Y. M. C. A. war work at Camp Jackson, near Columbia, S. C., which reached us too late for this issue of the Advocate, hut which will appear next week. Brother Brooks is happy in his new sphere of service, and is meeting with much success. His address is Camp Jackson, South Carolina, care of Y. M. C. A.

Read the address to the pastors and lay leaders of the North Mississippi Conference from the pen of Dr. Dabney Lipscomb, of Columhus, in this issue of the Advocate. It is a strong and timely exhortation. Dr. Lipscomh is right in taking the position that a pastor should seek to enlist the laymen of his charge in the active work of the Church. The minister who does this most successfully will, as a rule, achieve the largest measure of success.

Evangelist W. M. McIntosh, of Iuka, Miss., on Jan. 5, writes: "We have increased the pastor's salary here $100, and everything is moving along nicely. Brother T. H. Dorsey held our first quarterly conference last Sunday and preached us two great sermons. We were glad to have him and Brother McKeown returned to us for another year. Brother McKeown is much loved in Iuka and Tishomingo County, and he is doing a fine work for the Church."

The announcement of the death of Rev. John H. Evans, an honored superannuate of the Mississippi Conference, which appeared in the Advocate last week, touched with sadness many hearts. Brother Evans had lived a long and useful life and has left behind an unsullied record; nor do we douht that he found awaiting him a rich reward. We entend sympathy to the hereaved, and pray that the Heavenly Father may have them in his tender keeping in this time of sorrow.

Rev. John L. Williams, State Superintendent of the Louisiana Child Finding and Home Society, the headquarters of which are at Shreveport, has been looking after his work in New Orleans for the past few days. He has informed us that this Society has located a social service worker, a lady, in the Crescent City. Brother Williams requested and was granted a location at the late session of the Louisiana Conference, that he might devote his entire time to promoting the plans of this organization. Correspondents may address him at Shreveport, La.

Rev. C. F. Smith, presiding elder of the Beaumont (Texas) District, spent a couple of days in New Orleans last week, and while here paid the Advocate office an appreciated visit. Brother Smith, who is one of the solid men of Texas Methodism, is an ex-Mississippian, having taught school at Wesson, Miss., a number of years. His wife was Miss Chrisman, of Beauregard, a sister of Miss Clara Chrisman, who was drowned in the Johnstown (Pa.) flood, while en route to the mission field to labor for the Master. We greatly enjoyed our hrief season of fellowship with this wide-awake Texas presiding elder.

From the Nashville Christian Advocate of Jan. 4 we take the following: "Dr. E. B. Chappell, Sunday School Editor, reports that he received last week a check for $1,044.84 from Mr. Z. Z. Linton, superintendent of the Sunday school of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, at Fernwood, Miss. This represented the offering of the Fernwood Sunday school for the Armenian and Syrian relief. We douht not that, on the basis of members, the Fernwood Sunday school stands first among the schools of our Methodism, if not first among the schools of the United States." Hurrah for Fernwood!

Rev. J. Douglas Swagerty, of Shreveport, La., writes: "I should like to inquire through your columns if there is not somewhere in Louisiana a Methodist preacher who has a daughter whom he wants to have a chance to attend a high school or college, but who feels that he cannot afford the expense of sending her. If so, I should like to correspond with him ahout the matter. I live in Shreveport, and am away from home a great deal, and I should like to secure some ambitious girl to stay with my wife and two little girls while I am away and help Mrs. Swagerty in looking after household affairs. She would he treated as one of the family, no charge heing made for hoard. Shreveport has an excellent high school and Centenary College is within easy reach; so she could attend either."

ANOTHER NOTABLE OCCASION.

Felicity Church Debt Liquidated.

By Rev. W. W. Holmes.

In the last issue of the Advocate there was given an account of the opening and dedication of the New St. Mark's Methodist Church, New Orleans. While the congregation was made up largely of Italians, the collection taken was more than $1100, which amount was sufficient to cover all outstanding obligations.

On Sunday morning, January 6, the debt on the old Felicity Church, amounting to $3000, was fully provided for in cash and good subscriptions. The congregation there is small and is limited in financial resources. These facts make the achievement all the more remarkable.

The paying of the debt was made possible by the generous offer of Mr. W. W. Sutcliff to duplicate every dollar paid hy the congregation up to $1500. An appeal was made to the congregation lo meet the offer made by Mr. Sutcliff. The response was liheral and to full measure.

Mr. Sutcliff has been a loyal and faithful member of the Felicity Church for many years. In this generous gift he has rendered a great service to the Church. Much credit is also due Mr. Van Carter, Dr. George Brown, Mr. P. A. C. Voss, and others.

This church is one of the landmarks of New Orleans Methodism. It was twice destroyed by fire and once by storm. In the 1915 storm the church was almost wholly wrecked. It was restored at a cost of $7500. The $3000 collection Sunday morning frees the church of debt. The Felicity congregation has made its contrihution to every congregation in the city. More and more it is hecoming a "down town" church. A more loyal and liberal congregation of Methodists can not he found. Brother R. M. Brown, the pastor, is in high favor with the people. He is an efficient leader and is doing a most excellent work.

GLADSTONE A BIBLE STUDENT.

No nohler statesman lived in English life during the nineteenth century than William E. Gladstone. His life was founded on The Impregnahle Rock of Holy Scripture, as the title of his book reads. John Morley says that one constant entry in his diary from twelve to eighteen was, "Read Bible." In his university days at Oxford he constantly read and studied his Greek New Testament. This enriched his vocabularly and filled his mind with illustrations, and did much to shape his very expressions and gave him that classic and powerful English style that was at once the admiration and despair of his colleagues.

More than his style, his character and career were shaped hy its teachings. His chief rival, Lord Salishury, called Gladstone "a great Christian." Mr. Gladstone himself testified as to the worth of his Bihle study to his own life. "On most occasions of very sharp pressure or trial, some word of Scripture has come home to me as if horne on angels' wings. Many could I recollect. The Psalms are the great storehouse."—Pilgrim Teacher.

Sage and Sulphur Darkens Gray Hair

Brush this through faded, streaked locks and they become dark, glossy, youthful.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this famous old recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, for about 50 cents.

Don't stay gray! Try it! No one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy and attractive.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire dark hair and a youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

Mrs. ESSIE MAE BEST, only daughter of Mrs. Ida J. Edwards, of Lorman, Miss., was born on June 16, 1894. When six years of age she gave her heart to Christ, was baptized, and received into the Methodist Church by Rev. A. D. Miller. She was a graduate of Port Gibson College, where she maintained a high standard of Christian character. She taught school two years, during which time she became engaged to Mr. Frank F. Best, and on Sept. 2, 1914, became his bride. Three happy years of wedded life were theirs; a precious boy came to brighten the home, and life was very full of promise when sickness came, and, on November 14, 1917, she was called to her eternal reward. Her husband and child, mother and one brother, with a number of relatives, mourn her departure. Kind and gentle in spirit, quiet and reserved in manner, she was loved by all who knew her. Always faithful to her Christian duty, she faced death with a confident faith in her Savior. May God comfort the bereaved family and in His own good time bring them, without the loss of one, into the Eternal City!

W. H. LEWIS.

EDWIN HOFFPAUIR, the oldest son of Mr. and Mrs. D. Hoffpauir, who live near Ridge, La., was born on Sept. 19, 1893, in Lafayette Parish, La., which was his home until his death. On Sept. 19, 1917, he was taken to Camp Pike at Little Rock, Ark., then he was transferred to Camp Beauregard, La., and after a short illness in the last mentioned camp he passed to his reward on Dec. 19, 1917, dying with pneumonia. He was a promising young soldier. He was taken to his home and laid to rest in the home cemetery at Indian Bayou, where so many of his relatives and friends await the trumpet's sound. He was buried in a soldier's uniform and the casket was wrapped in a large United States flag. The Indian Bayou school turned out in full and marched to the cemetery headed by the professor carrying a large American flag. Never before was there such a large gathering at a funeral conducted in this part of the country. The pastor of the deceased, Rev. George Anders, officiated. Brother Anders, as well as many others, had learned to love the boy, for he was bright, lived an excellent life, and was always obedient to his parents. He was known to have no bad habits, and he was never seen in bad company. He was a regular attendant at Church and Sunday school. Too much can not be said in praise of his life and character. His death was one of the saddest things that has ever occurred in the life of his parents, as he was the first one to be taken from their home. He was loved by all who knew him. Yet they have many things to comfort them. Edwin was an honor to himself and to them; he died in the service of his country. There is no doubt of the fact that he was ready to pay the debt of death. From his own lips came the statement that he was prepared for death. He is now where the weary are at rest, and no soldiers are needed to uphold liberty.

T. H. HOFFPAUIR.

AN APPRECIATION.

When a true, good man falls out of the line of life's battle, there is a felt loss to those who were the more closely associated with him.

The above statement fits the subject of this notice. A noble, manly man has gone from us and our hearts are made sad by reason of his going.

JOEL WATKINS DUPUY was born in Prince Edward County, Va., Feb. 2, 1849. In his young manhood, he, with others, moved to Mississippi, which was ever after his home. He was married to Miss Martha Watkins Ryals, on March 31, 1878. Two children were born of this union—Howell Eldridge and Lucy Gordon, who, with the fond and devoted wife and mother, survive to mourn their great loss.

Brother Dupuy's last sickness was a long and painful one. Yet, in spite of the nerve-racking pain he had to undergo day and night, he bore it all with a brave, cheerful spirit. He was made of heroic stuff. Nothing could long dampen the warmth of his ardent nature, nor check the flow of his exuberant spirits. I have seen him in the hour of great suffering rise from his chair, and with a smile on his face, with gracious words, welcome his guests. Politeness was to him a law in the social circle, and extreme physical pain could not make him break that law.

The blood of the brave and intrepid Huguenots flowed through his veins. He was proud of his noble ancestry. When, in 1685, Louis the XIV, King of France, revoked the Edict of Nantes, and the few Protestant Christians had either to abjure their faith or go to their death as heretics, the genealogy of the Dupuy line shows many names who dared to maintain their integrity in spite of the King's decree for death and loss of earth's treasures. "We die, but never abjure" was their Christian motto. "I am proud of that declaration, and, as you see, I am a Protestant by heredity and environment."

Brother Dupuy's home life was as sacred to him as life itself. He and his wife, a choice and elect lady, made the home a place for children and friends to be fond of. Hospitality abounded and his plentiful hoard supplied the guests with all that heart could wish. The religious life of Brother Dupuy was not known to the world outside, but his faith in God and hope in Christ were strong, and his whispered prayers in the last hours told of the faith and hope that he had. To the writer, he at times talked freely of his future. He had no doubts. "In God I trust," he would often say. The home, the Church, the many friends, and the community, will sadly miss him. He was ministered to by loving hands in the days of suffering. But it is all over and he sleeps well in the grave, free from pain and trouble. Good-bye, my friend and brother. We'll meet again.

THICK, GLOSSY HAIR FREE FROM DANDRUFF

Girls! Try it! Hair gets soft, fluffy and beautiful—Get a small bottle of Danderine.

If you care for heavy hair that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine.

Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff. You can not have nice, heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp; the hair roots famish, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast. Surely get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store and just try it.

"BEST MEDICINE FOR WOMEN"

What Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Did For Ohio Woman.

Portsmouth, Ohio.—"I suffered from irregularities, pains in my side and was so weak at times I could hardly get around to do my work, and as I had four in my family and three boarders it made it very hard for me. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended to me. I took it and it has restored my health. It is certainly the best medicine for woman's ailments I ever saw."—Mrs. SINA SHAW, R. No. 1, Portsmouth, Ohio.

Mrs. Shaw proved the merit of this medicine and wrote this letter in order that other suffering women may find relief as she did.

Women who are suffering as she was should not drag along from day to day without giving this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a trial. For special advice in regard to such ailments write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. The result of [illegible] forty years experience [illegible]

A TIMELY ENTERPRISE.

Dear Dr. Meek: I was very glad to see Dr. Cooper's note in the Advocate in regard to educating young preachers. I consider that the grandest enterprise any man could enter into, except that of taking care of our dear old preachers and their faithful companions. I would love to give the best service that there is in me to that work for the balance of my life, and after about two years, and maybe less time, I propose by the help of God to throw myself, soul and body, into that great and glorious enterprise. It has been weighing on my mind for ten years, and I have been making that subject a special object of prayer for several years and have laid awake at night thinking, planning, and praying for God to open up some way by which these noble, self-sacrificing young men could be helped along in preparing themselves for the highest and noblest work known to mankind. And I thank God and praise his great and holy name that the mist is clearing away and that the way is opening up.

I wrote Brother Hardin a long letter while he was presiding elder of the Jackson District, and also visited him in person in regard to this great question and put my plans before him, and he said it would be a fine thing if I could carry them out. I told him some sweet day he would see them in full blast by the help of the good Lord. I also talked it over with Brother H. P. Lewis, Jr., our pastor at Madison, and he said the same thing that Brother Hardin did. Last October at Ridgeland, during our quarterly conference, Brother W. H. Lewis, of the Capital Street Church of Jackson, was with us, and I was telling him about my plans and he gave me great encouragement and insisted that I should go over to Montrose at once and see Dr. Hunt and formulate a plan and bring it up at the Annual Conference; but I did not get to go; so he saw Dr. Hunt in the meantime and told him what I was planning to do, and Dr. Hunt wrote me insisting on my coming over at once, and I made two engagements with him, but failed to go both times; so I wrote him I would see him at Conference which I did and we talked the matter over and are still working at it.

My idea was to start the young preachers at Montrose and have them finish up at Millsaps. Now, I am sure Dr. Cooper's plans are far superior and much better than mine, and I thank God that we have such a big, pure-hearted man as Dr. Cooper to back up this greatly needed work. I know that its success is assured, but I want to have a little hand in it too, because my heart, soul and body are in the undertaking, because I love the preachers, and they all know it.

This letter is too long for me to give you my plans in detail, but it is a co-operative plan, by which the boys could make their way through Montrose, paying the most of their expenses by being given an opportunity to work at odd times, when they have a little leisure time, and then follow them up with sufficient funds to graduate them at Millsaps. May the Lord's richest blessing attend the preachers and their families, and every interest of theirs for the coming year. I am,

Sincerely yours,

C. L. RAY.

A HEALING SPRING AT YOUR DOOR.

Here is a very unusual and peculiar offer—one that you rarely meet with. It evidences the greatest faith on the part of its maker and inspires confidence. It is made by an earnest and enthusiastic man who not only thinks but knows from personal experience that he is right. He proposes to give you the equivalent of a three weeks' visit to a Mineral Spring of most remarkable restorative powers and make no charge if you are not benefited. His offer has been accepted by over a hundred thousand sufferers in all parts of the United States and his records show that only two in a hundred, on the average, report no benefit.

If you suffer from dyspepsia, indigestion, rheumatism, kidney, bladder or liver disease, uric acid poisoning, or other condition caused by impure blood, take Mr. Shivar at his word and sign and mail the following letter:

Shivar Spring,
Box 17-K, Shelton, S. C.

Gentlemen:

I accept your guarantee offer and enclose herewith two dollars for ten gallons of Shivar Mineral Water. I agree to give it a fair trial, in accordance with instructions contained in booklet you will send, and if it fails to benefit my case you agree to refund the price in full upon receipt of the two empty demijohns which I agree to return promptly.

NOTE.—"I have had the pleasure of serving the little church at Shivar Spring as Pastor for years, and am therefore well acquainted with Mr. Shivar and his associates, whom I gladly commend as an honorable business man and worthy of the confidence of the public. I have personally derived great benefit from the use of the Shivar Mineral Water and have knowledge of its beneficial effects in a great number and variety of cases."—Rev. A. McA. Pittman.

THE COST OF ACHIEVEMENT.

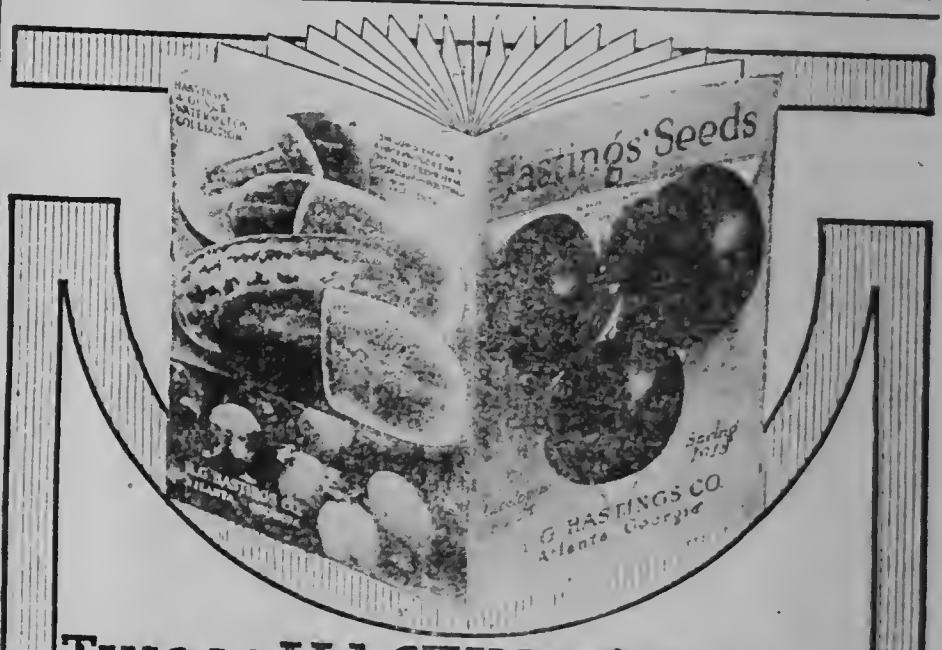
Whenever any great evil has been averted, or any signal triumph of truth and righteousness achieved, it has ever been at vast personal cost. Read St. Paul's account of his sufferings. And thus it was that Christianity, whose throne was a manger, whose diadem a thorn-wreath, whose victory the crucifixion of its Author, whose triumphal pageant a funeral procession to a borrowed tomb, whose earliest champions a little band of despised and persecuted fisherman, is now filling the earth with its voices of jubilee, and peopling Paradise with the subjects of its redemption.—J. Cross.

MORE FAITH NEEDED.

We often stagger at the Divine precepts because they outrage our limited resources of mental and moral energy. And it is often sheer fear that makes us recreant. Did we but remember that every command of God is a covenanted promise of power; that His biddings are enablings; that all His commandments are faithful; how different would be our outlook on life, and the record of our faith's profession! It will make us more than conquerors to-day if we recognize in going forth to the toil which awaits us, that we do so at the faithful word of a faithful God.—J. S. Holden.

UGH! A DOSE OF NASTY CALOMEL

It salivates! It makes you sick and you may lose a day's work.



You're bilious, sluggish, constipated and believe you need vile, dangerous calomel to start your liver and clean your bowels.

Here's my guarantee! Ask your druggist for a 50 cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone and take a spoonful to-night. If it doesn't start your liver and straighten you right up better than calomel and without griping or making you sick I want you to go back to the store and get your money.

Take calomel to-day and to-morrow you will feel weak and sick and nauseated. Don't lose a day's work. Take a spoonful of harmless, vegetable Dodson's Liver Tone tonight and wake up feeling great. It's perfectly harmless, so give it to your children any time. It can't salivate, so let them eat anything afterwards.

Former Health Commissioner Says Nuxated Iron

Should Be Used in Every Hospital and Prescribed by Every Physician—Attributes His own Great Physical Activity Today at Over 60 Years of Age Largely to His Personal Use of Nuxated Iron

WHAT FORMER HEALTH COMMISSIONER KERR SAYS

"As Health Commissioner of the City of Chicago, I was importuned many times to recommend different medicines, mineral waters, etc. Never yet have I gone on record as favoring any particular remedy, but I feel that in Nuxated Iron an exception should be made to the rule. I have taken Nuxated Iron myself and experienced its health-giving strength-building effect, and in the interest of the public welfare, I feel it my duty to make known the results of its use. I am well past my three-score years and want to say that I believe that my own great physical activity is due largely today to my personal use of Nuxated Iron, and if my endorsement shall induce anaemic, nervous, run-down men and women to take Nuxated Iron, and receive the wonderful tonic benefits which I have received, I shall feel greatly gratified that I made an exception to my life-long rule in recommending it. From my own experience with Nuxated Iron, I feel that it is such a valuable remedy that it ought to be used in every hospital and prescribed by every physician in this country."

Wm R Kerr

Former Health Commissioner, City of Chicago.

Former Health Commissioner Kerr has given years of his life fighting for public health in his own and other cities. It was he who introduced Anti-toxin for Diphtheria in Chicago's Health Department. He purified the milk for the Consumers and thereby helped to save the lives of thousands of babies. He introduced the anti-spitting ordinance which has been copied all over the country and also took care of the sewers and garbage in the interest of public health. He is positive that the widespread use of Nuxated Iron would greatly lessen the worries and troubles of Health Commissioners in keeping up a high standard of public health.

NOTE—Nuxated Iron, which has been used by Former Health Commissioner Kerr with such surprising results, and which is prescribed and recommended by physicians in such a great variety of cases, is not a patent medicine nor secret remedy, but one which is well known to druggists everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products, it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach; on the contrary, it is a most potent remedy in nearly all forms of indigestion as well as for nervous, run down conditions. The manufacturers have such great confidence in Nuxated Iron that they offer to forfeit $1000.00 to any charitable institution if they cannot take any man or woman under 60 who lacks iron and increase their strength 100 per cent or over in four weeks' time provided they have no serious organic trouble. They also offer to refund your money if it does not at least double your strength and endurance in ten days' time. It is dispensed by all good druggists.

REV. W. A. WILSON COMMENDED.

Dear Doctor Meek: Please allow me to announce through the Advocate that Rev. T. H. Dorsey, our presiding elder, authorizes me to say that he indorses Rev. W. A. Wilson, of New Albany, Miss., to assist any of the brethren in the Corinth District in their revival meetings where he may be needed.

And allow me to say further that I have known Brother Wilson for about three years and that he has assisted me in quite a number of meetings and is very excellent help. He not only preaches well, hut he is the best personal worker I have ever had to help me. He was converted in my meeting at New Albany nearly three years ago and has been instrumental in leading many souls to Christ since that time. He is a man of wonderful faith and a man of prayer.

Yours fraternally,

Iuka, Miss. W M. McINTOSH.

A CORRECTION.

Dear Dr. Meek: Please allow this correction. In writing up the proceedings of tbe North Mississippi Conference, by my mistake, the name of J. W. Ward appears in the class of the fourth year, when it should have been W. J. Wood who was thus advanced.

The people at Booneville were informed immediately after Conference, that Brother Ward was just recommend for admission on trial. They were very much encouraged, on reading my report, that he was advancing so rapidly. I wish to further encourage them by saying that Brother Ward completed his course of studies some time past, but that he has taken due advantage of every opportunity to improve his talents since that time. So many of us quit studying when we get through with the "Course" that I sometimes think it should be a ten-year course instead of four. I leave it to Brother Ward to continue encouraging the Booneville congregation—but have no doubts about it. Yours,

Lula, Miss. W. W. JONES.

PALPITATION AND OTHER DISORDERS OF THE HEART.

Weak hearts are exceedingly common. Directly you are conscious of the fact that you have a heart, it means that your heart is not acting normally and that it needs attention.

Every time your heart misses a beat its efficiency is lessened.

Heart trouble, taken in its early stages, may not he difficult to relieve; but the more the treatment is delayed the harder it is to obtain permanent relief. If there is the slightest symptom to show that your heart is weak or diseased you should not delay taking treatment.

Dr. Miles' Heart Treatment has been the popular choice for more than twenty years. It bas stood the test of time in a manner that forbids any douht as to its efficiency. People who praised this remedy twenty years ago still believe in it and are only too glad to state that the trouble has never returned.

Any of these symptoms may indicate heart trouble: Shortuess of Breath, Fluttering or Palpitation; Choking Sensation; Irregular Pulse; Weak or Hungry Spells, Swelling of Feet or Ankles, Pain under the Left Shoulder Blade.

If you notice any of these symptoms get a hottle of Dr. Miles' Heart Treatment. You risk nothing, for if the first bottle fails to benefit you, you have only to return the empty bottle to your druggist and your money will be cbeerfully refunded.

A HEALTHY BODY.

Do you suffer from constipation, indigestion, dyspepsia, heartburn, or other forms of liver trouble? A healthy liver means a healthy body. When constipated don't poison yourself by failing to take the proper treatment. Don't force your perspiration to carry off through your skin pores more than its share of the impurities of your body by failing to keep your bowels clean and healthy. Take Van Lax for your liver. It is harmless, contains no calomel or habit-forming drugs, is pleasant in taste and results. It promotes a healthy condition in your entire digestive system. Take Van Lax and keep your body healthy. Sold by all reliable dealers. In bottles 50c. Van Vleet-Mansfield Drug Co., Memphis, Tenn.

BLOOD POISON IS SNEAKING.

It steals upon you in the most unexpected manner. Beginning with a mere scratch of the skin and aided by the careless touch of a pair of dirty hands the slight wound becomes infected, festers and spreads. Blood poison sets in and unexpectedly the entire body is affected. Too often it proves fatal. Don't be foolish. Take care of yourself. The application of Gray's Ointment in all cases of cuts, burns, scalds, bruises, stings, sores, whether large or small, will put a stop to any possible chance of infection and blood poison. Telephone your druggist, or write W. F. Gray & Co., 806 Gray Bldg., Nashville, Tenn., for sample.—Adv.

The Inward Effects of humors are worse than the outward. They endanger the whole system. Hood's Sarsaparilla eradicates all humors, cures all their inward and outward effects. It is the great alternative and tonic, whose merit has been everywhere established.—Adv.

SOUR, ACID STOMACHS, GASES OR INDIGESTION

"Pape's Diapepsin" neutralizes excessive acid in stomach, relieving dyspepsia, heartburn and distress at once.

Time it! In five minutes all stomach distress, due to acidity will go. No indigestion, heartburn, sourness or belching of gas or eructations of undigested food, no dizziness, bloating, foul breath or headache.

Pape's Diapepsin is noted for its speed in regulating upset stomachs. It is the surest, quickest stomach sweetener in the whole world, and besides it is harmless. Put an end to stomach distress at once by getting a large fifty-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin from any drug store. You realize in five minutes how needless it is to suffer from indigestion, dyspepsia or any stomach disorder caused by fermentation due to excessive acids in stomach.

Women Prepare!

Thousands of women in the South have overcome their sufferings, and have been cured of woman's ills by Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. This temperance medicine, though started nearly half a century ago, sells most widely to-day. It can now be had in tablet form as well as liquid, and every woman who suffers from backache, headache, nervousness, should take this "Prescription" of Dr. Pierce's. It is prepared from nature's roots and herbs and does not contain a particle of alcohol or any narcotic. It's not a secret prescription for its ingredients are printed on wrapper. Send 10c. for trial package to Dr. V. M. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

ATLANTA, GA.—"It is indeed a pleasure to tell what Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription did for me during the state of gestation. I was so nervous I would shake almost like anyone with a chill and could not eat anything without being nauseated. My husband got me one bottle of the 'Favorite Prescription,' and I began to take it. The nausea ceased after the first dose. I took only two bottles of the 'Favorite Prescription,' and was surprised and gratified at the marked improvement in my condition. I have also used this medicine for other troubles with good results."—MRS. DORA E. DONEHOO, R. F. D. 5.

SYLACAUGA, ALA.—"We have used Dr. Pierce's Remedies and found them to be of great value.

"My mother has used the 'Favorite Prescription,' and thinks she could not do without it. I highly recommend Dr. Pierce's Medicines."—N. HAMMETT.

BUSY, HARD-WORKED MEN AND WOMEN

Will find that the sarsaparilla, pepsin, nux and iron treatment comprised in Hood's Sarsaparilla and Peptiron will give brain and nerve force, relieve the nervous strain incident to "too much to do in too little time," characteristic of life today.

These blood and nerve medicines seem to lift the nervous and overworked into new life, enabling them to accomplish easily the things that have fretted them and have seemed to bring them to a standstill.

Hood's Sarsaparilla and Peptiron are very effectively supplemented by Hood's Pills, in cases where a laxative is needed. These three preparations are all sold by your druggist. Get them today.

FIXED AMMUNITION.

Ram's Horn Brown.

If some preachers would put more of the Bible in their preaching they would have more people in their pews.

Whenever a lazy man looks toward heaven the angels close the windows.

You can't tell how big the church is by the size of the steeple.

There is a good deal of preaching being done that the devil likes to hear.

The preacher who don't like revivals ought to shake hands with the sailor who doesn't like the sea.

The man who does the least for the church often tries the hardest to run it.

The man who is always on the side of the biggest crowd never weighs much anywhere.—Eastern Methodist.

against chills and fever and a possible fatality. If you are troubled with dumb or shaking chills and fever, malaria, liver trouble or jaundice, you can do no better than to take the time-proven, well-established, old-time remedy, Plantation Chill and Fever Tonic and Liver Regulator. It is well known and reliable, harmless but effective, and contains no Calomel, Arsenic or other dangerous drugs. Cured His RUPTURE

I was badly ruptured while lifting a trunk several years ago. Doctors said my only hope of cure was an operation. Trusses did me no good. Finally I got hold of something that quickly and completely cured me. Years have passed and the rupture has never returned, although I am doing hard work as a carpenter. There was no operation, no loss of time, no trouble. I have nothing to sell, but will give full information about how you may find a complete cure without operation, if you write to me, Eugene M. Pullen, Carpenter, 862D Marcellus Avenue, Manasquan N. J. Better cut out this notice and show it to any others who are ruptured—you may save a life or at least stop the misery of rupture and the worry and danger of an operation.

A MESSAGE TO THE WOMEN OF MISSISSIPPI.

"Blest be tbe tie tbat blnds
Our hearts in Christian love."

We could not feel that the new year was started right unless we sent a message of love and appreciation to the women with whom we have labored durlng the past five years. They have been years full of rare, sweet experiences and many choice blessings have fallen to our lot because these same dear women were willing to be empty vessels waiting for the Master's use. He filled them with a love divine and many times they watered our faint and drooping spirit. We thank Him for the years in Mississippi, for they brought us in contact with a splendid Christian womanhood banded together to work for their Lord. The work with them was ever pleasant because of their ready response to every call upon them, and they were so loyal to the cause that they were eager and anxious to "tell it out" among the Conferences. They realized that this was their department and were never failing in thinking of it.

The messages of love and cheer accompanying their letters are treasures hidden deep in the heart and the seed then sown will spring into nowers of rare beauty and fragrance as the years roll by.

We ask that you remember, whether in Louisiana or Mississippl, we are deeply interested in the work, for is it not our Father's and are we not all sisters working to accomplish that where unto he has sent us?

May God's richest blessings rest upon all of the Conference officers and may their hearts be so full of his love that their lives will be lost in Him. Not only do we pray for the Conference officers, but for every woman in the Mississippi Conference Society.

If we are permitted to attend the annual meetings it will give us much pleasure to renew old acquaintances and form new ones; if not, we shall be there in spirit, praying the Father to breathe upon you the "breath of life" "that you may with one mind and one mouth glorify God."

"We then, as workers together with him," must put on "the breastplate of faith and love" and "pray without ceasing" that we may hasten the time "that at the name of Jesus every knee should bow.

FACTORY SLAVERY IN JAPAN.

Galen Fisher, in "The Christian Movement in Japan," draws a terrible picture of the exploitation of girls in Japanese factories. There are 471,877 women and girls employed, which is 56 per cent of the personnel of these establishments. Sixty-four per cent are under twenty years of age, and of these, twenty-three per cent are under fourteen years. Hours range from twelve to sixteen in silk and weaving factories, and night work is common. Not infrequently the girls eat their rice while tending their machines, for to take the allotted time would incur the ill-will of the foreman. The weighing of 1350 girls after a night shift showed an average loss of weight of one and a half pounds, and in the succeeding day shifts this weight is not recovered. Wages run from 26 to 31 yen a day (say 14 cents), which is a little more than one-half what is paid to male factory workers.

Such conditions result from the fact that Japan is developing rapidly in all the superficial elements of civilization, but without the corrective influence of Christian principles. It is for the Churches of Christendom to say whether this condition shall persist, leaving Japan to develop a pagan civilization that will shame and threaten the world.—Missionary Review of the World.

THE AFRICAN AND CHANGE.

There have been more changes in the South African tribes during the last fifty years than during the fifty or five hundred preceding centuries, and this process of transformation is bound to continue at a geometrical rate of progression during the fifty ensuing years. Taking into consideration for a moment the real and permanent interest of the native, let us ask to what probable goal this transformation is leading him.

Civilization has certainly brought some blessings to the tribe and I have impartially and carefully noted them. Disappearance of deadly famines, owing to the development of trade; better clothing; better seeds and agricultural implements; possibility of earning money; incentive to work in order to pay taxes; decrease of polygamy; broadening of ideas, consequent on travelers and work in towns. But the curses of civilization far exceed its blessings for the South African native; he has lost more through it than he has gained. Loss of political interest and responsibility, loss of hierarchic respect for the chiefs and for the elder brother; loss of personal dignity; moreover, we notice decrease of religious faith and of respect for taboos.

In addition, the vices of civillzation have found a deplorable welcome on the part of these primitives, and these vices have caused new and very dangerous diseases which are now quickly spreading amongst them.

To fight against these new and frightful foes the black race happily possesses a considerable physical strength and great prolificacy, but these may not necessarily last forever. If these influences are not checked I believe in the possible extinction of the race, in the long run, and I think every thoughtful observer will come to the same conclusion. I am convinced that the only remedy for these deadly dangers in the formation, in the black tribe, of a strong moral character accompanied by sufficient enlightenment of mind to enable the native, himself, to perceive the danger and overcome it.

I am convinced that Christianity is the only true solution of the problem. Christianity, not merely a new set of rites taking the place of the old animistic rites, but the spiritual Christianity—which perfectly combines the religious belief and the moral duty—accepted by the Bantu soul—and leading the weak and carnal Bantu savage to the height of the Christian ideal, thus victoriously replacing the non-moral religion and the non-religious morality of the native.

Christianity is the religion of love, love between individuals, and love between the races, regulating the relations between whites and blacks, who are both indispensable to the cultivation, exploitation, and full utilization of the marvelous riches of South Africa, dispelling race hatred, and promoting the helpful collaboration of Africanders and Africans.

But is the Bantu capable of accepting such a high and spiritual religion? I answer: "Yes!" Their intelligence can understand the Gospel of 'the Father who is in Heaven,' as they already possess the rudiments of this central teaching of Christianity in the beliefs of Ancestrology, and in their conceptions of Heaven. That their heart is able to grasp it by faith—the only condition of entrance into the Kingdom of God—is proved by a thousand instances."—Henri A. Junod, "The Life of a South African Tribe."

"There are men who count on getting to heaven because they sometimes give away an old coat."

GIVE "SYRUP OF FIGS" TO CONSTIPATED CHILD

Delicious "Fruit Laxative" can't harm tender little Stomach, Liver and Bowels.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, your little one's stomach, liver and bowels need cleansing at once. When peevish, cross, listless, doesn't sleep, eat or act naturally, or is feverish, stomach sour, breath bad; has sore throat, diarrhoea, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of its little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again. Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which contains full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups.

RECIPE FOR GRAY HAIR.

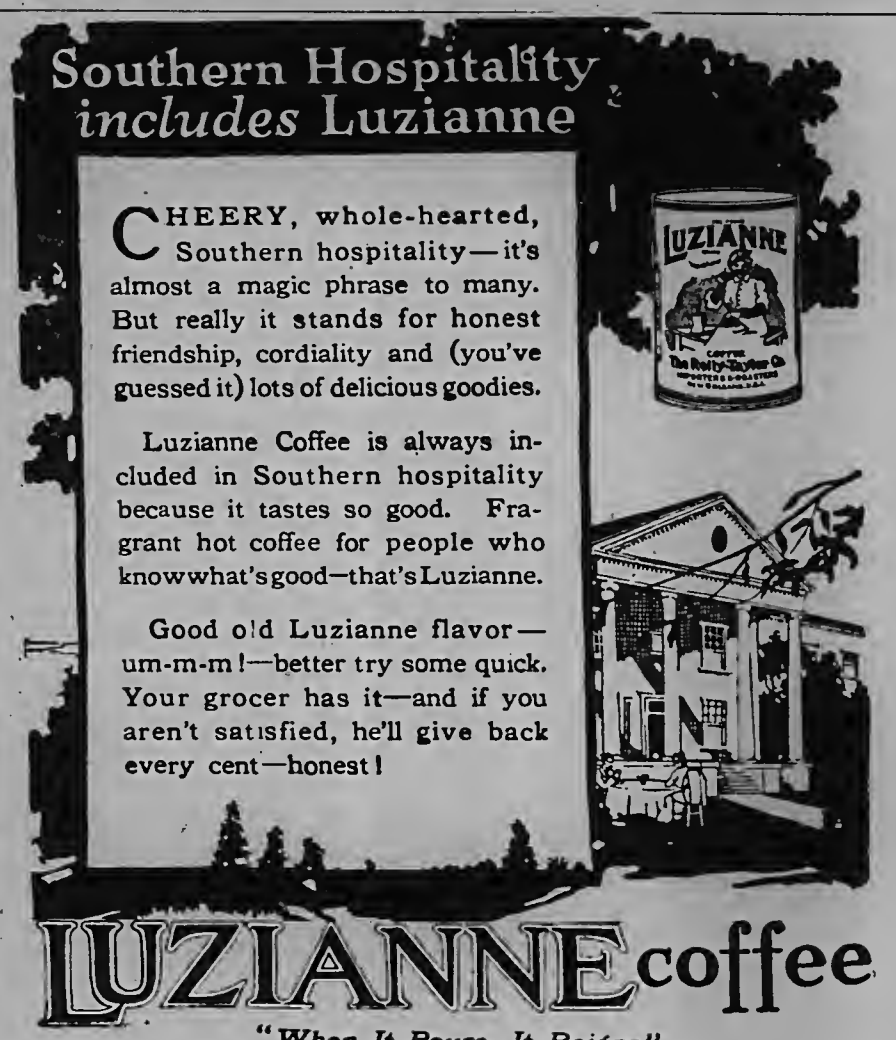
To half pint of water add 1 oz. Bay Rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and ¼ oz. of glycerine. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it at home at very little cost. Full directions for making and use come in each box of Barbo Compound. It will gradually darken streaked, faded gray hair, and make it soft and glossy. It will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy, and does not rub off.—Adv.

You Get Better Cough Syrup by Making it at Home

What's more, you save about $2 by it. Easily made and costs little.

You'll never really know what a fine cough syrup you can make until you prepare this famous home-made remedy. You not only save $2 as compared with the ready-made kind, but you will also have a more effective and dependable remedy in every way. It overcomes the usual coughs, throat and chest colds in 24 hours—relieves even whooping cough quickly.

Get 2½ ounces of Pinex (60 cents worth) from any good drug store, pour it into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. Here you have a full pint—a family supply—of the most effective cough syrup that money can buy—at a cost of only 65 cents or less. It never spoils.



The prompt and positive results given by this pleasant tasting cough syrup have caused it to be used in more homes than any other remedy. It quickly loosens a dry, hoarse or tight cough, heals the inflamed membranes that line the throat and bronchial tubes, and relief comes almost immediately. Splendid for throat tickle, hoarseness, bronchitis, croup and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and has been used for generations for throat and chest ailments.

Avoid disappointment by asking your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

TERRY, MISS.

Dear Dr. Meek: After four and one-half days' hard driving through the country, my eldest boy and I came to Terry, Miss., on Christmas Eve, where this preacher is to spend the next eleven months laboring for the Master within the bounds of the Terry charge. Mrs. Blackwell and the little boy arrived on Christmas day. We were very cordially received and have been made to feel at home ever since our arrival. We are conforiably housed and the prospects are promising for a good year.—W. L. Blackwell, P. C.

FAMOUS CHURCH AFIRE.

Padua, Italy, Dec. 30.—The ancient monumental Carmini Church of Padua, containing frescoes by Titian and Campagnola, was the center of a vast conflagration last night, which lighted up the skies for miles around. The fire started from incendiary bombs dropped by enemy airplanes in another raid, which scattered widespread destruction and death.

The dome of the massive church burned throughout the night, making a majestic spectacle, but the solidity of the ancient walls, dating from 1250, and the copper-roof saved the main structure and paintings from destruction. The bomb hit the outer edge of the dome which was soon a fiery furnace rising many feet in the center of the city.

One building was pierced from top to bottom and torn to pieces by a bomb, which buried four persons, three of them children. The Church of San Valentine and the ancient palace were partly wrecked. Other private buildings also were struck. While destruction of property was great, reports of the loss of life were not as severe as on Friday night

The Carmini Church was erected to commemorate the end of the brutal tyranny of one of the Hohenstauffen chiefs who raided Northern Italy 700 years ago.—Commercial Appeal.

PATRIOTIC RESOLUTIONS.

Whereas, the Republic of the United Sta es is at war with the Imperial German Government, an issue forced upon an unwilling people by the German general staff's lawless, brutal, and repeated attacks upon the rigbts, the property and the lives of our citizens; therefore be it

Resolved, That we, representing many thousand patriotic Christian people within the State of Mississippi, affirm our conviction of the absolute justice of our Government's cause, and that under any terms of honor and self-respect, war was unavoidable. That the only alternatives were war in Europe now with the assistance of the allies, or war hereafter on our own soil without the help of the allies. That this is not simply a war "to make the world safe for democracy," but a struggle to save even the semblance of a Christian civilization, to save womanhood and childhood and manhood from the ruthless savagery of barbarism. That we believe every man in this country should fight in this just cause unto death rather than that we should, as a nation, be untrue to God and humanity in this crucial hour.

Resolved, That we approve the course of our Government in entering upon this war, and heartily endorse President Wilson in his wise, patriotic and righteous policies during the whole National crisis; that we unreservedly commit ourselves to the great work of the Red Cross in its ministry to the bodies of our soldiers; that we pledge our support to the Young Men's Christian Association and all other agencies which purpose to safeguard the morals and to help the religious life of our boys, both in camp and upon the battlefield; that we are in full accord with the President's purpose to accept no terms of compromise, but to prosecute this war, whatever the cost, to complete victory over Prussian militarism and all other enemies of humanity, so as to secure ultimately to all Nations of the world a righteous and a lasting peace; and that we hereby assure the President of our loyal support and most earnest prayers.

Signed: Chas. W. Crisler, J. L. Neill, I. W. Cooper, J. T. Leggett, W. H. Saunders, H. Walter Featherstun.

That Well Known Saying

"Beauty is only Skin deep," is certainly true as regards physical beauty. There are many beautiful faces and beautiful hands that have been made extremely ugly by some skin trouble. The fragrant Tetterine will rid you of any skin disease. Absolutely harmless. 50c a box from druggists or by mail from

REPORT OF BOARD ON LAY ACTIVITIES.

To the Bishop and Members of the Mississippi Annual Conference.

Dear Brethren: Your Board on Lay Activities begs to report that during the year some progress has been made, though the work of the Laymen's Movement has not come up to the standard of efficiency that we would ask for it. We stand ready to promote the interests of our great Church in whatever sphere we may be needed. There are certain phases of work that we are ready to engage in and for which a layman is peculiarly fitted, such work as filling engagements in remote places when the pastor may not be there. Pastors and preachers are made from laymen.

We wish to pledge our sincere loyalty to the M. E. Church, South, and are ready at all times to fight her battles.

We wish to express our disapproval of the methods followed by the leaders of the propaganda that has given circulation to the so-called "Laymen's Address." We think that there is a proper course for any proposed legislation to take and that is through the channel of memorials to the General Conference.

We wish to commend all efforts that are being made for the moral protection of our soldiers in the cantonments and the trenches.

We commend the efforts of President Wilson in pushing the war to a successful conclusion, that there may be permanent and universal peace.

We pledge ourselves to assist in whatever way possible the Centennial of Methodist Missions.

We urge upon the pastors and laymen to make the "Every Member Canvass" in their charges, and to use, as far as possible, more aggressive evangelism, and to unite with us in intercessory prayer for the peace and evangelization of the world.

We wish to co-operate in the raising of the War Emergency Mission Fund.

We, as laymen, pledge ourselves anew to that portion of our Church vow in regard to attendance upon the services of the Church and to urge the same upon the membership at large, that in this time of distracting agencies the services in the house of our Lord may not suffer. We recommend the election of G. L. Harrell as Conference Lay Leader. For Committee.

Signed: G. L. Harrell, M. M. Satterfield.

"CASCARETS" WORK WHILE YOU SLEEP

For Sick Headache, Sour Stomach, Sluggish Liver and Bowels—Take Cascarets to-night.

Furred Tongue, Bad Taste, Indigestion, Sallow Skin and Miserable Headaches come from a torpid liver and clogged bowels, which cause your stomach to become filled with undigested food, which sours and ferments like garbage in a swill barrel. That's the first step to untold misery—indigestion, foul gases, bad breath, yellow skin, mental fears, everything that is horrible and nauseating. A Cascaret to-night will give your constipated bowels a thorough cleansing and straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist will keep you feeling good for months.

"Our misfortunes may drag us down from bare heights to fruitful valleys."

Less Meat if Back And Kidneys Hurt

Take a glass of Salts to flush Kidneys if Bladder bothers you—Drink lots of water.

Eating meat regularly eventually produces kidney trouble in some form or other, says a well known authority, because the uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked, get sluggish, clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region; rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity; also to neutralize the acids so they no longer irritate, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to keep the kidneys clean thus avoiding serious kidney disease.

How Long Must I Suffer From the Pangs of Rheumatism?

Is there no real relief in sight?

Doubtless like other sufferers, you have often asked yourself this question, which continues to remain unanswered.

Science has proven that your Rheumatism is caused by a germ in your blood, and the only way to reach it is by a remedy which eliminates and removes these little pain demons from your blood. This explains why liniments and lotions can do no permanent good, for they cannot possibly reach these germs which infest your blood by the millions.

S. S. S. has been successfully used for Rheumatism for more than fifty years. Try it to-day, and you will find yourself at last on the right track to get rid of your Rheumatism. You can get valuable advice about the treatment of your individual case by writing to the Chief Medical Adviser, Swift Specific Co., Dept. D Atlanta, Ga.

NEW ORLEANS
CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

Vol. 65—No. 3. Official Organ of the Louisiana, Mississippi, and North Mississippi Conferences, Methodist Episcopal Church, South. Whole No. 3230.

Editorial

THE CHRISTIAN'S GREATEST HELPER.

The Christian's greatest helper both in the cultivation of his own spiritual life and in his efforts to extend the Master's Kingdom is the Holy Spirit. Are we not too negligent of this fact, and are not our attainments and our achievements in consequence far more meager than they should be? The Holy Spirit cleanses and strengthens the soul in proportion as we make our faith a channel through which he can operate. The preaching that is truly effective is that which is accompanied by "the Holy Ghost sent down from Heaven," and the most telling personal work is that which is done under his leadership. Read the Book of Acts and see how often and how fully all this is therein illustrated. Nor is the Spirit's presence and direction something of which the disciple is unconscious. His indwelling and his guidance may be recognized so as to give one assurance and inspire one with confidence.

These rich ministries of the Spirit were not confined to the Apostolic Age, as many imagine. They may still be ours if we rightly seek them. Most pertinently does Dr. W. H. Fitchett, the great Australian Methodist minister, in touching upon this point in his noble volume, "Wesley and His Century," say: "Most Christians have an easy, careless belief that the Holy Spirit once dwelt in the Church and shaped its history; but the unspoken addition to that belief is that he dwells in it no more. His gracious offices are nineteen hundred years distant! Now Wesley believed with enthusiastic certainty that the Holy Ghost was in the world on whose soil he trod, and was inspiring the life and shaping the development of the Church about him. That the offices of the Holy Ghost belong not merely to history, but to biology, is a great and faithful belief carrying with it strange consequences; and it is much rarer than we quite realize."

A not unfitting prayer for us as Christian laborers as we face the New Year is that set forth in the lines of the sacred poet:

"Mighty Spirit, dwell with me!
I myself would mighty be;
Mighty so as to prevail,
Where unaided man must fail;
Ever, by a mighty hope,
Pressing on and bearing up."

THE CENTRAL POWERS ANSWERED.

Two notable utterances bearing upon the question of peace terms have lately been made in reply to the recent overtures of the Central Powers, which came through the Russian Government: the first emanating from the Honorable Lloyd George, the British Prime Minister, and the second coming two or three days later from President Woodrow Wilson. A summary of Mr. George's deliverance may be found on another page in this issue of the Advocate; and Mr. Wilson's peace conditions have been succinctly summarized as follows:

1. Open covenants of peace without private international understandings.

2. Absolute freedom of the seas in peace or war except as they may be closed by international action.

3. Removal of all economic barriers and establishment of equality of trade conditions among nations consenting to peace and associating themselves for its maintenance.

4. Guarantees for the reduction of national armaments to the lowest point consistent with domestic safety.

5. Impartial adjustment of all colonial claims based upon the principle that the peoples concerned have equal weight with the interests of the government.

6. Evacuation of all Russian territory and opportunity for Russia's political development.

7. Evacuation and restoration of Belgium without any attempt to limit her sovereignty.

8. All French territory to be freed and restored, and Alsace-Lorraine given back to France.

9. Readjustment of Italy's frontiers on clearly recognizable lines of nationality.

10. Freest opportunity for autonomous development of the peoples of Austria-Hungary.

11. Evacuation of Roumania, Serbia and Montenegro, with access to the sea for Serbia, and international guarantees of economic and political independence and territorial integrity of the Balkan States.

12. Secure sovereignty for Turkey's portion of the Ottoman empire, but with other nationalities under Turkish rule assured security of life and opportunity for autonomous development, with the Dardanelles permanently opened to all nations.

13. Establishment of an independent Polish state, including territories inhabited by indisputably Polish populations, with free access to the sea and political and economic independence and territorial integrity guaranteed by international covenants.

14. General association of nations under specific covenants for mutual guarantees of political independence and territorial integrity to large and small States alike.

"For such arrangements and covenants," said the President in conclusion, "we are willing to fight and continue to fight until they are achieved; but only because we wish the right to prevail and desire a just and stable peace."

These two pronouncements, coming from the two men who are most influential in the councils of the Allies, have indicated much more clearly than had been done before the great objectives that the nations that have gone to war against Germany have in view and the lines along which peace must come. The address of the great British orator and statesman is more diplomatic than that of President Wilson and is remarkably dispassionate and fair, considering the extent to which England has suffered in the mighty struggle that has been in progress for three and a half years. The President's utterance, on the other hand, goes further in its suggestions and presents a fuller and more definite program of action. There seems, however, to be no disagreement between the two leaders concerning any matter likely to be regarded as of fundamental importance. Mr. George does not insist upon the overthrow of the present German Government as a condition essential to peace, but tactfully throws out the hint that such a development might smooth the way for a more satisfactory adjustment of things; and apparently he feels less sympathy for Russia than Mr. Wilson.

After these statements by representatives of both the Central Powers and the Allies, what is the outlook for an early peace? We regret to say that we do not consider it very bright, though one cannot tell what may evolve out of a situation as confused as that which now exists. As we see it, Germany has lost all chance of winning the war, but we do not think that she has yet become sufficiently weakened to yield to the demands which must be acceded to in order to end the conflict. She started the war, and it is she that must terminate it. And the sooner she does this, the more favorable will be the terms that she can secure, and the better it will be for her already sorely stricken people.

SOME FALLACIOUS REASONING.

Revolutionists and innovators are now constantly making the assertion that the war will call for the tearing up of practically all old foundations and the making of sweeping readjustments, and that it behooves everybody and every organization to make up their minds to break away from the established order of things and to be industriously anticipatory in the work of reconstruction, so as to be sure to keep up with the procession. This plea is being frantically made to Southern Methodists to try to induce them to consent to the obliteration of all that is distinctive in their Church, and the acceptance of organic union with the Northern Methodists upon terms that would give the latter complete ascendency in the new organization. As a sample of such utterances, we quote the following, taken from one of our contemporaries:

"The foremost minds among the world's leaders are even now discussing, 'What Is Coming.' They boldly say that the inefficiency and duplication in past methods must cease. Great London banks are consolidating. American railways are seeking a single directory, and responsible power is being concentrated in every department of life. Shall the Christian Church alone of human organizations resist the changes which are now at hand? Shall it continue to place two men where one can do better work. Shall it continue to operate two societies where one would be more commanding and efficient?"

This sounds "top-loftical," but let us turn the light of a little common sense on it. What nations are proposing to throw their constitutions into the melting pot and become one? None at all. On the contrary, both Mr. Wilson and Mr. Lloyd George are emphatically insisting that all the existing nations shall be guaranteed their independence, and that even different peoples in the same country, such as are found in Germany, Austria, and Russia, shall be given large measures of self-government. The nations will doubtless co-

he proceeded to mention the fundamental issues for which Britain and her Allies were contending.

First among these was the restoration of Belgium and reparation for the injuries inflicted. Next came the restoration of Serbia, Montenegro and the occupied parts of France, Italy and Rumania. France must have Alsace-Lorraine, and to this end, said the Premier, the British nation would stand by the French democracy to the death.

The question of Russia was touched upon, and Mr. Lloyd-George said that Britain, as well as America, France and Italy would have been proud to fight by the side of the new Russian democracy. But now Russia could only be saved by her own people. He declared an independent Poland an urgent necessity for the stability of western Europe.

Rumania is to be protected and the British and other Allies are with Italy in her desire for complete union of the people of the Italian race and tongue. Of Austria-Hungary he felt that while the breaking up of the dual kingdom was no part of the Allies' war aims, it was impossible to hope for the removal of causes of unrest in that part of Europe, unless genuine self-government was granted the Austro-Hungarian nationalities.

The Turkish empire, within the home lands of the Turkish race, with Constantinople as its capital, may be maintained. But the passage between the Mediterranean and Black seas must be internationalized and neutralized, and in the British view, Arabia, Armenia, Mesopotamia, Syria and Palestine are entitled to recognition of their separate national conditions.

The matter of the German colonies, all of which are now in the hands of the Allies, will be placed before a conference, whose decision, however, must consider the wishes and interests of the inhabitants—the future administration must be acceptable to the various tribes.

The Premier made brief reference to the violations of international law committed by Germany, with special emphasis on the sea, and the peace conference, he declared, must not lose sight of the outrages suffered by British and other seamen and the services they had rendered.

The three cardinal points of the British terms, as enunciated by the British Prime Minister, are: Re-establishment of the sanctity of treaties, territorial settlement based on the right of self-determination or the consent of the governed, the creation of an international organization to limit armaments and diminish the probability of war.

Among other things, Mr. Lloyd-George specifically said:

"The British people have never aimed at the breaking up of the German peoples or the disintegration of their State. Our wish is not to destroy Germany's great position in the world, but to turn her aside from schemes of military domination to devote her strength to the beneficent tasks of the world.

"We are not fighting to destroy Austria-Hungary or to deprive Turkey of its capital or the rich lands of Asia Minor and Thrace, which are predominately Turkish.

"We are not fighting to destroy the German constitution, although we consider a military, autocratic constitution a dangerous anachronism. Our view-point is that the adoption of a democratic constitution by Germany would be the most convincing evidence that her old spirit of military domination had indeed died in this war and it would make it much easier for us to conclude a broad, democratic peace with her. But that is a question for the German people to decide."

CAPTIOUS CRITICISM OF OUR BISHOPS.

There seems to be a disposition upon the part of some to indulge constantly in captious criticism of our Bishops.

For example, some complain that the last General Conference, held in Oklahoma City, May, 1914, recommended that the Bishops divide the Church into districts and assign a Bishop to the same district for four years in succession, and that the Bishops have disregarded this recommendation.

The exact language of the resolution adopted by the General Conference is as follows: "That we recommend that the same Bishop be assigned to a given district from year to year for a quadrennium, except where the most efficient administration of the whole work makes an earlier change desirable." It will be observed that this language leaves the Bishops' unqualified discretion to make changes in the assignments "when the most efficient administration of the whole work makes an earlier change desirable." Fairly interpreted, it can not mean more than that the principle of continuous administration should be observed if nothing arises to make a change "desirable."

How have the Bishops dealt with this recommendation? Before answering this question it should be recalled that we had at the adjournment of the last General Conference no more than twelve Bishops on the effective list, and that during the quadrennium Bishops Hoss and Waterhouse have been disabled by sickness, so that they have not been able to do full work.

It should be remembered also that the plan of Episcopal Visitation had been made out and published in 1914 before the General Conference took the action which has been quoted. It is quite possible also that re-arrangement of the annual plans have been made necessary by other reasons than the state of health of Bishops Hoss and Waterhouse.

But notwithstanding all the difficulties of the case, it appears from the records that the Bishops have followed very generally the principle of continuous administration.

The record shows that our Church has fifty-one Annual Conferences and Missions. During the last four years eight of these have been held four years in succession by the same Bishop; fifteen have been held three years by the same Bishop; twenty-eight have been held twice by the same Bishop. Only one has had a change of Bishops each year.

Could the Bishops have done better under all the conditions?

It may be doubted if in any quadrennium, during all the history of our Church, the principle of continuous administration has been more generally observed.

The results as shown by statistics do not demonstrate that the principle of continuous administration promotes the success of the Conferences above the plan of more frequent changes.

The statistics for the years 1914, 1915 and 1916 (the figures for 1917 are not yet available) show that the increase of members in the Baltimore Conference for the three years (which Conference has not been held twice in succession by the same Bishop during the quadrennium) is 4530, while the net increase in the Memphis Conference, which has been held by the same Bishop successively for four years, is no more than 2564, and the Texas Conference shows a net increase in three years, under continuous administration of only thirty-six members, if the General Minutes may be trusted. The Baltimore Conference and the Texas Conference are about equal in size, the former having a membership of 75,302 at the end of the year 1916, and the latter having a membership, at the same time, of 76,601.

Of course, it will be said that these figures prove nothing. Perhaps so, but it must be admitted that they fail to show any notably increased results under continuous episcopal administration.

In conclusion, we venture to say that captious criticism of our chief pastors will retard the growth of the Church, whether the principle of continuous administration be followed, or not.

It is time to quit finding fault with the Bishops about everything in the Church which one does not quite like. The Church is growing tired of it. Let the man who has not failed in the discharge of any of his duties throw a few stones at the Bishops, but for the rest, let them pray more and censure less.—Wesleyan Christian Advocate.

Y. M. C. A. WORK AT CAMP JACKSON.

Dear Doctor Meek: I want to write you a few words about the Y. M. C. A. work in Camp Jackson. Monday was one of the most remarkable days that I ever spent. I had the pleasure of having eighty men decide for the Christian life and sign the personal pledge cards, or War Rolls as we call them. We had a New Year's service Monday night and I was busy for six hours interviewing men who came to talk religion. I have engagements to go with twenty or more men to Columbia and see that they are received into the Church. Yesterday I had interviews with ten men and all of them make a decision for Christ. Of course, a number of men are not approachable, but the great majority are ready to be approached by the Y. M. C. A. Secretary and are thinking of the claims of the Christian religion on them. I have been impressed with the readiness of the men to talk about religious matters. They crowd our building and listen with earnestness to the sermons and join heartily in the singing. Last night I met a Bible class in the 321st Regimental Infirmary. Only ten men in the company were not present. One of the officers led in prayer for the first time, and a number of the company signed the war roll pledge card.

We are trying to organize classes in every company with a member of the company as teacher, so that the class will survive the move to France and meet regularly every week in the camp, on the march, in the trenches, or wherever the men chance to be. This is a great work, and I am more impressed with the opportunities every day.

The Methodist Church is well represented in the Y. M. C. A. work at Camp Jackson. The Camp Religious Secretary, Dr. Weber, is a Methodist, and ten of the other Secretaries are Methodist preachers. We keep in touch with the pastors in Columbia and insist on the men who profess religion in our services connecting themselves with the Church. There are seven Y. M. C. A. buildings now in operation in the camp, and 50,000 are enlisted in organized Bible classes. The attendance at the Sunday services in our buildings will average 6000. We are doing what we can to make the soldier's life happy and comfortable. Give us your prayers and make us a visit when you have time.

Fraternally,

J. HOWARD BROOKS.

Camp Jackson, S. C., Jan. 3, 1918.

COL. ROOSEVELT ON SABBATH OBSERVANCE.

Colonel Roosevelt contributed to the October number of The Ladies' Home Journal an article entitled, "Shall We Do Away With the Church?" Speaking of the value and duty of attending services, Mr. Roosevelt says:

"For all those whose lives are led on a plane above the glimmer and barest struggle for existence, church attendance and church work of some kind mean both the cultivation of the habit of feeling some responsibility for others and the sense of braced moral strength which prevents a relaxation of one's fiber.

He Merely Dawdles.

"The household in which Sunday is treated merely as a day for easy self-indulgence does not on that day offer an attractive spectacle. Nor in such a household is what occurs on that day a healthy stimulus toward right living for the children. In such a household the master of the house generally rises late. That is all right if his staying in bed means rest for him without meaning added work for somebody else. But, having risen, he merely dawdles half-dressed, smokes and reads the Sunday papers, lounges around the place if nothing more attractive offers itself, and finally goes off to the club or other lounging place.

"The mistress of the household meanwhile, if like her spouse, stays in bed, too, with the Sunday paper, or with a cheap magazine or a cheap novel; then also lounges around the house before fully dressing, and finally visits or receives visits from some other women who also regard slipshod absence of effort as the proper characteristic of the day.

"The case is not bettered if the heads of the family possess more energy but use it merely for their own selfish enjoyment, as, for instance, if they habitually spend the entire day in the motor, or take part in some form of dress parade, or visit brightly-lighted restaurants.

Need Toning Up.

"In ordinary cases, as regards most men and women, the performance of their duties to the Church, to themselves and to others, on Sunday, represents merely such 'toning up of their systems as will enable them to profit more by rest and amusement during the remainder of the day. Sundays differ from other holidays—among other ways—in the fact that there are fifty-two of them every year! The proper conduct for other holidays may be treated in itself as an exception. For Sunday it must be treated as a rule—a rule properly subject to exceptions, and perhaps to numerous exceptions—but a rule, nevertheless.

"Therefore, on Sunday go to church. Yes—I know all the excuses. I know that one can worship the Creator and dedicate oneself to good living in a grove of trees, or by a running brook, or in one's own house, just as well as in church. But I also know that as a matter of cold fact the average man does not thus worship or thus dedicate himself. If he stays away from church he does not spend his time in good works or in lofty meditation. He looks over the colored supplement of the newspaper; he yawns; and he finally seeks relief from the mental vacuity of isolation by going where the combined mental vacuity of many partially relieves the mental vacuity of each particular individual."—The Churchman.

SOME FALLACIOUS REASONING.

operate in some matters of common interest, but nobody in any influential political position anywhere is talking about welding them all into a single colossal State.

But how about the "London banks" merging and the railroads consolidating? Is there any sane man who believes that to give one bank or a few banks a monopoly would be a good thing? That it would make it easier for the people to obtain money, or that the rates of interest would thereby be lowered? Nor is to us believable that to have all the railroads of the country under one management would promote the welfare of the people. Such a claim is negatived by the fact that upon the statute books of practically every State in the Union are written laws forbidding the acquisition by one railroad company of parallel lines owned by other companies. Nor are our wisest men by any means agreed that the Government ownership of railroads would be a good thing. Some of the ablest of them, on the contrary, hold the view that the adoption of such a policy would be nothing short of a national calamity.

But we are asked, if the "Christian Church alone of human organizations shall resist the changes which are now at hand?" When, may we ask, did the Christian Church become merely a human organization? Certainly, One who was divine said, "Upon this rock I will build my Church, and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it." Is that which Christ founded only human? We know that much of the machinery of the Church is of human contrivance, but we do not like to see the entire Christian Church placed upon such a plane. The truth is, its fundamental elements were God-given and no man has a right to alter them.

And what are the "changes at hand?" We have, in the utterance quoted, a glittering generality, with but a single specification. That specification is that duplication and waste need to be done away with. To this proposition, within reasonable limits, we assent. But the compression of the different Church organizations into one obsese body or into a few huge ecclesiasticisms is by no means the only way to correct this overlapping of effort. There can be co-operation without amalgamation. Indeed, it is only by co-operation that we may hope to remedy completely the evil complained of, for it is utterly impracticable to think of trying to unite organically all the religious denominations. In some sections of the country various Churches are now working together to avoid unnecessary waste, the one that is the weaker in a small community giving way to another which is stronger. If denominations that have little in common, as respects their forms of government and past history, can do this, WHY MAY IT NOT BE DONE BY THE METHODIST BODIES? If they can not measure up to a standard of beneficent co-operation, we respectfully submit that they are in no condition to enter into a complete and indissoluble merger?

Nor can it be proven that a gigantic ecclesiastical organization, with no competition, is best for any nation or the world. All past history is against such a conclusion. Look at the situation to-day in countries where a single Church has been largely or completely in the ascendency, such as Russia, Germany, Italy, and Austria. And it cannot be said that even in England the dominance of the Established Church has contributed to the development of a purer and more aggressive type of Christianity than would otherwise have been produced.

There are two other observations that we wish to offer before leaving this subject: 1. It is never wise to knock useful and tested organizations to pieces in a reckless manner and try to rebuild them when a violent spirit of revolution is abroad and things generally are in a perturbed and unsettled state. The calm, philosophic thought needed for the best constructive work is not to be had at such a time. The first effort of our Revolutionary Fathers to construct a bond of union between the States was a failure. It was not until they had gotten away from the stormy passions engendered by years of excitement and bloody war that they were able to frame our present matchless National Constitution. England to-day is the greatest nation in the Eastern Hemisphere, if not in the entire world, and little of the building of her splendid governmental fabric has been done amid scenes of violence. Britain's greatness has long been recognized to be largely in the wonderful sturdiness and conservatism of her people. In all this there is a lesson that Southern Methodists would do well to lay to heart amid the wild beating of tom-toms that is now going on.

2. Why is it that we hear so little of this kind of talk among the members of the other leading denominations of the South? The Southern Presbyterians and Baptists are pursuing, comparatively undisturbed, the even tenor of their ways. Neither body seems to think that it is incumbent upon it to surrender its identity and pass out of existence in the interest of the new regime which we are told is soon to be. Are they lacking in prescience or in devotion to the expanding Kingdom of our Lord? And why was it that nothing was heard of the autocracy of our Episcopacy and the despotism of our Church government until the union movement was under way and seemed destined to fail unless the Southern Methodists would agree to surrender practically all the differentiating features and ideals of their Church to bring it about? What abuse of power in the administration of our government has there been to call forth all the furore against it that we have had for the past few months? We know of none. Wherefore, then, this so-called insurgency among us? Instead of becoming confused by the clamor that is being stirred up in our ranks, let Southern Methodists keep their heads and think on these things. Never was our Church more worthy of our love and devotion than it is to-day, and never at any previous time was it more capable of achieving large things for the Master.

CLEARED OF DEBT.

Dear Doctor Meek: The New Orleans District reports that the $1100 debt, of ten years' standing, on the Donaldsonville Church and parsonage property has been liquidated and that the entire charge is now free from indebtedness. This splendid achievement was made possible by the good work of Rev. P. O. Lowrey and some help from the Church Extension Board. Rev. W. F. Henderson, the present pastor, has been well received by the people and the outlook for a successful year is very bright. W. W. HOLMES.

The movement to have natural gas in large quantities piped from Terrebonne Parish to New Orleans has lately taken a more definite shape, the Association of Commerce having named a committee to co-operate with the City Government in promoting the enterprise. There were 52 deaths from suicide in New Orleans in 1917, exactly the same number that there were in 1916. There were 82 homicides in 1917, against 95 during the preceding year, while 38 persons lost their lives by accidental drowning, against 52 in 1916. The total number of deaths in the city last year was 7519, the number for the preceding year having been 6847. The number of infants dying under one year of age was 875, as compared with 778 in 1916, which increase is attributed to the high cost of milk and some other kinds of food.

Dr. Joseph A. This unit will be composed of 200 members, 26 of whom will be physicians, and 65 nurses. These, as far as possible, will be Italian-speaking people. It is reported that a New Orleans woman has given a large sum of money toward the financing of this hospital enterprise, her one condition being that Dr. Dana should be at the head of it. Dr. Dana was born in Italy, and some years ago because of his work among the poor, to whom he ministered at the New Orleans Charity Hospital, the King of Italy made him a Knight of the Order of the Crown.

Our Advocate Campaign.

"Advocate Week" for the Louisiana and North Mississippi Conferences, Jan. 20-27. This is by order of the Annual Conferences.

TO THE METHODIST PASTORS IN LOUISIANA.

At the meeting of the Publishing Committee of the New Orleans Christian Advocate, held in the Advocate office last October, the affairs and financial condition of our paper were carefully reviewed. We then learned that unless something was done, and done immediately, to increase the subscription list of the paper, and thus increase its receipts, there was danger of the situation becoming very serious for the Conference organ. This condition has been brought about by reason of a decreased subscription list (due to the abnormal times and the fact that the paper has been placed substantially on a cash basis), and a consequent decrease in the income from advertising; by an increase of the cost of printer's ink, a marked increase in the price of paper, an advance in postage rates, and a large advance in the price of labor.

Your Puhlishing Committee therefore decided to inaugurate a campaign for new subscriptions, and appointed Rev. T. H. Lipscomb, Dr. I. W. Cooper, and myself to manage the said campaign in the three patronizing Conferences. The goal was set for FOUR THOUSAND NEW SUBSCRIBERS, as follows: 1500 for each of the Mississippi Conferences, and 1000 for the Louisiana Conference. Each presiding elder and pastor has been communicated with by correspondence on this subject, and I trust that all will join in making this canvass a success. Every pastor is urgently requested to appoint a committee to work among the membership of each church in his charge from Jan. 20 to Jan. 28 and faithfully endeavor to see that his full quota of subscriptions (and more if possible) is secured.

Our Advocate has had a long and honorable history, and we must come to its rescue and tide it over the waves, placing it upon a sound financial basis.

Will we do it, or will we permit the endangering of its continuance? If the whole of any charge can not he reached during said week, continue the campaign until the work is fully completed. Make an "every home canvass;" and remember that it is important to secure renewal as well as new subscriptions, though these are not to be counted as a part of the apportionment to each charge.

Cordially yours,

JOHN F. FOSTER.

Centenary College, Shreveport, La., Jan. 9, 1918.

THE CASE WELL STATED.

(Rev. V. C. Curtis, the capable presiding elder of the Greenville, Miss., District, has sent out to the pastors in his district the following letter.)

Dear Brother: These times of war and stress are trying on our Church papers. Labor and all printing material have advanced from one hundred to three hundred per cent. The very existence of many of the papers, including our own Conference organ, is threatened. The Church paper is the assistant pastor. It is the most effective human agency that a pastor can command to aid him in his work, and is indispensable to his success. If he should have no higher purpose than looking after his own personal interest, and is wise, he will see that the Church papers are circulated.

The last Annual Conference recognized the financial embarrassment of the New Orleans Christian Advocate, and took steps to relieve it. It did not do this by increasing the price of subscription, but by starting a movement to increase its circulation. An estimate of the new subscriptions that are necessary to put it on a basis that will enable it to pay expenses was made and apportioned to each District to be distributed among the several charges.

I have made this distribution on the basis of membership and hope that you will do your part to bring your charge up to the required number. The last week in January was named as the week when a special campaign should be made, but I hope that you will not wait till then, as there will be other matters on hand to look after. You can make the personal campaign yourself, which is most desirable; or, if you think best, appoint a committee of two or three to canvass every Methodist family in your charge, and also the friends of our Church. The cash renewals of subscribers are just as necessary as new subscriptions. The Publisher will furnish you a list of all subscribers of your charge, if you request it.

Feeling sure that I can count on you for your part in this urgent matter, I am,

Yours faithfully,

V. C. CURTIS, P. E.

NEWS FROM THE JACKSON DISTRICT.

One of the most interesting meetings of the (Jackson) District Stewards ever held was the one that met at Capitol Street Church on Jan. 8. In response to the call of the presiding elder, nine laymen and 21 preachers were present.

The salary of the presiding elder was fixed at $2550, and the apportionments of the Conference collections were properly made. A small assessment for the upkeep of the district parsonage was levied on the charges.

Opportunity was given the new Manager of the Orphans' Home and his assistant to tell of the needs and doings of that institution. Several of the preachers voiced a purpose to give the Home more systematic support.

Much of the time of the meeting was given to the laymen to tell what, in their opinions, were good ways to advance the interests of the Church. T. P. Barr feels that the pastor should be relieved of the responsibility of all the collections, and that revivals help both the spiritual and financial conditions of the church.

C. L. Ray said for a layman, to be effective, in his personal effort to help the cause, he must live a consistent life and keep up the family altar in his home.

W. H. Bradley, after six years' experience as a steward, thinks the budget plan for securing finances the best and will try it in his church. He thinks not enough members have enough to do.

Dr. J. T. Berry has observed a falling off in conversation on the personal spiritual life, which he feels is not a good omen.

W. C. Davis thinks more laymen should get more deeply into the work.

Steps were taken at the meeting for inaugurating a campaign throughout the district for new subscribers to the Advocate, and H. P. Lewis, Jr., M. F. Adams and G. G. Yeager were made a Campaign Committee.

The stewards of Capitol Street Church entertained the laymen and preachers present at a delightful dinner at the Edwards House. These feasts are one of the attractive features of the district stewards' meeting. Dr. Swayze, from the Benton charge, and his pastor, Bro. Campbell, just did get to the meeting in time to take in the dinner. They did full justice to that, however. The stewards of Galloway Memorial asked for the privilege of entertaining the district stewards next year.

A prominent feature of the dinner hour was the interesting and instructive talks given by laymen and preachers about how different branches of church work were made to go during the past year.

Most of the new pastors in the district were present at the meeting. They reported their charges as being inviting fields for service, and the hearty receptions given them by their members. Rev. J. D. Ellis, at Canton, possibly feels that he had had given him the most hearty welcome. His board of stewards met him and family at the train and escorted them to the parsonage, where they found the good ladies of the church had preceded them and had all things in readiness for enjoying the necessities and comforts of a home—the table spread and loaded down with good things to eat, and the pantry well supplied. Besides all this, the stewards advanced Ellis a month's salary before he had time to preach. Brother Stewards of other charges, "Go thou and do likewise." Brother Ellis is taking hold of his new appointment in a masterly way, and we may expect to hear of rapid progress being made under his leadership.

Rev. A. J. Beasley is a transfer from North Mississippi Conference, and serves the Camden charge. He is impressed that his field of labor is long and broad. The Agricultural High School of Madison County is located there, and Beasley has a great opportunity to touch the lives of the boys and girls of that institution for the Master.

Rev. J. H. Foreman, one of the tried and true pastors of our Conference, is having his first experience in the Jackson District at Bolton. He has been well received, and looks forward to a prosperous year with the people of the Bolton charge in the Master's service.

Ask Rev. J. M. Morse what war-time prices of o'possums are. He can tell, because he had it to pay. And thereby "hangs a tale," which, if Morse hesitates to tell, J. B. King will, with a relish.

Our Conference Singing Evangelist, Rev. J. S. Duke, has engagements ahead for the next six weeks in Louisiana. Duke is finding the outlook for his line of service very promising.

Rev. C. W. Crisler is the first native Mississippi pastor to be appointed to Galloway Memorial for a number of years. But those who know Crisler and his work feel confident that he will fill the place to the glory of Christ and the success of the church. The stewards have fixed his salary for 1918 at $2700. A brother, having attended services at Galoway Memorial recently one night, next day met the presiding elder and commended him for having sent Crisler to that church. Morse passed the compliment on to Crisler; but when Crisler recalled the service of the evening he had to confess that the compliment was not due him, but rather to Rev. J. W. Chambers, our live Sunday School Field Secretary.

Rev. H. P. Lewis, Jr., of Madison, has had a raise of $200 in his salary, and the stewards of that charge adopted the budget plan and have taken over all the collections.

ISOM.

LAID TO REST.

Dear Doctor Meek: We buried yesterday near Tishomingo, Miss., Mrs. J. W. Stephens, the mother of Rev. Jno. E. Stephens, our pastor at Coahoma, Miss. She was sixty-six years old. She was a noble woman. She leaves a husband, five sons, and three daughters. All of them are faithful Christians. Her pastor, Rev. W. C. Beasley, conducted the burial services, assisted by the writer.

WAR CONDITIONS

—REFLECTED IN—

TELEPHONE SERVICE

Among the unforeseen conditions which the war has imposed upon us is the necessity of practically suspending the commercial development of our business.

Confronted with an unusual increase in the use of the telephone and a strong demand for new and additional service, we cannot accept or fill orders except subject to practically an indefinite delay.

This situation is due to the importance of conserving our supplies so that the government's requirements may be promptly met by giving the War Department service anywhere and at any time the request is made.

NOTES.

The Mississippi Legislature, on January 8, ratified the prohibition amendment to the Federal Constitution, being the first State in the Union to do so. There were, in all, only eight negative votes—five in the Senate, and three in the House. Hurrah for Mississippi!

Virginia has a State Prohibition Commissioner, whose duty is to look after the enforcement of the law and whose salary is paid by the State. This position is at present held by Rev. Sidney J. Peters, who has requested that his salary be increased from $3500 to $4500 a year, and that the amount appropriated for the prosecution of his work be increased from $50,000 to $100,000. The Virginia Legislature assembled on January 9 for what is expected to be a sixty days' session. Among the things that it will probably do is to enact a "bone dry" law and to ratify the pending prohibition amendment to the National Constitution.

OURS THE FIRST DRY NATIONAL CAPITAL.

It is a significant fact—one well worth jubilating over—that the Capital of the American Nation is now free from the nefarious liquor traffic. The following account of its coming beneath the prohibition flag is from The National Advocate:

"At midnight of October 31, 1917, John Barleycorn was legally banished from Washington, D. C.—the first National Capital in the world to expel him. All over this country it was considered an event of notable importance; and in Washington it had varied recognition. One correspondent wired to his paper, 'The Evening Journal,' of New York, the following on November 1:

"'With to-day, King Whiskey is dead in the National Capital, following a riotous celebration. In some sections of the city anti-salon leaders and church people assembled at midnight to celebrate the passing of John Barleycorn, while in others men charged upon the rapidly disappearing stocks of barrooms for a final drink, if not a drunk, before the city went dry. As the clock on the Post Office Building struck twelve the last of the 300 Washington saloons closed, and hundreds of patrons went to their respective homes.'"

THE LAWLESS CHARACTER OF THE TRAFFIC REQUIRES NATIONAL PROHIBITION.

By Wayne B. Wheeler, LL.D.,
Attorney and General Counsel Anti-Saloon League of America.

The liquor traffic is inherently lawless. It refuses to obey any regulatory or prohibitory law and it concentrates its power in wet States to break down the law in other States, where an honest attempt is made to secure its enforcement. It corrupts law enforcement officials and pledges them in advance to violate their oath of office. No State is safe as long as this lawless traffic is harbored in a single commonwealth of the Union. A traffic that will not be regulated or controlled must be destroyed if the government is to fulfill its mission.

SAM SMALL ORIGINIATED IT.

The phrase "Bone Dry" furnishes another bone of contention. A correspondent recently claimed that Deets Pickett was the first to apply it to a liquorless condition produced by legislation, and that he did so in May of this year. Another correspondent brings the writer promptly to book by reference to the published report of the Anti-Saloon League Convention, held at Indianapolis in June, 1916. On page 48, Sam Small is quoted as saying: "Five other States have got their statehood linen in the wash right now—California, Montana, South Dakota, Nebraska and Michigan—and they are dry-cleaning, and by Christmas they will have it out on the clothes line, flapping in the wind, going dry, bone dry!"—New York Christian Advocate.

SPIRITUAL EXPERIENCES RETOLD.

A Jerry McAulay Mission Experience.

Charles Bayard Stewart came to lose everything that life held dear—character, business, friends, wife, home. His is the old, old story. The social glass, the steadily increasing love for liquor, the reckless abandon to its cravings, then ruin—utter and complete. More than fifteen years ago he drifted, like thousands of other derelicts—down to the Bowery. Here he lived the sordid life of an East Side "bum"—picking up an odd job now and again, in order to satisfy the awful craving for whisky, which never let up or left him for a single day. Sleeping usually in some hallway or in a truck along the river front, a "double-decker" cot in a ten-cent lodging house became a luxury to him. As for food, it consisted usually of what he could manage to grab from the free lunch counters. Half clothed, half fed, entirely liquor soaked, this old-time respected business man wandered for years aimlessly about the Bowery. Finally, he joined himself to the battered outcasts of that appalling back room. Here he existed for more than seven years! "Yes, and I fully expected to die there," he has said, "just as I have seen many another do. More than once have I leaned across the table and gone to sleep, to find, when I woke, that the soul of the poor fellow huddled up next to me had gone to meet its God!"

Some time in the early part of September, 1907, Stewart fell, while full of whisky, and fractured his leg. Hobbling about Chatham Square on crutches he one day met an old acquaintance who said to him, "Charlie, it looks to me as if a visit to 316 Water Street would do you a bit o' good." "Why? What's going on down there? Anything being handed out?" asked Stewart. "Most likely. It's a mission—the old Jerry McAulay Mission." "Huh—not for mine," growled the crippled drunkard. "I've no use for missions, churches, or any such truck."

After a good deal of persuasion, however, Charlie Stewart limped down to Water Street in company with his friend. It was the night of the superintendent's anniversary, and the old mission hall was crowded to the doors. Of the marvelous miracle of grace performed that night in the life of Charles Bayard Stewart he himself shall tell. "I managed to squeeze inside," he says, "and stood in the rear of the room. The meeting was of a kind I had never seen or attended before. More than that, I heard some wonderful stories told by men who had lived just the life I was living—men that once were drunkards. Some of them had been drinking companions of my own. I had missed them from the old haunts and concluded they were dead. Yet here they were—respectable, sober, and testifying to the work of grace begun in their hearts. Their testimonies were amazing, as were those of many whom I did not know. Through them God's Spirit spoke to my weary, sin-sick soul.

"At the conclusion of the testimony service Mr. Wyburn came and spoke to me. At his invitation I went forward and knelt down with ten other men at the penitent's bench. I cried for mercy in the words of the publican of old, 'God be merciful to me, a sinner!' The moment I prayed that prayer I felt a great change steal over me. I did not understand that night what it was. All I knew was that I was experiencing a peace I had never known before. I know now what it was. It was the peace of God that passeth all understanding. That night my sins were pardoned—blotted out. Jesus Christ came into my life. I was born again—a new man—a new creature in Christ Jesus—born from above—born of the Spirit. Old things passed away and all things became new.

"From that hour down to this present moment I have never had the remotest desire to take a drink of whisky, or revert to any habit of the old life. 'If any man be in Christ, he is a new creature.' That's the secret of it all—a secret into which I have entered gloriously. There is no earthly shadow of a doubt about it—the facts of my redemption are absolutely incontrovertible. The whole Bowery from Cooper Square to Chatham Square knows me for what I was, and for what I am. When I hobbled into the McAulay Mission, I felt and looked like an old man of eighty. To-day I feel like a young man of thirty. I have gone into business again, and am prospering in every material way. This, however, I regard as least of the blessings that have come to me during these four years and more. The crowning joy is my daily communion with Jesus Christ, my Lord. He saved me, he keeps me, and he strengthens me by his Spirit's might in the inner man. For the future I do not fear. 'The beloved of the Lord shall dwell in safety by him; and the Lord shall cover him all the day long.'"—Philip I. Roberts, in "The Dry-Dock of a Thousand Wrecks."

Secular News

The Morristown (Tenn.) District, of which Dr. J. W. Perry is the capable presiding elder, reports increases in the salaries of its pastors amounting to $2000.

Bishop J. S. Key, who is ninety years of age, is said to be still taking an active interest in the affairs of the Church. His chief physical trouble is his failing eye-sight.

With an assessment of $300 for missions, our Church at Fort Galley, Ga., paid for that cause last year $3400. The pastor of that congregation is Rev. W. F. Quillian.

One-fourth of the foreign missionary work of the M. E. Church, South, is dependent on "specials." More than a thousand churches are now carrying "specials," which, together, foot up the sum of $200,000.

In a campaign, lately closed, Jackson, Tenn., subscribed $40,000 to the fund being raised for the benefit of the Memphis Conference Female Institute, located in that city. Jackson will yet do much more for that institution.

Rev. Levi Gilbert, D. D., LL. D., of the Methodist Episcopal Church, who for sixteen years was editor of The Western Christian Advocate (Cincinnati), died on December 24. Dr. Gilbert had been in declining health for some time.

Rev. Clyde F. Armitage has been appointed the Washington City representative of the Federal Council of Churches, succeeding Dr. H. K. Carroll. It is stated that Dr. Armitage will edit the Council Year-Book, but that Dr. Carroll will continue his well known Church census work.

Dr. James A. Burrow, Editor of the Midland Methodist, says: "Having at one time leaned decidedly toward the removal of the time limit, we have come around to believe that the largest good to the largest number calls for an automatic ending of each pastoral term within four years or thereabout."

The Wesleyan Christian Advocate says: "According to the Government statistics, the average salary of ministers in the United States is $663, while the average wages of stablemen is $685, and that of New York hodcarriers $900. Leaving out the 125 largest cities in America, the average salary of ministers is $573."

It is generally conceded that the foremost leader of the M. E. Church, South, in the prohibition movement is Dr. James Cannon, Jr., of Virginia. He is on the Legislative Committee of the National Anti-Saloon League in Washington, where he has made his influence strongly felt. Much credit is due Dr. Cannon for what he did toward getting the prohibition aemndment to the Federal Constitution submitted to the States.

We reproduce as a matter of interest the following press dispatch: "Spartanburg, S. C., January 7.—The first church to be built by the soldiers at any army camp in the country is now under construction at Camp Wadsworth, funds for the material and labor having been provided by Col. Cornelius Vanderbilt's 102d Engineers. The front of the structure is to resemble an engineer's temple, and the plans indicate that it will be a unique and handsome building."

The Home Circle

THE BLACKSMITH'S KISS.

"I have brought your dinner, father,"
The blacksmith's daughter said,
As she took from her arm a kettle,
And lifted the shining lid.
"There is no pie or pudding,
But I will give you this."
And upon his toil-worn forehead,
She left a childish kiss.

The blacksmith tore off his apron
And dined in happy mood,
Wondering much at the savor
Hid in the humble food;
While all around him were visions
Full of prophetic bliss,
But he never thought of the magic
In his little daughter's kiss.

While with her kettle swinging
She merrily trudged away,
Stopping at sight of a squirrel,
Catching some wild bird's lay,
And I thought how many a shadow
Of toil and care we should miss,
If only our frugal dinners
Were seasoned with a kiss.

THE OLD-FASHIONED WAY.

Felicia Buttz Clark.

"Somehow, Aunt Jane, it seems to me as if Jim and I were growing a little apart—religiously, I mean. I love him just as much as ever and he declares that I am—well—adorable; that's just his way of putting it, you know. But I'm a bit worried, Aunt Jane."

Miriam sat down on the little cane-seat chair that she used to carry all over the house when she was a wee girl and left behind her when she went to a home of her own. Aunt Jane liked to have the chair in her room now. It was company for her.

"Just what is the matter, dear?" Aunt Jane laid down her knitting and looked at this beloved niece through her tortoise-rimmed spectacles.

"Well, you see, I've always been regular in going to church and before we were married Jim always went with me. Now he says he's tired on Sunday morning, and, poor fellow! I believe he is. It's hard to work steadily six days out of seven. So, he doesn't get up early, and breakfast's late, and I'm tired, too. We just decide that we'll stay home and go to church next Sunday, because in the evening we're usually invited out to supper. The Blossoms expect us there. You know, we were married in the same month. Sometimes we go to them, and often they come to us."

The needles clicked again in the gray wool; one would call it vicious clicking if they were not in gentle Aunt Jane's hands.

"Sunday newspaper?" she asked suddenly.

"I don't think it's that, Aunt Jane, though I must confess that to read two of the volumes that we get every Sunday requires time. Jim says that there's so much of importance going on now in the world that we must keep up with the times. But it does seem kind of—well, different, on Sunday morning, with the colored supplements lying around and Jim so worked up over politics and things."

"Then there are the automobile rides," suggested Aunt Jane.

Miriam looked up at her, her blue eyes as clear as the reflection of the sky in a deep pool.

"We've only been a few times," she pleaded, "on the loveliest days. What's the matter with us, anyway, Aunt Jane, that we don't seem to want to go to church?"

"'The world is too much with us,'" quoted the old woman.

"I guess that's about it. But how are we to keep the world out? It's bothered me so much since I began to keep house. I do so want to make our home a Christian home, where every one who enters feels the influence. Yet it is just like so many others—except this one."

There was a long silence. Aunt Jane was thinking and wondering whether she dared to tell Miriam her thoughts. Nobody likes to be called old-fashioned by the dear girl whom she has brought up from a baby, and it really required courage for Aunt Jane to speak her mind. A pretty little flush came over her pale cheeks.

"Oh, you are the sweetest thing!" hurst out Miriam. "There was a young artist, one of Jim's friends, at our house for dinner on Wednesday, and I told him how beautiful you were—"

"Beautiful!"

"Yes, because you've suffered so. Do you know, Aunt Jane, he said a funny thing for a man who has lived abroad and traveled everywhere? A regular society man, I should have called him."

"What was it?"

"We were talking about old associations and how certain memories stayed with us all our lives, such little things, yet they really molded character. Then he said, with such a reverent tone, that he never, never could forget the prayers which his father had made every morning when the family were all together. At the time, when he was a boy, he had thought them, well, not exactly a bore, but a sort of waste of time, when he wanted to be out fishing or off to school. He and his sister used to nudge each other and look at the clock. But all the time his father's voice and his words were sinking into his mind and he remembers them now."

"I was going to suggest," began Aunt Jane, but Miriam was so interested in her subject that she went right on: "You know, Aunt Jane, I couldn't help thinking that if ever there were children in our home, I'd like to have them remember such things as that. But think of Jim conducting prayers!"

Her laugh was so contagious that Aunt Jane could not help joining in, while realizing that the subject was not a laughable one and that the situation in which these two young people were was one in which thousands of others like them found themselves in these rushing days of the twentieth century, when there is no time to talk with God as our fathers did.

"I think that you are mistaken about Jim. He has a high ideal of what a man ought to be in his home, and it will be your fault if he does not attain it."

"Mine? Why, Aunt Jane, that's hardly fair."

"He is probably as afraid to speak to you of such matters as you are to broach them to him. It's extraordinary," mused Aunt Jane, "how easy it is for folks to talk politics, or the latest play, but let any one speak of religion, the most vital thing in our existence, and they shut up like clams. Now, Miriam, I have a book here with readings arranged for every day and short prayers. A godly man, studying human nature and its weaknesses, recognized that there were just such cases as yours and Jim's, people who lived busy lives and perhaps didn't know how to pray out loud. Take that home, dear, and to-morrow morning have breakfast a little earlier, and then put your arms around Jim's neck and say, 'Dear, let's begin right.' Jim will be glad, Miriam, yes, glad, Miriam, of the chance."

"I'll hurry away, Aunt Jane, or I'll not have time to get dinner before Jim comes. And I thank you a thousand times for the book and the advice. I guess maybe you're right about Jim, and maybe I have been at fault, you dear thing!"

Miriam pressed two soft hands on Aunt Jane's thin cheeks and a light kiss on her lips, before she hurried away.

"How did it work?" Aunt Jane asked her niece a few weeks later when she literally "blew in" on a blistering March day.

"You mean the little book and—everything? Aunt Jane, I was so ashamed. Jim said he'd wanted to have a little prayer in the morning before he went away to business, it kind of helped a man to keep straight, and he'd longed to have me kneel down beside him, something to remember all day, he said. And he hadn't dared to mention it because it seemed so old-fashioned, you know. But he was glad—glad. And we're nearer together than ever, Aunt Jane, and we are going to be all our lives, even if it is old-fashioned."—Western Christian Advocate.

A CHILD NURSE WHO BECAME FAMOUS.

Everybody who loves gentleness and noble deeds and a loving heart loves the name and memory of Florence Nightingale. Probably you know that it was this English woman who first thought of the need of trained nurses to care for soldiers, sick or wounded, on the battle-fields and that it is because of her we have trained army nurses now.

Perhaps you have heard how, when the story reached England of the suffering of the troops in the Crimean War, she sailed from England and joined the soldiers. For she had taken a thorough course of training and was fully prepared as a nurse. She gave heroic service in her profession on the field and in the tents. So beloved was this gentlewoman, it is said, that the sick and dying used to kiss her shadow as she passed their cot. They called her "Angel of Mercy" and "Lady with the Lamp" because of her nightly visits to the wards.

All this you may have heard, but do you know how Florence Nightingale came, in the first place, to be interested in the sick? No? Then you will like to know now, because the same interest might come and in just the same way to you.

Her first experience as a nurse was with her dolls, whose broken limbs and bruised heads she bandaged and cared for with all the tenderness and gentleness of her nature. As she grew older she became interested in caring for wounded or sick pets and other animals. Her first patient was a dog named Cap. The dog belonged to one of her father's shepherds, and one day she learned that Cap had been injured by some boys and that the shepherd was preparng to kill his beloved dog in order to save him from his suffering. In spite of the fact that she was still a little girl and very timid, she at once drove to the shepherd's home, and with the aid of the clergyman of the parish, she nursed the wounds of the injured animal, and soon he was well again.

Her love for pets and her skill in curing them soon became well known, and in a short time she had become the nurse of all the wounded animals in the neighborhood.—Apples of Gold.

HOW ABOUT IT?

A church should be governed by converted men and women—by persons who really know Christ. If it is run by people who are not experimental Christians, it is certain to be improperly conducted. May it not be that herein lies the explanation of the unsatisfactory state of affairs in many of our congregations? Are there not many churches in this day that would do well to meditate searchingly upon the words of our ascended Lord to the Church at Laodicea: "Because thou sayest I am rich, and increased with goods, and have need of nothing; and knowest not that thou art wretched, and miserable, and poor, and blind, and naked, I counsel thee to buy of me gold tried in the fire, and white raiment that thou mayst be clothed, and that the shame of thy nakedness do not appear; and annoint thine eyes with eye-salve that thou mayst see?"

THE QUESTION OF MARRIAGE BY TELEPHONE.

A new question as to what it takes to constitute a valid marriage arose at Camp Beauregard, near Alexandria, La., a few days ago. Because some of the soldiers who were engaged to be married were under quarantine, it was proposed to have the ceremonies performed by means of a telephone, the brides being in the city of Alexandria, and the grooms in camp some miles away. Judge Blackman, of the District Court, referred the question to the Attorney General of the State, who issued a somewhat extended statement setting forth the Louisiana law governing marriages and pointing out the difficulties of conforming to the statutory requirements by such a process and the unwisdom of initiating it. He did not affirm it to be necessarily illegal, however, but on that point he said: "In my opinion the question as to whether a marriage contracted in the manner suggested would be valid or not, would depend upon the facts and circumstances of each particular case."

But Cupid was not to be completely outwitted by a quarantine and a conservative construction of the law, as the following press dispatch shows:

"Alexandria, La., Jan. 9.—Judge W. F. Blackman, of the District Court, performed a unique marriage ceremony at 10 o'clock, Wednesday morning, when Private John B. Caldwell, of Battery F, 142nd Field Artillery, Camp Beauregard, whose home is in Little Rock, was married by telephone to Miss Lorine Smith, of Kansas City, Mo. Miss Smith came here last Thursday with her mother, Mrs. Mary W. Smith, of Kansas City, and a friend, Mrs. Walter Summers, of Wicks, Ark.

"A menengitis quarantine prevented the soldier from coming to the city, so they resorted to the 'phone. The bride and her mother and witnesses, with Judge Blackman, were gathered around a 'phone in Sheriff F. E. David's private office in the court-house, and the groom with witnesses were at a 'phone in Camp Beauregard. The license, signed by the bride and witnesses was sent to Camp Beauregard for the signature of the groom."

We desire to say, before leaving this subject, that we think Attorney General Coco deserves commendation for the position that he took. Marriage is a thing of vast importance, and it should have thrown around it all possible legal safeguards. Laxity in any particular would be fraught with grave perils. There should be no such haste in the performance of wedding ceremonies as may call for novel and uncertain methods of procedure.

RESORTING TO HIGH-PRESSURE METHODS.

Zion's Herald is conducting a plebiscite among the members of the last General Conference of the Northern Methodist Church to secure, it claims, information upon two points: 1. As to what to do with the Negroes in the suggested unified Church. 2. Whether, in the event that the Commissioners agree at Savannah, a special session of the Northern General Conference shall be called. This movement is arousing much opposition in the North. Some of the foremost journals of the Methodist Episcopal Church are severely condemning this procedure on what seems to be just ground, namely, that the Herald is sending along with its blank tickets a printed argument in advocacy of its pet scheme, so that the vote in taken without anything being heard on the other side of the question. The following is an extract from the comment of the New York Christian Advocate, generally regarded as the ablest of the Northern Methodist weeklies:

"This last-minute attempt to influence the Methodist Episcopal Commission by a straw vote, secured under the circumstances, will carry no weight. * * * They (the delegates to the last General Conference) are asked to do the unusual thing immediately after reading a special plea for one plan, and without having access to the records or discussions of the Commission. It is like submitting a law case to a jury which has heard only the prosecuting attorney. No court would countenance it. It is as if a speaker should conclude his argument by moving the previous question. No presiding officer would tolerate it. The whole proceeding seems to be a clumsy endeavor to coerce the Commission into the support of a plan indignantly rejected by the very Negroes in whose interest it was put forward."

Bishop J. W. Hamilton, of the Church, North, who is a member of the Unification Commission, in the Southwestern Christian Advocate of January 10, touches upon the proposal to place the Negroes in an Associate General Conference, and among other things, says: "'The Church (North) will never do this, but it is not fair to the Southern brethren to give them the impression that there is the least probability that the Church would do so."

We predict that Southern Methodists will have to consent to have the colored members of the Methodist Episcopal Church placed in a Regional Conference, with representation in the General Conference, or that there will be no unification.

Meantime, while claiming to promote unity and brotherly love, the extreme unionists in the two Churches are stirring up more discord among the Methodists of America than has existed among them since the years immediately following the Civil War.

IT CUTS BOTH WAYS.

The selling of certain products at a high price and the fact that one's bank account is larger than usual do not necessarily mean that one is better off than one ordinarily is. The value of a dollar is measured by its purchasing power, and two or three of them may be worth no more than one is in normal times. The following story strikingly, and somewhat facetiously, illustrates this point:

"A farmer, the other day, took a plowshare to the blacksmith's to be sharpened, and while the blacksmith worked, the farmer chuckled and bragged about a sale of hogs he had just made.

"'Them hogs was only 8 months old,' he said, 'and none too fat, nuther; but I seen that the buyer was at his wits' end, and by skillful jugglin' I boosted up the price on him just 300 per cent. Yes, I got three times more for them hogs than I useter get before the war.'

"The plowshare being done, the farmer handed the smith 50 cents.

"'Hold on,' said the smith, 'I charge $1.50 for that job now.'

"'You scandalous rascal!' yelled the farmer. 'What do you mean by treblin' your price on me? What have you done it for?'

"'I've done it,' said the blacksmith, 'so's I'll be able to eat some of that there high-priced pork of yours this winter.'"

AN ISSUE OF FAR-REACHING SIGNIFICANCE.

The fact that the President and Congress, with full information before them, have adjudged it to be necessary for the Government to take charge of the railroads and operate them during the continuance of the war, ought, we think, to close debate on that subject. This step was not taken by the National authorities until an effort had been made to secure the co-operation needed to meet the existing exigencies by other methods; so it came as a dernier resort.

We have noticed, however, in a number of prominent and influential journals suggestions that the railroads will never again pass back into private hands and that the present operation of them by the Federal authorities marks the beginning of the ownership and control of the transportation facilities of the country. This is not an opportune time for the discussion of that great and intricate question, and we will not now venture to argue it to any considerable extent; but, in view of what some other periodicals are saying, may we not express the hope that our people will not allow themselves to be led into forming hasty conclusions concerning this vast and far-reaching issue? There are two points in particular which, in our opinion, ought not to be lost sight of:

1. The extent to which the power of the Fedcral Government would be increased by the ownership of all the railroads of the Nation, with their vast army of employees.

2. Its effect upon the race problem in the South.

We heard this question of the Government ownership of the railroads discussed in a public address some years ago by the man who is very generally considered to be the South's ablest representative at the National Capital, and it was his conviction that such a scheme was fraught with grave possibilities for evil. The following press dispatch is somewhat suggestive in this connection:

"New York, Dec. 31.—Resolutions pledging the loyalty of the Negro population to the Government were adopted at a mass meeting here Sunday, under the auspices of the National Association for the Advancement of Colorcd People. Ashbie Hawkins, of Baltimore, predicted the elimination of 'Jim Crow' cars from Southern railroads, now that the Government has assumed control of the lines."

Of course, we do not believe that any such thing as this will come to pass under the mere temporary holding of the railroads by the Government which prevails at present; but what might develop under a scheme of complete and permanent ownership is another question.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

Individual subscribers sending us a check for $1.50 for their subscription will get credit for only 11 months, because we have to pay the banks 10 cents exchange for collecting the check. However, we will not mind paying the expense of exchange on $3 or over. In remitting for your subscription send us money order, or registered letter, or exchange on New Orleans or New York, or 1c or 2c stamps. In this way subscribers will get full credit for money remitted. If subscribers insist on paying us by check, let them send us $1.60, which will net us $1.50. The annual subscription of the Advocate is $1.50, net, for preachers and laymen. Superannuates and widows of preachers get the Advocate 1 year for $1, provided they do not remit by check. If they insist on sending a check for $1, they should send us $1.10; otherwise they will get credit for only 10 months. We do not expect our pastors and agents to bear the expense of remitting money to us for subscriptions. Pastors usually send in two or three subscriptions at a time, and for this reason the expense is small, and should be borne by us.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

The Joint Commission on the Unification of American Methodism will meet in Savannah, Ga., on January 23.

Rev. R. A. Sibley has reached Summit, Miss., the beadquarters of his new appointment, and has been given a most cordial reception.

Rev. T. L. Houston, of Chester, Miss., says: "Everything is moving along nicely with us and we are expecting to have a good year."

In making up the forms for the first side of our paper this week, the heading, "Secular News," was accidentally placed above our column of Church news. Such things will happen occasionally.

We had an appreciated call one day last week from Rev. P A. Sowell, of the Tennessee Conference, who is spending the winter in New Orleans with relatives. Brother Sowell's address is 815 Pine Street.

Rev. D. W. Babb, of Crawford, Miss., sends us an interesting communication, which reached us too late for this issue of the Advocate, but which will appear next week. Brother Babb writes optimistically of his work.

Brother J. H. Ramsey, a worthy layman of Houlka, Miss., in a business letter to our office, appends the following note: "Brother O. P. Armour bas begun well, and I feel sure that he will do a great work in his new field."

Writing from Cochrane, Ala., one of the charges in the Columbus (Miss.) District, Rev. A. H. Williams, the pastor, says: "Brother Duren, our presiding elder, is to be out this afternoon. He begins as though to the manner born."

"We have been given a hearty welcome here, and the outlook is very encouraging." So writes Rev. W. A. Hays, our gifted pastor, at Newton, Miss. Brother Hays' letter brought us two subscriptions, for which he has our thanks.

Brother W. L. Bachman, of Winona, Miss., a son of the lamented Rev. G. W. Bachman, in renewing his subscription to our paper, says: "We are glad to welcome the Advocate in our home each week." The Advocate has long had good friends beneath that hospitable roof-tree.

Writing from Carrollton, Miss., Rev. R. W. Evans says: "I am highly pleased with my work, though I think I have too many appointments. Three of the churches really need all of my time." Brother Evans will press the claims of the Conference organ in his field.

Rev. R. E. Rutledge, of Vaughan, Miss., reports that his charge has sent $10 to Dr. E. B. Chappell for the starving Armenians and Syrians. Every Methodist church in Louisiana and Mississippi ought to do something toward helping these sufferers. It is not yet too late to give them assistance.

Rev. W. C. Beasley, of Tishomingo, Miss., writes: "I drop you this card to inform you of the death of Mrs. John Stephens, the mother of the Rev. J. E. Stephens, of the North Mississippi Conference. Rev. J. E. Cunningham and I conducted the obsequies on Friday, January 4. A fuller notice will be sent you later."

The First M. E. Church, South, at Shreveport, La., bas on its Roll of Honor the names of 59 persons who have entered the military service. A gentleman from Shreveport stated to us a few days since that Rev. A. G. Shankle, the new pastor, bad made an excellent impression upon the membership of that large congregation.

Rev. F. M. Freeman, pastor of the Parker Memorial Church of New Orleans, was a pleasant visitor at the Advocate office Monday of this week. Brother Freeman is pleased with his new pastorate, and feels that the outlook for his flock is encouraging. He preached at the Carrollton Avenue Church last Sunday night, and his discourse made a fine impression.

Rev. W. S. Lagrone, our hustling pastor at Drew, Miss., thus remarks: "Drew is still on the map, and the preacher and people are pledging anew their prayers and efforts to make the year 1918 the best in the history of this church." That Brother Lagrone and his excellent flock will accomplish much for the Master during the year now beginning, we do not doubt.

Rev. George H. Thompson, the resourceful presiding elder of the Meridian District, is planning to have a Workers' Institute in Meridian, February 11-15. The program arranged for this occasion is on our table, and a most interesting one it is. We trust that this meeting will do much to promote the work of the Church within the bounds of Brother Thompson's "diocese."

We are indebted to the following friends, to whom acknowledgment has not been made elsewhere, for two or more subscriptions, sent in within the past few days: Brother T. M. Babington, Franklinton, La., 3; Rev. O. L. Savage, Webb, Miss., 11. Brother Savage has sent in since Conference 13 subscriptions, the largest number that we have received this year.

Under date of January 10, Rev. A. C. McCorkle, of Byhalla, Miss., writes: "Everything is moving along nicely here. We had our first quarterly conference yesterday. The pastor's salary was increased $100. We have been 'pounded' some for the last thirty days, and have plenty to eat." We acknowledge ourselves indebted to Brother McCorkle for two subscriptions to the Advocate.

The Lincoln County Times (Brookhaven, Miss.) of January 10 says: "Rev. J. V. Bennett and family arrived Tuesday from Laurel and now occupy the Ewing cottage, just east of the district parsonage. Mr. Bennett, as one of the Conference evangelists, will necessarily be away from home much of the time; but he and his family will be gladly welcomed as residents of Brookhaven."

Rev. Leland Clegg writes as follows from South Mansfield, La.: "We have been very cordially received on the South Mansfield and Naborton charge, and the indications point to a good year. We have organized a reading club in the North Mansfield Sunday school, and at Naborton we are planning to have children's services two Sunday evenings each month, when the pastor is away."

Rev. A. J. Gearheard, pastor of the Louisiana Avenue Church of this city, has announced to his congregation that he will preach a series of sermons on the Home Life. He discoursed last Sunday on "Coming Home to Live;" and some of his other themes are as follows: "Talking Things Over around the Fireside," January 20; "Family Ties," January 27; "The Family Album," February 4.

Rev. T. W. Adams writes: "Please give notice in your columns that all personal mail should be addressed to me at Brookhaven, Miss., and that all mail concerning my work as chaplain of the Mississippi State Penitentiary should be addressed to me as 'chaplain, in care of the Edwards House, Jackson, Miss., Room 260.'" Let Brother Adams' correspondents take notice and govern themselves accordingly.

From the New Orleans Daily States, we clip the following dispatch, sent out from Ripley, Miss.: "Rev. J. J. Baird, who has been the pastor of the Ripley and Blue Mountain charge since 1916, has resigned and accepted a position as traveling salesman for a hardware concern. He expects to reside at Greenwood, Miss." Brother Baird was one of the most capable and useful young men in the North Mississippi Conference.

Rev. E. M. Allen, of Hub, Miss., in a communication bringing us 5 subscriptions, writes as follows: "When Brother Jackson was relieved of this charge the latter part of last year, I was appointed to serve it; and I have now been returned to it. I am happy to say that I am among excellent people. Our first quarterly conference was held on January 5 and 6, and the pastor's salary was advanced over that paid last year."

The following is from a recent issue of the Lincoln County Times (Brookhaven, Miss.): "Rev. and Mrs. T. W. Adams, and their daughter, Mrs. Toler, are again welcome residents of this city, occupying their home on North Church Street. As Chaplain of the State penitentiary, Mr. Adams will have a circuit requiring about 1500 miles of travel per month, somewhat more extensive than even the famous frontier missionaries of a hundred years ago."

Rev. H. M. Young thus reports, from Eupora, Miss.: "Our reception has been all that we could have asked for, and the outlook is indeed promising. Our congregations at both Eupora and Maben have been good, in spite of the cold weather. There is no better friend and instructor that comes to our people than the Advocate; and, knowing its worth to those who read it, I hope to secure many subscribers to it in the near future." We appreciate these kindly words.

From Decatur, Miss., Rev. E. H. Cooley thus writes: "We are now domiciled in the parsonage here, and are ready to take up the work in our new field. The people have shown us many kindnesses, and the prospect seems to be good for a successful year. On December 17, 1917, we were gladdened by the arrival at the parsonage of a bright baby girl, Mary Louise. She is a hearty, lusty little one, and sleeps very well at night—sometimes." We extend congratulations to Brother and Sister Cooley.

This has been one of the coldest winters in the history of the Crescent City. During the first cold snap, some days ago, the thermometer stood at 19 degrees above zero, and when the second cold wave came it went down to 17 degrees. To make matters worse, coal was distressingly scarce and water pipes were bursted in hundreds, possibly thousands, of residences. The coldest day in New Orleans of which there is any record was in February, 1899, when the mercury stood at 7 degrees above zero.

A correspondent at Osyka, Miss., writes: "Please mention in the Advocate that our beloved pastor, Rev. W. N. Thomas, delivered his last sermon here yesterday before leaving to take up his new work as a chaplain in the United States Navy. Both Secretary Daniels and Chaplain Frazier, who examined him, are Southern Methodists. It is their impression that Mr. Thomas is the first chaplain ever appointed to the Navy from Mississippi. He has a wonderful influence with men. We are very much attached to Brother Thomas and regret to give him up. Ask the Church to pray for him."

Rev. Nolan B. Harmon, pastor of our Church at Magnolia, recently went to McHenry, Miss., to officiate at the marriage of his son, Robert Howe Harmon, Professor of Science and Mathematics in the Agricultural High School at Perkinston, Miss., to Miss Grace Estelle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs T. C. Ruble, of McHenry. The marriage took place in the McHenry Methodist Church on Thursday evening, December 27, 1917, the officiating minister being assisted in the ceremony by his brother, Rev. G. S. Harmon, of Poplarville. The happy young couple will make their home in the High School at Perkinston.

From a personal letter from Rev. B. P. Jaco, our pastor at Lexington, Miss., we extract the following: "We are pleased to be at Lexington for another year. The people gave the new preacher a big congregation on the first Sunday after Conference, and later proceeded to 'pound' the parsonage most generously. A big gobbler was sent for Christmas, and since then sausage, spareribs, and the like have fattened me up (?). At the first quarterly conference the stewards paid the presiding elder and pastor in full for the first quarter. After a very long illness, my wife is now able to be up and has been to church. Our hearts ache, however, over what the war is bringing to us. We buried Irby Sheeby here last week. He was one of our Volunteer Company." We regret to know that Sister Jaco has been ill, but are happy to be informed that she is now convalescent.

Occasionally the suggestion is made to us that the Advocate should carry more matter pertaining distinctively to the spiritual life. We wish that it might; but, with the numerous interests that are seeking a voice through our columns, we are doing about the best we can in this respect. We know of no paper in Southern Methodism that carries more religious copy than the New Orleans Advocate, if indeed there is any that carries as much. We invite comparison in this particular. In some instances this complaint has emanated from persons who are very desirous of having the Editor to cease to speak on the burning issues that are now before the Church. We trust that our spiritually minded readers will not permit themselves to be misled at this point. Nothing is more important to the religious welfare of Southern Methodists at this critical time than to beat back the tides of higher criticism and to keep our Church from being swept into an alliance with bodies that have gone over to the new theology.

Rev. F. B. Hill, of Patterson, La., who has two sons in the division of the British Army that has been fighting the Turks, writes us as follows: "I think that my many friends in the Louisiana Conference will be pleased to know that my somewhat anxious Christmas-time was cheered by a letter from my youngest boy 'somewhere in Palestine.' (Both of my boys are there—the oldest has now been in the British Army on four successive Christmas days.) The letter was dated November 14, and the writer was then quite well. He said that they were 'pushing the Turks back,' but he was not in love with the Holy Land, and stated that they were 'looking in vain for those big bunches of grapes that the spies brought in,' and had about concluded that the Old Testament writers gave a liberal interpretation when they 'described it as a land flowing with milk and honey,' and said nothing about 'sand and dust.' My last letter had reached him at Beersheba. Of course, several battles have been fought since the communication to which I have referred was written. I hope that both boys were at the taking of Jerusalem. I continually pray for their safety." We are glad to know that Brother Hill's Christmas was brightened by this welcome message.

TO OUR SUBSCRIBERS.

The little pink or yellow address label on the copy of the Advocate which you receive weekly shows your name and address, and the date of expiration of your subscription. Dec 1917 indicates that your subscription expired Dec 1, 1917, and that it is past due, and should be renewed Subscribers will please examine the labels on their papers, and if it is found that the subscriptions are past due, they should remit at once. Conditions are such that we cannot afford to continue sending the paper to those who are in arrears. If a subscriber does not want the subscription to continue, we expect him or her to pay that which is due us, and notify us to stop sending the paper. Attention to this matter will be greatly appreciated by the management of this Advocate, and it will be the means of helping us to avoid losses by discontinuing the paper to those who do not desire it.

Sage Tea Beautifies And Darkens Hair

Don't stay gray. Sage Tea and Sulphur darkens hair so naturally that nobody can tell.

You can turn gray, faded hair beautifully dark and lustrous almost overnight if you'll get a 5-cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" at any drug store. Millions of bottles of this old famous Sage Tea Recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients are sold annually, says a well known druggist here because it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that no one can tell it has been applied.

Those whose hair is turning gray or becoming faded have a surprise awaiting them. Because after one or two applications the gray hair vanishes and your locks become luxuriantly dark and beautiful.

This is the age of youth. Gray-haired unattractive folks aren't wanted around. Get busy with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound to-night and you'll be delighted with your dark, handsome hair and your youthful appearance within a few days.

This preparation is a toilet requisite and is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

Just as the shadows of the evening on January 1 gathered about us the life of little JOHN EDGAR THOMAS, Jr., ebbed away, and, closing his eyes to the scenes of earth, he quietly fell to sleep. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Thomas of Eupora, Miss. The sweet little fellow was the charm of all who knew him, and, being in the best months of his age, his acts and doings were both attractive and interesting. To give him up was hard, but we all know he is safe forever, and that He who took little children up in his arms and blessed them has him in his keeping. The jewel God loaned these parents for awhile, he has taken to himself, and he will be there waiting for the coming of father and mother, grandfather and grandmother, when the journey of life is ended and heaven is won. The little body was laid to rest in the Eupora Cemetery the next afternoon, in the presence of many friends, to await the resurrection. E. M. YOUNG, Pastor.

JAMES B DOTY was born on Dec. 1, 1838, at Grenada, Miss., and died suddenly at Lexington, Miss., on Dec. 29, 1917. He was the son of Jacob J. and Minerva Humphrey Doty, who came from Onslow County, North Carolina. In the home he was a loyal son, a faithful husband, a loving father, and a hospitable host. As a citizen he tried to bear his part in times of peace, and he had been a brave soldier in the Confederate army. He put himself on the right side by becoming a Christian, and he was at his death a member of the M. E. Church, South, at Richland, Miss., to which place, accompanied by many friends and relatives, his body was tenderly borne and gently laid to rest, after the burial service of the Church, conducted by Rev. Ben P. Jaco, and that of the Masonic Lodge, led by his special friend, Paul E. Murphy. Though an old man, his step was quick, his body was erect, and his mind was clear. He had experienced little of the burden of decrepitude. He was at work when death came, thus ceasing to work and to live at the same time.

MEMORIAL RESOLUTIONS.

Whereas, our Heavenly Father, in his wisdom, has called from us to his reward one of our faithful members and co-laborers, Brother W. D. HARMON; and

Whereas, he will be greatly missed in our League, Church and entire community; therefore, be it

Resolved (1), That the wisdom and ability which he exercised in all his service for his Master will be held in grateful remembrance.

Resolved (2), That the removal of such a life from our midst leaves a vacancy and a shadow that is deeply realized by all the members of this body, and which will prove a serious loss to the Church and public also.

Resolved (3), That we deep sympathy for the bereaved relatives of the deceased. We express our hope that even as great a loss to us all may be overruled for our good by Him who doeth all things well.

Resolved (4), That as one body, we shall, with the help of our dear Lord Jesus, profit by the life our dear brother lived, the example he left us in following our Master and doing his bidding.

Resolved (5), That a copy of these resolutions be given the family of Brother Harmon and also that a copy be sent to the New Orleans Christian Advocate for publication.

Signed: Miss Lillian Roberts, Mrs. Jennie Lacy.

ALPHEUS W. WILSON—A PRINCE IN ISRAEL

This is the title of a volume by Rev. C. D. Harris, Editor of the Baltimore Southern Methodist, which is being issued by the Board of Church Extension. The book has been promised ready for mailing by not later than February 15.

Under the action of the Executive Committee of the Board, every pastor in the Church who secured his Church Extension collection in full for the Conference year 1916-1917, is entitled to a copy. Many of these have advised the office of their right to the book. Others have overlooked sending us this information. It is important that we receive, at an early date, the names and addresses of these brethren.

Bishop Wilson was the last of the charter members of the Board of Church Extension, and I am authorized by the Executive Committee of the Board to present a copy of the book to the superannuate members of the several Annual Conferences, and will thank these brethren for their correct addresses.

It is anticipated that the edition will not be altogether exhausted in supplying the above. Any one desiring a copy may secure it, so long as the supply lasts, by sending one dollar to this office. The cost of the publication has been provided for, and money received from the sale of the book will be added to the Alpheus Waters Wilson Loan Fund.

This is a companion volume in size and style of "David Morton—A Biography," by Bishop E. E. Hoss.

"No religion can do us any good that does not make us try to do good to others."

One of the welcome gifts of increasing years is the possibility of sharpened discernment. Our daily discipline in life is as a hone for the powers of the spirit. Every well-accepted experience brings an added power to our lives for appropriating the unsearchable riches of Christ. Our growing experience brings us finer implements, and we return to the old mines to discover new treasures; or we re-tread the old fields and stumble upon wild flowers which we have never seen before.—J. H. Jowett.

The Cause of Gray Hair.

Hair grows gray by reason of the same cause which produces dwarfed, yellow stalks of corn instead of strong, dark green growing stalks—lack of nutrition. Hair, like the crops of the field, must be fed, either naturally from the scalp as the stalk of corn is fed from the soil, or artificial hair food may be applied as fertilizer is applied to the soil to enrich it. Unless your hair is supplied with natural oil—the food on which it subsists—you may expect it to cease its flourishing and lose its natural luster, color and beauty. The hair must have food on which to live. Don't neglect it or it will lose its luster, become stiff and coarse and eventually gray. Begin now and prevent the appearance of age by using a natural hair oil, "La Creole." It will keep the hair soft, fluffy and beautiful. Ask your dealer and if he can't supply you send $1.00 to the Van Vleet-Mansfield Drug Co., Memphis, Tenn., for a trial bottle.

WONDERFUL EGG PRODUCER

Any poultry raiser can easily double his profits by doubling the egg production of his hens. A scientific tonic has been discovered that revitalizes the flock and makes hens work all the time. The tonic is called "More Eggs." Give your hens a few cents worth of "More Eggs" and you will be amazed and delighted with results. A dollar's worth of "More Eggs" will double this year's production of eggs, so if you wish to try this great profit maker, write E. J. Reefer, Poultry Expert, 8461 Reefer Building, Kansas City, Mo., who will send you a season's supply of "More Eggs" Tonic for $1 (prepaid). So confident is Mr. Reefer of the results that a million-dollar bank guarantees if you are not absolutely satisfied your dollar will be returned on request and the "More Eggs" costs you nothing. Send a dollar to-day or ask Mr. Reefer for his free poultry book that tells the experience of a man who has made a fortune out of poultry. —adv.

No Alcohol In This

You may wisely hesitate to take medicine containing alcohol. Scientists agree that alcohol is injurious. It is particularly harmful to growing girls and boys. Of the remedies for liver and stomach troubles, Granger Liver Regulator is recognized as a standard preparation, free from poisonous drugs like calomel and it contains no alcohol. This medicine has been on the market for years. It is the "stand-by" in thousands of homes throughout the country. It is freely used by all the family whenever one of them feels headachy or in need of a physic. Granger Liver Medicine is purely vegetable, and it may be taken without fear of griping or any other unpleasant after effects. Price, 25c per large box. MAY SUMMON BILLY SUNDAY.

Ministerial Union Discusses Advisability of Holding Revival.

The Rev. W. A. (Billy) Sunday may be summoned to New Orleans to hold a revival meeting. A committee to consider the advisability of such a move and to report at the February meeting was appointed by the New Orleans Ministerial Union in session in the Grunewald Hotel, Monday morning, January 7.

Dr. George Summey was elected president of the Union. Other officers to serve in 1918 are: Dr. C. W. Bishpham, rector of the Free Church of the Annunciation, Vice President; Dr. A. F. Vaughan, pastor of the Carrollton Avenue Methodist Church, Secretary; Dr. Fred McQueen, pastor of St. Paul's Evangelical Church, Treasurer.

Committees were elected as follows: Membership—the Revs. G. H. Cornelson, A. J. Gearheard, C. T. Johnson, F. M. Schroeder, W. H. Allen, A. H. Berkeley, F. C. Fegley; Program—B. P. Robertson, U. G. Foote, A. H. Zeimer, R. M. Brown, W. McF. Alexander; Religious Work—W. W. Holmes, J. W. Caldwell, C. W. Bispham, J. L. Sutton, C. S. Sholl and W. A. Mangham; Social Betterment—U. G. Foote, U. D. Mooney, R. S. Coupland and B. H. Dement; Lepers' Home—J. L. Sutton, Louis Voss, F. C. Fegley; Charity Hospital—W. E. Thomas, J. W. Caldwell, Jr., A. R. Berkeley, and J. L. Wise.

Those recommended for membership in the Union were: W. H. Coleman, F. M. Freeman, J. C. Rousseaux, Bishop W. P. Thirkield, E. F. Schuessler, H. M. Hopkins, A. G. Roos, Menard Doswell, Jr., and S. L. Vail. Their names will be voted on at the next meeting of the union.

The question of prohibition was referred to the Committee on Social Betterment. It will be reported upon at the February meeting.—Times-Picayune.

CONSTIPATION, BILIOUSNESS, AND LIVER DISORDERS.

Cleanliness is the first law of health and it means more than keeping the hands and body clean. It demands that the inside of the body shall be kept clear of impurities. It demands that the waste products be not allowed to stay any longer in the body than Nature normally provides.

The importance of keeping your bowels normal is seen when it is remembered that there is not a solitary disease in the entire list that does not demand as one of the first requisites in its treatment the thorough elimination of waste matter from the bowels.

Two of the commonest causes of constipation are wrong diet and irregularity in going to stool. The liver failing to secrete enough bile is another potent reason.

Dr. Miles' Liver Pills are an ideal remedy for such a condition. They gently stimulate the action of the liver and the bowels, and with careful attention to habits of stool and diet, insure their proper and regular action.

The following are some of the reasons why we so strongly advocate the use of Dr. Miles' Liver Pills in cases of torpid liver, biliousness, constipation and indigestion: Because they do not cause griping or other unpleasant sensations like ordinary pills. Because their use does not derange the stomach, liver or bowels. Because they are a very gentle laxative and if properly used cause natural movements of the bowels. Because they are small, mild and sure.

OUR SOLDIER BOYS.

Of our brave boys in khaki suits
Some are in trenches to-day,
Others are eager to sail, you bet your boots,
Across the watery way.

Let them go and for their country fight—
For them we'll pray;
They will come back with faces bright,
One glad, happy day.

Should fate decree that some go down,
The nation's pride and joys,
For the cause of right, they shall be crowned
Our own hero boys.

Their red blood and noble patriotism,
Who can ever doubt?
In the mighty struggle with barbarism,
We'll triumphantly win out.

For the slackers sneaking around,
With ideals false and low,
Scoff and ridicule shall abound—
And—aint that so?

To every dear soldier boy, here and there,
All honor you for going!
May Providence bless and for you care,
And hasten your home-coming.

RENWAR RELIEVES RHEUMATISM.

It is certainly a pity that so many people suffer year after year the intense pains of rheumatism when it can be so easily expelled from the system by the simple treatment of taking Renwar Rheumatic Salts. Rheumatism is caused by uric acid in the blood; and in order to effect a complete cure, it is necessary to entirely eliminate this acid from the blood. Renwar is guaranteed to relieve or your money is refunded. It contains no injurious drugs. It is the one sure remedy, and it does not in the slightest degree injure the stomach or affect the heart. Mr. Joseph L. Boehmer says: "One 50c bottle has done me more good than all sanitarium treatments, and what it did for me, why should it not do the same for others? Should anyone doubt the virtue of Renwar and the certainty of curing this malady, refer them to me." For sale by druggists, price 50c; or by mail on receipt of price from WARNER DRUG COMPANY, NASHVILLE, TENN.—Adv.

EXCHANGE OF PASTORS.

As has been stated in the Advocate, a plan has been adopted to have all the Southern Methodist pastors of New Orleans exchange pulpits on the second Sunday night of each month. According to a statement in the Daily States by Rev. A. J. Gearheard, the following list of exchanges was scheduled to be made last Sunday evening:

Dr. U. G. Foote of Rayne Memorial Church, to exchange with Dr. W. H. Coleman, of the First Methodist Church.

Rev. F. M. Freeman, of Parker Memorial Church, to exchange with Rev. A. F. Vaughan of Carrollton Avenue Church.

Dr. J. C. Rousseaux, of Epworth Church, to exchange with Rev. J. A. Alford of the Second Methodist Church.

Rev. J. L. Sutton, accredited for exchange purposes to the St. Mark's Church, exchanging with Rev. W. E. Thomas of Mary Werlein Mission; Rev. G. V. Romano assisting with the St. Mark's service.

Rev. R. M. Brown of Felicity, to exchange with Rev. A. J. Gearheard of Louisiana Avenue.

Rev. C. C. Wier of Algiers to exchange with Rev. W. A. Mangham of McDonoghville.

COLUMBUS NOT BEHIND.

Dear Dr. Meek: I notice in the Advocate of to-day on the first page, a short editorial observation as follows: "We notice in the papers during the holidays, reports of scores and hundreds of baskets filled with things to eat being distributed to needy families by the Salvation Army and certain benevolent orders, but we did not see anywhere an account of this being done by Methodists. Are we as a Church ceasing to be interested in the poor?"

It would be a severe arraignment of Methodism if it were true that as a Church we forget the poor and needy during the Christmas holidays. I fully understand you do not so charge the Church. I am persuaded that two things are true of the matter under comment: That a vast amount was spent by Methodist Churches within the bounds of your three patronizing Conferences for the poor and suffering, BUT THAT IT WAS NOT REPORTED, and I am guilty here, for in Columbus at First Church we gave the evening hour of December 23 to our Sunday school, a very beautiful program was rendered and each class of this large church brought its gifts to the altar for the needy and poor. The altar was literally obscured as class after class piled their gifts on and around it. The committee in charge report to me that the value in cash, baskets, and other gifts was about $300. I suppose 1500 people looked on as the Sunday school made their gifts to Him who gave us Christmas. Seven or eight cars were employed all of Monday and a part of Tuesday in distributing baskets, boxes, etc., over the city. Then, the great Red Cross drive was on all over the nation, and thousands of our churches opened their doors and pulpits to assist in this great work. The drive was opened for Lowndes County in my church on December 16, all the churches in the city joining in the service.

I am glad that the Salvation Army could do so much, and DID do so much; and I am glad some benevolent orders remembered the poor. All honor to both; but I have an idea that if the truth were known, God's Church did more than all.

Yet, Doctor, I say unhesitatingly that if we, as Methodists, are behind in this work, stir us up with just such a comment as you made last week For, Methodism cannot afford to forget, or in any way, overlook the poor and needy.

S. L. POPE.

HOW THIS NERVOUS WOMAN GOT WELL

Told by Herself. Her Sincerity Should Convince Others.

Christopher, Ill.—"For four years I suffered from irregularities, weakness, nervousness, and was in a run down condition. Two of our best doctors failed to do me any good. I heard so much about what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had done for others, I tried it and was cured. I am no longer nervous, am regular, and in excellent health. I believe the Compound will cure any female trouble."—Mrs. ALICE HELLER, Christopher, Ill.

Nervousness is often a symptom of weakness or some functional derangement, which may be overcome by this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as thousands of women have found by experience.

If complications exist, write Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., for suggestions in regard to your ailment. The result of its long experience is at your service.

TO THE WOMEN OF MISSISSIPPI METHODISM.

Nineteen seventeen has come to a close, and the New Year has been rung in. May it mean to the woman's work of our Church a greater, broader field of action than it has ever before been ours to enjoy. Already, I am sure, every active auxiliary is planning its work for the incoming year.

I realize that the question of our Orphans' Home does not lie exactly within the domain of woman's work as mapped out by our Council, but I also realize that the interest of the local church is, to a great extent, due to the interest manifested along this line by its women. May I beg of you that in making up your budget for 1918, you do not forget our Home, but that you arrange for some kind of systematic offering to it? As housekeepers, it is unnecessary for me to remind you of the greatly increased cost of all living products—a very serious problem which is now facing our management—but for this fact I must remind you that we shall be compelled to look to you for more substantial help in the future than in the past. The Church has always been most loyal in its support of our institution. We sincerely appreciate all its efforts and feel that it will not fail us in this present crisis.

If you could know how much help the support of one small child by an auxiliary renders to the matrons, I am sure each of you would include one such, at least, in your plans for the New Year. Donations of food supplies constitute another important item in the support of our large family. They represent a minimum outlay of money and labor to the donor and a maximum of service to the children. Last year was one of our best in offerings of this kind, due to the fact, no doubt, that greater stress was placed upon the conservation of food supplies by our whole country than ever before in its history. Boxes of edibles came in great variety and have been a wonderful help. But there is room for a still greater liberality in such donations.

It is a law of the human mind that it is able to possess but one great interest at a time. In the grip and pressure of this greatest of all wars, we are in the greatest danger of allowing it to consume our entire thought and interest. In the presence of the imperative drives for Liberty Bonds, Red Cross and Y. M. C. A. funds, there is danger that we forget other interests just as important in their humble way. Shall we give cheerfully that the soldier boy may have a clean, wholesome environment and leave the parentless boy to perish in the midst of poverty and crime? Shall we pour out our treasures to feed and clothe Europe's war-stricken millions and leave our own homeless, helpless little ones to suffer without mercy? The one we must do, the other we cannot afford to leave undone. Again I beg you, do not forget us in your budget for 1918.

ALMA G. RILEY,
Field Secretary Orphans' Home.

EXTRACT FROM LETTER RECEIVED FROM MISS OLIVE LIPSCOMB, SOOCHOW, CHINA.

I wish you could have seen the Y. W. C. A. conference. You would have enjoyed seeing one hundred and fifty fine Christian girls getting the same kind of inspiration and training that our own home girls get at summer conferences and thoroughly able to appreciate it all and contribute their part. They had splendid Bible classes and method hours on Association work and fine speakers. I think the girls were most impressed by Mr. Lobestine's address on the "Unoccupied Fields of China." He has some very striking charts showing the very small proportion of Christians even now, and it was a revelation and quite a shock to some of these earnest girls who have spent all their lives in Christian schools and felt that many people in China are Christians because their circle is. We took the girls out onto a bridge over a part of the beautiful West Lake for a vesper service, and it was wonderful to sit in this beautiful spot as the sun set behind the western hills and the full moon rose out of the lake and hear that crowd of splendid young women sing "Day is dying in the west" and "Holy, holy, holy." It was a very new and novel experience to them, and I know the talk on "Being Like Christ" and the prayers of that evening service will be with them always. We had six fine girls from Laura Haygood there, and Miss Robinson was there with four from Davidson Memorial and Miss Attaway with three from the Kindergarten Training School. There were five splendid girls there from Ginling, who stood out head and shoulders above all the other girls as real college women. I was proud of our part in them and hope we'll soon have a more vital part. Miss Tuttle had three McTyeire girls there, and one of Miss Drake's teachers was there. One of the finest of the native Y. W. C. A. Secretaries is an old McTyeire girl. So the Southern Methodists had a big part in the conference.

STORY OF THE YEARS IN SCHINA.

This is the title of a booklet written by Mrs. J. B. Cobb giving a history of the woman's work in China. This booklet will be in connection with the February program. Owing to increased cost of paper and printing, the distribution in the auxiliaries will be limited to two copies for each auxiliary. Additional copies may be had from the Home Base Secretary for five cents each. This is the first history of our work in China that has been issued, and no woman can afford to be without it. We are indeed fotunate in securing Mrs. Cobb to prepare this material, and the booklet is a distinct contribution to our missionary literature.

MISS MAUD BONNELL.

The "Angel of Death" has again invaded our missionary ranks and taken therefrom one of our choicest and most efficient workers. This time it is the work in Japan that suffers and Miss Bonnell's sweet spirit has been wafted back to the Maker who gave it. For sixteen years she labored with unusual success as a missionary in Japan and the work was dearer to her than aught else on earth. She was a woman of deep spirituality and her consecrated life left its impress upon all who came in contact with her.

She was present at the Council meeting last April and those who met her for the first time will never forget the wonderful kindling of eye and face as she spoke of her work in Japan, being principal of the Lambuth Memorial Bible and Training School in Kobe. When seated quietly by herself one often noted the rapt expression on her face, and it was no uncommon sight to see her lips moving in prayer. She dwelt continually in the presence of her Master and on November 30 was "translated into the kingdom of his dear Son."

A TRAINED NURSE CALLED TO SERVICE.

At the Council meeting all the deaconesses and missionaries who were present volunteered for service along religious and social lines of war work if the government should need them. Recently Miss Lula Marsh, trained nurse at Tampa, Fla., was called by the Red Cross and will leave at once for some field of active service. Miss Marsh has been in the employ of the Council a number of years and is a nurse of ability. May she not only be used for the healing of body, but may she carry the spirit of Christ in all her ministries.

TAKES OFF DANDRUFF, HAIR STOPS FALLING

Save your Hair! Get a small bottle of Danderine right now—Also stops itching scalp.

Thin, brittle, colorless and scraggy hair is mute evidence of a neglected scalp, of dandruff—that awful scurf.

There is nothing so destructive to the hair as dandruff. It robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life, eventually producing a feverishness and itching of the scalp, which if not remedied causes the hair roots to shrink, loosen and die—then the hair falls out fast. A little Danderine tonight—now—any time—will surely save your hair.

Get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store. You surely can have beautiful hair and lots of it if you will just try a little Danderine. Save your hair! Try it!—Adv.

DISEASE IS EVER THE SAME

And in view of this fact a medicine like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which has been successful for more than 40 years, is a safe one to rely upon.

Hood's Sarsaparilla is known to the people of America as the standard blood purifier. Its record is one of general satisfaction and remarkable results. There is nothing better as a general tonic and appetite-maker for weak and run-down men, women and children and old people, invalids and convalescents.

It is pleasant to take, aids digestion, and supplies the vital organs with rich red blood essential to perfect health.

Get Hood's Sarsaparilla today and begin to take it at once.

Sunday School

FROM BROTHER CHAMBERS.

The meeting of the Field Secretaries of the Conference Boards of Missions at Nashville was well attended and it was a great meeting. The Secretary of the meeting will have the proper write-up in the church press. I want to mention that the Treasurer's report showed that the Board had collected from all sources $148,660.58 more than they collected last year.

The meeting of the Sunday School Field Secretaries of the Gulf Division, at Vicksburg, was a success from every standpoint. All the Secretaries were present and they go forth to the work with a larger vision for having attended. The Secretary of this meeting was instructed to write it up for the church press.

I visited Galloway Memorial, Jackson, Miss., on Sunday, January 6. I have never received anywhere a more cordial welcome. Their Sunday school is going to keep up its China Special, the same as they had last year, and in addition are going to support a Sunday school in Japan.

Dr. Watkins, President of Millsaps College, assures me that he is going to give all his students at Millsaps two diplomas if they wish them: One from the College, and the other from the Teacher-training Department of the Sunday School Board. He is going to require four units of the Standard Training Course to be taken by each student, and is going to have the other four units elective, so that the student if he chooses may have a compiete Teacher-training Course with his other studies.

I have spent most of the time since Conference in visiting different Sunday schools noted for their work and in conferences with Sunday school and missionary leaders of the Church, that I may be fitted and better prepared to bring to all the schools the best.

I wish to ask all the brethren to pray that I may be used of God and be a real blessing to my brethren.

JOHN C. CHAMBERS,
Missionary-Sunday School Field Secretary of the Miss. Conf.

SUNDAY SCHOOL NOTES FROM NORTH MISSISSIPPI.

Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, Sardis, Miss.

Mrs. Marie Hay has been superintendent of the Davis Chapel school for several years. This school is small, but the work that is done under her splendid leadership is excellent. One class in this school is to study "The Heroes of Faith in Japan" the second quarter. This is a long step forward.

To Drive Out Malaria And Build Up The System

Take the Old Standard GROVE'S TASTELESS chill TONIC. You know what you are taking, as the formula is printed on every label, showing it is Quinine and Iron in a tasteless form. The Quinine drives out malaria, the Iron builds up the system. 60 cents.

Rev. E. G. Mohier, pastor at Batesville, has ordered eleven copies of "The Life of Jesus," by Rall, the second book in the new course of study for teachers. Mohier is not only a worker, but he works at the thing that counts for most. The trained teacher is our hope for a great Church.

The Board of Missions has sent to each superintendent in the Conference a beautiful calendar, to be placed in each Sunday school. This calendar has information on it to be given to the entire school. If you do not see your calendar on the wall, ask the reason why.

As we begin the work of the year, let us remember that the Kingdom will come only as we think, work, pray. It takes all three, but prayer is the most potent of all and it is the hardest, and most costly, and least used. May the Spirit put upon us the spirit of prayer and supplication!

One teacher in the Sardis school has agreed to support a Sunday school in Japan for twelve months at a cost of $25. The Sunday schools of our Conference could put one hundred new schools in the "Island Empire" during this year. What teacher, or class, or school will follow this good example?

The following is a report recently given by a girl in the Junior department of the Vaiden school that indicates something of the character of the work being done by Brother Armstrong, the superintendent:

"The report of the Junior Department of the Methodist Sunday school at Vaiden as given each Sunday of the year.

"Attendance, teacher, 1; Attendance, scholars, 5; Visitor, 1; Offering, 17 cents; number contributing, 5; on time, 5; late, 0; Church attendance, 4; new scholars, 1; number of Bibles, 3.

"WILHELMINA ARMSTRONG,
Secretary."

FIELD SECRETARIES' MEETING AT VICKSBURG, MISS.

Upon the call of the Sunday School Field Secretary of the Gulf Division, Mr. A. L. Dietrich, of Meridian, Miss., the Conference Field Secretaries of this division met for a two days' conference in Gibson Memorial parsonage, Jan. 4-5. There was a full attendance and there was not a lost minute during the conference, every phase of the Field Secretary's work being discussed from every angle. If the writer can just step aside for a moment with the understanding that he is not to be considered in what he is about to say, he will venture that the Gulf division has a cotiere of secretaries that will compare with any throughout the connection: Turnispeed, the systematic Alabamian; Gladney, the painstaking Irishman of North Mississippi; Chambers, the new man, a "steady Mississippian; "Baker, the thorough, an "Arkansas traveler;" and the little man from Louisiana whose name is Breithaupt, pronounced "Bright-up," and that's what it means. There was another uncertain quantity there from North Alabama, yet as uncertain as it may be, the party to whom I refer made himself an heir to all the benefits that might be obtained.

Resolutions were adopted touching the Wesley Class Federation, teacher-training, district institutes, and other phases of this church-wide movement. It was the sense of the body that the modern Sunday school movement as it pertains to Methodism should be impressed upon her membership, as a whole, as a real movement in which every member should be vitally interested; to put on schools of methods in central communities as fast as Conference conditions will justify it, and to substitute as far as possible an expedient instructional for inspirational work. It was the concensus of opinion that the work cannot make the forward stride that it should, till the districts in each Conference are thoroughly organized.

Mr. J. M. Way, of Spartanburg, S. C., Field Secretary of the Atlantic Division, met with the Secretaries, on the invitation of Secretary Dietrich. Mr. Way's division measures from Baltimore to the Gulf, and with his experience in the work up and down the coast as the senior Divisional Secretary in service, much profit was derived by his coming to us.

A. L. Dietrich, our Divisional Secretary, is a man with the modern Sunday school idea literally in possession of him. He leaves no detail untouched that is worth considering.

Secretary.

10-CENT "CASCARETS" FOR LIVER AND BOWELS

Cure Sick Headache, Constipation, Biliousness, Sour Stomach, Bad Breath—Candy Cathartic.

No odds how bad your liver, stomach or bowels; how much your head aches, how miserable you are from constipation, indigestion, biliousness and sluggish bowels—you always get relief with Cascarets. They immediately cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour, fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry off the constipated waste matter and poison from the intestines and bowels. A 10-cent box from your druggist will keep your liver and bowels clean, stomach sweet and head clear for months. They work while you sleep.—Adv.

Order Fertilizers Now
or You May Have to Do Without Them This Season

The freight congestion is serious. You will help yourself, us, the railroads, and the Government by giving your order for Fertilizers NOW to your dealer. If all the farmers do this, the dealer can then "bunch" his orders, and be able to order his cars of fertilizers loaded to full capacity. The Government urges that all cars be so loaded.

When the goods arrive haul them home, and put them into your barn until you are ready to use them. If the movement of railroad cars becomes any more serious you may not get a pound of fertilizer at any price.

Our 50 factories, and distributing points are so well located geographically as to enable us to get fertilizers to you with minimum amount of hauling.

REV. HARRY M. WILSON.

I had Rev. H. M. Wilson lead my choir in a revival service last fall. He gave perfect satisfaction to every one. I am sure any preacher will have first-class service in a meeting if Mr. Wilson is secured. His solo work is fine.

"Heah's Yo' Luzianne, Co'nel"

A POT of steaming, stimulating Luzianne Coffee set before "a gentleman and a judge of fine coffee." A finer hot beverage than good, old Luzianne never existed.

Luzianne tastes all the way down and you say "Set 'em up again."

Buy a can of Luzianne Coffee. If you can't honestly say that it's the best cup of coffee that ever passed your lips, tell your grocer you're not satisfied and he'll give you back your money on the spot.

Please try Luzianne. You'll like it, you will. In clean, air-tight tins.

STOP! CALOMEL IS QUICKSILVER!

It's mercury! Attacks the bones, salivates and makes you sick.

There's no reason why a person should take sickening, salivating calomel when 50 cents buys a large bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone—a perfect substitute for calomel.

It is a pleasant, vegetable liquid which will start your liver just as surely as calomel, but it doesn't make you sick and does not salivate.

Children and grown folks can take Dodson's Liver Tone, because it is perfectly harmless.

Calomel is a dangerous drug. It is mercury and attacks your bones. Take a dose of nasty calomel to-day and you will feel weak, sick and nauseated tomorrow. Don't lose a day's work. Take a spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tone instead and you will wake up feeling great. No more biliousness, constipation, sluggishness, headache, coated tongue or sour stomach. Your druggist says if you don't find Dodson's Liver Tone acts better than horrible calomel your money is waiting for you.

Iron Is Greatest of All Strength Builders, Says Doctor

A Secret of the Great Endurance and Powers of Athletes

Ordinary Nuxated Iron Will Make Delicate, Nervous, Rundown People 100 Per Cent. Stronger in Two Weeks' Time in Many Cases.

NEW YORK, N. Y.—Most people foolishly seem to think they are going to get renewed health and strength from some stimulating medicine, secret nostrum or narcotic drug, said Dr. E. Sauer, a Boston Physician who has studied widely both in this country and Great European Medical Institutions when, as a matter of fact, real and true strength can only come from the food you eat. But people often fail to get the strength out of their food because they haven't enough iron in their blood to enable it to change food into living matter. From their weakened, nervous condition they know something is wrong but they can't tell what, so they generally commence doctoring for stomach, liver or kidney trouble or symptoms of some other ailment caused by lack of iron in the blood. This thing may go on for years, while the patient suffers untold agony. If you are not strong or well, you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next, take two five-grain tablets of ordinary nuxated iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see for yourself how much you have gained. I have seen dozens of nervous, run-down people who were ailing all the while, double their strength and endurance and entirely get rid of all symptoms of dyspepsia, liver and other troubles in from ten to fourteen days' time simply by taking iron in the proper form. And this after they had in some cases been doctoring for months without obtaining any benefit. But don't take the old forms of reduced iron, iron acetate or tincture of iron simply to save a few cents. You must take iron in a form that can be easily absorbed and assimilated like nuxated iron if you want it to do you any good, otherwise it may prove worse than useless. Many an athlete or prize-fighter has won the day simply because he knew the secret of great strength and endurance and filled his blood with iron before he went into the affray, while many another has gone down to inglorious defeat simply for the lack of iron.

NOTE—Nuxated Iron recommended above by Dr. E. Sauer, is one of the newer organic iron compounds. Unlike the older inorganic iron products it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach; on the contrary, it is a most potent remedy, in nearly all forms of indigestion, as well as for nervous, run-down conditions. The Manufacturers have such great confidence in Nuxated Iron that they offer to forfeit $100.00 to any charitable institution if they cannot take any man or woman under 60 who lacks iron and increase their strength 100 per cent, or over in four weeks' time provided they have no serious organic trouble. They also offer to refund your money if it does not at least double your strength and endurance in ten days' time. It is dispensed by all good druggists.

From the Field

Oak Ridge, Miss.

Dear Advocate: On Christmas day we had a regular preaching service at Oak Ridge, and while it was a very inclement day, there were between 60 and 75 people present, and over three-fourths of the congregation came to the altar and gave themselves to Jesus and His service for one year at least—(some who had never made a profession reverently bowed with the balance of us) and there together we tried to worship Him on his birthday, as the wise men did, and his unquestioned presence was graciously felt by nearly all who bowed. Praise His name forever!

We are looking for unusual displays of Divine power during the year 1918. We will have to see it and experience it if we accomplish much during these times of satanic pressure. Happy in the Lord, J. A. WELLS.

Kilmichael, Miss.

My Dear Dr. Meek: I have thought ever since our arrival that I would drop you a line about the cordial welcome we received from these kind folks here in Kilmichael. The parsonage was ready in every particular for our arrival. The good ladies were there to welcome us and they had all the nice edibles both on the table and in the pantry that one could wish for. All of this makes a hungry preacher feel mighty good. Doctor, I have just returned from a Christmas revival meeting. I was invited by Brother A. M. Bennett, of Tyro, to assist him in a meeting during the Christmas holidays. Considering the terrible weather that we had during this week, we had a great meeting. Our service for men alone was a telling one. Some who had never taken a stand for righteousness did so on this Christmas occasion. This is the first Christmas revival that I have ever had the honor and great pleasure of being in. I have wondered why our preachers did not have more revival meetings during Christmas week, for it is the logical time for great rejoicings, and we certainly ought to use it for revival times instead of such frolics as we have had here and there. Doctor, I want you to enter my son's name on your subscription list for the Advocate. He is in the Army service now, and has a most pleasant location, being at Millington, Tenn., aviation quarters. He is one of the bookkeepers in some branch of the work. He is a very fine accountant. Before attaching himself to the United States work, he was the head bookkeeper for the Tupelo Cotton Mills—a very fine position. He was associated with Mr. J. H. Ledyard. We, of course, regretted very much indeed to give him up and see him give up his fine position, but when the call came, we all made the sacrifice. So he volunteered and they appreciated his ability and have placed him in this branch of the office work. His address is: Mr. Thos. Wesley Shearer, Millington, Tenn. Park Aviation Field, Squadron 193, Barracks No. 4. Fraternally yours,

W. V. SHEARER.

Salts if Backachy and Kidneys Hurt

Drink lots of water and stop eating meat for a while if your Bladder troubles you.

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it generally means you have been eating too much meat, says a well known authority. Meat forms uric acid which overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels, removing all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache, dizzy spells, your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize the acids so they no longer irritate, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is a life saver for regular meat eaters. It is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia-water drink.

IF YOUR CHILD IS CROSS, FEVERISH, CONSTIPATED

Look, Mother! If tongue is coated, cleanse little bowels with "California Syrup of Figs."

Mothers can rest easy after giving "California Syrup of Figs," because in a few hours all the clogged-up waste, sour bile and fermenting food gently moves out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again.

Sick children needn't be coaxed to take this harmless "fruit laxative." Millions of mothers keep it handy because they know its action on the stomach, liver and bowels is prompt and sure.

Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which contains directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups.—Adv.

A NOTE FROM BROTHER NOLEN.

Dear Doctor Meek: The dear old New Orleans Christian Advocate found its way to us here in the city of Indianapolis, Ind. Notwithstanding the deep snow, it came O. K. I read the list of the Mississippi appointments, but my name was not there for the first time in 19 years in succession. I rejoice to hear of the welcome reception of the preachers to their various fields of labor. Oh, what a great Church we have! My sons here have provided for us, their parents, a nice, well-furnished, comfortable home; but we still think and talk about South Mississippi. Dr. Meek, wasn't our last session of the Mississippi Conference a great one? It was so spiritual. I see that Dr. S. A. Steel has made another leap, but we still claim him as our Steel. Tell Sammie to write often. We enjoy reading his letters. I never let one of Dr. J. W. Boswell's or Dr. Steel's letters pass without reading it. We have placed our Church certificates here with the M. E. Church, and have been kindly received. The Lord bless you in your great work! R. T. NOLEN.

NICKNAMES OF STATES.

By Lone Scout Rudolph Henderson.

The following are the nicknames of most of the States in the Union. I couldn't find the nicknames of some, so I am sending you what I have. The name of the State comes first, then what the name means, then the nickname of the State, and last of all, the nickname of the inhabitants:

Rhode Island—From the Island of Rhodes; Little Rhody; Gunflints.

Alabama—Here We Rest; Cotton; Lizards.

Mississippi — Father of Waters; Bayou; Tadpoles.

Ohio—Beautiful River; Buckeye; Buckeyes.

Florida—Feast of the Flowers; Peninsular; Fly-up-the-creeks.

Illinois—Tribe of Men; Prairie; Suckers.

Massachusetts—The Country About the Great Hills; Bay, or Old Colony; Beans.

Indiana—Indian; Hoosier; Hoosiers.

West Virginia—For Queen Elizabeth; Switzerland of America. (No nickname for inhabitants.)

Arkansas—A Bow of the Smoky River; Bear; Toothpicks.

Connecticut—Long River; Nutmeg; Wooden Nutmeg.

Maryland — For Queen Henrietta Maria; Old Line; Crawthumpers.

Oregon—River of the West; Webfoot; Hard-cases.

Texas—Friends; Lone Star; Beefheads.

Vermont—Green Mountains; Green Mountain; Green Mountain Boys.

Louisiana—For Louis XIV.; Pelican; Creoles.

North Carolina—For Charles I.; Turpentine; Tuckols.

Wisconsin—A Wild or Rushing Channel; Badger; Badgers.

Virginia—For Queen Elizabeth; Old Dominion; Beadles.

New Jersey—From the Island of Jersey; Garden; Jersey Blues.

Nebraska—Shallow Water; Black Water; Bug Eaters.

California—Hot Furnace; Golden; Gold Hunters.

Delaware — Lord Delaware; Blue Hun; Muskrats.

Tennessee—River of the Big Bend; Volunteer; Butternuts.

South Carolina—For Charles I.; Palmetto; Weasels or Rice-birds.

Pennsylvania—Penn's Woods; Keystone; Leather-heads.

New York—For the Duke of York; Empire; Knickerbockers.

Colorado — Red Soil; Centennial; Rovers.

Georgia—For King George II.; Empire State of the South; Buzzards.

Iowa—The Drowsy Ones; Hawkeye; Hawkeyes.

New Hampshire—From Hampshire, England; Granite; Granite Boys.

Kansas—Smoky River; Garden of the West; Jayhawkers.

Kentucky—At the Head of the River; Bluegrass; Corncrackers.

Maine—For Queen Henrietta; Pine Tree; Foxes.

Michigan—Fish Trap; Lake; Wolverine.

Minnesota — Sky-colored water; North Star; Gophers.

Missouri — Muddy River; Iron; Pukes.—The Lone Scout.

OUR HOLDEN VISION.

Men see not one-half of the realities of life. The true, real world is the unseen. The great transactions are wrought in the inner man. We are often led by a hand we do not see, and drawn on by a sweet influence we cannot define. Only the more spiritual, saintly souls discern God. But we at last come to see what God hath wrought. That will be a wondrous recognition of the all-working Spirit when a vast redeemed race shall, in review of life's checquered course, sing the new song, and exclaim with deep significance, "Not unto us, O Lord, not unto us, but unto Thy name, give the glory."—C. Chapman.

Wisdom is the principal thing; therefore get wisdom; and with all thy getting get understanding.—Proverbs 4:7.

Our Boys in France and Home Protection

The men on the firing line represent the pick of our American youth. One in four of our boys at home was sick, rejected because of physical deficiency. Many times the kidneys were to blame.

If we wish to prevent old age coming on too soon, or if we want to increase our chances for a long life, Dr. Pierce of the Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N.Y., says that you should drink plenty of water daily between meals. Then procure at your nearest drug store, Anuric (double strength). This "An-u-ric" drives the uric acid out and cures backache and rheumatism.

If we wish to keep our kidneys in the best condition a diet of milk and vegetables, with only little meat once a day, is the most suitable. Drink plenty of pure water, take Anuric three times a day for a month.

Send Dr. Pierce ten cents for trial package. "Anuric"—many times more potent than lithia, eliminates uric acid as hot water melts sugar. A short trial will convince you.

SYLACAUGA, ALA.—"I have successfully used Doctor Pierce's Remedies, especially the Anuric Tablets, and they did me much good, as I suffered a great deal with my kidneys."—E. BLACKWOOD.

DAYTONA, FLORIDA.—"I procured two packages of Anuric Tablets, and after taking one package will say I have been almost completely relieved of the chief trouble, the dropsical swelling of my feet and legs, and I also note a marked improvement in my circulation."—E. DILLINGHAM, Box 294.

"Pape's Diapepsin makes sick, sour, gassy stomachs settle, feel fine in five minutes.

If what you just ate is souring in your stomach and you belch gas and eructate undigested food; your head aches; you feel bilious and nauseated; your tongue is coated; your breath foul; stomach sweetness gone; you have indigestion, dyspepsia or some stomach disorder caused by food fermentation due to excessive acid in stomach, Pape's Diapepsin gives relief in five minutes.

Wash the Poisons of RHEUMATISM

SCIATICA, NEURALGIA AND URIC ACID

Out of Your System With Shivar Spring Mineral Water.

SHIVAR SPRING AS NATURE MADE IT. NOW PROTECTED BY SANITARY SPRING HOUSE.

The Guarantee.

Think of it! A mineral water of such wonderful blood-cleansing power that it is actually shipped to every state in the Union and even to foreign lands under a positive guarantee that the price will be refunded, should the user report no benefit.

Shivar Mineral Water is unquestionably the greatest of all American mineral spring waters and there are thousands who contend that it is the best mineral water in all the world.

In Rheumatism and in other forms of auto-intoxication such as Sciatica, Neuralgia, Chronic Headache and Uric Acid Diathesis, Shivar Mineral Water has succeeded where every known medicine had failed. Physicians attribute this to its peculiar power of dissolving and completely washing out of the system the uric acid poisons, or body poisons that cause these diseases.

Delightful to drink; wonderful in its blood-cleansing power, Shivar Spring Water may be shipped any distance, at any season, without losing its virtues in the slightest.

Though a thousand miles away, you may use it in your home with identically the same results, as if you drank it at the Spring.

The Results.

Read the following letters which are fair samples of tens of thousands that are received at the Spring, then accept Mr. Shivar's guarantee offer. It gives you the equivalent of a three-week's visit to his celebrated Spring, with no charge for the water should you report no benefit. Sign your acceptance on the coupon below.

I know of several who were cured of rheumatism with this water. Please ship at once and oblige. JOHN P. RHODES.

Roper, North Carolina.
I am anxious to get more of the Water. It has done me more good than anything I have ever tried for rheumatism.
MRS. H. C. EDWARDS,

Leeds, South Carolina.
I have tested your Spring Water in several cases of rheumatism, chronic indigestion, kidney and bladder troubles, and in nervous and sick headaches, and find that it has acted nicely in each case, and I believe that if used continuously for a reasonable time will produce a permanent cure. It will purify the blood, relieve debility, stimulate the action of the liver, kidneys and bladder, aiding them in throwing off all poisonous matter.
C. A. CROSBY, M.D.

Union, South Carolina.
I have suffered from headaches for the past ten years, due to constipation, but since using your Water I have been greatly benefitted and scarcely have headaches at all. It has made me feel better in every respect and has given me a fine appetite something I did not have before.
CHAS. B. COUNTS.

I have been for many years affected with uric acid and kidney trouble, and the Mineral Water has helped me more than anything I have ever done for them, and therefore heartily recommend same to all who need a speedy relief and cure.
W. F. MATHENY, M.D.

Florence, South Carolina.
I suffered with indigestion and kidney trouble and a year ago was stricken with acute articular rheumatism; was helpless for months, and since using your spring water I am walking without any crutch and improving daily. Indigestion much relieved. I wish I could write Shivar Spring Water in the sky so that the world could become acquainted with it.
MRS. THEO. KUKER.

Atlanta, Georgia.
In the interest of the afflicted I cheerfully state, seeing your advertisement in the Wesleyan Christian Advocate I decided to try Shivar Spring Water in the case of my daughter, who had been a sufferer from a malignant type of sciatica, and could get no permanent relief from medicine. After using the Water a few weeks she has almost entirely gotten relief from pain. In this case it has been a great blessing.

CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

Vol. 65—No. 4. Official Organ of the Louisiana, Mississippi, and North Mississippi Conferences, Methodist Episcopal Church, South. Whole No. 3231.

Editorial

FIRST THINGS SHOULD BE KEPT FIRST.

There is perhaps no sphere of service into which a Christian minister may enter that is more taxing and difficult than the pastorate, and certainly there is none which opens up to him larger opportunities for making himself truly useful. To be a really efficient pastor, in the full sense of that term, should be the ardent aspiration of every man who professes to be called to such work, and he should leave nothing possible undone that would give him a larger measure of proficiency in it. Nor will true effectiveness come unsought or as a result of any kind of misdirected or half-hearted striving—only intelligent, earnest, and persistent effort will bring it. To be sure, one may be what the world, or even the Church, calls a successful pastor by dealing only with superficial and material things—by making one's self socially popular, getting up the collections, preaching in a pleasing way, and getting members to join the Church as they might join any other desirable club—but the important question for a preacher is, What is the Lord's estimate of my work? Paul put the emphasis in the right place when, in writing to Timothy, he said: "Study to show thyself APPROVED UNTO GOD a workman that needeth not to be ashamed."

One of the greatest obstacles to true ministerial success is the ease with which meretricious success in that sacred calling may be won, and the quick and enticing rewards which it brings, such as public commendation, a general popularity, good appointments, etc. We do not mean that a preacher can never be attractive and in demand if he is faithful and aims in his work at that which is highest and best. The spiritual element in the Church will esteem him for his worth and work, and even the sincere people of the world will respect and honor him in their hearts, if they do not extol him with their lips. But such a man is not apt to be universally popular, for there will be many things that he will have to antagonize, and however tender and tactful he may be, there are pretty sure to be some who will find fault with him. The minister who is in favor with everybody, whatever else may be said of him, is not, in that respect at least, in the Apostolic succession. It was the Master himself who said to his disciples: "Woe unto you when all men shall speak well of you! For, so did their fathers to the false prophets." Well does a distinguished writer, in commenting upon these words, say: "They open a wide question as to the worth of human praise as a test of human conduct, and tend to a conclusion quite the reverse of that implied in the maxim, vox populi, vox Dei."

The great lesson that a pastor needs to learn is "to put first things first" in his thoughts, purposes, and endeavors. There are many secondary tasks that need to be discharged, and which he should not neglect; but for an ambassador of Christ to become bound up in these subsidiary matters and expend his whole, or his chief, strength upon them, to the neglect of the higher spiritual duties that are incumbent upon him, is to make a tremendous, not to say tragic, mistake. And there is always danger at this point. The material and the seen naturally tend to push into the background the invisible spiritual things. The calls for money for this and that are loud and insistent; but the pathetic appeal of the destitute and perishing soul seldom voices itself in human language, either spoken or written. It is heard only by him whose ear is spiritually attuned and intent. Wonderful words were those that were so often upon the lips of the great divine Teacher: "He that hath ears to hear, let him hear." The spiritually deaf and blind far outnumber those who are without physical hearing and sight.

The two great functions of a pastor are preaching and personal spiritual work among his flock. He should certainly learn how to preach. We do not mean by preaching the delivering of learned and eloquent discourses that make the people stare and wonder. Much of that kind of "pulpiteering" is of no more value than the shooting of skyrockets on a holiday night. It is trifling with the great task to which God has commissioned his ambassadors. The true measure of preaching must be found in the extent to which it is spiritually helpful—in what it does toward awakening and recovering the lost, and edifying and strengthening those who are of the household of faith. Has there been a decline in the noble art of preaching within recent years? There are many who think so. Our ministers are better educated than they formerly were; but are they more successful in reaching the hearts and consciences of those who listen to them and in stirring up within them a passion for holy living? Has not even the tradition that to hear a Methodist Bishop was always to be blessed with a thrilling and uplifting message that one could never forget, been pretty well shattered in these latter days? To our young itinerants, we would say, no matter what the cost, see that you become effective pulpit spokesmen for the ascended and reigning Christ. To do this will require the crucifixion of self, consecration, study, thought, prayer, a mixing with the people, a knowledge of human nature, and baptisms of the Holy Ghost. About the worst mistaken man on the globe is the one who thinks that education and books alone can make a preacher who can reach men and women with life-giving messages and set them to seeking and serving the living God. The truth is, few things have caused more ministers to be failures than a prating pedantry. The curse of it is everywhere.

But the effective pastor must also be a personal worker. What an opportunity he has for the sowing of good seed as he comes in contact with the people of his community! How necessary that he should visit strangers, the poor, the sick, and indeed all his members! And how alert he should be to seize every possible opportunity for the accomplishment of spiritual good! The example that Jesus set in this respect should ever be before him. It is not true that a minister cannot be both a good preacher and a good pastor. These two forms of work, if rightly related and done, will not hinder, but help each other. Too much sermonizing in seclusion does not produce the best results. In cannonading, getting the range is as important as loading the gun. The lesson taught in the following homely lines, some pastors would do well to lay to heart:

"The parish priest of Austerlitz
Climbed up into a high church steeple,
To be near God, so that he might hand
God's Word down to the people.

"And in sermons grave he daily wrote
What he thought was sent from heaven,
And showered it down on the people's heads,
Two times, one day in seven.

"In his rage God cried, 'What meanest thou?'
And the priest cried from the steeple,
'Where art thou, Lord?' And the Lord replied,
'Down here among my people.'"

THERE IS A DIFFERENCE.

There are some who speak as if there were no difference respecting the matter of States' rights between the questions of prohibition and woman suffrage. In that view we cannot concur. If a State prefers not to enfranchise its women, no other State is injured thereby, or has any just cause for complaint. On the other hand, if a State licenses the liquor traffic, in spite of all the restrictive legislation that can be enacted, it is a constant menace to other States. Hence, we think that they have a perfect right, as a means of self protection and by concerted action, to make war upon the traffic entrenched in another commonwealth.

No more ardent women suffragists can be found anywhere than Misses Kate and Jean Gordon, of New Orleans, but, because of their strong belief in States' rights, they are opposed to the woman suffrage amendment to the Federal Constitution now pending before Congress. The Era Club of this city recently endorsed their position on this question, and extended congratulations to the Louisiana and Mississippi Congressmen upon having voted unanimously against the proposed amendment when it was before the House. We believe that this action upon the part of these capable Southern women will tend to strengthen their cause in the South.

HOW ABOUT IT?

To possess the "mind that was in Christ Jesus" should be the ardent aspiration of every Christian. But one need not expect to realize this desire except as a result of earnest seeking and at the cost of the crucifixion of self. Are the Methodists ceasing to be a holy people? If they should, whatever else they may become, they will have lost immeasurably more than they have gained.

The Church does not keep men wholesome by the refrigerator method.

"THE SOCIAL HOP."

(A Sermon delivered by Rev. A. A. Walker at the First Baptist Church, Water Valley, Miss.)

Among the different amusements offered society to-day we think there is none that reaches more, or exercises as great an influence as the dance. We believe that it may be rightly called the "queen of amusements." It leads first to impure thought, second to improper conversation, third to immodesty of action, and last to immorality of living. Stop—and read that over again, dear mother, and think before sending your daughter off to the dance.

I am certain that Jesus Christ could not be found on the ball-room floor, embracing any of the women of this audience. The fact that the brainiest leaders of the honorable religious life of the nation have taken the stand against the dance. Roman Catholic Bishops and Archbishops, Episcopalian Bishops, Methodist Bishops, United Brethren Bishops and the dignitaries of Israel in all the evangelical Churches have concurred in an emphatic and unequivocal disapproval of the dance. There is one Church, however, which countenances it; in fact, the dances of that Church are carried on sometimes in their meeting houses; they are opened with prayer and closed with the benediction. Perhaps some of you renegade church members will say: "By all means, that is the Church for me." The institution to which I refer is the Mormon Church of Utah. I can easily understand why a Church which preaches and practices polygamy and fornication, and which practically knows no morality, can endorse the demands of modern society—for there must be fuel added to the fire.

Some years ago, when I was in one of our Southern towns holding a meeting, a company of young ladies came to interview me regarding the amusement question. They represented the best social life of the little city. The young lady who was the spokesman for the company said: "We have come to ask you to tell us the harm in the dance: We want to become Christians, but we cannot see why we should give up the dance." I think there were six or seven magnificent young ladies in the group and the last one of them loved to "trip the fantastic toe." I asked, in the first place, if the young ladies were really positive that they meant to give up the dance in case I showed them the harm in it. I was assured immediately, for all joined in saying: "Yes, indeed." Then I addressed the young lady who had begun the conversation, and said: "Miss —, would it be proper for me to assume the position with you here in the presence of these young ladies which is assumed invariably on the ball-room floor by the partners in the dance?" She said: "No, indeed." Then I asked: "Would it be proper for me to assume that position with you in the little church across the way?" She answered with considerable spirit: "Good gracious, no." I continued: "Would it be proper for me to assume that position in your home with you?" Whereupon the young lady said: "If you look at it in that way, Mr. Walker, I can see the harm in it." I closed the conversation with these words: "There is no other way to look at it. If it is not right, proper, decent, or advisable for me to assume that position with you here, or in the Church, or in your mother's parlor, or on the street, since I am not engaged to marry you and am not a blood relative, it is not right for any other man on earth to assume that position with you at any other place under similar circumstances." Thanks to their good judgment and common, every-day sense, they were convinced and became earnest Christians.

If there is anything in this world that makes me tired—in fact, if there is anything to me utterly disgusting, it is to see these little married ladies running off to the dance. I believe that it is a good thing for people to marry, but for the Lord's sake—marry in moderation. I feel sorry for the poor little old man whose wife has to go down to the social hop for a supplemental hugging. It would be well for some one to invent a hugging machine and let some women wear it. There would be more peace at home. Some men will take their wife to the dance and undergo the humiliation of seeing some other fellow hug her while he, in turn, hugs some other man's wife. The simple, naked truth is this: "If you separate the sexes you kill the dance. A man had as soon hug a barrel of pickles as to hug another man all night." * * * * *

Did you ever see a man spend the entire evening at the dance, dancing with his wife, sister, or mother? Nonsense! You can hug your wife at home—you don't have to go to the dance to hug her—you go there to hug somebody else—don't you, Bud?

I say to you to-night, modesty is one of the strongest defenses of virtue. There is not a girl in this community who can go to a dance and find herself in the embrace of the average bunch of young men with whom she is compelled to dance, who can leave that function with as much modesty as she had when she went there. Now hear me—some lying reprobate will go from this meeting to-night and say: "Mr. Walker said every woman who dances is impure in her life." If you meet that man around the lunch counter or down the street to-morrow, you tell him that before Almighty God and the holy angels and the good intelligent people of this audience, I brand him as the biggest liar unhung. There are any amount of ignorant girls who know nothing about the real causes of the delight of the dance—they are young and inexperienced and do not know what that strange, peculiar thrill that passes like an electric current through their body as they come in close proximity with the opposite sex means—they know very little about the operation of Nature's laws—but the man with whom they dance know a great deal about these things, and he purposely plans oftentimes to bring about the closest proximity possible of the bodies that he may ultimately accomplish his devilish desires. And I want to tell you right here, that it is absolutely impossible for a pure, sweet girl to go upon the ball-room floor in your select social dances, or in the public ball, or in the contemptible free-for-all, but that she will sooner or later run into the embrace of some person who is an adulterous, licentious reprobate—and I challenge you mothers and fathers to disprove this statement.

The young woman who cares the most about herself and her future will reserve her kisses and embraces for her prince when he comes to lead her to the marriage altar. The young man who cares most for himself prefers when he comes to the altar with his bride that she bear no stale, unholy embraces nor frost-bitten kisses—but that she be as sweet and pure as the morning dew. The young woman who has no compunctions of conscience about distributing her embraces broadcast throughout the community, having her lips known to all the "gay set" of boys as "the garden where the kisses grow"—may not be at home when you get back from your day's work some time, neighbor, if she becomes your wife. You need not think that you have to dance to be graceful. Grace in the feet is not worth as much as grace in the head. Where the feet are larger than the head perhaps it is better to educate the heels and let them dance. Talk about being graceful—I didn't go to the ball-room for my little wife—and she makes most of you little dancing set look like a wheelbarrow in an automobile parade—even though she is turning just a bit gray. If some of you dear, sweet, innocent girls keep fooling with these little cigarette-sucking, wasp-wasted, spider-legged, dancing dudes, you will do no better than your mother did when she got married.

If you will sit down and think seriously about the position assumed in the dance—and the close proximity of the two bodies—the symmetrical easy movement of the body to the entrancing strain of the dreamy waltz—and then seriously enquire what other place under the whole blue canopy of heaven is the same position permissible—in God's name, mother, if you do not wake up to a full realization of the danger of your sweet girl—it is simply because your head is like the empty sack—nothing there to appeal to. I know these words are hard and bitter, but there are two antagonistic forces grappling in the terrible conflict between right and wrong in our town, and if the Church does not lift up her hands in holy horror, and if the "watchman on the wall" does not cry aloud—what will become of our people?

No normal man, or woman, either, can embrace each other and spend an evening in the dance without having some evil thoughts arise. The man who says he can, is one of the three things—he is not a normal man—he is more than a man, an angel—or else he is the biggest liar in the county. Modern society, unfortunately, imposes conditions that make sexual excitement without gratification very common. The methods of dancing at present in vogue are responsible for this to a certain degree. The intimate contact of the sexes that dancing permits, associated with the emotional effect of music, cannot fail to produce more or less emotion in certain susceptible individuals.

Pure-mindedness is not always a safeguard, for physiologic law is likely to be more potent than psychic purity. The surest safeguard is to never allow yourself to be found in the way of temptation.

I went down to preach in one of Birmingham's theaters one Sunday afternoon, and a man said to me, "A terrible thing occurred in the city last night." Asked what it was, he told me that a girl had committed suicide in a hotel some time between midnight and morning. He said the girl had come in from the country and had secured a place in one of the big department stores. She formed the habit of attending the Saturday night dances at East Lake. She attended the dance there the night before—and her partner insisted that she take a little wine. The rest of the sad story never will be fully known, but there was enough known to reach the conclusion that some one had gone home with her from the dance, and when she learned the awful truth of what she had really done she secured poison somewhere during the night and took her young life.

After preaching I went down to the undertaking parlors and looked upon the cold body of that young woman. She was about twenty years of age, was probably five feet six and a half inches in height, would weigh one hundred and forty pounds, and was finely proportioned; but there she lay, a human sacrifice slaughtered on the altar of lust and licentiousness in order that the dance might prosper! An offer of reward for the arrest of the guilty wretch who wrought her ruin resulted in failure and she has gone to meet her God, while the low-down scoundrel is still at large and seeking the ruination of other young girls.

It is enough to make the angels weep tears of blood to see a person join the Church—assume the vows—and then deliberately turn traitor and so far lose his respect for his or her God—and so far lose respect for those who love the Church and love God and love purity—to go and take part in a form of amusement that the Church of all ages has stood four square against with all its heart. I just wouldn't do it. I would be ashamed of it if I were you. The very idea of doing such a thing when you know that your very best and dearest friends are pained and cut to the quick! Man—what are you thinking about?

WILL THE COMMISSION AGREE?

By Rev. Wm. W. Woollard.

The Commissions on Unification are to meet in joint session at Savannah, January 23, the day before this issue of the Advocate goes to press. Will they reach an agreement? Millions of anxious hearts in America and throughout the world are waiting with great expectancy the answer to this question. Every devout heart which throbs with the beats of the heart of the Savior is praying that an agreement may be reached which, inspired by the Holy Spirit, shall have the ratification of the Methodist Churches and meet the approval of the Methodist peoples. To that end let us all be very earnest and importunate in our praying.

The one great question, most difficult of solution, appears to be the relation of the Negro to the reorganized Church. Of course, there are other differences, probably not easy of adjustment; but there are few informed people who doubt a happy unification if the problem of the status of the Negro is satisfactorily solved. Upon this question, in its economic and sociological bearings, the Churches, North and South, appear to be farthest apart. Should an agreement come simply by compromise, it must likely would be worth little. But should the exigencies of the case, forcing a re-examination of all the facts and conditions of the question, bring an agreement by conviction, then this concurrence of the efficient representatives of the North and the South would challenge the whole nation to re-examine the question in the light of their findings. And if, upon this question of widest divergence, they can come to an agreement on the best solution, surely they can agree on all other differences. It is in reference to this problem that I ask space in the New Orleans Christian Advocate.

There are four different processes which are offered for solving the problem. The first is that agreed on by the Joint Commission at Chattanooga and reported to the General Conferences. It is in the following words: "We suggest that the colored membership of the Methodist Episcopal Church, the Methodist Protestant Church and other such organizations of colored Methodists as may enter into agreement with them may be constituted and recognized as one of the Quadrennial or Jurisdictional Conferences of the proposed reorganization." In other words, the colored membership was to be organized into a Regional Conference co-ordinate with the other Regional Conferences, to have their Bishops preside in turn over the General Conference, and their delegation to share equally with other Regional delegations in all General Conference legislation. To this agreement our General Conference at Oklahoma City refused to give assent. They did not, nor does the great body of our Church, believe such a solution would be best for the Negro, or best for the white man. It does not adequately preserve race consciousness, or help to develop racial initiative and independence. It would almost surely cause racial antagonisms, especially here in the South. The Methodist Episcopal Church, South, would not and should not agree to such a solution. The General Conference of our sister Church, at Saratoga, did accept this suggestion of the Joint Commission. It was in keeping with the policy she had pursued for years, except that of having Negro Bishops. But latterly our brethren of the North, upon a re-examination of the whole question, appear to be swinging away from this extreme position and to be coming toward our viewpoint of the Negro question. It is my deliberate judgment that unification on this basis is impossible of accomplishment, and that it would be more hurtful than the present unhappy separation.

A second solution of the Negro problem in the unification of Methodism proposes a unification of only white Methodists. It asks that the colored people be set off into an absolutely separate Church; with which, however, the reorganized Church is to have fraternal relations, and over it a sort of benevolent suzerainty. Quite a few think this was the meaning of the action of our General Conference, when, at Oklahoma City, it said: "However, we recommend that the colored members of the various Methodist bodies be formed into an independent organization, holding fraternal relations with the reorganized and united Church." Whatever may have been in the mind of the writer of this recommendation, it is certain that many of those who voted for it understood it to mean an absolutely separate and independent Church for the Negro. Some, with extreme views, went so far as to say that this recommendation was the General Conference's "ultimatum," requiring a separate and independent Church for the Negro. But our Commissioners properly declined to put so narrow a meaning on it. They declared that they understood the "basic principle" in the recommendation to mean: "That the colored membership of the Methodist Episcopal Church and such other Churches as may elect to take part in the re-organization of American Methodism are to be dealt with in such manner as shall give full recognition to race consciousness, while at the same time offering them the largest possible co-operation." Since the announcement of this interpretation, "by unanimous vote" of the Southern Commissioners, we have heard no more of the "ultimatum."

It is true our Church has been dealing, since 1870, with the colored people in a separate and independent Church, the Colored Methodist Episcopal Church. But how many of our brethren, both of the laity and ministry, know that this was not the plan of our fathers for caring for the colored people of our Church, who were just out of slavery, blind, helpless, ignorant—

"An infant crying in the night,
An infant crying for the light,
And with no language but a cry?"

This plan to set the Negro off into a separate Church was not born in the heart or brain of a Southern white man. No, indeed! In 1866, at our General Conference at New Orleans, our fathers planned to carry "the white man's burden" in an entirely different way. The colored people were to remain in our Church to be taught by our preachers and the fittest who might be found amongst themselves, and other colored teachers and leaders as they developed. Could they have carried out this plan a different history would have been written of our Southland. The action of that General Conference is as follows:

"Question. What shall be done to promote the Religious Interests of the Colored People?

Answer. 1. Let our colored people be organized as separate pastoral charges, wherever they prefer it, and their numbers may justify it.

2. Let each pastoral charge of colored members have its own Quarterly Conference, composed of official members, as provided for in the Discipline.

3. Let colored persons be licensed to preach, and ordained deacons and elders, according to the Discipline, when, in the judgment of the Conference having jurisdiction in the case, they are deemed suitable persons for said office and order in the ministry.

4. The Bishops may form a district of colored charges, and appoint to it a colored presiding elder, when in his judgment the religious interests of the colored people require it.

5. When it is judged advisable by the College of Bishops, Annual Conferences of colored people may be organized, to be presided over by our Bishops.

6. When two or more Annual Conferences shall be formed, let our Bishops advise and assist them in organizing a separate General Coference jurisdiction for themselves, if they so desire, and the Bishops deem it expedient, in accordance with the Doctrines and Discipline of our Church, and bearing the same relation to the General Conference as the Annual Conferences bear to each other.

7. Let special attention be given to Sunday schools among the colored people." (See Discipline, 1866, p. 106.)

This was immediately after the war, the slaves just freed, and the spirit of Wm. Capers, only eleven years ascended, "the founder of the missions to the slaves" and the best of friends to the Negro, was still over the General Conference. What a pity it could not have been carried out! Had not an estrangement come between those who erstwhile had been friends—an estrangement both political and ecclesiastical, an estrangement that did not miss far being as well an irretrievable as disastrous tragedy, an estrangement which caused the Negro to doubt the friendship of the best friend he ever had, the white Southern Methodist preacher—the Negro to-day would be in our Church, vast numbers of them, according to this plan our fathers devised at New Orleans in 1866. They even invited the African Methodist Church to unite with our Church on this plan. (See Journal Gen. Conf., 1866, p. 73.) But it was not to be. Suspicions came. Alienation came. With them a train of woes. The Negro asked for an independent Church. Our fathers in 1870 were compelled to give it to him, or lose the remaining influence they had with him. But let it never be forgotten that the Methodist preachers of the General Conference of 1866 sincerely tried to keep the Negro in such close relation to them as to give him "the largest possible co-operation," while at the same time giving "full recognition of race consciousness."

These two possible solutions of the Negro question, the first being the co-ordinate Regional Conference for the colored people, on a parity with all other Regional Conferences, the second an absolutely separate and independent Church, are the extreme poles of the whole question. The first is the starting point, in the negotiations of the Church in the North; the second the starting point of the Church in the South. It is believed by many, very many, both North and South, that neither of these plans offer the best solution of the problem. I do not hesitate to affirm my belief that an agreement at Savannah on either of these plans would foredoom unification to inglorious defeat.

There are two other possible solutions. Either of them appears to offer a desirable settlement of the question. One of the two, the third of the list, is to form the Negroes into a Missionary Jurisdiction to be administered by the General Conference and its various Boards. The Bishops of the Missionary Jurisdiction would have no presidency of the General Conference, nor its delegations voting power. This Missionary Jurisdiction would look ultimately toward a separate General Conference of its own, under the one Church Constitution. This is the plan for all Missionary Jurisdictions, thus at the beginning giving all possible co-operation and at the same time giving full expression to racial and national consciousness, yet because of the missionary character of the work the parent Conference would give general direction to the Jurisdiction. It assumes that the Negro is not yet ready for the leadership of his own race. It is a plan which would not likely commend itself to the colored Methodists.

The other plan, the fourth of the list, and the last, is for all colored Methodists to unite in the re-organized Church, with the same Doctrines and Discipline, under the same Church Constitution, and have all their own racial Conferences. Into this racial Jurisdiction the present membership of the Methodist Episcopal Church would go, and with it all others who are willing to unite. The Negro would have his own General Conference and his own Bishops, as the white man would have his own Conferences and Bishops. There would be no inter-mixing in any Conference. This plan would conserve the racial integrity of each people, adequately provided for racial initiative and development, and at the same time call for mutual helpfulness. Once a year, or as often as conditions required it, in the Bishops' meetings, in the Boards' meetings, in the Judicial Council, the administrative and judicial organs of the whole Church, the leaders of both races would come together for conferring on the larger questions of the re-organized Church. Each race through its leaders thus in touch, would get the view-point of the other, and working on matters held in common, would come to understand each other better.

While the General Conference of 1866 did not work out the details of its plan for caring for the colored membership, it appears that in its fundamental outlines this last plan for unification is largely that of our fathers at New Orleans.

It is unnecessary, until the Joint Commission at Savannah has reported, to discuss in all the details the bearings of these two last plans. Either of them appears to offer a practicable and acceptable solution of the great problem. If some form of either of them is agreed upon there will be time enough to discuss it fully, that the Church may clearly understand what the issue is. If an agreement is not reached on either of these plans, to discuss them fully now would be wasted space. In that event most likely no agreement will be reached at Savannah.

But again, Will the Commission agree? I confidently believe it will. That the agreement may be the best possible and that it may inure to the peace and prosperity of our great Zion, and the Kingdom of God, let us all pray.

Oxford, Miss.

A committee of the Federal Council of Churches, co-operating with similar committees of Catholics and Jews, will in the future examine and nominate applicants for chaplaincies in the Army and Navy. Every applicant, so it is stated, will be required to preach a trial sermon at some church in Washington where this committee can hear him.

THE NORTHERN SPIRIT AND WAY.

Two Striking Illustrations of How Northern Methodists Feel Toward the Negroes.

In the course of the long-drawn-out discussion of the Unification issue, the claim has frequently been made by extreme unionists of both the North and the South that there is practically no difference in the attitude of the two Churches toward the Negroes. We have frequently had occasion to combat this academic view and have tried to make it clear that it was entirely out of harmony with the real facts. In support of our position, we desire to submit two articles which have lately come to our notice. The first is taken from the Raleigh (N. C.) Christian Advocate of January 10, and is a complete answer to the affirmation that the practice of the Northern Church in dealing with its colored members is substantially the same as that of the Church, South, toward the Colored Methodists with which it has connection. The truth is, a Negro in the Northern Methodist Church has all the rights and privileges that any member has if he chooses to exercise them, which he does in many instances. The article from the Raleigh Christian Advocate follows:

"A View of Unification.

"A Southern man who has moved to New York to live writes us of his Church experience with reference to the Negro. This man is a native North Carolinian, but has lived in New York for twenty-five years. He is an official member of his Church. He says: 'About three months ago several Negro women commenced attending our Sunday night services. They brought crying babies and small children with them and sat directly behind myself and family, which was very objectionable to us. Finally one Sunday night there was only one present, and she occupied the same seat until a few moments before the services commenced; then she got up and came forward and took a seat beside my wife and myself. We moved our seat. When we got home, I wrote our pastor the facts in the case, and offered my resignation, if the Negroes were going to continue to come and sit by us. He informed me that the Negroes would continue to come. I then told him if the Negroes were to continue to come, I would quit. So he chose the Negroes and thereby excluded my wife and daughter and myself. We are now without a Church home.'

"That this recital of facts illustrates the attitude of the Methodist Episcopal Church (North) towards the Negro can hardly be disputed. They would have regarded any interference with the promiscuous mixing of the races in the congregation an unjustifiable exhibition of race hatred, and our readers well know what the attitude of Southern people generally to that sort of a mixture would be. Some different adjustment of the Negro must he made if unification is to become a fact."

The second article referred to is taken from the New York Christian Advocate of Decemher 27, 1917, and was written by Secretary I. Garland Penn, who is a Negro, a high official in the Northern Methodist Church, and a member of the Unification Commission. It shows conclusively that he thinks the education of the Negroes and their elevation in a material way ought as a matter of sheer justice to bring to them also social equality and social intermingling with white people, and the fact that the leading paper of the Northern Methodists without a word of dissent published this communication, giving it a promlnent place in its columns, clearly indicates that the Methodist Episcopal Church is largely in sympathy with this view. Here is the article:

"A Negro Doctor on the Pullman.

"A Negro physician, trained in a Methodist medical college, boarded a Pullman car in a certain city near the Mason-Dixon line en route to his home in a Southern State.

"On entering the car he was the object of conversation and ridicule by a few Anglo-Saxons from John C. Calhoun's State, who were not accustomed to riding with the Negro. Much was said by the South Carolinians about the Negro for his benefit, but the Negro was of the sort to grin and bear it, trusting that the Lord would take him through, as so often colored men must do under similar circumstances. The limited sped along at a fifty-mile-an-hour gait, when all at once, a hundred miles down the line, one of the South Carolinians was taken seriously ill with acute indigestion and the conversation and ridicule of the Negro ceased and turned to inquiry if a physician was aboard the train. When every white passenger aboard had been questioned the South Carolinian reached the Negro and blurted out, 'Are you a preacher or a doctor?' The Negro answered politely, but assuringly, 'I am a physician and surgeon.' 'Well,' said the South Carolinian, 'help this man.'

"The Negro physician said: 'Gentlemen, your conversation when I first came into the car put me in a very embarrassing position. I have been anxious to serve your friend, but afraid to offer my services. It will please me to do all I can.' The Negro physician proceeded to relieve the sufferer, see that he was taken to his berth and ministered to during the night. 'No charge,' was the reply made when money was offered, the physician remarking that in this case he was the Samaritan. The next morning the patient was in good condition, barring weakness, the party happy and the relieved one thankful.

"The Negro physician, having been up during the night, slept rather late the next morning, but the party, even though speeding through North Carolinia, wanted the Negro physician to breakfast with them in the dining car on the first call. The South Carolinian went to his herth, got the doctor up and took him into the diner and ate with him. The doctor ate a 'square meal forty miles long,' so he says, and never had a better time in all his life. Thus esscntials to progress possessed and demonstrated and waiting one's opportunity win non-essentials. Man's extremity is God's opportunity.

"In the case of this Negro, he would not even have passed for a dressed-up Negro, hut a 'darky,' with those South Carolinians if he had not the essentials and a chance to demonstrate them. The great work Methodism has done and is doing for the Negro is to give him the essentials, so that when the opportunity comes he is equal to it. Our schools give head, heart and hand culture, which are the essentials, and the essentials will win in due course, even in the South. And this writer believes that God in His good time Is going to furnish the opportunity."

Yet in spite of these clear disclosures as to what the spirit and aims of the Northern Methodist Church are the impractical doctrinaires, of whom there are a considerable number on our Commission, are proposing to place the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and all its sacred interests under its domination and control, as would be incvltable under the present Regional Conference arrangement. Could any experiment be more hazardous and unwise, and fraught with graver possibilities for evil to Southern Methodism and the entire population of the Southern States? Is it not perfectly clear that unless the Northern Methodists will really change their policy and agree to place the Negrocs in a separate and distinct Church, the only sensible and safe thing for our people to do is (while bearing themselves toward them in a Christian and fraternal manner) to refuse to enter into any organic relations with them?

"A HALF CENTURY OF BLESSEDNESS."

Fifty years ago from the Christmas Eve just past (December 24, 1917), John Smith Felder led his bride, Julia Huffman, to the sacred altar of matrimony. For these fifty summers their hearts have beat in unison. Though time has wrought its changes, yet—"blest be the tie that binds"—their joy has grown richer and fuller, as they, side by side, have walked down toward the resurrection sun.

Early in life they united with the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and with strong faith in Christ and a beautiful consecration they have been "channels of blessings" all along the way.

Of this union the following children were born: Mrs. Emma Gunnell, Attorney L. W. Felder, Mrs. Mary Garner, Mrs. N. N. Alford, Geo. W. Felder, Mrs. Eva Douglas, Mrs. Beulah Lenoir, and Mrs. Ruth Lewls. There are twenty-one grandchlldren and one great-grandchild.

The children all being present, and the invlted friends having arrived, we were assembled in the room where a service long to be remembered was conducted. Rev. A. B. Barry, the pastor led in prayer, and Brother Luther in well chosen words paid an appreciative and tender trihute to the godly lives of father and mother, contending that the influences of the family altar erected around the parental fireside were the most potent in the lives of the children to-day. The children presented the father with a gold-headed umhrella and the mother with a lovely purse; and the daughter, Mrs. G. W. Felder, affectionately read an appropriate poem, which closed this part of the program.

The golden-wedding dinner was announced, and Rev. J. L. Decell returned thanks and invoked blessings upon the happy young couple of a half-century's walk, who, at their own cupboard, were surrounded with children and friends. Every one enjoyed the feast of delicious viands that were placed on the wedding board. Late in the afternoon, when the clouds of the morning had dispersed and it seemed the sun would add charm to the happy day by shedding its rays of golden luster on the horizon, the guests wended their way home, thankful for the Savior's birth and the joy of Christian fellowship.

AN INQUIRY.

Dear Doctor Meck: In view of the fact that the ultra-unionist brethren claim to be moving upon such a high spiritual plane, how do you account for their intolerance and uncharitableness? Some of them boldly declare that God is on their side, and that it is a sin to oppose the uniting of the two Methodist Churches. Furthermore, having made up their own minds that such a result is the will of the Lord, they, as have the editors of Zion's Herald and the Nashville Advocate, for instance, insist that it is the duty of all Christians to pray that it may speedily come to pass. Since it can not be definitely known what the purpose of God is in such a case, do you not think that It would be more reverential and proper to pray that the divine will may be done in the matter, whatever it may be? A SOUTHERN METHODIST.

(Bishop Hoss, than whom we know no greater Christian, suggested in the New Orleans Advocate some months ago that it might be better in our prayers to let the Lord have a somewhat freer hand in the working out of his purposes.—Editor of the Advocate.)

No plan for the betterment of mankind which does not make perfection of character the primary aim is likely to be of permanent good. However well devised, it will break down by its inherent defect.—Author unknown.

WAR CONDITIONS
— REFLECTED IN —
TELEPHONE SERVICE.

Among the unforeseen conditions which the war has imposed upon us is the necessity of practically suspending the commercial development of our business.

Confronted with an unusual increase in the use of the telephone and a strong demand for new and additional service, we cannot accept or fill orders except subject to practically an indefinite delay.

This situation is due to the importance of conserving our supplies so that the government's requirements may be promptly met by giving the War Department service anywhere and at any time the request is made.

Our Advocate Campaign.

The Advocate campaign in the Mississippi Conference will embrace two weeks—extending from Feb. 3 to Feb. 17, inclusive. Are you getting ready to make a success of the campaign?

This is "Advocate Week" in the Louisiana and North Mississippi Conferences. The weather is unfavorable, but it is to be hoped that the brethren will push the canvass as actively as possible. It need not be limited to a week, but may be continued as long as may be necessary to get the desired results.

Rev. A. S. Lutz, presiding elder of the Monroe (La.) District, says: "I will do all I can to make 'Advocate Week' a success." Thank you, Brother Lutz.

Rev. Briscoe Carter, the presiding elder, thus addresses the pastors in the Alexandria District: "The brethren will please not fail to observe 'Advocate Week,' or month, whichever it takes to secure the number of subscribers allotted to us. Let's try to go 'over the top,' no matter what."

Rev. T. H. Lipscomb, presiding elder of the Aberdeen District, has sent out to his pastors the following message: "This request for 205 new subscribers from a district embracing about 10,000 members at a time when money was never before so plentiful among large numbers of our people and the needs of the Advocate were never greater, you recognize as not unreasonable; so surely can we bring this to pass by every man's doing his bit in hs own field, making a diligent and persistent canvass during the days set apart. I should be glad to hear from you as to the outcome of your labors in behalf of this cause, vital to the spiritual welfare and unity of our churches and people; and I trust that success may crown our efforts and the goal be reached."

MRS. J. F. PATTERSON DEAD.

Dear Dr. Meek: As the pastor of the family of Rev. J. F. Patterson, I send you the following item for the Advocate:

Mrs. J. F. Patterson, wife of Rev. J. F. Patterson, a superannuate of the Louisiana Conference, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. H. P. Myers, 3816 Westminster Street, El Paso, Texas, on Wednesday afternoon, January 16. Her death was due to paralysis. Brother Patterson sat by her side for two days and nights waiting for the angels to come. They had been married fifty years and a day. They had four married children, all living in El Paso, and nine grandchildren.

The funeral was held January 17. It was conducted by Rev. C. K. Campbell, her pastor, assisted by Rev. Percy Knickerbocker, a life-long friend of the family, and Rev. H. M. Smith, presiding elder of the El Paso District.

STATUARY CHRISTIANS.

It is said that when Oliver Cromwell visited Yorkminster Cathedral, in England, he saw in one of the apartments statues of the twelve apostles in silver. "Who are those fellows there?" he asked, as he approached them. On being informed, he replied: "Take them down and let them go about doing good." They were taken down and melted and put into his treasury. There are many who, like these silver apostles, are too stiff for service in much that the Lord's work requires. Some are too nice, some too formal, some disinclined. They stand or sit stiff and stately in their dignity, and sinners go unsaved and believers uncomforted, unhelped, for all the effort they will make to lift a hand to serve them. They need to be melted down and sent about doing good. Statuary Christians, however burnished and elegant they may be, are of little real service to the cause of Jesus.—Bible Teacher.

REPORT OF THE COMMITTTEE ON FINDINGS.

(Adopted at the recent meeting of the Conference of Missionary Secretaries of the M. E. Church, South, in Nashville, Tenn.)

We are gratified by the encouraging report of the progress made in most of the Conferences. The Virginia Conference still is far in the lead in the work being done. With most Conferences hardly more than a start has been made on what the Church should do for the cause of missions. Our purpose is to push the cause of missions, but not to the detriment of other church claims Where gratifying progress has been made in the cause of missions we are glad to note that a corresponding advance has been made on these other claims. We affirm anew our purpose to do all possible to secure the payment in full of all assessments, but since the assessment for missions represents neither the ability of the Church on the one hand to pay, nor, on the other hand, the work to be done, we again stress the importance of specials. Since one-fourth of the foreign work of the General Board is being carried on through the money received from specials, the Church that stops at the assessment says to the General Board, "We are not only opposed to any advance, but are in favor of the recall of one-fourth of our force in the foreign field."

War Work.

The world war is the one stupendous fact that we are all called upon to face to-day. We are gratified by the position our Church has taken and the support it has given the Government in this fight for justice and righteousness in the earth. We rejoice that our Church is giving in men, money and moral influence its best to make the world safe for democracy. We commend the work done by our Church for the soldiers through the chaplains, Y. M. C. A. secretaries, and camp pastors, furnished by our denominations. The troops in cantonments within our borders places upon us an obligation and furnishes an opportunity of unparalleled magnitude, not only to the soldiers themselves, but to the communities in which the camps are located, and especially the young women of these communties, the Church must minister with fidelity, tact and vigor.

Home Missions.

There is a crying need for additional Home Mission Specials.

The assessment for Home Missions is not large enough to meet the legitimate and urgent demands which are made upon our Home Mission funds. The needs of our Home Mission Department now require not less than $200,000. Just as specials are needed to carry on the Foreign Mission work, so are they just as much needed to meet the urgent need in the home field. We heartily recommend that the following Home Mission Specials be pressed by the Conference Secretaries and Boards and raised by the churches during the year.

1. $7000 balance on the $17,000 for the Mexican Institute building, San Antonio.
2. Twenty-five scholarships of $100 each to support boys in the Mexican Institute.
3. $2500 to erect combination Sunday school building and parsonage for Mexican church, San Antonio.
4. $1000 for Textile industrial institute, Spartanburg, S. C.
5. $1250 balance on the $5000 for San Juan Cuban Church, Texas.
6. $2500 emergency in drought-stricken section of West Texas.
7. $2500 emergency in drought-stricken section of Northwest Texas.
8. $5000 for Mission Church in San Francisco, the Church Extension Board giving a similar amount.

We would emphasize the importance of our Conference Boards assuming in a more definite and comprehending way the responsibility for the Christianization and Americanization of the foreign-speaking peoples within their territories. We recognize the importance of churches specifically for the foreigners wherein their own language will be used, but we believe the time has come for the preaching in English or through interpreters by the American pastors to all the foreign peoples. We believe that the American pastor should be brought to undertake this great work and that at the earliest possible date. In connection with such work classes for the study of the English language should be maintained in all communities of foreign-born peoples.

The Country Church.

Our Church has done in the past, and is doing to-day, a great work in the country, but two serious facts we must face. In the first place, some of our country preachers and supplies are unable to meet the ever-enlarging demands of the country churches. Through institutes and by any other means available, we must exert our utmost to improve this situation. In the second place, many of these pastors, whether competent or incompetent, are compelled to live upon utterly inadequate salaries. The increased cost of living has gone forward by leaps and bounds. The advancement of salaries has not by any means kept pace with this increased cost of living. In most places the country charges are more able than ever before to pay living salaries, and every effort must be made to see that this act of wisdom and justice is accomplished.

The Centennial of Methodist Missions.

April, 1919, is the Centennial of American Methodist missions. In April, 1819, a small group of far-seeing men in the Methodist Church organized a Methodist Missionary and Bible Society. The General Conference of 1890 gave this organization official standing. Through a hundred years this organization has grown in plans, in outlook, in gifts and in service to all of the nations of the earth.

The time of this celebration of the Centennial seems from every point to be providential.

The two great Methodisms of America, working in a Joint Commission, representing both Churches, have plans well on foot to celebrate in a worthy way this greatest event in the history of American Methodism. The General Board of Missions and the College of Bishops of our Church have most heartily commended this plan of Southern Methodism.

The Centennial Commission has been appointed, of which Bishop James Atkins is Chairman, and this Commission is giving itself most earnestly and prayerfully to working out plans that will not only be acceptable to the entire Church, but will lift Southern Methodism to a higher standard of spiritual life, of stewardship, and give her a far more commanding place in the world-wide evangelism. With the Methodist Episcopal Church, we are working jointly, first, in the Spiritual Resource Department; second, in Stewardship and Tithing, and, third, in Joint Celebration.

Each Church will work through its own organization and officials, according to its own plans in carrying out the work committed to them through the Centennial movement. The Centenary Commission proposes to work through the Conference organization of Conference mission boards, the Conference Missionary Secretary, the Conference Board of Lay Activities, the Conference lay leader, district lay leader, and charge lay leader, and to seek the hearty co-operation from the beginning of this Centenary program of every pastor and presiding elder throughout the bounds of our Church.

It is a matter of inspiration to those in charge of this Centennial celebration of our Church that thus far they have had the most sympathetic expression and co-operation of all of the elements of the entire Church.

Concerning this Centennial celebration there is no limit of opportunity. It presents to the Methodism of America the greatest opportunity which has ever come to her in all of her glorious history to do a great and worthy thing for the kingdom of God.

We, therefore, as the Conference Missionary Secretaries of the various Annual Conferences of the Southern Methodist Church assembled in Nashville in the annual meeting of the Missionary Secretaries, do most heartily commend this Missionary Centenary and pledge to the Commis-

The Great Battle

WANTS INTOXICANTS OUT OF RAPIDES PARISH.

The following press dispatch is taken from the New Orleans Times-Picayune:

Alexandria, La., Jan. 14.—At a meeting of the Rapides Parish Police Jury this afternoon, General I. A. Haynes, commander at Camp Beauregard, appeared before the body and made an address in which he advocated the suppression of liquor in Rapides Parish with reference to the soldiers at Camp Beauregard.

General Haynes told of the bad effects that liquor was having on the troops, and asserted that it was impossible to train them properly as long as they could get liquor. He read a list, giving the number of arrests made from October 15, 1917, to January 1, 1918, of men having liquor and creating disturbances. He said the list included a number of officers as well as enlisted men. He said:

"I want to win the war. The efficiency or inefficiency of one division might be responsible for failure. I don't want the Thirty-ninth Division to be that one. Unless this thing is stopped the responsibility will rest upon you people of Rapides. I know you know that I am honest in what I say and that I am not fanatical. I want to save these boys.

"It shall not be on my conscience when these boys 'go over the top' and some of them are killed on account of inefficiency. There is not a man of you here who has made the sacrifice that these boys in olive drab at Camp Beauregard have made. You are not doing your duty if you let liquor stay here. The question of liquor in Rapides Parish is a national one. I want liquor suppressed so that I can make soldiers of these boys."

A large delegation of leading citizens of Alexandria attended the meeting of the jury.

DAVIS, VERSUS THE TIMES-DISPATCH.

Dr. James Cannon, Jr., in the Baltimore and Richmond Christian Advocate.

It was an entirely laudable purpose of prohibition workers of Virginia that Virginia should be the first to ratify the National Constitutional Prohibition Amendment. But the Legislature of Mississippi met before the General Assembly of Virginia convened, and in fifteen minutes after the Amendment was presented in Governor Bilbo's message to the Legislature both Houses had ratified the Prohibition Amendment.

Inasmuch as Virginia could not be the first State to ratify it, it is exceedingly interesting to note that the first State to ratify is Mississippi, the home of Jefferson Davis, the President of the Confederacy, and one of the ablest expounders of the great doctrine of State sovereignty. Certainly it is quite absurd to suppose that the people of the State of Mississippi are less zealous for a proper interpretation of the doctrine of State's Rights than is the Managing Editor of the Times-Dispatch, who was a soldier in the Northern Army in the War Between the States. Why this great zeal on the part of this gentleman now for the doctrine of State sovereignty fifty years after the War, in which he fought to deny to the South the full exercise of that great right?

Our people should fully understand the real issue involved. It is not whether Virginia shall impose her will upon the people of a so-called "wet" State, but whether the liquor traffic in a "wet" State shall be allowed to nullify the will of a great Prohibition majority of the United States. If the Northern-born editor of the Times-Dispatch thought that the National Constitution should be amended to forbid the people of Mississippi or Virginia to hold slaves, even though the holding of these slaves did not affect the personal peace and security of the people of the Northern States, and even though the abolition of slavery resulted in the loss of millions of dollars' worth of property by the Southern planters, how can he now turn about and say that the maintenance of saloons in New York, or Baltimore, or Philadelphia, or Cincinnati should not be prohibited by Constitutional Amendment, when as every one knows the liquor traffic in said cities is a traveling public nuisance, which does affect the peace and security of people in the "dry" States.

A NOTE FROM DR. HUNT.

Dear Dr. Meek: I have been greatly interested in what Dr. Cooper has recently said about plans to help educate young preachers. I have read with special interest also the article of Brother C. L. Ray. My eye also fails on this sentence from Dr. Steel: "Public school education is a failure when it comes to morals."

Whether all agree fully with Dr. Steel or not, it is certain that the public schools are not turning out men and women for the prayer-meetings and the pulpits. There is need of Church colleges, but there is equally urgent need of Church schools that deal with young people before they go to college. A serious mistake most of our leaders in the Church are making now is to claim that the college is the chief concern of the Church educationally. Too many young people are being wrecked or becoming secularized before the college age is reached. There is a special need of proper environment and training in youth. If we take care of the schools that fit boys and girls for college, more of these boys and girls will go to college, and they will do better after they have gone. We must take care of our preparatory schools, and especially the training schools.

I doubt if there is an institution in the State that is fraught with greater possibilities for good than the Mississippi Conference Training School, which is mentioned in Brother Ray's letter. It already has a fruitage by which it may be judged. Yet my heart bleeds when I think of how much more we could be accomplishing here with proper interest and equipment. What we are doing is a child's part, rather than a man's part. We ought to have five hundred boys and girls here all the time in training for Christian activity and getting ready for the higher work in college. We are gaining a little now toward improvements, but it is too slow. If facts do not show that this institution has done more for the Church than any other institution in the State in proportion to what the Church has done for it, then I am silent.

We must have increased dormitory facilities before another session. We can not operate Brother Ray's plan successfully without a dormitory first. With the dormitory provided, we can start on the other arrangement.

Fraternally,

ROLFE HUNT,
President Miss. Conf. Training School.

Montrose, Miss.

LOYALTY AMONG THE LAITY.

By Hon. W. A. Belk.

At the beginning of this new Conference year in North Mississippi, I beg to make a few observations along the above line, which I trust may prove beneficial.

I have observed, or think I have observed, within the past few years a disposition on the part of too many of us laymen to expect the new preacher to stop and take the time and the pains to coddle us and rub us down gently and cater to us somewhat before he begins his work. And even after his work is duly entered upon I fear too many of us expect him rather to nurse us and cajole us and perhaps pet us as the year's work rolls along. I fear that too many of us are rather anxious to know "which shall be first" in the visitations and attentions of the new pastor when he arrives and during the entire work. I fear that some of us are spoiled along that line. We expect the pastor to be partial to us, and if he is not, we are prone to sulk and pout about it. Am I right? Will any pastor who by chance reads this say that I am not right?

In my humble judgment, the prime business of the pastor is not to stop and rub down any member of his church. Our very loyalty should make such steps entirely unnecessary. The general should not have to quell any mutiny in a loyal bunch of soldiers. He had a right, when he assumed command of the men, to suppose that their loyalty had been tested long ago, and that he was only required to lead them in the attack upon the common enemy. So a pastor has a right to expect his church members to be loyal without being petted. His duty and their duty is to "find the lost sheep." Christ says that he came into the world "to save that which was lost." Our Church vows taken long ago should be sufficient proof to the new pastor, or to the old one, that we are ready to help him find the "lost coin." The whole scheme of our work, I fear, is too often crippled and marred because of the fact that the pastor, as our leader, spends too much time and talent in rounding up his members and pacifying them. That is not his prime work. Yonder is a sinner about to go headlong over the precipice. The preacher's duty, assisted by the members, is to go save that sinner before it is too late. There is more joy in heaven over one sinner that repenteth than over ninety and nine that need no repentance, so the Good Book tells us.

The fact that the pastor should not spend too much time coddling his members does not argue that they are at all neglected. The woman did not forget the other nine pieces of silver simply because she went to search for the lost one. The difference was that the ONE was lost and must be found and the other nine were NOT lost. They retained their intrinsic value just the same, and let it be emphasized that so did the lost coin. It was just as valuable while lost as beforehand. It was therefore worth searching for. The lost sinner's soul is just as precious while lost as when found. The lost sheep was just as valuable in itself intrinsically when lost as when found. The church member is not neglected, but rather trusted and given an opportunity to do something when his pastor asks him and expects him to come right square up to his help in "seeking the lost." His pastor and his church have a right to expect his help. He promised it when he took his vows.

Let every pastor spend less time in trying to "pacify" any spoiled members which he may have, and let every member be willing and ready and anxious to throw his strength to his pastor, as the leader, and together go out in the "highways and the byways" and there "seek the lost" until they are found. That is the prime duty of the pastor and of the church.

Holly Springs, Miss.

TO THE PREACHERS AND MEMBERS OF THE MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

My Dear Fellow-workers: It gives me great pleasure to say to you that for the past ten years I have been President of the Joint Board of Finance, and that during that time we have paid every claimant in full. Sometimes we have had to borrow money, but I could not afford to let the amount come up short. We borrowed $1200 for the year 1916. We started into the year 1917 with this deficit. In order to pay the first and second quarters of 1917, your Board borrowed $2500. We paid interest on these loans to the amount of $150. Your Board, however, has been able to pay all its indebtedness. We do not owe a dollar to any one. Now let me urge every pastor and the members of the churches to take without delay the collection for this worthy cause. Help us to pay these worthy ones by March 1. We can do this if we will try. The Jackson District led in this noble cause last year, and we propose to keep it ahead.

J. M. MORSE,
President Joint Board of Finance.

Jackson, Miss.

"Peace does not mean a callous calm. Peace comes from adjustment, health of soul. Peace grows on the stalk of love, in the cluster of the other spiritual graces, 'joy, patience, gentleness, meekness, goodness, fidelity, self-control.' Peace is part of the Mosaic we call Christian character; a beatitude from the Holy Spirit's indwelling."

The Home Circle

HE CARES.

Marianne Farningham, in Christian World.

When shadows hang over the whole day long,
And my spirit is bowed with shame and wrong,
When I am not good, and the deeper shade
Of conscious sin makes my heart afraid,
And the busy world has too much to do
To stay in its course, to help me through,
And I long for a Savior—can it be
That the God of the universe cares for me?

O, wonderful story of deathless love!
Each child is dear to that heart above:
He fights for me when I cannot fight,
He comforts me in the gloom of night,
He lifts the burden, for he is strong,
He stills the sigh, and awakes the song;
The sorrow that bowed me down he bears,
And loves and pardons, because he cares!

Let all who are sad take heart again—
We are not alone in our hours of pain;
Our Father stoops from his throne above
To soothe and quiet us with his love;
He leaves us not, when the storm is high,
And we have safety, for he is nigh.
Can it be trouble which he doth share?
O, rest in peace, for the Lord will care.

A FISHER OF BOYS.

There was nothing that Chester Bolt liked better to do than fish. He had fished from babyhood. He had fished with a sapling, a string and a bent pin impaling a worm. Now he had a fine, jointed steel rod, a reel, and he used the most approved flies in the most approved manner. Moreover, he caught his fish.

It was Chester's great delight, after school, to hurry off to a lake on the outskirts of his village of Holcombe. He did not take other boys with him on these expeditions. They were clumsy. They rocked the boat. They thrashed the water with their lines. They talked loud, and even shouted and sang. No! the farther away the boys were, the better Chester liked it. He was very sure that fishing was a one-man job.

But Chester joined the Church. He was a very earnest boy, and joining the Church really meant consecrating his life to the service of Jesus Christ, who had done and was doing all things for him. He was not the boy to join the Church on the Sabbath and forget all about it on Monday.

It was the good custom of the minister, Dr. Bradford, to give a Bible motto to each person whom he received into the Church. These mottoes always fitted those to whom they were given, and as he gave Chester his a smile passed over the congregation, for the lad's ruling passion was well known. The motto was: "Come after me, and I will make you a fisher of men."

"A fisher of men!" Chester thought of that considerably as he held his rod out over the clear water of Walcott's Pond. He knew that it was said by Christ when he called his first disciples, and he knew what it meant—that they were to go out and win other disciples for the Master. But what did the minister mean, pray, by giving such a motto to him?

If it was the duty of Christian men to become fishers of men, why, it was the duty of a Christian boy to become a fisher of boys. Chester kept coming around to that conclusion, and was unable to get away from it.

But how? That was the question. And it was characteristic of the boy that as soon as he had decided that the thing ought to be done he set to work planning the right way to do it. It would have been easy to wait for Dr. Bradford to set him to work. It would have been easy to plead ignorance and inexperience.

But Chester was not a weakling or a coward.

"First, get your bait," Chester said to himself. "Fish are always hungry, but they are hungry for different things. If a fish wants a Parmachene Belle, it's no use dropping a Silver Doctor under his nose."

But after a little more thinking Chester corrected himself.

"No, first decide what fish you want to catch," he advised himself. "Can't decide what bait to use until you know what fish you are after."

So Chester ran over in his mind the boys he knew about. Which one should he fish for? There were all kinds of boys in Holcombe, as in all other villages, large or small. Should he seek out the bad boys, or the good boys that were not church members? Should he fish for the careless or the thoughtful? Should he go after the ugly or the agreeable? He found his mind turning continually to the worst boy in town, Rod Huntington. Everybody said that Rod was destined to State's prison. He was lazy, mean, good-for-nothing. He was always planning mischief, and getting other boys into it. It was known that he drank and gambled. Chester disliked him from his ragged hat to his dirty shoes. But he had to admit that no fish in all the Holcombe pond was harder to catch, and, therefore, he stoutly made up his mind to catch him.

"Now where do I want to land him?" Chester asked himself in his methodical way. "Of course, not in the Church right off; that is out of the question. Shall I try to get him into my Sabbath school class?"

Next, he had to decide on the bait. That was hardest of all. He remembered how once he had caught a fish unexpectedly with a perfectly bare hook. Rod might be that kind of fish. He would try him with a bare question.

So the next time Chester saw Rod he walked right up to him and asked, without leading up to it in any way: "Rod, won't you join my Sabbath school class?"

Rod looked as surprised as so lazy a boy was capable of looking. He stood with his mouth open, as if gasping for breath. At last he drawled out: "What d' you take me for? Think I'm a girl? Git out!"

Chester didn't stay to argue the matter, for it looked hopeless. Evidently his fish would not bite at a bare hook.

Well, what next? As our fisher thought the matter over he suddenly remembered the Sabbath school library. This collection of interesting books was his own special delight, and it did not occur to him that it might not be an equal joy to such a boy as Rod. So the next time he saw the young loafer he approached him and said: "We've a library at our Sabbath school, and if you'll join our class you can draw out a new book every week. Won't you?"

"Naw!" sputtered Rod, with all the disgust he could put into the word.

"Well, books aren't evidently the right bait," Chester was obliged to confess; and it was several days before he thought of pictures. A Sabbath school paper was given out in the school, and Chester didn't see how it could be resisted. "Stupid!" he exclaimed. "Why didn't I bait my hook with it at the start?"

Therefore he put a copy into his pocket, one with an especially bright picture right on the front page, and waited for a sight of Rod. "Doesn't that look interesting, Rod? Copy of that paper given you every week if you'll join my class. Better do it, Rod."

Rod looked at the picture carelessly, and then contemptuously tossed the paper back. "Nothin' doin'," he said. "No shootin', no nothin'. Milk an' water!"

As Chester walked off, crestfallen, he reflected that when Rod read at all he doubtless read the trashiest stuff imaginable, and had no taste for anything better. "More bait thrown away," said the fisherman.

Then one day he thought of his boat and his fishing rod. "My rod and reel!" he exclaimed. Chester was no half-way worker; when he went into an undertaking he went into it all over. Therefore, though it meant real sacrifice, he hunted up Rod and asked him: "Won't you go fishing with me to-day, Rod?"

At once the fish nibbled.

"May I use your rod an' reel?" he asked, eagerly.

"Yes," said Chester heartily, "you may take my steel rod and I'll take my old bamboo."

"Sure," said Rod. "Let's go right away."

Of course, that was only the beginning. Chester had his fish on the line!

Chester was more cautious this time, and did not once mention Sabbath school, much less church, all that long afternoon. He talked fish and fishing; and as he knew more about fishing than Rod, and as he owned the outfit which Rod was delightedly using, he roused in Rod a respect for himself that was very close to admiration. Moreover, when Chester saw how skilfully Rod fished, and how much good sense he showed about the management of the bait, he began to have a real liking for the lad. Chester got his fish on the line. Can you doubt that he landed it? Of course he did; such determination and fine purpose always win. Before the summer was over Rod was a member of Chester's Sabbath school class.

What that class and its noble teacher did for Rod would take a book to tell. It was the talk of all Holcombe at first. Rod was made over. He straightened up and he straightened out. He dropped his bad habits and he took on good ones. He came to be one of Chester's devoted friends, and when that happened, just a word from Chester led him into the Church of Jesus Christ.

That is the way Chester Bolt became a fisher of boys. He liked the sport, and baited his hook for many more boys after he had caught Rod. And now he is a man, and a splendid fisher for other men. Only the book of the recording angel can disclose how many souls he had led into the Kingdom. But through all these years of glorious service he has used no other method than those he used when, as a fisher for boys, he caught his first fish.—Christian Observer.

GENERAL WOOD'S WAY.

When General Leonard Wood was a small boy he was called up in the grammar class. The teacher said:

"Leonard, give me a sentence and we'll see if we can change it to the imperative mood."

"The horse draws the cart," said Leonard.

"Very good. Now change the sentence to an imperative."

"Get up!" said young Wood.

One reason why St. Paul acomplished so much was that he never tried to do anything in his own strength."

A POINT THAT SHOULD BE KEPT IN MIND.

A point that should be kept in mind in discussing the Unification issue as it pertains to the colored Methodists, is that the question to be settled is, not what relation shall they sustain to the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, but what relation shall they sustain to the united Church, under the domination and control of the Northern Methodists.

The Editor of the Advocate does not believe that some other plan than that which was adopted by the Southern Methodists in setting up the Colored M. E. Church would have been wiser and better, though he thinks that we have fallen far short of our duty toward that denomination. The fact that possibly our people, amid the perplexities following the Civil War, may at first have had a somewhat different plan in view by no means proves that such a plan would have been superior to the one that was subsequently adopted, after more mature thought and under the leadings of Providence. We have used the word "possibly," carefully weighing its significance, because the resolutions adopted by the General Conference of 1866 are not sufficiently clear and definite to indicate with certainty exactly what it had in mind. Dr. Ivey in bringing forward these resolutions and in referring to the later action taken in 1870, in a recent issue of the Nashville Advocate, very discreetly says: "In determining the cause for this change, IF CHANGE THERE REALLY WAS," etc.—an expression which obviously shows that he did not feel certain about the matter.

All the logic of history tends to support the view that our Church acted wisely in the step which it took in 1870. Incomparably the largest success achieved by the Negroes in religious work has been by those in the independent bodies. Look at the following figures as to the numerical strength and property holdings of some of the independent organizations: the National Convention of Colored Baptists—members, 2,261,607, property, $24,437,272; African Methodist Episcopal Church—members, 620,000, property, $11,303,489; A. M. E. Zion Church—members, 568,608, property, $4,833,207; Colored Methodist Episcopal Church—members, 240,798, property, $3,500,000. Over these eloquent figures, how meager are those of the Northern Methodist Church which has paraded itself as largely the liberator of the black man from slavery and which has poured out money like water in efforts to extend its work among the colored people! Here they are: members, 308,551; property, $6,104,379. (All these figures are from the Negro Year-Book of 1916-17—the latest out—by Prof. Monroe N. Work, of Tuskegee, Ala.) And the other white Churches that have kept the Negroes in them have been even less successful than the Methodist Episcopal Church. So what becomes of Dr. Ivey's suggestion that another policy than that of placing the Negroes in an independent Church would have been more satisfactory and have yielded larger results? It needs to be remembered that the minds of the colored people were greatly poisoned against our Church by the Northern Methodists, and that we have had to work under that tremendous handicap. It is to the credit of the Northern Baptists that they have never sought to disturb conditions in the South to the extent that the Northern Methodists have, being apparently more willing to repose confidence in their brethren in this section.

An additional evidence that our Church did not err in its course in 1870 is the fact that the Southern Baptists, the only other Southern denomination that had a large colored membership, adopted the same policy, and has no thought of abandoning it to-day. Nor do we concede that the Negroes developed by the Northern plan of proceedure are of a more desirable type than those in the C. M. E. Church and the other independent bodies. Let Southern Methodists look at the article of Dr. I. Garland Penn which we are publishing in this issue of the Advocate and ask themselves whether or not they wish to develop other colored Methodists holding such views; and it has been but a short time since even so rantanerous a unionist as Dr. A. C. Millar, the Editor of the Arkansas Methodist, declared that the utteranees of Dr. R. E. Jones, the editor of the Northern Methodist paper in this city, were of a kind not to help the cause of unification.

But we have digressed from the purpose that we had in view in beginning this editorial, which was to emphasize the point that the question now up is, not what shall be the relation of the Negro Methodists to the Church, South (we believe that the Southern Church could get along with its own Negroes in almost any relation if they were let alone)—but to the unified Church, with the Methodists of the North completely in the ascendency. Would they really be dominant? There is not the slightest doubt of this. As we have shown before (and no one has dared to deny it), if the present program stands, there will be no distinct Regional Conferences, but the delegates to the General Conference from certain areas will, at the same time and place that the General Conference meets, withdraw and hold brief subsidiary meetings to look after certain matters, chiefly administrational—their legislative powers being of little consequence. The delegates to the General Conference will be apportioned to the Regional Jurisdictions in proportion to population and be elected by the Annual Conferenees; and since the Northern Regional areas are much the more populous, they would inevitably largely control every General Conference (the Church, North, has nearly 2,000,000 more members than the Church, South). So, on every General Board that would have anything to do with the Negroes' work, there would be a Northern and Negro majority. They would prepare the literature and type the instruetion that would be given the colored Methodist people—and is there any reasonable doubt as to what the character of that instruction would be? We do not think so. For, in whatever position in the suggested new Church the Northern Methodists may consent for the Negro to go, there is not the slightest evidence that they have changed, or will change, their minds concerning his position in the social order and the segregative measures that the Southern States, both for their own and the Negro's good, have felt it necessary to adopt. We challenge the Southern liberals who are disposed to rush us recklessly into an obliterating form of organic union with the Northern Church to adduce from any influential Northern Methodist source a single word of approval of the Southern practices of having separate waiting rooms at our depots, of segregating the races on our street cars and in our cities, and of eliminating of the Negro from politics. Why, within the past few weeks Dr. Claudius B. Spencer and Bishop Hamilton, eminent Northern Methodists, have, in effect, declared such customs to be anti-Christian and sinful. There is no better interpretation of the sentiments of a people than the laws which they adopt, or fail to enact, and in a large majority of the Northern States to-day there is no legal barrier to intermarriages between whites and blacks. (See Negro Year-Book, pages 160-63.) Nor have we ever seen in a Northern Methodist journal a single utterance advocating the pasage of such laws.

There is another feature of the Unification scheme, as it now stands on the checker-board, which, in this connection, ought not to be overlooked. We refer to the arrangement that makes it possible, under certain minor restrictions, easy to get around, to place Northern Bishops, with their views on the Negro question, over Annual Conferences in the South, to promote their ideals and stir up trouble. Upon this point, we quote from a recent utteranee of Bishop J. W. Hamilton, of the Church, North, in the New York Christian Advocate: "The proposed boundary of the Regional Conferenees by which the Mason and Dixon's Line is again to separate the South from the North (our extreme unionists have now abandoned this contention—E. Ad.), will never be accepted by the Methodist Episcopal Church. TO CREATE REGIONAL CONFERENCES IN THE SOUTHERN STATES, WHICH WILL ELECT THEIR OWN BISHOPS TO HAVE JURISDICTION WITHOUT EVER HAVING SUPERINTENDENCY FROM OUR PART OF THE CHURCH, IS NOT ONLY NO UNION OF CHURCHES, BUT A MAKING PERMANENT OF THE SOLID SOUTH." The breaking up of the South and flooding it with Northern notions has been one of the great objectives of the Northern Church ever since the separation of the two Churches in 1844, and, as is here explicitly stated, it is still one of its cherished desiterata that will not be surrendered.

THE GREAT WAR AND OUR NATIONAL RESOURCES.

In The Literary Digest of January 19, Mr. P. P. Claxton, the United States Commissioner of Education, writes informingly of the cost of the present great war and of the resources that our Nation has to meet the demands that are being made upon it. The truth is, there is no other Nation existing now that at all rivals our country in wealth and resources; nor has there ever in the past been one. The following are some extracts from Mr. Claxton's impressive article:

"Increasing Cost of the War.

"It is no wonder that many think the cost appalling. Modern wars cost many times more than those of even a few years ago. This war must be fought on foreign soil with all the additional expense involved. It costs, for example, ten times as much for America to place a man on the Western front as for Germany. Besides, we are a nation of peace, and the machinery for war has to be set in motion.

"Nor have our obligations to the Allies ceased. Europe still wants, and must have, our money, munitions, and food as well as our men.

"Think for a minute of this increasing cost of warfare. The Civil War cost the Union about two million dollars per day; now we are spending over $19,000,000 a day. England's bill is $25,000,000 a day, and that of France and Russia proportionate amounts.

"Our Civil War cost the Union about three and a half billion of dollars. The estimate of our expenditures the first year of this war is over $12,000,000,000.

"The Napoleonic Wars (1793-1815) cost England and France about six and a quarter billions. The expenditure of the present war to the Entente Allies up to August, 1917, was more than $50,000,000,000.

"Certainly a gigantic load is this young America must carry, and yet she does not falter.

Our National Resources.

"Indeed, despair must give way to confidence when we think of our resources. The wealth of the United States is estimated at $250,000,000,000 with an income of $50,000,000,000—as much as the British and German Empires combined. This probably equals the wealth of the world in the time of Washington. We have as much gold as Great Britain and Germany, and all the belligerent nations combined if we except Russia and France. Our country leads a long way in the production of wheat; three-fourths of the world's supply of corn, two-thirds of the cotton, and one-third of the wool are produced here. We have more miles of steam railroads than all of Europe combined.

"'A Mineral Wonder Land' America is called. We turn out as much steel in a year as Great Britain, France, and Germany combined. Sixty-five per cent of the oil and 60 per cent of the copper are found here, while our coal lands are as great as the area of Germany, France, and Great Britain combined.

"These things are not written in any spirit of boasting. One can not read them, however, without a feeling of pride that this 'land of opportunity' is none other than America."

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

Rev. T. D. Lipscomb, pastor at Greenwood, La., is in the city on account of the serious illness of his mother, who resides at 715 Webster Street.

A note from Rev. G. R. Ellis, of Seminary, Miss., informs us that he has recently had much sickness in his home. We pray that the stricken ones may soon recover.

Rev. W. E. Thomas, of New Orleans, is in the Presbyterian Hospital, suffering with an attack of la grippe. We trust that the illness of this choice worker will be of brief duration.

"We have a hopeful outlook for a good year in this field." So writes Rev. T. H. Dorsey, our capable presiding elder of the Corinth (Miss.) District.

Rev. J. C. Price, of Belcher, La., sends us a subscription to the Advocate, and thus refers to his work: "Things are moving on smoothly with us and the indications point to a good year."

The Sidell church, of which Rev. T. J. Embree is pastor, has secured in cash and good subscriptions an amount sufficient to clear off the entire indebtedness on the parsonage—a debt of many years standing.

Our new church at Cleveland, Miss., where Rev. T. M. Bradley is the gifted young pastor, is progressing toward completion. It will cost when finished more than $25,000 and will be quite a credit to that growing Delta city.

Rev. V. C. Curtis, presiding elder of the Greenville District, says: "The work in this district is opening up well. There will be a decided advance in the pastors' salaries in most of the charges—running from 15 to 25 per cent."

Rev. P. H. Howse, of Ellisville, Miss., writes: "We reached the parsonage at Ellisville on Jan. 1, 1918, and were very kindly received. Many good things were stored in the pantry and the people are yet showing us kindnesses."

Rev. L. L. Roberts, our hustling pastor at Hazlehurst, Miss., reports that the work of the new year has started off well in his field. Brother Roberts' communication brought us 12 subscriptions, for which we take off our hat to him.

Prof. G. L. Harrell, of Millsaps College, Jackson, Miss., thus refers to the work at that institution: "Things are moving on well with us. Most of the students returned after the holidays." We are never surprised to hear good things from Millsaps

Brother J. A. Brooks, of Summerfield, La., in renewing his subscription to the Advocate, adds a few kindly words, for which he has our thanks. He does not think that any Methodist family within its territory can afford to be without the Advocate.

Mrs. H. F. Tolle thus writes concerning the reception given Dr. Tolle and his family by our First Church congregation at Laurel, Miss.: "Upon our arrival in this city we found a cold day, but a warm reception. We feel that we shall be very happy here."

The Editor of the Advocate left New Orleans Tuesday night of this week for Savannah, Ga., where the Joint Commission on the Unification of American Methodism met Wednesday, January 23. He will probably be absent from his office for a week or more.

We are indebted to the following friends, to whom acknowledgment has not been made elsewhere, for two or more subscriptions, sent in within the past few days: H. K. McKee, Rose Hill, Miss., 2; P. H. Howse, Ellisville, Miss., 2; Rev. A. H. Williams, Cochrane, Ala., 2.

Rev. E. D. Simpson, pastor of the South Side Church, Corinth, Miss., says: "This is a fine little station. There is here a large opportunity for growth and for doing good to humanity. The people gave us a cordial reception and are showing themselves loyal to us and the Church."

Brother J. M. Hancock, of Ruston, La., in a business letter to our office, adds the following message to the Editor: "In your stand upon the unification question, I think you have the approval of a large majority of Southern Methodists. I am completely in accord with you on the subject."

Mr. Whitman Davis, who for some years had been the efficient Librarian at the A. & M. College, near Starkville, Miss., has resigned that position, and will go into business at Macon, Miss. The Noxubee County capital is fortunate to gain such citizens as Brother Davis and his excellent family.

Rev. C. V. Breithaupt, Sunday School Field Secretary of the Louisiana Conference, proposes to do some work for the Advocate in his rounds this year. The Advocate counts itself fortunate in having as a friend this live and tireless worker. His letter brought us a subscription, for which he has our thanks.

Of the work in the Lula (Miss.) charge, Rev. W. W. Jones, the popular pastor, says: "The outlook with us is encouraging, despite the inclement weather, the war, and its accompaniments. Some people are moving away, but others are coming in. All are heroic in their efforts to comply with the requirements of the Government."

The death of T. V. Thaggard, of McDonoghville, a Methodist steward and a prominent citizen, took place last Wednesday morning. Mr. Thaggard purchased every church bell that hangs in churches for both whites and Negroes in McDonoghville, and all bells tolled his funeral, even the Roman Catholic bell. We extend sympathy to the bereaved.

Grayson Brown, the youngest son of Dr. and Mrs. George S. Brown, of the Felicity congregation, died in Camp Beauregard at Alexandria Thursday morning of last week, after a brief illness. He was buried in Lafayette Cemetery No. 1 in New Orleans Friday morning. Dr. and Mrs. Brown have the sympathy and prayers of many friends in their sore bereavement.

From a note from Rev. T. H. Lipscomb, the efficient presiding elder of the Aberdeen (Miss.) District, we take the following: "At the first quarterly conferences held this year in this district, Verona, Tupelo, Okolona, and Aberdeen each increased the pastor's salary $200. At Amory the salary was raised to $1600. The year has started well in everything, except the weather."

From Sherman, French & Company, of Boston, Mass., we have received a volume of poems from the pen of the late Rev. W. S. Harrison, of Starkville, Miss., entitled "The Supremacy of Life." The publishers say concerning this book: "We consider it an unusual one in a number of respects." We have not yet had time to examine this publication. We shall have more to say concerning it later.

Dr. R. S. Ricketts, of Millsaps College, is in the Presbyterian Hospital of New Orleans, having come to the city for medical consultation and treatment. Dr. Ricketts' condition is not thought to be at all critical, but he has not been strong during the winter, though until quite recently he has been steadily at work at the College. We hope that his condition will soon be much improved.

We have in hand an interesting and suggestive pamphlet, entitled "The Relation of the Public School Teacher to the Church," by Rev. P. O. Lowrey, of the Louisiana Conference. This pamphlet is reprinted from The Bulletin of the General Board of Education of the M. E. Church, South. The price is 10 cents each; 75 cents per dozen; $5.50 per hundred. Address Rev. P. O. Lowrey, Pleasant Hill, La.

It is earnestly desired that the preachers of the North Mississippi Conference who have sons or brothers or wards in the United States Army or Navy report their names at once to Rev. W. W. Jones, of Lula, Miss. We have a partial list of those related to our ministers who have gone into the military service, but we should like very much to secure a complete roster before publishing those that we have in the Advocate.

Rev. B. P. Jaco, of Lexington, Miss., the new President of the Board of Missions of the North Mississippi Conference, has addressed a communication to every pastor in his Conference urging early and full collections. It is to be hoped that the brethren will hearken to this appeal. This is a trying time on our missionaries in the various foreign fields and the Church should come to their relief promptly. This is a most important matter.

Rev. W. W. Woollard, our pastor at Oxford, Miss., writes us as follows: "The extremely cold weather that we have been having has hindered the work of the church here and also my work, but the prospects are very pleasing. I am hoping for and expecting a good year." We regret to learn that Brother Woollard had a rather serious fall some days ago, from which he suffered considerably. We trust that all trace of the injury sustained will disappear.

Rev. C. H. Stralt, of Johns, Miss., writes: "On Christmas Eve the good people here came to see us, bringing with them all kinds of good things to eat, and on Friday of the same week Brother J. H. Mashburn brought us a fine dressed hog. Furthermore, the stewards later got together and increased the pastor's salary from $900 to $1200, and intimated that the preacher ought to have a car." Manifestly, the lines have fallen in pleasant places to this industrious itinerant

Mrs. J. L. Harrison, of Cruger, Miss., will have the sympathy of many in the bereavement which has come to her in the death of her beloved mother, Mrs. T. J. Blanchard, who passed away at her home on December 27, "just as darkness was turning into day." She was 79 years of age, and was ready for the Master's summons. We have in hand some memorial resolutions concerning the deceased, which were adopted by the Ladies' Aid Society at Cruger. They will be published later.

DR. H. C. MORRISON COMING.

Rev. H. C. Morrison, of Louisville, Ky., will conduct a revival meeting in our new St. Mark's Church, 1146 North Rampart street, beginning on the evening of Feb. 17, and continuing through two Sundays. Dr. Morrison is easily one of the most gifted orators and one of the most powerful preachers on the American continent to-day. A revival of religion is almost an unheard-of thing in this section of the city, and the prayers of the Advocate's readers are earnestly requested. If the surrounding thousands are to be reached for Christ it is to be by the preaching of the Word.

The crisis is on us. We have our new church building, and we must have a revival. Out-of-town people wishing to attend these services can procure board and lodging at reasonable rates by communicating with H. P. Beall, Howard Avenue and Magazine Street, New Orleans.

W. E. THOMAS, Pastor.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

Individual subscribers sending us a check for $1.50 for their subscription will get credit for only 11 months, because we have to pay the banks 10 cents exchange for collecting the check. However, we will not mind paying the expense of exchange on $3 or over. In remitting for your subscription send us money order, or registered letter, or exchange on New Orleans or New York, or 1c or 2c stamps. In this way subscribers will get full credit for money remitted. If subscribers insist on paying us by check, let them send us $1.60, which will net us $1.50. The annual subscription of the Advocate is $1.50, net, for preachers and laymen. Superannuates and widows of preachers get the Advocate 1 year for $1, provided they do not remit by check. If they insist on sending a check for $1, they should send us $1.10; otherwise they will get credit for only 10 months. We do not expect our pastors and agents to bear the expense of remitting money to us for subscriptions. Pastors usually send in two or three subscriptions at a time, and for this reason the expense is small, and should be borne by us.

TO OUR SUBSCRIBERS.

The little pink or yellow address label on the copy of the Advocate which you receive weekly shows your name and address, and the date of expiration of your subscription. Dec1917 indicates that your subscription expired Dec. 1, 1917, and that it is past due, and should be renewed Subscribers will please examine the labels on their papers, and if it is found that the subscriptions are past due, they should remit at once. Conditions are such that we cannot afford to continue sending the paper to those who are in arrears. If a subscriber does not want the subscription to continue, we expect him or her to pay that which is due us, and notify us to stop sending the paper. Attention to this matter will be greatly appreciated by the management of this Advocate, and it will be the means of helping us to avoid losses by discontinuing the paper to those who do not desire it.

One secret act of self-denial, one sacrifice of inclination to duty, is worth all the mere good thoughts, warm feelings, passionate prayers, in which idle people indulge themselves.—Cardinal Newman.

Grandma Used Sage Tea to Darken Hair

She made up a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to bring back color, gloss and youthfulness.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, streaked or gray. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get a 50-cent bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound at any drug store all ready for use. This is the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant.

This preparation is a delightful toilet requisite and is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

OLIVER A. RHODES was born on August 1, 1836, and died on August 24, 1917. He was a member of the M. E. Church, South, for over 60 years, and was steward nearly all of the time when he was able to attend the quarterly conference. He was married three times and was the father of sixteen children, ten of whom are living. He was a loving father, a faithful husband, and a good neighbor. Many things could be said in his favor. He took sick and was carried to the Baptist Hospital for treatment; but man's help availed little, and on August 24 he passed out into eternity, to meet the reward of the righteous. He spent four years with us. We mourn his death as a father, a husband, and as a Confederate soldier. May God comfort the bereaved family, and in His own good time bring them, without the loss of one, into the Eternal City.

C. H. STRAIT.

Mrs. AMY ANN McMAIN, the subject of this sketch, was born on April 25, 1845, and departed this life on Dec. 19, 1917. She was married to Granville F. McMain on Dec. 29, 1873, from which union a large and respected family of boys and girls were reared. She joined the Church in 1869, and lived a consistent and devoted member of the same the remainder of her life. Mrs. McMain was loved and highly esteemed by all who knew her. Her life was such that she had many, many friends. No one ever knew her to fail to heed the voice of duty. She was kind and affectionate to all whom she came in contact with. She was very devoted to the Church, always responding when it was in need. To those who are grieved on account of her death we can only say, "Sorrow not as those who have no hope," for, if you follow the example that was given in her life, you will surely meet again in that home beyond the skies. Her life is worthy of emulation. Let us be content and live such a life, so that when our summons shall come, we shall be prepared to meet her in heaven.

Melder, La.

At her home, one mile south of Red Banks, Miss., on Dec. 27, 1917, at 8:30 p. m., Mrs. EMMA G. KIGER'S spirit left its mortal body and was wafted to her peaceful and happy home in heaven. She was the daughter of Mrs. J. E. Gardner. She was born on April 5, 1856. In 1873 Sister Kiger professed faith in Christ, and, uniting with the M. E. Church, South, she lived an exemplary Christian life the rest of her days. She was married to Mr. J. S. Kiger on Dec. 15, 1881. There were born to them seven children, of whom two died in infancy, and five are still living—R. E. Wilbur, Jim, Miss Elizabeth, and Mrs. Reeves Power. Besides the children, Sister Kiger is survived by one brother, John G. Gardner, who resides in Louisiana; one sister, three grandchildren, a goodly number of nieces and nephews, and many other relatives and a host of friends, who will miss her pleasant face and her deeds of kindness and noble acts. But we should not grieve because of her absence, for she will be amply rewarded for those good deeds and acts of kindness, and to the children we would say, "Weep not for mother, as those who have no hope,"

For she has only gone on before,
And will be waiting for you on the other shore.

A FRIEND.

CLYDE, son of J. M. and Mrs. Sarah King, was born on May 16, 1896, and died on November 8, 1917, at Camp Pike, Ark., where he had gone, among the first boys from Prentiss, Miss., in training for the service of his country. Here, after about a month's stay, he succumbed to an attack of measles and pneumonia. His body was brought home and interred in the family cemetery, a vast throng of people being present. The services were conducted by Rev. J. M. Lewis and the writer. Clyde joined the Methodist Church at Good Hope, near his home, in July, before his death, and, as evidenced here and in the camp, by his nearest comrades, his conversion and Christian experience were genuine. Soon after entering the camp, he and a number of his friends from Jefferson Davis County, wrote and signed a solemn compact, that they would not gamble, nor engage in any other vice, so common in the camps. Even before he left home he told of a sure presentiment that he was near the end of his life. Such is the fate of war. How sad that in the bloom of youth, death blights the earthly prospects of friends and loved ones!

Besides his grief-stricken parents, he leaves several brothers and sisters to mourn their loss. May God's grace sustain them; and, while we cannot understand it now, may they so live as to meet him in a land where there is no war, nor pain, nor death. For now we see through a glass darkly; but then face to face; now I know in part; but then shall I know, even as also I am known.

His pastor,
R. T. PICKETT.

On the morning of Dec. 27, 1917, just as the gray dawn was breaking in the city of Shreveport, ALBERT, the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Nelson of Haughton, La., quietly slipped away from the house of his earthly dwelling, to be at home with God beyond the Great Divide. He had been with his parents for Christmas dinner and was on his way back to his post of duty at Camp Beauregard, and while waiting for a belated train at the station in Shreveport, he was taken ill quite suddenly. His uncle, Dr. J. C. Willis, was notified, and he was taken immediately to the Schumpert Memorial Sanitarium, where everything possible to medical skill was done for him, but he was in the fatal grip of meningitis, and human skill was unavailing and within thirty-six hours he passed away. The writer was Albert's pastor for four years, and, by reason of the friendship between his son and Albert, he saw much of him and knew him well. Since that time I have kept somewhat informed as to his movements and life, and, as a boy and a young man, I have always associated his name with that which is clean, pure, noble, and good. When the call came for men to come to our country's and to humanity's defense, he laid down the noble work of teaching children in the schoolroom and offered himself in defense of the lives of little children and to make the world safe for democracy. He has made the supreme sacrifice. He has answered the last bugle call and has responded to the summons to come up higher. He lived the heroic life and has fallen on the Christian hero's rest. May the good Father comfort the hearts of the sorrowing loved ones, is the prayer of Albert's friend, and their friend!

THICK, GLOSSY HAIR FREE FROM DANDRUFF

Girls! Try it! Hair gets soft, fluffy and beautiful—Get a small bottle of Danderine.

If you care for heavy hair that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine.

Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff. You can not have nice, heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp; the hair roots famish, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast. Surely get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store and just try it.

Obituaries

In the passing away of Mrs. ELIZABETH ELLIS, on Dec. 9, 1917, many hearts were made sad and caused to feel the great spiritual loss they sustained in the leaving of "Grandmother Ellis." She was born in Clark County, Ala., on July 11, 1818. A singular fact concerning the deceased was that she was born seven months after Mississippi was admitted into the Union, and had she lived one day longer would have been living when the State celebrated her one hundreth birthday, and had she lived until July 11, 1918, she would have been a centenarian. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Mark Wade, moved to Copiah County, Miss., near Old Gallatin, when she was quite young. On Jan. 12, 1843, she was happily married to Mr. George Ellis. Five children were born unto them, two of whom died in infancy. The other three, are Mrs. A. L. Spence, of Jackson, Miss.; Mrs. C. A. Knight of Jacksonville, Fla.; and Dr. G. E. Ellis, of Utica, Miss., with whom she lived after the death of her husband. For something over eight years, she was an invalid, demanding the constant care of her noble son and his wife, who never tired of waiting on mother. I never witnessed such perfect devotion between mother and son and son and mother. It was beautiful to behold. To visit her was like going into the presence of the Holy One. I always came away, feeling refreshed and strengthened after a visit to her. The many years allotted to her were not spent in vain. Her sturdy character was seen in her devotion to duty. Her mind remained perfectly clear until two days before her death, when she fell into a comatose state. She never forgot to pray for her pastor, always keeping up with his appointments. The burden of her heart was the salvation of the unsaved and a gracious revival at Utica.

Her pastor, B. W. LEWIS.

Mrs. ADDIE WILSON GERALD, was born in Amite County, Miss., on May 6, 1861, and on Dec. 26, 1917, she "fell on sleep" in Christ. While in her teens she united with the M. E. Church, South, and remained a consistent member up until the day of her death. On Feb. 6, 1878 she was married to J. E. Gerald, and for more than 35 years she walked faithfully by his side, sharing all his burdens, defeats and victories. Of this happy union there were born six children: Mrs. J. M. Spinks, Magnolia; Attorney Eugene Gerald, Leland; Dr. Howard Gerald, East Fork; Carey, and Misses Maud and Esther Gerald, Smithdale, Miss. These, with their father, yet remain on this side of the "crossing." All her children were privileged to be with her the last few days. From the beginning of her sickness the clouds were all driven away by the heavenly light. She left abundant testimony of her acceptance with Christ and expressed anxiety that all should meet her around His throne. Patiently and serenely she waited until her Savior came and bore her up the heavenly steep. The funeral service was conducted by the writer at the Mars' Hill Baptist Church, in sight of which she lived, and near which her body was laid in its resting-place, to await the resurrection morn. Her companion is sad, and all the children are heartbroken, but as her son, Carey, said, "We have more to live for now than ever before." Yes, with mother in heaven, a Christly life is invaluable. Borrowing the words of Rowland Hill, we would say to the bereaved ones:

"Cast thy burden on the Lord,
Only lean upon His Word;
Thou wilt soon have cause to bless,
His unchanging faithfulness."

MEMORIAL RESOLUTIONS.

(By the Woman's Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, Alexandria, La.)

Whereas, God in His infinite wisdom has recalled the soul of our beloved sister and co-worker, Mrs. Eugenia J. J. Moseley, and

Whereas, in her death the members of this Society lost a faithful member and a devoted friend, one who was always loyal and true to the teachings of her faith—ever practicing the principles of a true Christian, and fully mindful of all the sacred duties entrusted to her; therefore be it

Resolved, first, That we, the members of this Society, extend to her sorrowing sons and daughters our most sincere sympathy in this hour of affliction, and trust that her example and the knowledge of her useful and consecrated life will, in a measure, alleviate the grief with which their hearts are filled; and we beseech for them that consolation which their mother's God alone can give.

Resolved, secondly, That a copy of the foregoing be given to the family, and that the same be published in Town Talk and the New Orleans Christian Advocate.

Signed: Mrs. W. D. Haas, Mrs. William Hill, Mrs. Roberta Nugent, Mrs. E. A. Owen, Mrs. John Evans, Committee.

STOPS TOBACCO HABIT.

Elder's Sanitarium, located at 508 Main St., St. Joseph Mo., has published a booklet showing the deadly effect of tobacco habit, and how it can be stopped in three to five days at home. As they are distributing this book free, anyone wanting a copy should send their name and address at once.—Adv.

REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE ON FINDINGS.

sion our most sympathetic co-operation in all of the plans which shall he adopted to make effective the program of the Commission, unite and will unite with that great multitude of Methodists who will join the Fellowship of Intercession in behalf of this Epoch-making movement.

Educational Propaganda.

Many Sunday schools and Epworth Leagues are doing an excellent educational work and are making worthy contribution to the cause of missions, but only a beginning has been made. Especially would we urge that all Sunday school contributions for missions be specials. Institutes, special services, mission study classes, maps, leaflets, and our missionary periodicals, must be used with increasing vigor if we are to lay a sure foundation for the future. We rejoice in the great work being done by the women of our Church and call upon our pastors and people to give them the heartiest co-operation.

Increase of Missionary Assessments.

The following resolution on the increase of assessments for missions was unanimously adopted:

"Resolved, That we, the Missionary Secretaries, request the Board of Missions to make a substantial increase in the missionary assessments, said increase to be commensurate with our needs in the mission fields, and with the increased resources at the command of our Church."

C. C. MILLAR,
T. N. POTTS.

Prayer and Intercession.

Prayer has always been the most vital factor in missionary progress. Not that God needs to he persuaded to co-operate with us in these undertakings, but only by prayer can we attain divine passion for a world's salvation, and secure the co-ordination of forces, human and divine, for the achievement of this end. As never before the Church should be in the spirit of prayer.

Order Fertilizers Now or You May Have to Do Without Them This Season

The freight congestion is serious. You will help yourself, us, the railroads, and the Government by giving your order for Fertilizers NOW to your dealer. If all the farmers do this, the dealer can then "bunch" his orders, and be able to order his cars of fertilizers loaded to full capacity. The Government urges that all cars be so loaded.

When the goods arrive haul them home, and put them into your barn until you are ready to use them. If the movement of railroad cars becomes any more serious you may not get a pound of fertilizer at any price.

Our 50 factories, and distributing points are so well located geographically as to enable us to get fertilizers to you with minimum amount of hauling.

"CASCARETS" WORK WHILE YOU SLEEP

For Sick Headache, Sour Stomach, Sluggish Liver and Bowels—Take Cascarets to-night.

Furred Tongue, Bad Taste, Indigestion, Sallow Skin and Miserable Headaches come from a torpid liver and clogged bowels, which cause your stomach to become filled with undigested food, which sours and ferments like garbage in a swill barrel. That's the first step to untold misery—indigestion, foul gases, bad breath, yellow skin, mental fears, everything that is horrible and nauseating. A Cascaret to-night will give your constipated bowels a thorough cleansing and straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist will keep you feeling good for months.

"Religion that is not used outside of the church won't keep sweet."

GIVE "SYRUP OF FIGS" TO CONSTIPATED CHILD

Delicious "Fruit Laxative" can't harm tender little Stomach, Liver and Bowels.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, your little one's stomach, liver and bowels need cleansing at once. When peevish, cross, listless, doesn't sleep, eat or act naturally, or is feverish, stomach sour, breath bad; has sore throat, diarrhoea, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of its little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again. Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which contains full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups.

"God's power to give is only limited by our willingness to receive."

Eat Less and Take Salts for Kidneys

Take a glass of Salts before breakfast if your Back hurts or Bladder bothers you.

The American men and women must guard constantly against Kidney trouble, because we eat too much and all our food is rich. Our blood is filled with uric acid which the kidneys strive to filter out; they weaken from overwork, become sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead, your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys; to neutralize the acids so they no longer are a source of irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water beverage, and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time.

Sunday School

SECOND CHURCH, NEW ORLEANS.

The Sunday school of the Second Methodist Church, although small, is one of the best organized schools in the city of New Orleans. One of the special features of our school is a splendid birthday record managed by a thoroughly competent and consecrated worker. Every member, also former members now grown to manhood and womanhood, living in distant cities and not affiliated with any Sunday school, parents of our officers and teachers, and old folks who are either members or friends of our church, are remembered with a birthday card. A young man away from the influences of home and loved ones appreciates a word of encouragement and cheer from the school of his boyhood days. The birthday record enables us to keep in touch with former members, particularly those who expect to return to New Orleans, some of whom live in the Hawaiian Islands, California, New York, and those who are serving our country in the army and navy. There are possibilities wrapped up even in a birthday card, if used at the opportune time. The birthday calendar hangs on the wall of the schoolroom in a conspicuous place, with the bank directly under it for those who care to make an offering, as no birthday offering envelopes are distributed. Our Birthday Secretary expects to train one of our Intermediate girls in the routine connected with the records so that this position will be double-officered. We opened an account in a local bank in which we expect to deposit birthday offerings to form the nucleus of a building improvement fund, which will be used in repairing and replacing equipment which had become worn out and antiquated. In our eagerness to establish new schools we are apt to overlook the more important task of properly maintaining those already established. Dirty, unkempt temples might not be out of place in China, but they are decidedly out of place in Christian America! However, since the increased cost of paper and postage, and the further fact that these offerings are absolutely voluntary, our account has not done much climbing.

Our missionary studies this year will be focused on Japan, and, in order to create an interest in things Japanese, we propose to use postcards showing scenes in the Flowery Kingdom, instead of the ordinary birthday cards. However, these scenic post-cards will be sent only to active members of the school; the birthday greeting card being sent to the non-attenders.

The permanency of a building depends largely upon the strength of its foundation; likewise, the strength and future of a Sunday school depends upon its Cradle Roll. Our Cradle Roll has 70 babies enrolled, a few of whom attend service. Much of the success of this department is largely attributable to the splendid leadership and zeal of our Cradle Roll Superintendent. Time and space will not permit my mentioning many other things which could be said of this department.

Our main school has enrolled 133 active pupils with 24 officers and teachers, and a Home Department of 30 members. During the period from January 1, 1917, to November 25, 1917, the close of our Conference year, our school corps made 472 calls and mailed 1273 letters and post-cards. Our Teachers' Council meets each Wednesday after praver meeting.

The Second Methodist Church has a "Sunday school pastor," and as faithful and earnest a corps of officers and teachers as can be found anywhere. Their unstinted service and devotion to duty is an inspiration to their youthful superintendent.

Convalescence after pneumonia, typhoid fever and the grip, is sometimes merely apparent, not real. To make it real and rapid there is no other tonic so highly to be recommended as Hood's Sarsaparilla. Thousands so testify. Take Hood's.—Adv.

SEPARATING ON SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSONS.

Since 1875 the American and British Sunday school lesson committees have been united in studying the same lessons, but with the close of 1917 this arrangement comes to a close. Each will follow their own lines from the first of January, 1918. Sunday school authorities on both sides have little to say about the separation, but it is apparent that the British have not been altogether in sympathy with the American trend and the separation has been a possibility ever since the schools in America adopted the elaborate system of graded lessons. However, the British ommission is at present arranging a course of graded lessons which will be ready about the first of 1920. While the division is regrettable, it will have an almost negligible effect on the spirit of cooperation that exists between the two peoples.—N. W. Christian.

Why Don't You Smile?

Are you melancholy, and pessimistic, wearing a disagreeable frown on your face? The trouble is with your liver. If you had an active and healthy liver you would be cheerful and happy. The well-known reliable remedy, Plantation Chill and Fever Tonic and Liver Regulator makes lazy livers active and restores that smile to your face. If you have a sluggish liver, Plantation Chill and Fever Tonic and Liver Regulator will rectify the trouble, relieving you of the possible dangers of auto-intoxication or self-poisoning which is the inevitable result of habitual constipation. A NOTE FROM TEXAS.

Dear Dr. Meek: I transferred from the Mississippi Conference to the Texas Conference in November, 1910 I landed in Texas on the first day of December, at Galveston. The Texas Conference was in session in the city of Galveston at that time. I am now beginning my eighth year a member of the Texas Conference.

In 1910, I was stationed at Old Meadville, the county seat of Franklin County. I completed the new church there that year and had the distinction of building the first house of worship in that historic town; and, in spite of Meadville's sad history, I spent one of the most pleasant years of my life there. I think that is the only time I ever moved and left people weeping. I have often thought of those good people, and have felt, too, that I should like to go back to the Mississippi Conference and be stationed again at Meadville. I am sure I could do much better now than I did eight years ago.

I have enjoyed the work in Texas very much. The Texas Conference is, indeed, a great Conference. A more distinguished body of men, taking them as a whole, can hardly be found in any other Conference. I have many warm friends, both among the preachers and laymen; still I feel as if I would like to be back in the old State. I have never felt at home, as I once did, since Mrs. Red left us, on November 8, 1916.

I have recently seen two copies of the New Orleans Christian Advocate and the familiar names appearing therein brought to my mind so many pleasant memories that I have decided to send you a check, which will renew my subscription for a while.

With best wishes for all the Advocate family and praying that this may be a great year for us all, I am,

Fraternally,
J. L. RED.

What a Pity!

Isn't it a pitiful sight to see a handsome face covered with pimples and other scaly patches? And it is still more pitiable that some people allow these cutaneous troubles to continue, growing worse each day, when the simple treatment of applying Tetterine salve will entirely eliminate skin troubles and will restore the skin to its normal health. 50c a box. Killed by Poisons

All scientists agree that poisonous products in the blood are eliminated by the kidneys and liver. The kidneys act as a kind of filter for these products. When the kidneys are changed or degenerated, by disease or old age, then these poisons are retained in the body. If we wish to prevent old age coming on too soon, or if we want to increase our chances for a long life, Dr. Pierce of the Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., says that you should drink plenty of water daily between meals to flush the kidneys. Then procure at your nearest drug store Annric. This Anuric drives the uric acid out. Scientific men have learned that in gout, also rheumatism, poisonous uric acid crystals are deposited in or about the joints, in the muscles — where inflammation is set up.

If we wish to keep our kidneys in the best condition a diet of milk and vegetables, with only little meat once a day, is the most suitable. Drink plenty of pure water, take Anuric three times a day for a month. An-u-ric is many times more potent than lithia and dissolves uric acid as hot water does sugar.

You can obtain a trial package of Anuric by writing Doctor V. M. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., enclosing ten cents.

TARPON SPRINGS, FLA.—"I find Dr. Pierce's Anuric Tablets simply fine; they give me relief in a few days after I start to take them when the kidneys do not feel good. These tablets have done me so much good."—MRS. J. W. CARDY, Box 291.

PLATTSBURG, MISS. "This is to certify that I have been a sufferer of rheumatism for ten years and have tried several noted doctors and a lot of patent medicines. At last I saw Doctor Pierce's Anuric Tablets advertised and got a trial package; they did me more good than anything I have ever taken. They relieved me of all the pain. I believe that two packages of these tablets will effect a permanent cure. I can recommend them to anyone suffering with rheumatism. Anuric will do all that is claimed for it." —M. E. WEEMS.

Cured His RUPTURE

I was badly ruptured while lifting a trunk several years ago. Doctors said my only hope of cure was an operation. Trusses did me no good. Finally I got hold of something that quickly and completely cured me. Years have passed and the rupture has never returned, although I am doing hard work as a carpenter. There was no operation, no lost time, no trouble. I have nothing to sell, but will give full information about how you may find a complete cure without operation, if you write to me. Eugene M. Pullen, Carpenter, 862D Marcellus Avenue, Manasquan, N. J. Better cut out this notice and show it to any others who are ruptured—you may save a life or at least stop the misery of rupture and the worry and danger of an operation.

NUX, IRON, PEPSIN AND SARSAPARILLA

The combination of two great medicines, Hood's Sarsaparilla and Peptiron, by taking them in conjunction, one before eating and the other after, brings into co-operation the above-named substances, best for the blood, nerves and digestive organs.

This combination is especially recommended in cases that are scrofulous, or rheumatic, anemic and nervous, or where the blood is both impure and pale, deficient in iron—one of the most common disease conditions of the present day.

In cases where a laxative is needed, Hood's Pills should be taken. They work in perfect harmony with Hood's Sarsaparilla and Peptiron, and are mild and efficient.

ONWARD TOWARD UNIFICATION!

One of the best illustrations of progressive religious journalism is seen in the policy of Zion's Herald. The editors are always scouting news and stirring the center of public interest. Indeed, it seems they are determined to not permit anything to rest if it has the least possibility of an ecclesiastical sensation. Recently they issued a questionnaire to all the members of the recent General Conference on their attitude toward unification on the basis already stipulated and made public by the Commission on Unification. The Negro problem came in for a number of questions and then the following—would they favor calling the adjourned session authorized if deemed expedient at Baltimore following the session of the General Conference of the Church, South? We intuitively understand the purpose of the editors. They are giving the church an example of progressive journalism. They have created a sensation. Few men have understood the motive Many have condemned the entire procedure, calling it an impertinence. Meetings have been held voting resolutions of protest. For instance, the following telegram was sent to all the editors:

"Atlanta Conference in session. Faculties of Gammon Theological Seminary and Clark University express disapproval of Dr. Blake's misleading article in recent Zion's Herald; also protest Zion's Herald's attempt to commit General Conference delegates to prejudgment of status of Negro in Methodism; such an attempt considered immoral, un-American, and un-Christian."

Many have refused to answer the cards, saying they have small faith in the outcome of the movement toward unification. A number of letters have been received at this office couched in the strongest language impugning motive and charging as reprehensible any effort to prejudice the case before it comes to final trial. We hesitate to publish these, for we consider it unwise to stir up heated discussion at this time. At the psychological moment we shall fire broadside after broadside, if the trend of things require it. However, we have great faith that our Commissioners will not betray the interests committed to them. Unification must not be hastened. It must come when all are convinced that their plans mean a better day for the Kingdom of Christ and not advantage to any one party.—Western Christian Advocate.

Calomel To-Day, Sick To-Morrow

Dose of nasty calomel makes you sick and you lose a day's work.

Calomel salivates! It's mercury. Calomel acts like dynamite on a sluggish liver. When calomel comes into contact with sour bile it crashes into it, causing cramping and nausea.

If you feel bilious, headachy, constipated and all knocked out, just go to your druggist and get a 50-cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone, which is a harmless vegetable substitute for dangerous calomel. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't start your liver and straighten you up better and quicker than nasty calomel and without making you sick, you just go back and get your money.

If you take calomel to-day you'll be sick and nauseated to-morrow; besides, it may salivate you, while if you take Dodson's Liver Tone you will wake up feeling great, full of ambition and ready for work or play. It's harmless, pleasant and safe to give to children; they like it.

SAFETY FIRST.

It is mighty easy to make little of every scratch, cut, burn, and sting. Sometimes you can neglect them and luckily get by without any serious infection. If you do, don't think you are fotunate. The next case of neglect may prove fatal. Blood polson is likely to set in unexpectedly and the result may be fatal. Don't play with fate. Take care of your body. In every case of broken skin apply Gray's Ointment immediately and freely. It is healing and antiseptic. For nearly a century one of nature's greatest methods of insurance against infection. Telephone your druggist, or write W. F. Gray & Co., 806 Gray Bldg., Nashville, Tenn., for sample.—Adv.

THE CREATOR OF SMILES.

"I think of the mother of my boyhood days who lived as seeing Him who is invisible," writes the Rev. George T. Dowling in the Churchman. "She was a very old-fashioned woman, was my mother, with her sweet, quiet ways. You never would have found her picketing the White House gates. But, oh, what a happy home she made; and what a song at evening time she was to everyone who knew her. How often I have seen her, when burdened with care, pass into the little room where she was accustomed to kneel and pray; and she has come forth radiant and filled with peace. Then I learned where my mother got her smiles."

SELF-POISONING.

Did you know that when you allow a slight case of constipation to continue you are poisoning yourself? The pores of your skin cannot carry off all the impurities of your body, and you should never force them to do more than their share by not keeping your bowels open. When constipated take Van Lax for your liver. It cleanses your entire digestive system. It does not gripe or nauseate. Contains no Calomel and no habit-forming drugs. It is pleasant in taste and results. It is the ideal treatment for constipation and auto-intoxication or self-poisoning. Try it. Sold everywhere in bottles 50c. Manufactured by Van Vleet-Mansfield Drug Co., Memphis, Tenn.—Adv.

"Trust in the Lord." Faith cures fretting. Sight views things only as they seem, hence her envy; faith has clearer optics to behold things as they really are, hence her peace. "And do good." True faith is actively obedient. Doing good is a fine remedy for fretting. There is a joy in holy activity which drives away discontent.—C. H. Spurgeon.

Upward He leads us, though our steps are slow,
Though oft we faint and falter on the way,
Though storm and darkness oft obscure the day;
Yet when the clouds are gone,
We know He leads us on.

THE CALL TO US.

This message comes to us at the initial business meeting of 1918, the meeting at which the plans for the year's work are laid. What the Conference shall accomplish is dependent upon our decisions. It is a time for serious thought, for much prayer, for self-examination.

Many and varied are the calls being made upon us for money to be used for the alleviation of suffering in this world of ours. They are causes which make our hearts ache and create a desire for giving to our utmost. But in our plans for the year, both as individuals and as auxiliaries, do not let the missionary society be the place where your gifts are lessened. Some one has said, "The diversion of funds from direct mission work would be less than a disaster, while to withhold gifts for relief in the present crisis would be almost a crime."

Let us direct our attention to the first clause of this statement, let us consider what it would mean to decrease our offerings through the missionary society. All the activities of the Council have been begun and carried on with a view of stretching its income as far as possible. A living wage for the workers has been the basis. Should the income become smaller, work will have to be closed. Shall we place our leaders in the embarrassing position of determining which it shall be? Shall we be the cause of depriving needy ones of this work and workers?

It is not just a matter of standing back of our leaders and sustaining the work as in normal times. We must consider the conditions under which the missionaries are living to-day. The same problems of the high cost of living with which we are grappling are confronting them even in a more aggravated form. When it is also noted that the increased cost of exchange has cut down their salaries one-half in some countries, an idea will be gained of the suffering they are undergoing. The Board of Missions earlier in 1917 voted that a War Fund of $20,000 be solicited; so grave has the situation become that they now see the necessity of asking for $50,000.

It is imperative that the January meeting be permeated with the spirit of prayer that God's guidance may be sought in each detail and that we may be led to attempt great things. "Jesus Christ alone can save the world but Jesus Christ cannot save the world alone." Mrs. J. W. CONGER,
President N. Miss. Conf. Society.

THE LOUISIANA ANNUAL MEETING.

The Eighth Annual Meeting of the Louisiana Conference Woman's Missionary Society of the M. E. Church, South, will be held in First Church, Shreveport, February 25-28.

Mrs. H. R. Steele, Educational Secretary, will be the Council guest. Mrs. Steele needs no introduction to our women, and the fact that she is coming assures us of much definite knowledge concerning the work, given in an enthusiastic and inspiring manner.

Miss Janie Watkins will also be present. Those who met her last year will be glad to know they are again to have the privilege of listening to her as she tells of her work in China. Much valuable and illuminating knowledge of China and the Chinese was gained through Miss Watkins last year.

Of course we are going to have deaconesses too, who will tell of their work, but as yet we have not been notified who they are. One we are assured of, Miss Gatewood of Shreveport.

These workers in the different parts of the Master's vineyard all have messages for us, whether they tell of the success of the work or recount incidents which fill our hearts with sadness because of the dense ignorance and suffering of many living in Christian America and in the countries beyond the sea.

Plan now to go to this meeting. We know something of the hospitality of Shreveport people; and know, too, they are planning and working to make this one of the best meetings ever held in Louisiana. Let us pray earnestly and without ceasing that it will be a meeting which will result in a wonderful spread of missionary knowledge and the kindling of a greater and deeper love for this work of the Master's, who through the centuries has given his command, "Go!" and followed it with the promise, "Lo, I am with you alway."

THE LOUISIANA CONFERENCE SOCIETY AGAIN PAYS ITS PLEDGE IN FULL.

This glorious news will cause songs of joy and praise to ascend from every part of the Conference. It has not been accomplished by might or power, but by His spirit. While we rejoice that our women have been faithful to their trust, it is a source of even greater joy to know that they are more and more consecrating their every gift to His service; but the greatest and best gift of all is the surrender of self entirely to Him and then all these other "surrenders" will follow as the day the night.

So many calls have come to our women during the past year, and they have been loud and insistent, and to them has the response been hearty and lavish, and yet in the midst of it all they have heard the "still, small voice" and listened to its plea, and at His feet their treasure poured, thus enabling our Conference Secretary to send the joyful news throughout our bounds that the pledge is overpaid; better still, there is an increase of more than one thousand dollars over the total amount paid last year. Is it not a time to sing unto the Lord with joyful voice?"

NEWS FROM A NEW MISSIONARY TO KOREA.

Miss Grace McCubbins, who reached Korea in September, 1917, writes from her new home in Wonsan as follows: "I am very, very happy here. I guess it is because I have to trust and depend upon Him more than ever before. I feel as if I had known and loved the Koreans always. I shall be so glad when I can talk with them. The language is very interesting, but it is hard, too. I have a splendid teacher and am studying hard every day. Korea, and especially Wonsan, is a beautiful place. I wish you could see it now. The hills all around our home are covered with brilliant autumn colors. The sea, just in front, is so blue and peaceful-looking! I like the water when I am on the land, but O—!"

PATRIOTIC SPIRIT OF OUR MISSION SCHOOLS.

The following, from the principal of Sue Bennett School shows something of the spirit of the mountain boys in this time of stress: "Last Wednesday we got our older boys together and presented the needs of the army Y. M. C. A. and the part that the schools in the country should have in meeting these needs. Over $250 was subscribed, an average of $3.33 per man. By the end of the week we expect to get close to the $300 mark, which will be a record for schools of this size and class."

MISSISSIPPI ANNUAL MEETING POSTPONED.

We have been informed that the date for the Mississippi Annual Meeting has been postponed from February to some time in March, on account of the shortage of fuel in Brookhaven. Watch this department for definite announcement concerning the meeting.

Cough Nearly Gone in 24 Hours

That's the usual experience with this home-made remedy. Costs little—try it.

Anyone who tries this pleasant tasting home-made cough syrup, will quickly understand why it is used in more homes in the United States and Canada than any other cough remedy. The way it takes hold of an obstinate cough, giving immediate relief, will make you regret that you never tried it before. It is a truly dependable cough remedy that should be kept handy in every home, to use at the first sign of a cough during the night or day time.

Any druggist can supply you with 2½ ounces of Pinex (60 cents worth). Pour this into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. The total cost is about 65 cents and you have a full pint of the most effective remedy you ever used.

The quick, lasting relief you get from this excellent cough syrup will really surprise you. It promptly heals the inflamed membranes that line the throat and air passages, stops the annoying throat tickle, loosens the phlegm, and soon your cough stops entirely. Splendid for bronchitis, croup, whooping cough and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway pine extract, and is famous the world over for its healing effect on the membranes.

To avoid disappointment ask for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions and don't accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

HUSBAND SAVES WIFE

From Suffering by Getting Her Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Pittsburgh, Pa.—"For many months I was not able to do my work owing to a weakness which caused backache and headaches. A friend called my attention to one of your newspaper advertisements and immediately my husband bought three bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for me. After taking two bottles I felt fine and my troubles caused by that weakness are a thing of the past. All women who suffer as I did should try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. JAS. ROHRBERG, 620 Knapp St., N. S., Pittsburgh, Pa.

Women who suffer from any form of weakness, as indicated by displacements, inflammation, ulceration, irregularities, backache, headaches, nervousness or "the blues," should accept Mrs. Rohrberg's suggestion and give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a thorough trial.

For over forty years it has been correcting such ailments. If you have mysterious complications write for advice to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

LINTONIA CHARGE, MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

Dear Doctor Meek: If not too late, congratulation and greeting for the New Year! We have opened a campaign on the Lintonia charge and hope for great things, God helping, for 1918. Our delightful Annual Conference at Vicksburg, so full of sympathy, good will, and spiritual fervor, augured well for the incoming year. Our good Bishop Murrah seemed always at his best. Not a word of complaint was heard about the appointments. Truly, we may say, "How good and pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity."

Tuesday, Dec. 8, was a great day for the Jackson District. Our efficient presiding elder, Rev. J. M. Morse, invited the pastors of the district to meet with the district stewards to counsel concerning the work of the new year. It was well attended and all seemed to have the swing of victory on all lines. Aggressive work was planned in behalf of an increased circulation of the Advocate. It ought to be in every Methodist home in Mississippi and Louisiana. Many hungry hearts look to the Advocate for spiritual nourishment. "Feed the flock of God," says Paul to the elders of Ephesus. A greater than he said, "Feed my lambs." If one or two pages were devoted exclusively to matter on the spiritual life and growth in grace, would it not be good for the use of edifying?

Now for a long pull, a strong pull, a pull altogether. Yours in Christ,

C. H. ELLIS.

LETTERS THAT INSPIRE CONFIDENCE.

I wish very much that every reader of this paper could spend sufficient time in my office to read the thousands of letters which I have received from all parts of the country. I have printed several hundreds of them in a booklet, but I wish you could see the originals, for I would like to have you realize the wonderful results which they report in the relief of dyspepsia, indigestion, persistent headache, rheumatism, kidney, bladder and liver diseases, uric acid poisoning and other curable conditions due to impure blood.

Before my own health was restored by Shivar Mineral Water and I purchased this Spring, and before I received all these letters from sufferers, I didn't take very much stock in advertisements like this. I therefore cannot blame you if you doubt, but, my friend, I am absolutely convinced that the Shivar Spring is the greatest restorative mineral spring ever discovered, not excepting the famous Spas of Europe. I have shipped this water to thousands of sufferers in all parts of the United States and they almost invariably report either permanent restoration or beneficial results. That is why I make the offer contained in the following letter. Sign it now and mail it.

Box 17-L, Shelton, S. C.
Gentlemen:

I accept your guarantee offer and enclose herewith two dollars for ten gallons of Shivar Mineral Water. I agree to give it a fair trial, in accordance with instructions contained in booklet you will send, and if it fails to benefit my case you agree to refund the price in full upon receipt of the two empty demijohns which I agree to return promptly.

NOTE.—"I have had the pleasure of serving the little church at Shivar Spring as Pastor for years, and am therefore well acquainted with Mr. Shivar and his associates, whom I gladly commend as an honorable business man and worthy of the confidence of the public. I have personally derived great benefit from the use of the Shivar Mineral Water and have knowledge of its beneficial effects in a great number and variety of cases."—Rev. A. McA. Pittman.

Doctor Says Nuxated Iron Will Increase Strength of Delicate People 100% in Ten Days

In many instances—Persons have suffered untold agony for years doctoring for nervous weakness, stomach, liver or kidney disease or some other ailment when their real trouble was lack of iron in the blood.—How to tell.

New York, N. Y.—In a recent discourse Dr. E. Sauer, a Boston physician who has studied widely both in this country and in great European medical institutions, said: "If you were to make an actual blood test on all people who are ill you would probably be greatly astonished at the exceedingly large number who lack iron and who are ill for no other reason than the lack of iron. The moment iron is supplied all their multitude of dangerous symptoms disappear. Without iron the blood at once loses the power to change food into living tissue and therefore nothing you eat does you any good; you don't get the strength out of it. Your food merely passes through your system like corn through a mill with the rollers so wide apart that the mill can't grind. As a result of this continuous blood and nerve starvation, people become generally weakened, nervous and all run down and frequently develop all sorts of conditions. One is too thin; another is burdened with unhealthy fat; some are so weak they can hardly walk; some think they have dyspepsia, kidney or liver trouble; some can't sleep at night, others are sleepy and tired all day; some fussy and irritable; some skinny and bloodless, but all lack physical power and endurance. In such cases, it is worse than foolishness to take stimulating medicines or narcotic drugs, which only whip up your fagging vital powers for the moment, maybe at the expense of your life later on. No matter what any one tells you, if you are not strong and well you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of ordinary nuxated iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see for yourself how much you have gained. I have seen dozens of nervous run-down people who were ailing all the time double, and even triple their strength and endurance and entirely get rid of their symptoms of dyspepsia, liver and other troubles in from ten to fourteen days' time simply by taking iron in the proper form, and this after they had in some cases been doctoring for months without obtaining any benefit. You can talk as you please about all the wonders wrought by new remedies, but when you come down to hard facts there is nothing like good old iron to put color in your cheeks and good sound, healthy flesh on your bones. It is also a great nerve and stomach strengthener and the best blood builder in the world. The only trouble was that the old forms of inorganic iron like tincture of iron, iron acetate etc., often ruined people's teeth, upset their stomachs and were not assimilated and for these reasons they frequently did more harm than good. But with the discovery of the newer forms of organic iron all this has been overcome. Nuxated Iron for example, is pleasant to take, does not injure the teeth and is almost immediately beneficial.

NOTE—The manufacturers of Nuxated Iron have such unbounded confidence in its potency that they authorize the announcement that they will forfeit $100.00 to any Charitable Institution if they cannot take any man or woman under sixty who lacks iron and increase their strength 100 per cent. or over in four weeks' time, provided, they have no serious organic trouble. Also they will refund your money in any case in which Nuxated Iron does not at least double your strength in ten days' time. It is dispensed by all good druggists.

MRS. J. S. PARKER.

On the 9th day of October, 1917, at the Court Street (Hattiesburg) Church was held the funeral services of Mrs. J. S. Parker, one of the oldest and most devout members of that congregation. The sermon was preached by the pastor, who paid a heart-felt tribute to the character of the deceased. Rev. E. H. Mounger, D.D., Rev. W. A. Terry, Rev. P. D. Hardin, and Rev. W. B. Jones assisted in the mournful and tender services.

Sister Parker was a holy and useful woman. All who knew her loved her for her many and great virtues. Her native gifts were developed and refined by careful personal training, and by large measures of the grace of God. She excelled in all the relationships of life. As a daughter, wife, and mother, she was almost without an equal. As a pastor and presiding elder, the writer was frequently in Sister Parker's house. Her gracious hospitality and Christliness of spirit made the visits occasions of great social pleasure and religious profit.

Sister Parker was an intelligent and devout Christian, and a helpful leader in the activities of the Church. She delighted in the Epworth League, Sunday school, and missionary work. As President of the Society and District Secretary, she did much to further missonary interests.

She was an accomplished musician, and by the use of her talents rendered her husband valuable assistance in his long and useful ministry of forty years, as an honored member of the Mississippi Conference.

She was the mother of eight children, four of whom are still living. They mourn her departure and cherish her memory.

Sister Parker was married three times. Rev. J. A. McPherson, of Jackson, La.; was her first husband. He lived about eighteen months after their marriage. About two years after his death, she was happily married to Mr. D. C. Wood, of Wilkinson County, Miss., a young planter of fine family connections. Mr. Wood lived about ten years after their marriage. After a widowhood of two or three years, she was married to Rev. James Sims Parker, a member of the Mississippi Conference, with whom she lived in great happiness for forty years.

Sister Parker was born in Marion County, on March 4, 1837, and passed to her home in heaven in Hattiesburg, Miss., on October 7, 1917. Her's was a long life of more than 78 years. There were many shadows in that long life, but there were also much sunshine and gladness. The world was made better by her having lived in it. Her crown will he studded with many stars.

The writer will never forget her many tender ministries during his long and intimate association with her and her family.

RECIPE FOR GRAY HAIR.

To half pint of water add 1 oz. Bay Rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and ¼ oz. of glycerine. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it at home at very little cost. Full directions for making and use come in each box of Barbo Compound. It will gradually darken streaked, faded gray hair, and make it soft and glossy. It will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy, and does not rub off.—Adv.

LET US AWAKE.

In a recent issue of the Nashville Christian Advocate the editor quotes statistics showing that, while the Methodist Episcopal Church (North) has enjoyed a very gratifying increase in membership the past year, the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, will report no gain at all, or if a gain is shown it will he the lowest reported in years.

I refer to these figures here because I want to invite attention to what I believe a very vital thing—the connection between these figures and the work the Churches are doing in the field of the religious culture of childhood, i. e., in the Sunday school.

In the M. E. Church the Sunday school enrollment is about six hundred fifty thousand more than the church membership—16 per cent greater—while in our Church the Sunday school enrollment is about one hundred eighty-five thousand less than the church membership—9 per cent less. In other words, if we are to place ourselves on an equality with the Northern Church in respect to the opportunity presented in the Sunday school, we must increase our enrollment—in its relation to our Church membership—25 per cent.

It isn't that I would advise increased members just for the sake of numbers. The real opportunity for the Church to grow is in the Sunday school—something like 85 per cent at least of our gain comes from that field—therefore it is a sound conclusion that if we increase by a given proportion the size of the field, and maintain our care of the field, our gains will he in like proportion. Therefore, I urge our people everywhere to "go after the folks." Every boy and girl in your community that is not in a Sunday school should be sought by your school—and sought with a determination to get them.

Our sister Methodism is increasing in membership not only because she has a proportionately larger field of young life to cultivate and draw from, hut because for the past nine years she has been giving increased attention to that field and intensifying her cultivation of it. Both through her local agencies and by means of her well-equipped and strongly-supported connectional forces she has been pushing her Sunday school work until today she stands as a strong, vigorously-growing branch of the Kingdom's standard-bearing hosts, while before that time she was losing year by year in her rate of growth.

Our Church is scarcely fairly started on a campaign of what might be termed intensive extension work for the Sunday school—here and there good work is heing done; hut it is not widespread enough, its support is not sure enough, and the connectional element that should run through it all is as yet too weak. There has not yet come about what might be denominated a Church-wide vision of the possibilities that are in the Sunday school, there has not yet heen aroused a whole Church consciousness of the need of the work, of the loss through delay.

To help in bringing these things to pass the General Sunday School Board, through Bishop Atkins, its chairman, announces the appointment of the following committee to arrange an Educational Exhibit to he put on at Atlanta during the General Conference next May: Mr. W. H. Stockham, chairman; Rev. John W. Shackford, Miss Minnie E. Kennedy, Mr. E. E. French, Mr. J. H. Ledyard.

Mr. Stockham is a manufacturer living in Birmingham, Ala., prominently connected with our First Church of that city and actively identified with the Sunday school interest of Birmingham.

Mr. Shackford is a member of the Virginia Conference, Superintendent of the Teacher-Training Department of our Sunday school work and author of one of the text books in the Methodist Training Course.

Miss Kennedy is Superintendent of the Elementary Department of our Sunday school work and has had wide experience in Sunday school matters.

Mr. French is at the head of the Sunday School Supply Department of our Publishing House at Nashville, and Superintendent of McKendree Sunday school of that city—a man of much Sunday school experience.

Mr. Ledyard is a member of our General Sunday School Board, head of a large manufacturing industry at Tupelo, Miss., and one of the best Sunday school superintendents in that State.

If you who are reading this happeu in Atlanta during the General Conference do not fail to see the Sunday School Exhibit.

Secretary.

THE NEED OF JESUS.

When the present great world war began we heard from numerous sources that Christianity had failed. Articles freighted with this alarming message adorned daily newspapers, secular periodicals of all descriptions, and, in some instances, religious journals of note. This faulty sentiment soon gave place to the more truthful and helpful opinion that Christianity had never been really tried, which resulted in a general longing for a deeper realization of Jesus in the every-day life and a striving to that end. It remains for the future to determine whether the logical step of a deeper spiritual state will be effected or whether the world conflagration will be allowed to pass with only partial convictions and longings the result and letting escape the actual deepening and broadening of the work of grace for which purpose God doubtless allowed these unparalleled disturbances to take place. The writer of this article cannot agree with the numerous predictions that this will be the last great war of all history; that the wits of men will be so sharpened by present experiences as to be able, in the light of the historic progress of all races, to formulate plans which will prevent wars among civilized peoples any more. Not all the human laws possible of enaction can chain men from wrong-doing and wrong-thinking, and not all the gold of millionaries can buy peoples the heaven of peace. It is well that co-operation for the purpose of world peace be manifested, and it is a tendency in the right direction to place laws upon our statute books looking toward the elimination of vice of all kinds; but these finite schemes are doomed to dismal failure unless they are regarded as merely supplementary to the power of God working among men for the bringing about of his kingdom. Therefore, it is not ordained of any man to say, unless he speaks with the vision of a prophet, that a lasting regime of peace is about to be entered into, because God alone can work this miracle. When the souls of men are swayed by him, then this gracious boon is theirs, for "God moves in a mysterious way, His wonders to perform;

He plants His footsteps in the sea, and rides upon the storm.
Deep in unfathomable mines of never-failing skill,
He treasures up his bright designs, and works his sovereign will."

But however far short mankind has fallen in the realm of personal experience in religion, it behooves us to say that never since the coming of Jesus has he been so universally loved as today. Just when the nations were flaunting in the face of God the fact of their attainments and advantages, unrivaled in the ages past, and placing so much faith in human ingenuity and skill, the present war broke forth with such a wreckless disregard of human life, the virtue of woman and the sanctity of childhood, that dismay seized strong men and they have come to think more than ever that Jesus is needed above all things they could ever plan. The editor of a great Southern daily newspaper, who has not been known because of any especial religious zeal, recently expressed himself thus: "Surely the future looks black enough, yet it holds a hope, a single hope. One, and one power only, can arrest the descent and save us: that is the Christian religion." The tendency to keep Jesus in mind, to emulate his example, and to appreciate his power should be encouraged to the greatest extent by those who have experienced his healing power and personal presence. Now is the time to convert ordinary social gatherings into assets of a religious nature, when it can be done with the proper reverence for the sacredness of our Master. We have never believed that religion was such an individual matter that it required so much privacy as to render the pious man impotent to transmit it to others. The bulk of the people perhaps sees enough of the plain and heavy side of religion in church services, at funerals, and other public religious gatherings; these are absolutely essential to our spiritual well-being. But there are many people who never get the opportunity of beholding the every-day working side of Christianity that would very much commend it if its exponents presented it in the right manner. There should be no fear in our minds in speaking of the work of Jesus. As we are confidential with our acquaintances and friends in revealing our experiences in relation to our loved ones who are gone into the great beyond, and in so acting there is no feeling of irreverence for those who have been so dear to us, we could with equal pleasure and more profit speak of Jesus and his work in our hearts. If he is the companion of our lives, as we should allow him to be, there will be a natural tendency to reveal his presence to others as we come in contact with them.

But it is to be feared that the world, while it has turned an admiring gaze at present upon Jesus, has not passed beyond the stage as a whole of observing him in a superficial manner. Certainly there is a great tendeney to emulate his example in life: to display his gentleness and kindliness. At least there is a new appreciation of these virtues as they are seen in the life of Jesus. Men are heard on every hand who say we need the spirit of Jesus, and they often remark that if the rulers of the nations involved in this present war had been more Christlike this tribulation would never have befallen us. Criticisms are frequently heard of ministers and laymen alike by those who remark that Jesus would not have acted as they conducted themselves. At this point arises the greatest difficulty of thoroughly convincing the world of what it is to be a follower of Jesus. Perhaps when the judgment day arrives some men will insist that Christianity consists of being merely an imitator of him; they are content to try to act under every circumstance as Jesus would have acted and of saying what he would have said. Let us say emphatically that such a life is impossible. The nations need more in Jesus than an universal ideal; for the world to-day needs him as a Savior! The question is not whether we have acted as Jesus would have acted, for in our finite wisdom the perfect course cannot be always grasped; but what should concern us is whether we are saved from our sins. Andrea del Sarto, called the "faultless painter," was a man, if we have understood Browning correctly, who was scarcely without an equal among his contemporaries in the delineation of material or human figures, but it seemed impossible for him to put "soul" into his paintings and they therefore remained more or less expressionless. He could with propriety criticise Michel Angelo or Raphael in the drawing of a foot or hand or arm, but those he found faulty in delineation were recognized by him as his superiors in expression. His failing caused him serious misgivings, while to the others he paid the high tribute: "They mean well." The ability to fire a picture with life proved the success of those inferior to Andrea in other lines. Jesus did not come to make the formal life faultless, but to doctor the sin-sick souls of people.

It strikes us that men in great numbers are only elementary in seeking out Jesus. While they do not question his divinity, they seem to think that a recognition of him from the standpoint of the formal and the placing of him upon a pedestal as a sort of impossible model is to impose upon him the dignity of the name of "Savior." Nicodemus was filled with this shallow view of Jesus when he went to him by night, saying, "Rabbi, we know thou art a teacher come from God: for no man can do these miracles that thou doest, except God be with him." Beyond question this pious Jew was biased in favor of Jesus, but at that time he no more understood his mission than did any educated pagan; and it was with wonder that Nicodemus heard him talk about the new birth, asking with great surprise, "How can these things be?" Jesus comprehended the mind of this man; he took ample time to deliberate with him, for he saw that Nicodemus was filled with the idea that to recognize his divine supremacy was to meet all the requirements of his teachings. Even today, when the new birth from the old life into the new life is insisted upon, men seem not to comprehend the meaning of the words. Yet Jesus said so many centuries ago: "Verily, I say unto thee, except a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God." This is the reason that many are shocked when it is said that America is not the Christian nation it ought to be; they are imbued with this sentiment that a nominal Christianity is the depth of the work of Jesus upon earth. We confess that it is impossible for us to be hilarious over the success which the Church has met with in the real transforming of the nations from the natural man into the spiritual man. All of us rejoice in the swift spread of the teachings of Jesus and the recognition of his views as being the safest that can be adopted for the welfare of the peoples; it is a manifestation of the fact that the world has a bent toward him which is favorable for the work of spiritual advisers. It is safe to say that it is easier at this time to reach the souls of men than ever before. The work of the Church is most essential; let it be pressed until men of all the earth join in the refrain—

"There is a fountain filled with blood,
Drawn from Immanuel's veins;
And sinners, plunged beneath that flood,
Lose all their guilty stains.

"Dear dying Lamb! thy precious blood
Shall never lose its power,
Till all the ransomed Church of God
Be saved, to sin no more."

THOUGHTS

Some of us feel that we are [illegible] by immense and overmastering power which we cannot ignore. And yet, like some restless rebel in a dungeon or some fluttering bird in a cage we beat ourselves, all bruised and bloody, against the bars in [illegible] attempts to liberty, threatening with [illegible] of unrest again as we think into a corner of our cell. Some of us, thank God! feel that we are anchored on every side by that mighty stand which none can resist, and from which we would not stray if we could, and we joyfully ride beneath its waves, and gladly obey when it points. Maclaren.

BE READY.

"In the 13th chapter of Romans Paul writes 'for that which is good and noble shall have praise of the same.' But 'to do good' we need to plan. The good deeds done in the world do not just happen. Nearly all of them have been thought out beforehand. Opportunities to serve our fellowmen sometimes come to us very suddenly, but unless we have trained ourselves for service they will escape us. There is a word for which the Apostle Paul seemed very fond. It is the word 'ready.' It is a great thing to be ready for the task, the opportunity, the emergency. Opportunity has been pictured with wings on its feet. It passes very swiftly from our reach if not grasped in time."

A PRAYER.

Father, give me a forgiving spirit. Help me to forgive my friends as well as my enemies. I have not found it so hard to forgive my enemies who hate me as to forgive my friends who fail me. For often have I been disappointed in my friends, and hard it has been when they have failed me to keep bitterness out of my heart. And I have been so quick to judge them, so quick to forget their former kindnesses, so prone to blame them for neglect that was only seeming. Father, I have been hungry for the compassion of my friends; help me, I pray Thee, to show toward them that compassion which I would have them show toward me. Amen.—Rev. Edward Leigh Pell, D. D.

THE BIBLE.

The Bible is the record of the Revelation of God made to man. That is what it professes to be, that is how it claims to be read, and that is how we must judge it. It is not a text book of history or science; it has but one purpose and end—to show forth the revelation of God through the ages. In so doing it records also man's perception of God during the same time. God sent his teachers and prophets; men learned from these in just the same way that men learn now. The Bible gives the record of the teaching of the prophets and the failures, as well as the successes, of men to receive and act upon this teaching. More than this, God spoke through his prophets unto his people in the language they could understand; for instance, God took a Semitic tribe and revealed unto them his essential unity and himself as the Creator of all things, but in so doing he did not disclose to them modern science as man has come to [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] defiance of international laws and treaties. Christian civilization stands for law, for order, and for justice among the peoples and nations of the earth. It never goes to war for conquest nor for gain, but it is a mighty power of defense for the oppressed, for the weak but righteous nations. It does not war to make the heathen accept the Gospel. It has no hate, or revenge, or lust of conquest, nor yet for gain, but for peace and love of humanity. It kills that men may live and be free—things which are dearer than one's own life.

THE EVERY MEMBER CANVASS.

Dear Doctor: I received a letter to-day from a member of the Board of Missions of the North Mississippi Conference asking me to give through your paper for the coming week a practical plan for use in the "Every Member Canvass." I gladly do so, though I am not an expert in this work. I am most thoroughly convinced that the "Every Member Canvass" is both practical and vital. And it WILL WORK if gone at in the right way and pushed to the end. I give here a brief, but what I hope is a comprehensive plan, as I have worked it, and as we are working it at First Church now.

The first step is to choose a Sunday afternoon for the canvass. On that afternoon every Methodist of your church is expected and requested to remain at home until the committee calls for a contribution for missions.

Second—Have the Lay Leader of the church appoint a committee of men from the church—do not use members of your board of stewards or trustees if you can avoid it. It depends on the number of the membership of the church as to the size of your committee. There should be two men for each twenty households, which I find is about all they can see in one afternoon.

Third—Begin one month in advance of the Sunday chosen, and announce this canvass in every service the church holds—preaching service, prayer meeting, missionary society and Sunday school. Don't let up with this publicity element. It is vital and exceedingly necessary. Get your committee to put some kind of banner in the church, have some member of your church who talks well to make a brief, spicy, to-the-point talk some Sunday morning. And have your board of stewards endorse the canvass by resolution.

Fourth—Call your committee together and allot to them the homes they are to visit on the afternoon of the canvass. Be sure to send them TWO and TWO. Don't send one man. Let them go in pairs. There are many reasons for this. Have at least two meetings with this committee before the day of the canvass. This is necessary that the men may get a good, thorough understanding of the work they are to do. On the afternoon chosen have all members of the committee meet at the church at 2 p. m. Have prayer, asking God to bless the work; then let all start out together.

Fifth—Have a rally that night at the church and have each pair of the committee to come forward and report the result of their work in cash and subscriptions; also have them, if possible, to relate any pleasant incident occurring that afternoon, being certain to leave the unpleasant out. You will be surprised at two things: first, how readily your men will respond to do this work when asked in a plain, business-like way, and, second, you will be graciously surprised to see what your people have done for the world-wide kingdom of our Lord.

THIS EVERY MEMBER CANVASS WILL WORK—TRY IT.

THE NEGRO AND UNIFICATION ONCE MORE.

In the Christian Advocate (Nashville), issue of January 11, 1918, Dr. Ivey has done the Church a real service in laying before his readers "Some Important History" relative to the dealings of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, with the Negro in those days of transition from membership in our Church to the establishment of their own Independent Church. That history is so interesting that we propose to lay a part of Dr. Ivey's quotations of it before our readers. The General Conference of 1866 had before it the consideration of the religious interests of the colored people. There seems to have been a special committee appointed to give a special study to this subject. Dr. Ivey quotes from their second report as follows:

1. Let our colored people be organized as separate pastoral charges whenever they prefer it and their numbers justify it.

2. Let each pastoral charge of colored members have its own Quarterly Conference, composed of official members, as provided for in the Discipline.

3. Let colored persons be licensed to preach and ordained deacons and elders, according to the Discipline, when, in the judgment of the Conference having jurisdiction in the case, they are deemed suitable persons for said order and office in the ministry.

4. The Bishop may form a district of colored charges and appoint to it a colored presiding elder when, in his judgment, the religious interests of the colored people require it.

5. When it is judged advisable by the College of Bishops, Annual Conferences of colored preachers may be organized, to be presided over by our Bishops.

6. When two or more Annual Conferences shall be formed, let our Bishops advise and assist them in organizing a separate General Conference jurisdiction for themselves, if they so desire, and the Bishops deem it expedient, in accordance with the doctrines and Discipline of our Church, and bearing the same relation to the General Conference as the Annual Conferences bear to each other.

The thesis established by Dr. Ivey by this quotation from the action of the General Conference of 1866 is that our Church at that time purposed to bring its colored membership into such relation to our Church as is now being proposed by certain members from both sides of the Joint Commission now wrestling with the status of the colored brother in the re-organized Church—"a relation," to quote again, "meaning common membership, but separate jurisdiction and separate General Conferences." We have been sincerely interested in the proposals of Dr. DuBose of our own Church, and of Dr. Blake and Zion's Herald of the Methodist Episcopal Church, involving the idea suggested above. It is interesting to know that the idea has been tried; that is, that it was thought the wise thing to do, the General Conference took favorable action on it, the way was open with no half century of race conflict to complicate the putting of it into operation, the whole machinery of the Church was headed toward it with all the difficulties shoved aside that official action could get out of the way—and yet it did not get into operation. What was the trouble? Dr. Ivey's quotations do not go far enough to tell. We are not familiar enough with the history to know; but it appears that when a separate General Conference for our colored members materialized in 1870, and their separate jurisdiction was established, it likewise resulted in a separate membership—and everybody seemed happy over the result.

The result of that experiment does not to our mind encourage the attempt now being made in some quarters to devise a plan to "tag on" a contingent of the colored people in reorganized Methodism. It did not succeed fifty-two years ago, when conditions were much more favorable to such an arrangement than they are to-day. It would have been a misfortune if it had succeeded. Providence was working in the interests of the Kingdom of God, both among colored people and among white people, when the scheme failed. We doubt not the sincerity of the men who planned it. They were sincerely interested in the religious welfare of the colored people of the South. They desired unselfishly to do what was best for all concerned. God saw the sincerity of their hearts and led them better than they knew.

The Methodist Episcopal Church is entirely right when it claims that this is only one phase of the race question in the Methodist Church. The way this question is settled must point the way for dealing with all the races with whom we may have to do as a Church. It is not a question of race prejudice—not a matter of hatred to the Negro race. The true white men of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, do not hate the Negro. We sincerely desire his betterment; but so far as this writer is concerned the conviction is clear that the Negro must work out his own destiny. He must solve his own Church problems, as well as his own social problems and economic problems; and he can never do this until he is thrown upon his own responsibility. We must not hobble him in our efforts to help him. No race has ever developed as the nursling of another; none ever will. The Negro is no exception. Let him have his own ecclesiastical organization, and what help we can give him must be turned loose for his own control.

In this discussion of Unification, it seems to us that the Methodist Episcopal Church has become obsessed with the idea of a world-Church—not simply a world-Church in the higher Inorganic sense of a spiritual unity, but in the lower sense of an organic world-wide ecclesiasticism. The brotherhood of man has been confused with organic solidarity. Judging from the discussions in their Church press, they want to tie up with their own Church in this country the Chinese, the Japanese, the Hindu, the Indian, the African, and all the rest the world over. It seems to us that Rome never had a stronger desire for world-wide ecclesiastical dominion than has the Methodist Episcopal Church so far as Methodist people are concerned; and they approach the settlement of the Negro question in its relation to Unification with a view to including all the races in all lands where they go as the bearer of the Gospel message to save men. The idea is fundamentally subversive of racial integrity and racial development. As a foreign people we may and will bring a few Chinese to the saving knowledge of Jesus Christ. We have already accomplished that fact, and will bring more. But, when China is evangelized, when the great heart of that great people is really stirred, it will be done under the leadership of Chinese people, and their organic ecclesiasticism will have to be of their own people, and it ought to be so. The Chinese people will never yield their religious allegiance to a foreign people. If you wish to see this truth in all its glaring certainty, just try to imagine ourselves bound up in an ecclesiasticism with its seat of authority and leadership in China composed of Chinese. The idea becomes ludicrous. We ought to recognize the same principle in dealing with the Negro. The fact of his habitation with us does not change the fact. His home life, his social life, his religious life, is as much a thing apart from that of the white race as if he lived in another country. When it comes down to the detail work of saving the Negro, the principle of separateness is recognized by all parties. There are points of individual contact here and there it is true, but that is practically negligible in the work of leavening the mass of Negro life with the gospel truth. Give them their independence in Church, as in State, and then give them what help circumstances will permit.—Raleigh Christian Advocate.

CHURCH EXTENSION AID.

The annual meeting of the Board of Church Extension of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, will be held immediately preceding the session of the General Conference.

The Conference Boards of Church Extension, or their Executive Committees, meet early in March to consider applications and make their recommendations to the General Board.

Applications for aid from the General Board should be sent directly to the Secretary of the Conference Board. Application blanks and necessary information may be secured from this office. Such requests should be accompanied by information as to whether aid is desired for church or parsonage; also as to the purpose of the trustees to apply for aid to the General or Conference Board, or both.

Delay in preparing applications, and therefore failure to place same before the Conference Board in time for consideration, does not constitute an "emergency case."

Corresponding Secretary.

Our Advocate Campaign.

TO THE PREACHERS OF THE LOUISIANA, MISSISSIPPI, AND NORTH MISSISIPPI CONFERENCES.

New Orleans, Jan. 29, 1918.

Dear Brethren—

I am now serving my fourteenth year as Publisher of the New Orleans Christian Advocate. During all of this time I have tried to be faithful, and have performed my work conscientiously, believing that the pastors of our Church in the three patronizing Conferences would appreciate my efforts and give me their hearty support. Many of our pastors have been loyal, and have done more for the Conference organ than was expected of them. To these I am grateful, and I know them by name. Many others, who could have been helpful, have not shown a very enthusiastic spirit.

At the annual meeting of the Publishing Committee held last November, I indicated to that body that I could not hope to continue with the Advocate unless we could get a more generous support from our pastors, and the Publishing Committee decided to appeal to the several Conferences, with the result that each patronizing Conference decided to put on a special campaign the last week in January, or the first week in February, and called upon the preachers to make an effort to secure a list of new subscribers in their respective charges.

Brethren, if you have not responded to the action of your Conference, please do so at once. Print paper and other materials have advanced in price, and our income is insufficient to meet the advance. If we are to continue to put out a creditable paper, we must have your unstinted support. I appeal to you to come to our assistance, and do all you can to make the campaign a success. "Let's go over the top." You have helped many other causes—will you be indifferent to the needs of the Conference Organ?

If the present campaign does not give us the desired assistance, we will be compelled to raise the subscription rate of the Advocate from $1.50 to $2, as it was before I became Publisher of the Advocate. This we hope to avoid.

To those of our preachers who are indifferent to the claims of the Advocate, this appeal is made. Brethren, give me your hearty support, and help me to make it possible to place a creditable paper in the homes of our Methodist people.

Sincerely,

CHAS. O. CHALMERS,

Rev. R. W. Tucuker, our pastor at Crowley, La., sends us 41 new subscribers and 5 renewals, with a check of $69 to cover the list. His letter follows:

"Crowley, La., Jan. 28, 1918.

"Dear Advocate: I gave the whole of last week in working for the Advocate. Things are moving off here very well so far this year. Blessings on you. Cordially, R. W. TUCKER."

Rev. R. G. Moore, pastor at Moorhead, Miss., sends us a list of six subscriptions, with a check for $9. Following is his letter:

"Moorhead, Miss., Jan. 28, 1918.

"Dear Dr. Meek: Despite the unfavorableness of the weather, I have been canvassing my people in behalf of the Advocate. I shall extend my campaign into the second week, trusting that I shall secure more subscribers. The Advocate is always a welcome and pleasant visitor at the parsonage. Its arrival is the bright spot in every week for me. May it have a wider circulation and a freer entrance into every Methodist home. The outlook for a good year at Moorhead is encouraging.

"With best wishes, I am, Cordially,

R. G. MOORE."

Rev. O. L. Savage, Webb, Miss., remits for two new subscriptions, and remarks in his communication: "I pledged ten new subscriptions to the Advocate and have already sent two of them. I shall do my best to send in the number promised." Brother Savage had previously sent us a large list of renewals.

Rev. J. M. Wyatt, Shelby, Miss., evidences to our pleasure much interest in the Advocate campaign. His communication reads: "Herein is a list of subscribers—twenty-two in number—and all are new subscriptions except one. You will note that this is five above the quota of new subscriptions assigned this charge by the District Stewards."

We appreciate the activities of the following brethren who sent in subscriptiois, not elsewhere acknowledged: Rev. John W. Ramsey, New Augusta, Miss., 10; Rev. W. M. Young, Pontotoc, Miss., 6; Rev. J. T. McCafferty, Durant, Miss., 3; Rev. Wm. Schuhle, Logansport, La., 3; Rev. A. D. burg, La., 2; Rev. J. G. Johnson, Myrtle, Miss., 3; Rev. C. H. Ellis, Yazoo City, Miss., 4; Rev. M. E. Scott, Black Hawk, Miss., 12; Rev. A. J. Gearheard, New Orleans, 2 renewals. Many others have sent in one cach.

THE TIME LIMIT A METHODIST ESSENTIAL.

By Rev. Clare Purcell.

Iconoclastic reformers are still at work in Methodism. Although it was devoutly hoped that they would not lay hands upon Methodist essentials, it is evident that even these must be shaken. The Tennessee Conference and one or two others have memorialized the General Conference to remove the time limit. However, one or two other Conferences have declined by decisive majorities to do so. It would seem that there is a well-organized propaganda to force this issue again in the next General Conference. This is to be regretted. There are some things in our Methodism which should long since have taken on themselves the quality of finality, and the time limit is one of them. It has through many decades demonstrated its value as a mighty driving wheel in our itinerancy and should not be removed. The purpose of this article is to show why the four-year limit should remain as it is in Southern Methodism. The following reasons are offered for this position:

1. There Is So Little Real Argument Against it.—Within all the articles offered against it the following statements only seem worthy of reply: (1) They say that "if there is no other reason why a man should move, he should not move." This is simply begging the question, because we contend that there are always other reasons why he should move. (2) They say that "we are the only Church that has it." Very true. But we have many other characteristics which others do not possess, and that to our glory. (3) "There is not time enough in four years to carry out a real constructive program," they say. We have never seen a program of any preacher in Southern Methodism that would require longer. If the people of the United States believe that four years is long enough for a man to carry out a great program as President, and that eight years is as long, in any event, as he should occupy that exalted position, is it not possible for any Methodist preacher to deliver his message and do his work within a quadrennium? (4) They further argue that under the time limit we are not producing any "great preachers." This is one of the most untenable positions the opposition has yet occupied. We thought we had had some mighty men of God among the Methodist preachers of the nineteenth century. There were Marvin, Pierce, Galloway, and Wilson, while there are many of the present who will be called great fifty years from to-day. But, granting that we are not producing many great preachers, does that indicate that the time limit is even remotely responsible for it? And even if it be true that the time limit is keeping Southern Methodism from producing great preachers, should we remove it for that reason only? Great preachers are but by-products in the kingdom of God, and we can afford to sacrifice a by-product for the good of the kingdom. (5) Finally, it is said that "we need to remove the time limit in order to meet peculiar conditions in certain churches." Let us beware lest, in meeting a few peculiar conditions, we create many peculiarly undesirable conditions.

2. The Effort to Remove the Time Limit is a Strike at Itinerancy.—It must be admitted that when it becomes possible for a man to stay in a place indefinitely our itinerancy loses its democracy and becomes only a meaningless name. This divinely indorsed system of itinerancy is based upon the principle that the distribution of service is better than the continued concentration of service. Brother A is a very successful preacher. When he was a young man, he was sent to a small church in the largest city in his Conference. Within four years he carried out such a constructive program as to make it an important appointment. He would gladly have remained there; but if he had, he would at best have touched a comparatively few lives. As it was, he has since been sent to seven other churches for a quadrennium each and has blessed multiplied thousands of other lives. In distributing his life he multiplied its power many hundredfold. In fact, this constant current of ministerial life through Methodism accounts for its present blessed virility. It is not a stagnant pond, but a bounding river of blessing. Such is four-year itinerancy.

3. The Removal of the Time Limit Would Be a Step Toward Congregationalism.—It must further be admitted that where it is possible for local conditions, be they ever so happy, to determine an appointment, without reference to any other church's needs, connectionalism breaks down and congregationalism is established. We have always glorified in our strong bond of union among all Methodist congregations. in our union has been our might. Any movement looking toward the breaking down of that bond is ill advised and deserves failure. It seems to this writer that the establishment of long pastorates would be a long step toward setting up an individualism among the various congregations of our Methodism. This may be just what many of the backers of this propaganda desire; and they may win adherents to their cause by saying that it is a part of the process of "democratizing" Methodism, but it will prove to be the process of "aristocratizing" Methodism. When we destroy that which makes us a common connection, we shall become a rope of sand.

4. The Unlimited Pastorate Would Develop a "One-Sided" Church and a "One-Sided" Ministry.—It is to be seriously doubted that any preacher's personality should be impressed upon a single congregation for a long period of years. With the congregation it encourages the exaltation of the preacher above the Church. His thoughts become their thoughts, his view-point their view-point. They rise no higher than he has risen. It becomes too easy to center everything about him and to lose sight of the kingdom and the King. With the preacher it robs him of the valuable and varied experiences of a real itinerant and dwarfs his soul within the narrow horizon of one little crowd. He loses his interest in the hundreds of other fields where he may be more greatly needed. But the unwisdom of the unlimited pastorate is best seen in the crisis precipitated by the inevitable removal or death of a pastor. Who has not observed in other Churches the confusion created when a dearly beloved minister passes away or hears another call after one or two decades of service?

WAR CONDITIONS

—REFLECTED IN—

TELEPHONE SERVICE

Among the unforeseen conditions which the war has imposed upon us is the necessity of practically suspending the commercial development of our business.

Confronted with an unusual increase in the use of the telephone and a strong demand for new and additional service, we cannot accept or fill orders except subject to practically an indefinite delay.

This situation is due to the importance of conserving our supplies so that the government's requirements may be promptly met by giving the War Department service anywhere and at any time the request is made.

T. BARTON BAIRD, Dist. Mgr.

CUMBERLAND TELEPHONE AND TELEGRAPH COMPANY

Incorporated.

A new preacher is called, but he is so different from the old. The congregation cannot just adjust itself to the abrupt change. The old sentimental bonds attaching them to the old minister are hard to break. He married them, baptized their babies, then married these. He buried their parents and grandparents. This is not to show disrespect for such a beautiful affection, but it is to show how these things may block the work of the Kingdom in an unlimited pastorate. The congregation had grown "one-sided."

The Methodist Church has been for nearly two hundred years the most militant branch of evangelical Protestantism. It has always been looked upon as the army of the Lord because of its similarity to a great military system. Methodism comes nearer being the moral and spiritual equivalent of war than any other institution in the world. And it has come about because every man stands at attention, ready for the word "Go." Other Churches may struggle along with long-time pastorates, but as for ours the time limit is one of its militant essentials. May she keep it to the end!

SOME SUGGESTIONS FOR SECURING FUNDS FOR EDUCATION.

The institutions of learning of the M. E. Church, South, confront a situation demanding the most careful consideration and the wisest direction the Church is capable of furnishing. The ideal of a standardized correlated system of schools which has been before the Church for more than twenty years is more nearly realized to-day than ever before. The members of the system are academies, junior colleges, colleges, and universities. The patronage of the different institutions of the system is very gratifying indeed. The enrollment last year was nearly 20,000. While the importance of any members of the system should not be underestimated, still the places of strategic importance are held by the colleges and the theological schools. The most urgent need of our schools just now is adequate financial support. The majority of them are burdened with interest-bearing debts. Only two of them have adequate endowment. The annual income of very many of them has not been sufficient to meet annual expenses, and most of them are in need of better equipment. Funds with which to support the educational institutions of the Church are secured in three ways:

1. By assessment for education.
2. By tuition and other fees paid by the students.
3. By voluntary gifts by the patrons and friends for endowment, for equipment, for current expenses, etc.

Although our schools are everywhere in competition with State institutions which are free, they are compelled to charge a considerable tuition fee in order to maintain themselves. In the lower schools tuition fees are the principal source of income. In order to maintain institutions above the rank of academies, funds secured from tuition must be supplemented by the proceeds from Conference collections and productive endowments. It is a well established principle that no institution above the rank of an academy can maintain itself from tuition fees alone.

That the academies, junior colleges, and colleges may be strengthened sufficiently to meet the heavy demands upon them, they should receive within the next four or five years not less than eight million dollars. For the better equipment and endowment of the two universities the Church should furnish, during the same period, not less than five or six million dollars. I suggest that it would be well for the General Conference to recognize the needs of these different classes of institutions, at least to the extent here mentioned, and ask the Church to furnish the amount. If our schools are to play their part in the coming world reconstruction, they must be made strong and vigorous.

The Church has wisely settled upon the policy of placing the entire Church back of theological education. Instead of conducting theological schools owned and controlled by a single Annual Conference, or a group of Annual Conferences, each of our theological schools is related to the whole Church, through the General Conference. Theological education with us is not to be a local or provincial affair, but the task of the whole Church. The responsibility for providing adequately for these theological schools is not upon any local community, Conference, or group of Conferences, but upon the whole Church. This is exactly as it should be. The General Conference of 1914 recognized its responsibility in the matter and laid an assessment upon the entire Church for their maintenance. The School of Theology at Emory University is at present supported by the income from $500,000 endowment and one-half of the proceeds of the assessment made for theological education by the General Conference. The School of Theology of Southern Methodist University is now in its second year. So far, it has been supported mainly by one-half of the proceeds of the assessment made by the General Conference, which last year amounted to $6,711.77, and by Annual Conference assessments, principally from the five Texas Conferences. So far, the School of Theology west of the Mississippi River has secured less than $40,000 endowment. This should be increased at the very earliest practicable moment to $500,000. Of course, this sum will be secured largely from the territory west of the Mississippi River. Meanwhile, the General Conference should lay an assessment of not less than $40,000 annually for the School of Theology of Southern Methodist University, to run through the quadrennium, or to such time as the $500,000 endowment is secured. The assessment of $10,000 for the School of Theology of Emory University should be continued.

An important principle of educational finance should be clearly and definitely settled by the General Conference, namely, that whatever assessment is to be made for the two schools of theology should be made by the General Conference, and, of course, upon the whole Church. The General Conference should lay upon the Church an assessment sufficiently large to meet the needs of these schools of theology till such time as permanent endowment is secured. This will obviate the necessity of these schools asking the Annual Conferences to make assessments for them, thus leaving all the proceeds of Annual Conference assessments for education to be used by the Annual Conferences in the maintenance of their Conference schools.

THE DISTURBANCE IN OUR ZION.

Dear Dr. Meek: Will you pardon me for attempting to lift up a warning voice to the Commissioners of Southern Methodism and the General Conference which is to meet in May, in Atlanta, Ga., on a question that is disturbing our Zion? A union that is not a union in fact would be worse than a division, and more difficult to settle in the years to come.

The extreme unionists among us are not aware of the extent to which sentiment of the great body of our Southern Methodist people is against their view. They are too far away from the common people to know what they think, and they are thinking, let me assure you. The agitation has done us harm by unsettling the minds of people outside of the Church, and many of our own people are growing impatient and losing interest because they do not know what will be the final outcome.

I cannot see how we can be true to our trust if we allow ourselves to be absorbed by the Northern Church. The fundamental principles of the Oklahoma plan furnish the only hope of unification along with the preservation of our identity as a Church.

I have no ill will toward the Church, North, and wish them Godspeed; but any promise they may make can be as easily broken as were those of the past. It is a well-known fact that they have persistently refused to abide by the most solemn agreements and have declined to respect our rights as a Church except as they were compelled to do so by law or public sentiment.

If we had been a failure in saving the people in this Southland and were retrograding in doctrine, polity, or morals, I could then see some good reason for submitting to an absorption. But it is a fact known and read by all men that we are standing by the old-time doctrines and polity of historic Methodism, with more fidelity than the Church, North, is doing. It is also known that we have increased in numbers, under the greatest difficulties, in greater proportion to the increase in population in our territory than the Church, North, has done in its territory.

They took from us nearly all our colored membership, telling them if they did not come and join God's Church, the rebels would put them back in slavery in five years. The Southern Methodist Church was thus misrepresented from pulpit and pew, by men who did not scruple to do or say almost anything. It is a wonder we were able to keep any Negroes under the circumstances.

We have increased in this Southland more than any other Church in it, and have to-day a stronger hold upon the social, intellectual, and moral sentiment of its people than any other Church; and more than the Church, North, has upon the people of its section. It would be the greatest calamity to the general interests of the South that ever came to them for our Church to be absorbed by the Northern Methodists. The South is looking to us for leadership with reference to all the great questions affecting the uplifting of the masses, as it is to no other Church in the land. It will disturb moral, social, and religious influences in the Southern States for our Church to come under Northern domination, as nothing else has ever done.

Dr. Meek, if a reasonable per cent of our people were in sympathy with this movement, it would not amount to so much. But 90 per cent of them are opposed to it, and will positively refuse to go into such an amalgamation. I am pretty well acquainted with the masses of the people in the North Mississippi Conference, and I am sure they will rebel, and you know what that would mean among us.

It would be far better for the Church if the few "high-ups" that are so clamorous for Union would go on over to the Church, North, and if they find the delectable mountains they think they will see when they get there, let them send us word down here and we will cross over, every hoof of us. I wish they would go, for they have been a thorn in the flesh to our Church for twenty years, and if they would just get out of the way, we would take the land.

Now just a word to those clamorous democratic laymen. I wish they would read up a little on Church history, and if they are really in earnest about a democratic Church they will find that it has already been in existence and has been tried. Nearly a hundred years ago some good, honest folks withdrew from Episcopal Methodism and organized a real democratic Church—the most democratic Church in the world, and they have been struggling for life ever since. Possibly the brethren who are sighing for more democracy would be welcomed into their fold. They could then have all the democracy they want. Why don't they go there? After ninety years of faithful and diligent effort on the part of these good democratic men, there are only 300,000 members in the Protestant Methodist Church. No autocratic Bishops, no "yaller-eyed" presiding elders to bother with, and everybody has a say-so on everything. On the other hand, Episcopal Methodism, ridden to death by Bishops and presiding elders and preachers, has won a membership of nearly seven million members. How in the world these wise, democratic, far-seeing laymen have missed noticing this democratic Methodist Church is passing strange to me.

Tell me, ye wise ones, would there be any good reason or sense in turning from a Church that saves the people by the millions, for one that is saving only a few?

Tell these democratic laymen to go on over, too, and let us alone. We are not going that way.

DR. COOK'S PAMPHLET.

By Rev. J. F. Corbin.

(Brother Corbin is connected with our Mexican work in California, and has long been a worker among the Mexican people. It is doubtful whether any man in the M. E. Church, South, is more competent than is he to discuss matters pertaining to our Mexican work. This is the first of several articles that he will contribute to the New Orleans Advocate.)

Since Dr. Cook's pamphlet has had such publicity and received so much attention, "it seems good to me also, having perfect understanding of these things from the first, to write, that the Church might know the uncertainty of some of those things whereof he writes. I do this the more willingly as I am one of the parties to whom he refers. I desire to kindly point out some of the errors, mistakes, and omission of facts that ought to have been correctly and clearly stated in his pamphlet.

Misrepresentation of Facts.

1. On page 15 of this pamphlet he says: "As a matter of fact, there is on record in this office, as shown by Dr. Pinson's published booklet in the controversy on the subject, letters from a majority of these self-same missionaries urging practically every point in the program except the change in boundaries."

The facts in the case do not sustain this statement, for Dr. Pinson's booklet on page 2 shows that three of the missionaries who signed the Protest against the Cincinnati scheme had written the office approving some phases of the plan. There were but three, for you may rest assured had there been more Dr. Pinson, who raked and scraped every nook and corner and turned and twisted every semblance of a fact in order to break the force of our protest, would have published their names if there had been any more to publish. How Dr. Cook could say these three are "a majority of these self-same missionaries," while there were TWENTY-EIGHT bona fide missionaries who signed that protest, is hard to understand. This wild statement shows that he was very careless in the use of records, over-anxious to refute Bishop Hoss's argument, and willing to make the impression that the missionaries in question were ignorant and fickle.

2. He says on page 11 of his pamphlet: "After commanding the best wisdom and experience the respective Boards could call into requisition they arrived at a policy which was satisfactory to nine out of the eleven boards connected with the enterprise." On page 12 he says: "Bishop Lambuth, then in charge of our work in Mexico, presided over the representatives of the eleven boards gathered for the purpose of defining the policies which had been so long under discussion." The statements are clear but the following are the facts: The following Churches were represented at Cincinnati and took part in that meeting, viz., (1) the Northern Baptists, (2) Congregationalists, (3) Disciples, (4) Episcopalians, (5) Friends, (6) Northern Methodists. (7) Southern Methodists, (8) the Northern Presbyterians and (9) the Southern Presbyterians. Exactly nine by actual count. But to squeeze out eleven Dr. Cook included the agent of the American Bible Society and the Secretary of the Y. M. C. A. But these are not churches and should never be counted or take part in matters which concern the denominations alone. It is a fact that the representative of the Episcopal Church frankly informed the Conference that his Board could not take part in territorial occupation, union education, union publications and in adopting a new name for their church in Mexico. It is a fact that the Board of the Northern Baptists declined to approve the action of their representatives, and the Church withdrew entirely from the plan. So the plan adopted by that meeting was not "satisfactory to nine boards" of the eleven, as he asserts. Two of the Churches going into the scheme have almost nothing in Mexico, which practically leaves but five churches to which the scheme seems to be satisfactory.

3. On page 10 Dr. Cook speaks of a "Union Christian College," but there is not a word in any report, letter or newspaper article falling under my eye that indicates it is to be a "Christian College" at all. It was generally understood that it was to be a great secular college that would do indirect mission work. The missionaries in their Protest say: "If the people will not give liberally to a college to do indirect mission work in Mexico they will not give more liberally to a secular or interdenominational college."

Facts Omitted by Dr. Cook's Paper.

If the public is to form an intelligent opinion as to why the Bishops declined to carry out the Cincinnati scheme his paper should have contained the following facts:

1. Our preachers are requred to lay aside our Discipline and to give members when leaving our Church a letter prepared by a committee.

2. The name of our Church is to be changed to that of "the Evangelical Church of Mexico."

3. There is to be but one church paper for all Churches at work in Mexico.

4. The Conference of Missionaries at Laredo, Texas, recommended that there should be a "conference of missionaries at work in Mexico, held either in the United States or Mexico, to make a re-study of the work in Mexico," etc., which was entirely ignored by the Bishop in charge and the Secretaries by calling a conference (to meet in Cincinnati) of Bishops, secretaries, members of boards, Y. M. C. A. secretaries, Bible agents, and a few missionaries, four of whom were from our Church, and one of these four had been practically out of the work eleven years, and the rest of our missionaries at work in Mexico were ignored —some of them not knowing that such a conference had been called until after it had adjourned.

5. The Board of Missions, in regular session at Nashville in 1914, adopted the report of the Committee on Foreign Department, which said, "We recommend that the Board approve the principle of co-operation, leaving it to the missionaries on the field to work out the details." This action of the Board was set aside and the Secretaries and Bishops entered into the most stupendous plan of readjustment, co-operation and union ever proposed for any mission field, and that without consulting the missionaries on the field.

I think the Church, before forming judgment as to the action of the Bishops in declining to carry out the Cincinnati Plan, should know all of these facts and some others that I desire to present in another article.

A DAY WITH THE CAMP PASTOR AT CAMP SHELBY.

It was the writer's good fortune to be able to spend the day with Rev. R. H. Kleiser, the camp pastor of Camp Shelby. The many kindnesses and courtesies shown were appreciated. I found to my delight that he had access everywhere and that he was on the job. I realized in a way the need of such work, but after a visit I feel that each one ought to remember our brother in prayer daily that he may be given strength to meet the situation. There is so much for him to do. The very vastness of the task is staggering.

I attended service with him the night of January 15. Mr. Drum, of New York, spoke to about two thousand soldiers, and it seemed to me that at least three hundred of them professed faith in God. It was the most inspiring sight that I ever saw in my life. Those who professed signed the Y. M. C. A. War Card, on which is stated the Church of which they are members, or their Church preference. The cards of those who sign for the Methodist Church are turned over to our camp pastor, and then his job is to get them tied on to the Church hard and fast, and to do the personal work necessary to keep them lined up, and to see that this profession is not merely of word only. It is a glorious opportunity. I wish that we were able to give him the funds he ought to have. He needs right now at least an office assistant. Everything in connection with his work is an expense. To cover the camp as it should be done by one man is impossible, but I thank God that we are attempting to do something for these men. Hundreds of them are professing faith. If we can keep them lined up, what a wonderful crown will be ours. Brother Kleiser is the right man in the right place. Let us hold up his hands that the work fail not. He has a fine lecture on the war. A visit from him to your work will be a blessing. May the blessings of God rest upon him and the great work!

A NOTE FROM BROTHER BABB.

Dear Dr. Meek: Suffer a few lines about our work and ourselves. More than a month of the Conference year has gone. We are here our last year for this term, which will make two terms of four years each since the beginning of 1905. Our people have been exceedingly nice to us. We are working and praying that this may be a great year in building up the Church.

One thing that has come to us that is unusual was the fiftieth anniversary of our marriage. Our marriage came after much earnest prayer to be guided in this sacred relation. I have never had a moment's regret as to the step taken. Our courtship commenced about two years before our marriage, and has kept up unabatingly to this good day.

Our fifty years have been full of work and love to God and his Church. Our family altar was erected the first night that we moved to ourselves, and has been kept up unceasingly ever since. Oh, what a privilege, as well as a duty! We have neglected much that we might have done, but we have tried to do the best that we could.

I will note a few things that have taken place since the fifty years commenced. That prince of common sense pastors, Rev. J. W. Honnoll, was our first pastor. Under him and W. D. F. Hafford, I was licensed to preach on October 25, 1868, at Kossuth, Miss. I was given work as a supply on the Jonesboro Circuit at Grenada in 1873. In 1874, I, with a large class, joined the North Mississippi Conference at Aberdeen. As far as I know, but two of that class are in the effective work—Bishop W. B. Murrah and myself. Brother John Ritchey came to us as an undergraduate by transfer and finished up the four years' course of study. He also is still effective.

It is a source of much gratitude to know that I have not missed a quarterly conference, a district conference, nor an Annual Conference in all these years, and not more than six appointments have been missed because of my own sickness. Of course, I have missed many as a result of family afflictions. Surely goodness and mercy have followed us all these years. Multiplied thousands have been our friends, of whom we have not been worthy. May God bless them evermore!

SPECIAL NOTICE.

Individual subscribers sending us a check for $1.50 for their subscription will get credit for only 11 months, because we have to pay the banks 10 cents exchange for collecting the check. However, we will not mind paying the expense of exchange on $3 or over. In remitting for your subscription send us money order, or registered letter, or exchange on New Orleans or New York, or 1c or 2c stamps. In this way subscribers will get full credit for money remitted. If subscribers insist on paying us by check, let them send us $1.60, which will net us $1.50. The annual subscription of the Advocate is $1.50, net, for preachers and laymen. Superannuates and widows of preachers get the Advocate 1 year for $1, provided they do not remit by check. If they insist on sending a check for $1, they should send us $1.10; otherwise they will get credit for only 10 months. We do not expect our pastors and agents to bear the expense of remitting money to us for subscriptions. Pastors usually send in two or three subscriptions at a time, and for this reason the expense is small, and should be borne by us.

AN INDOOR GARDEN.

"I should like to start my garden right away," said Paul. "See, here are some wonderful pictures in the seed catalogue."

"Why not start a garden now?" his mother asked. "It would be fun to see it grow."

Paul looked out of the window upon a snow-covered world. "What kind of a garden could I possibly plant now?" he said. "Jack Frost has been sowing seeds."

"But you can have a green garden in a few days," his mother replied. "I will show you how. First, the seeds must be soaked in warm water."

Paul ran to get the seeds. When he came back his mother was covering a wide tray with a layer of cotton.

"After the seeds are soft," she said, "we will place them between two layers of cotton and wet them well. Then we will carry the tray to the sunniest window, and in a few days your garden will be growing."

Paul could hardly believe that seeds would grow unless they were planted in moist brown earth, but he watched his cotton garden faithfully. After some days green shoots appeared. Paul was puzzled and delighted. His mother explained that each seed holds a store of food for the little growing plant, so that at first it does not need earth to nourish it.

Paul's plants did not grow to be big and tall, but they gave him much pleasure. He soon started other small gardens in sawdust and fiber. He found that by placing peas or corn or oats against the inside of a glass bottle and filling the bottle with moist cotton he soon had a garden where he might watch the growth of the roots as well as of the leaves.

These are only a few of the many things that Paul has learned about indoor gardens. His mother has told him that there are many more wonderful things about seeds that he will discover in time.—Youth's Companion.

ROOM FOR ELIZABETH.

When the burning of the orphan asylum made it necessary to "farm out" the little inmates until new quarters could be found for them, Mrs. Bennett consented to take seven-year-old Elizabeth rather reluctantly, for she felt that the noise and disorder a child would bring into the house might disturb her husband, a studious man, who greatly valued the quiet of his leisure hours.

"May I pretend you're my really aunt?" asked Elizabeth, the first morning at breakfast

Mrs. Bennett looked at her husband with a questioning smile.

"Of course you may," he answered for her, "and I'll be your uncle temporarily."

"What's temp'rarily?"

"For a short time," replied Mrs. Bennett.

"Is it two weeks?"

"Well, maybe, dear; we'll see."

"I'd like to have it to be two weeks. Do we have oranges every day?"

"Yes, dear."

"Sallie Connors, she has an aunt and an uncle, and they come to the 'sylum and bring her candy and apples, but they ain't rich enough to have her visit them. They've got lots of children of their own. You haven't got any, have you?"

"No. Now, Elizabeth, eat your oatmeal."

"Yes'm, I'm eating it. It's funny God didn't send you any little children, when this is such a nice place, and oranges every day. Oh, goody, sirup! We hardly ever have sirup at the 'sylum."

Mr. Bennett looked at his wife and smiled. "Put it on thick, Dora," he said.

One cold morning when the house was chilly, Mrs. Bennett tied a little shawl around Elizabeth's shoulders. Greatly to her surprise, the child burst into tears.

"Why, what is the matter, my dear?" she asked.

"I don't look like a girl with an aunt when I wear this shawl; I look like a 'sylum girl."

"Why, bless you, child, I wore it when I was little."

"Were you an orphan?"

"No, but I wore that little shawl. I thought it was pretty."

"I don't. I hate it."

"Don't make her wear it, Dora," quickly interposed Mr. Bennett, who saw that his wife was about to try a little discipline. "Elizabeth isn't a 'sylum girl now; she's visiting us. Come here, youngster, get on my lap and I'll take off that shawl, and to-day Aunt Dora shall buy you a nice little sweater."

"Uncle," Elizabeth's arms went around his neck, "I wish you and Aunt Dora weren't just nick uncle and aunt."

"Nick, child, what is that?"

"Why, uncle and aunt are only nick-names for you. I wish they were really and truly names."

"How is it, Dora?" Mr. Bennett's eyes glistened above the curly head on his shoulder. "Would you rather be nick or really and truly."

"Oh, I'd rather be really and truly," cried Mrs. Bennett, and slipping down on the floor at her husband's knees, she clasped both his hand and Elizabeth's in her own.

By and by, when Elizabeth was made to understand that she was not to be sent back to the "'sylum," she said very gravely, "I guess God didn't send you any children, so there'd be room for me."—Unidentified.

PERNICIOUS ACTIVITIES.

By Rev. Mark A. Matthews, D.D., LL. D.

He who is not for us is against us. Christ announced the fact that it is impossible for one to be neutral concerning the great moral principle, or concerning God himself. We cannot serve two contending parties.

These truisms are more real to us to-day because of the war. We will not tolerate any man who divides his affections between this country and any other country. There is no room in the United States for any man who is not absolutely, whole-heartedly, an American citizen. We will not tolerate any hyphen. Every man in his entirety must be an American citizen. We are through with divided affections.

We are also determined that we will stop the pernicious activities of the American cowards and of the alien enemies, the German spies and their unmentionable sympathizers—the pacifists of this country. Whether those people be in high circles of society, in schools, colleges, seminaries, or homes, in factories, shops, stores or banks, we will not tolerate from any one of them in any position in life any of their pernicious activities against this Government.

The foregoing is an illustration of the attitude the Church should assume toward the heretics of the country. We have listened to the religious pacifists, cowards and spies while they have practiced their pernicious activities, long enough. They should not have been tolerated; they should not be tolerated now.

The time has come for us to say we are either for Jesus Christ, or against him. You cannot occupy a fifty-fifty place in the religions world any more than you can occupy it in the political world, or in the National Government. Those who are heretics should be told they must take their stand with the devil. If they are for Jesus Christ they must take their stand with the Church and with the saints of God, to whom the faith was once delivered.

The reason the time has come for us to take that position is, the heretics of the country have continued their pernicious activities in their effort to fill the pulpits and chairs in schools and colleges until they have poisoned thousands of people. It is a premeditated and determined effort on their part to force one of their kind into every vacant pulpit, where they can deceive the people, hypnotize sessions and church members, and inveigle congregations into listening to their dangerous and disloyal utterances.

The man who denies the deity of Christ, who denies that he is very God of very God, who denies his vicarious death, who denies that he is man's absolute substitute, who denies that there is no salvation without the shedding of blood, who denies the resurrection, who denies the infallibility of God's Word, and who denies the great fundamental truths of the Gospel, has no right in any pulpit where immortal souls are to be spoken to and reached. While the man who denies the Bible and the Gospel of Christ has no right and should not be allowed to preach his poisonous doctrines to men and women, the fact remains that the heretics of the country are bound together in a damnable conspiracy to put their kind in every pulpit where it is possible for them to enter. They try to enter by using the commercial, financial, social and other wedges. It is well that the Church of Jesus Christ realized such pernicious activities and undertook to counteract such efforts.

While these statements reveal the activities of the enemies of Christ, perhaps it might be well for us to look at the defenders of the faith once delivered to the saints. We might illustrate that point with this statement: No community is in danger from bad citizens, but from the bad citizenship of good citizens. Isn't it also true that we are not so much in danger from the pernicious activities of the heretics as from the inactivity of the God-called, orthodox defenders of the faith?

It is folly to criticise and abuse heretics for trying to put their kind into positions of prominence and power, when you sit idly by, fold your hands and refuse to do your duty, though you are the sworn defenders of the faith. The pernicious activity of the heretic is bad, but the criminal inactivity of the orthodox defender of the faith is a thousand times worse. The faith was not delivered to heretics, but to the saints of God. The saints—the true, tried believers, were made custodians of the Word of God, and entrusted with the duty of spreading the Gospel, the whole Gospel, the vicarious Gospel of Jesus Christ, to the uttermost parts of the earth. We should not tolerate the pernicious activity of heretics, nor should we tolerate the criminal inactivity of professed orthodox leaders, teachers and believers of the Church of Jesus Christ.

Awake, the wolves are entering the congregations, the false teachers are climbing into your pulpits, seductive influences are cursing your schools, and invading the circle of your homes. Awake, go forth to battle, repent of your inactivity, and become at once a forceful factor in defense of the faith and the promulgation of the truth.—"The Presbyterian."

The above communication has the true ring. It is by an ex-Moderator of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A., and pastor of the largest Protestant Church in the world, i. e., the First Presbyterian Church of Seattle, Wash., with more than 6000 members. The Methodists need such a message more than the Presbyterians. The General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church passed the following without a dissenting vote: "Resolved, That the Bible as we now have it freed from errors of translators, copyists and printers, is the Word of God, and therefore wholly without error." At the last General Conference I offered the same resolution less the final statement—"and therefore wholly without error," and, on motion of Dr. David G. Downey, of the New York East Conference, the General Conference threw the resolution into the waste paper basket.—The Eastern Methodist.

There is nothing finer in the world than human characters revealing God to others, and so revealing him that God is better understood and communion with him is made more easy. It was in this value of friendship that Randell Harris said, "I never ask God, or hardly ever, for outward things; I do not know that I ever asked him for glory or honor, and I hope I never shall; and I very seldom ask him for material things apart from the Kingdom; but I sometimes say things like this: that if God will give me three or four good friends, I think I can manage to continue to the end, because love is the machinery of life and the motive power." The world esteems nothing more highly than genuine friendship, and every such friendship is a proof of the soul's friendship with God.—Dr. Peter Ainslie.

SAVE THE YOUNG PEOPLE.

In the busy pastorate there is danger of overlooking the proper attention to the youth of the church. While parents and teachers of the Sunday school have their important duties to perform in regard to the young people which are indispensable, there are certain functions in this direction that pertain only to the pastor of the church. He is in a peculiar relation to his people that gives the privilege of directing his efforts effectually toward the religious nature, and this spiritual right finds its most fruitful field in the sphere of the young people of his flock. A successful ministry will save the young folks from departing from church activities when they have reached the age of governmental franchise. Upon attaining their majority the temptation to depart from the place of serious spiritual consideration into the ways of the world is very great. While no pastor, perhaps, has been able to conserve all this glorious material which has been placed in his hands, yet it may be seen that some are far more successful in this respect than others. Confucius said, "Some sprouts do not blossom, some blossoms bear no fruit;" but Arminianism teaches, in accordance with the writer of Revelation, that "whosoever will" may take of the water of life freely.

We cannot subscribe to the doctrine that the Christian life is a matter of education along the line of good morals and inner quasi-spiritual meditation, for we must be born into the kingdom of God to reap its true benefits. The days of youth are the most impressionable, however, to either good or bad environments; and to so preach the Word before the time of hardness comes over our hearers, that they be led to see the Light, is to utilize the opportunities God has given us. Thomas Carlyle remarked: "Most of us, looking back on young years, may remember seasons of a light, aerial translucency and elasticity and perfect freedom; the body had not yet become the prison-house of the soul, but was its vehicle and implement, like a creature of the thought, and altogether pliant to its bidding." This pliancy in youth not only pertains to the externals of being, but also to the various faculties of mind; and to grasp the powers of the imagination and will in the young man, casting them into the mould of a higher creature, is to build a life for great results. To so bring the Holy Spirit to bear upon him that its searchings will cause him to give his life to God is the very crux of the work of the preacher; but after this remains the stupendous task of keeping the young man or woman in a warm spiritual state so that the temptations to leave the straight and narrow way for a backslidden condition will be of no avail. We unqualifiedly believe in the various organizations of the Church for the young people; and in most instances, as they conduct themselves in this sphere of activity, their church experience will be gauged in the full-blown years of experience. A large pastorate with many young people to think about, and to be somewhat responsible for, fully convinces us that the church should find the proper spiritual employment for them.

Further, the years of youth, while they do not represent the time of full fruition, are glorious and happy if spent in seeking proper knowledge and in activities productive of good. Sentiments of loyalty, devotion, justice, kindness and love are especially evident in the young man of righteous proclivities; and the memories of early friendships become in after years a treasure of inestimable value. While then no deeds have been done which afterward may be recalled that made one famous, yet the triumphs of youth over wrong are measurable to the victory of David over Goliath. Byron said:

"O talk not to me of a name great in story;
The days of our youth are the days of our glory,
And the myrtle and ivy of sweet two-and-twenty
Are worth all your laurels, though ever so plenty."

To impress the young people with the lesson that "whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap," is one of the serious duties of a minister. The words of doctrinaires, who scatter the false ideas that wild oats may be sown in youth and afterward the life may be mended to good citizenship in the kingdom of men and in the realm of righteousness, are words of condemnation, and are tantamount to sowing the wind and reaping the whirlwind. Every evil deed consummated in adult life very probably is the fruit of some wild and uncurbed impulse of youth. The writer of Ecclesiastes advised: "Rejoice, O young man, in thy youth, and let thy heart cheer thee in the days of thy youth, and walk in the ways of thy heart, and in the sight of thine eyes: but know thou, that for all these things God will bring thee into judgment."

A WISE AND TIMELY UTTERANCE.

The following is from an editorial by Dr. Bradfield, in the Texas Christian Advocate of January 17:

"We are heartily for unification on the terms of the Oklahoma City declaration. We are even willing that there should be some modification of the plan submitted by our General Conference of 1914. But nothing could be more unfortunate for American Methodism than the adoption of any plan which is not concurred in by the overwhelming majority of our people. We should hesitate to adopt any plan which would be distressing to a strong and influential minority in either Church. Better than such a situaton would be the continuation of the present status of American Methodism."

This utterance deserves strong commendation. One of the amazing things in the course of the unification movement has been the seeming willingness of some of our men in high places to try to jam through a scheme of union that has the opposition of a majority of our College of Bishops and a very large contingent of our people—possibly a majority of them. Our Church could probably have been held pretty well together in carrying out the Oklahoma plan of unification; but, in our opinion, there is little doubt that the arrangement that has now been tentatively agreed upon by a majority of the Commissioners, if pressed, will produce a considerable division among our two million members—if, indeed, it does not result in a stormy disruption of the Southern Church. Yet there are those among us who are so intoxicated with the idea of union that apparently they are resolved to force it, if they can, regardless of the effect upon Southern Methodism.

We think that Dr. Bradfield's words are both wise and timely.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

The Board of Stewards of our Church at Crystal Springs, Miss., has advanced the salary of their pastor, Rev. J. S. Purcell, from $1200 to $1500.

The Editor of the Advocate is at Savannah, Ga., at this time. Personal letters and articles for the Advocate that need his attention are being held for his immediate consideration upon his return.

Rev. A. H. Parker, Coushatta, La., has experienced the misfortune of falling on the ice and breaking one of bis ribs. We sympathize with Brother Parker and trust he will speedily recover.

Rev. E. M. Allen, Hub, Miss., remits for two subscriptions, and further says: "I am doing all possible to place the Advocate in every Methodist home on my charge. The work is making progress."

In favoring us with five new subscriptions and one renewal, Rev. R. F. Harrell, Waterproof, La., states: "You can count on more new ones from me later when I have reached the people in the country."

We have the following communication from Rev. I. L. Peebles, of Meridian, Miss.: "Please announce through the Advocate that I am ready to serve our brethren in revivals and other righteous causes."

Rev. A. D. Martin, one of our faithful ministers in the Louisiana French territory, desires the preachers and his personal friends to know that his addess has been changed from Raceland, La., to Bourg, La.

Two new subscribers have been recently acquired at Hazlehurst, Miss., by Rev. L. L. Roberts, the diligent pastor of the charge. Brother Roberts significantly remarks, we are pleased to state, that "this is fourteen new subscribers for us."

Miss Bessie Marslan, of Gordonsville, Tenn., in a letter renewing the subscription of her mother, Mrs. F. E. Marslan, for the Advocate, wishes us a prosperous year and expresses her interest in the news of Mississippi Methodism. Her kind words are appreciated.

Rev. A. H. Williams, our efficient pastor at Cochran, Ala., which charge is in the North Mississippi Conference, sends us five new subscriptions, and states that "this completes the number of new subscribers asigned to my charge by the District Stewards."

Rev. Walter W. Jones, Lula, Miss., has sent us three new subscriptions with the encouraging information that he will endeavor to make the new list of subscribers twenty. The outlook in his field of labor "is encouraging despite the unusual weather and other obstacles."

In a business letter, Rev. H. S. Spragins, the pastor of our First Methodist Church, Memphis, Tenn., has some kind words to say about the Advocate, which are appreciated. Good reports reach us of the work of Brother Spragins; we hope he will experience continued success.

Rev. S. S. Holladay, Pelican, La., has sent us two new subscribers and states that as soon as the weather permits he will push the Advocate campaign in his territory. He remarks that "Brother F. R. Power left the work in good condition and I am anxious to get out among the people."

"On my return to the New Augusta (Miss.) charge for the second year," says Rev. John W. Ramsey, "the people have given me a cordial reception; and, notwithstanding the unusually cold weather and widespread epidemic of measles, the prospect for the new year is good."

An unusual record has been made by Rev. W. R. Goudelock, pastor of the Acona Station, North Mississippi Conference; he already has in hand every dollar of the Conference collections for his charge for the year 1918. Credit is due him and his progressive Board of Stewards for this faithful work.

Miss Jeannette Leggett, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. J. T. Leggett, of Brookhaven, Miss., was married at the district parsonage on last Sunday afternoon to Mr. J. R. Bradford, of Tulsa, Okla., Dr. I. W. Cooper, President of Whitworth College, assisting the father of the bride in performing the ceremony.—New Orleans Times-Picayune.

Rev. J. L. Cady, of the Olive Branch charge, Louisiana Conference, says, in a letter to the Advocate enclosing funds for a subscription, that "the stewards of my churches have purchased a parsonage in Clinton, La., where I now reside; this is the center of my work and is very convenient."

Rev. S. A. Brown, Leland, Miss., in sending five subscriptions for the Advocate, has this to say: "This doubles our list of subscribers over last year. Our apportionment in the campaign is twenty new patrons. I think we will go 'over the top.' Not one has declined to subscribe, and some have voluntarily requested that I order the paper for them."

On the night of January 23, this year, our parsonage at Philadelphia, Miss., was destroyed by fire. Most of the furnishings were lost in the flames. Rev. C. M. Crossley, the pastor, and his family were able to save very few of their personal effects, and Brother Crossley suffered the loss of his sermon manuscripts and other valuable written matter.

Rev. A. S. Brisco, of Nettleton, North Mississippi Conference, requests us to make the following statement for him: "While the late journal of the Conference shows nothing paid on these assessments by this charge, I desire to state that we met our assesments in full for the Superannuate Endowment Fund and for the Publication of the Minutes."

Rev. J. B. Williams, Many, La., sends the Advocate 5 new subscriptions. Pertaining to the campaign in the patronizing Conferences now being made, Bro. Williams says: "The weather has been so cold that I have not made a thorough canvass, but will do so soon. I love the Adovcate, and hope to place it in a number of homes on my work."

We are happy to state for Dr. I. W. Cooper, the President of Whitworth College, Brookhaven, Miss.: "The Twenty Preachers' Efficiency Fund is meeting with great success. The funds for three ministers, $150 each, have been secured and three ministers accepted. There is no doubt about securing the funds for the whole number. I would appreciate invitations to visit pastoral charges in the interest of this sacred cause."

It is a pleasure to hear good reports from our preachers as they enter into the activities of the new Conference year. Rev. J. M. Wyatt, Shelby, Miss., says: "Despite the almost continuous succession of blizzards since we reached Shelby, we have been warmly received and royally treated by this big-hearted Delta people. We are comfortably domiciled and 'at home' to our friends and parishloners, and are happy in the Master's work."

Rev. J. J. Golden, who is now a member of the New Mexico Conference and stationed at Alamogordo, N. M., says in a letter renewing his subscription and that of his mother (who lives at Waynesboro, Miss.) to the Advocate: "I am doing the best work of my life. Last year I reported at Conference ninety-six members received into the Church and all the collections in full. My second year starts off well. Without being asked to do so, my Board of Stewards raised my salary $200. The Advocate is a welcome visitor."

We are indebted to Rev. J. S. Purcell, Crystal Springs, Miss., for the following information: "The Preachers' Council of the north end of the Brookhaven District, Mississippi Conference, met at the Methodist Church, Hazlehurst, Miss., Jan. 25, 1918. The presiding elder, Rev. J. T. Leggett, and the preachers, planned for advanced movements along all lines of church work in the district. Rev. J. L. Decell was elected reporter for the Advocate for the district. Plans have been made to care for the Advocate in this section."

Doubtless Rev. and Mrs. R. F. Harrell, who have begun their new labors at Waterproof, La., will experience, as is usual for them, much success in their new field of labor. Brother Harrell remarks in a business letter to the Advocate: "We have started out exceptionally well considering the adverse weather conditions. The Sunday it snowed we were able to hold two good services, and better congregations assembled than we expected. Some came from the country on foot. We have a fine people and they have shown us every courtesy possible."

THE COMMISSION ON UNIFICATION.

Dear Advocate:

The Commission on Methodist Unification began its third session in Savannah, Ga., on Wednesday evening, January 23, with a public service in the Wesley Monumental Church, of which Dr. W. N. Ainsworth is the popular pastor. Bishop Earl Cranston was expected to deliver the opening sermon; but he stated that the long trip to Savannah had considerably fatigued him (he is more than eighty years of age) and that Bishop R. J. Cooke, whose diocese is in Montana, but who resides at Athens, Tenn., would occupy the pulpit in his stead. Bishop Cooke's message was an earnest plea for Church union along the usual lines. The service, which closed with the sacrament of the Lord's Supper, was also participated in by Bishop Cranston, Bishop W. F. McDowell, Bishop John W. Hamilton, and Bishop E. D. Mouzon.

The business sessions of the Commission, which are being held in the Sunday school auditorium of the Independent Presbyterian Church, began on Thursday, though a number of the Commissioners were delayed in reaching Savannah by the disturbed conditions of the railways. The first thing taken up for consideration was the report on the Judicial Council, which was largely put in shape at the Traverse City meeting of the Commission. Agreement was reached concerning this report, except as to minor features, which were left open.

On Friday the question of the status of the Negro in the proposed unified Church was taken up. The report of the Sub-Committee having this matter in hand made no definite suggestions, and was unsigned. It merely presented for general consideration by the full Commission the two plans of having the Negro members of the Church, North, either placed in a Missionary Regional Jurisdiction, with a restricted representation and vote in the white General Conference, or in an Associate General Conference, much after the manner that has been advocated by Dr. Edgar Blake, of Chicago. Neither Bishop Denny nor Judge H. H. White, of Louisiana, favored either of these plans, and it is also understood that neither of them has the support of the two colored members of the Commission, Dr. J. Garland Penn and Dr. R. E. Jones.

The effect of the submission of this report was to precipitate a general debate on the whole question of the Negro's relation to the two Methodisms and his status in the proposed reorganized Church. At both of the sittings of the Commission on Friday and throughout the session held Saturday morning (no afternoon session was held Saturday), this debate was continued, without any definite action being taken or foreshadowed.

It is not at this time possible to forecast the outcome of the Commission's deliberations, or to tell how long it may sit. As yet but little of consequence has been accomplished at this meeting; but there are some representatives of both Churches who express themselves as being quite hopeful as to the final results, while there are others who are of the opinion that the Commission will find it impossible to get together. With the representatives of each Church considerably divided, anything like a unanimous report to our General Conference, soon to meet in Atlanta, does not seem to be within the range of probability. It is possible, however, that some kind of a compromise may be reached by simply sending a statement to the General Conference setting forth the situation that has developed, without making any recommendations, and leaving it to that body to work out the problem. If some such course is not pursued, all the present indications are that there will be two reports from the Southern Commissioners, and possibly also two to the Church, North, by its Commissioners.

R. A. MEEK.

Savannah, Ga.
Saturday afternoon, Jan. 26, 1918.

Notes Anent the Savannah Meeting.

The Southern Commissioners are mostly quartered at the Savannah Hotel, and those of the Church, North, at the Hotel De Soto.

All the Commissioners are now here except Hon. C. W. Fairbanks, who is in Southern California, and Bishop E. E. Hoss, whose physical condition was such as to prevent his attendance. Bishop Hoss's absence is greatly deplored. His place is being filled by Bishop James Atkins.

Hon. S. B. Adams, a leading citizen of Savannah and a member of the Wesley Monumental M. E. Church, South, entertained the members of the Joint Commission at his residence on Friday evening; and on Saturday afternoon the Commissioners were given an automobile ride over the city and carried to the various places of historic interest in and around Savannah.

The visitors are scheduled to fill all the leading pulpits of the various churches here to-morrow (Sunday). Bishop W. F. McDowell is announced to preach at the Wesley Monumental Church at 11 o'clock a. m., and Bishop W. A. Candler will fill the pulpit of that church at the evening hour. Bishop W. B. Murrah is booked for the morning sermon at the Second Baptist Church, and Dr. A. F. Watkins will preach at the same hour at the South Side Baptist Church. R. A. M.

THE METHODIST QUARTERLY REVIEW.

The January number of this publication is on our table. It contains quite a variety of articles, most of which are suggestive and creditable. The leading contribution is by Dr. Herbert W. Magoun, of Cambridge, Mass., who writes on "Conservative Thought Versus Critical Theory." This discussion is thought-provoking, and is in the main sound in its contentions. We confess, however, that we are somewhat suspicious of what seems to be the implications in the following sentence: "Within the last ten years an astonishing amount of work has been done in the effort to clear up Old Testament difficulties, and science has come to the rescue in explaining the cause of the flood, the place and manner of crossing the red sea, the passage of the Jordan, the fall of Jericho, the destruction of Sodom, the annihilation of Sennacherib's army, and various puzzling things." (Black letters ours.) We have never seen any scientific explanations of the miracles of the Bible, which we did not think in effect repudiated them. However, it seems that Dr. Magoun is to give a series of discussions in our quarterly, and we would not prejudge him, preferring to wait and see what he has to say.

Rev. H. T. Carley, of Centenary College, Rev. W. W. Drake, of Shreveport, La., and Rev. J. Tillery Lewis, of Aberdeen, Miss., have well written interesting papers in this issue of The Review.

NOTICE.

Dear Dr. Meek: Please allow me to state that our Conference has not paid for Brother Peebles' house, as some of the newspapers have declared. Only the following amount has been paid. $124.10. Since an arrangement has been made so each payment reduces the principal, and thereby lessens the interest, it is of great moment to him that this matter is kept straight. There may be others who did not make a subscription who would like to contribute to this worthy cause; there may be others who would just as soon pay up in full; if so, you may forward it to me. I think all the brethren, who subscribed have seen me to make arrangement about deferred payments. I want to thank you each and every one in Brother Peebles' behalf; but please do not let the idea get abroad that the house is free from debt.

Yours fraternally,
JOHN C. CHAMBERS, Treas.

Comb Sage Tea in Hair To Darken It

Grandma kept her locks dark, glossy, and yothful with Sage Tea and Sulphur.

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is grandmother's rcclpe, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color, whlch is quite sensible, as we are livlng in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussy mixing at home. All drug stores scll the ready-to-use product, improved by the addition of other lngredlents, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," for about 50 cents a bottle. It ls very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with lt and draw thls through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by mornlng the gray halr disappears, but what dellghts the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, lt also produces that soft lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive. Thls ready-to-use preparation ls a delightful tollet requlsite for those who deslre a more youthful appearance. It is not lntended for the cure, mltigation or prevention of disease.

Mrs. MARY A. CAWTHON (nce Wilson) was born in Houston County, Ga., on April 27, 1842. She moved to Mississippi when but a small child, and was educated in the schools of Mississippi. At the age of 16, under the ministry of Rev. Hervey Copcland, she bccame converted, surrendered her young life to Christ, and was received by Brother Copeland into the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. She was married to Mr. J. W. Cawthon, who was also a devout Christian and a member of the Methodist Church, on October 5, 1865. To this union were born nine children—Mesdames A. S. Page, Will Till, R. E. Murry, Will R. Bynum, David Powell and Messrs. J. W. Cawthon, Jr., E. W. Cawthon, B. S. Cawthon, and B. V. Cawthon. On November 3, 1917, after fifty-nine years of indefatigable labor in her Lord's service, she laid down her tools, and placed her Bible in her desk to read it no more; it was then that her disembodied spirit was turned loose on the domain of a boundless eternity, robed in garments of righteousness and crowned with a wreath of amaranth, to mcet its God and to live in the inexhaustible pleasures of heaven forever. The funeral services were held in the Methodist Church at Pelahatchie, Miss., being conducted by the writer, assisted by Rev. R. P. Fikes. Sister Cawthon was a great Christian character on earth and is now a saint in glory.

GEO. G. YEAGER.

On Jan. 9, 1917, near the little town of Beauregard, in Copiah County, Miss., GEORGE W. MERCIER, a worthy product of the old South, and a valued asset to the New South, heard the call of God to come up higher, and left us for the "homc over there."

Just five days later, Jan. 14, 1917, his devoted wife, Mrs. SARAH FRANCES LANE MERCIER, who for 49 years walked by his side, sharing his burdens and his fortunes, bade us goodby and left the earthly home to join him "over thère."

Brother Mercier was born in Calhoun City, Ga., Nov. 18, 1842. Sister Mercier was born in Raleigh, Scott County, Miss., Oct. 16, 1843. George W. Mercier moved to Mississippi in 1866, and settled in Pike County. Herc he met Miss Sarah Frances Lane, to whom he was happily married Nov. 27, 1867. To this union eleven children were born, two dying in infancy, and nine—three girls and six boys—are still living and mourn the loss of a devoted father and a loving mother. Three years after their marriage Brother and Sister Mercier moved to Beauregard in Copiah County, at which place they lived until their translation to the home above. They were faithful and consistent members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and for many years served the Church of their choice with unswerving loyalty. Brother Mercier served as a steward in his church for a number of years, and in that capacity he evidenced in a large degree the elements of leadership. He was a man with a high sense of honor, and was kindly interested in the welfare of his community and the progress of the Kingdom of God. He was in every sense a good father and a devoted husband. Sister Mercier was a woman of rare sympathies, gentle by nature, and Christ-like in her ministries. The inestimable influence of her consecrated, Christian life in the home is seen today in the lives of her children. The hospitable home of these servants of God was ever open to the prophets of God, who never failed to find a cordial welcome and a helpful atmosphere. The little church at Beauregard has lost two of its best friends and the community two of its best citizens. They have gone from us, and we mourn their going, but we live in the hope that we shall meet them by and by. May the rich mantle which has fallen upon the children abide until He shall say, "Come, ye blessed of my Father."

J. T. LEGGETT.

IN MEMORIAM.

(A tribute of respect from the Ladies' Aid Society of Cruger, Miss.)

It has pleased our Heavenly Father to remove from our midst our oldest and best beloved member, Mrs. T. J. BLANCHARD. We shall miss her gentle, Christ-like smiles and her cheerful companionship, but we shall rejoice that, while we deeply feel her loss here, we know she is happy and in our Father's house, and that her pains and suffering and earthly trials are over. She was a Christian from a Miss of sixtcen years, when she gave her life to God and her name was written in the Methodist church-book. For three years she had seldom been able to attend meeting from home, and her home had been our meeting-place, where she always met us with smiles, and we enjoyed our hours spent with her—a pure, sweet Christian, 79 years of age. Therefore be it,

Resolved, That we will keep in remembrance her bright Christian character, her unselfish devotion to duty, her modest, unassuming helpfulness, and that we shall strive, as she did, to follow closely in the footsteps of our Master that we may merit the "Well done," which we know is her reward.

Resolved further, That we hereby extend to her children our deepest sympathy in their bereavement, praying that the Savior whom she loved may be their comforter.

Signed: Mrs. T. Lehman, Mrs. H. C. Fisher, Mrs. Theo. Arterbury.

SELLING CHILDREN.

By Rev. L. Oechsli.

One of the great evils we have to contend with is the Chinese custom of selling or giving away their children, if they have too many, or if they are girls. We had a case the other day of twins arriving in a family, the youngest of whom was not yet one year, and as if to add to the calamity, they were both girls! The mother is a heathen woman and was determined to dispose of them. Poor little unwelcome girls; we couldn't stand it to see the neglect that was certain to follow, but when we went to take them away to find a home for them we found one of them dying. We hurried the Dutch doctor in and he and Mrs. Oechsli worked over it for three hours, but it was too late. We entered into an agreement with one of our Christian families that if they would take the other and raise it we would buy its milk and clothing.

"God yearns over men with unutterable, pleading tenderness, 'not willing that any should perish, but that all should come to repentance.' As there is not a dying sparrow in the recesses of the deepest wood without his care, so there is not one waif of humanity excluded from his infinite compassion and tender care."

TAKES OFF DANDRUFF, HAIR STOPS FALLING

Save your Hair! Get a small bottle of Danderine right now—Also stops itching scalp.

Thin, brittle, colorless and scraggy hair is mute evidence of a neglected scalp, of dandruff—that awful scurf.

There is nothing so destructive to the hair as dandruff. It robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life, eventually producing a feverishness and itching of the scalp, which if not remedied causes the hair roots to shrink, loosen and die—then the hair falls out fast. A little Danderine tonight—now—any time—will surely save your halr.

Get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store. You surely can have beautiful hair and lots of it if you will just try a little Danderine. Save your hair! Try it!—Adv.

Sunday School

NORTH MISSISSIPPI SUNDAY SCHOOL NOTES.

By Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, Sardis, Miss.

A class of Juniors in the Vaiden school expect to take up the study of boys and girls in Japan during the second quarter. Who else will fall into line?

Rev. B. F. M. Bullard, pastor at Duck Hill, has enrolled as an individual student for the standard teacher - training course. Trained preachers will make trained teachers. This course of study will make him a better preacher. "Life in the Making," is a study of human nature, beginning with the child and going through the successive stages of development to the adult.

Most of the preachers and some of the laymen of the Winona District met at Greenwood on the 18th to attend to the work assigned to the district stewards. The spirit of this body of men is fine. They are men of big ideas and big hearts. Brother Lipscomb has appointed the following places for institutes to be held at an early date: Tutwiler, Moorhead, and Greenwood. The preachers of this district are going to be among the first to send in their money for Sunday school work.

The school at Grenada is one of the best, and it will continue to grow in usefulness. The elementary division has accepted the standards for each department, and the teachers have agreed to bring each department up to the first rank standard during this year. One class of adults expects to take as a special a school in Japan; three other classes will consider other special work. These classes have organized for a purpose. The teachers have completed the second book in the teacher training course. The superintendent, Mr. V. R. Patterson, wants his school to do everything it ought to do, and Brother Tucker is with him heart and hand.

"The prayer of dominant desire precedes thought and work." "The prayer of dominant desire always tends to attain its object." If the preacher's "dominant desire" is to have teacher-training classes and the study of missions in his school, it will be done to some extent. This work must be on the conscience of some one, and, if it is on the conscience of the right one, it will be on the conscience of others in a short time. What is the "dominant desire" of my heart? Is it like that of the Master?

A GREAT SUNDAY SCHOOL PROGRAM FOR JUNALUSKA.

The dates for the Junaluska Training School for Sunday school leaders have been set for July 23 to August 1.

A stronger array of lecturers and teachers could hardly be gathered together for any great course of constructive work in religious education than that indicated by the following list of well known lecturers and teachers, who are already engaged for the Junaluska program:

Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, among the greatest and most noted preachers in the world.

Dr. Henry H. Meyer, editor of the Sunday Sschool Literature of the Methodist Episcopal Church and well known as an author.

Dr. Edward Porter St. John, author of "Child Nature and Child Nurture," "Stories and Story Telling," formerly head of the Hartford School of Religious Pedagogy, and now of the Department of Religious Education in Boston University.

Dr. Henry Frederick Cope, author of "The Modern Sunday School in Principles and Practice," "Evolution of the Sunday School," and a number of other books in the field of religious education, also secretary of the Religious Education Association.

Dr. Wade Crawford Barclay, who through his various books and other writings is already well known in our church.

Dr. Jas. V. Thompson who is specialist for teen-age work of the Board of Sunday Schools of the Methodist Episcopal Church and one of the best equipped teen-age men of the country.

Dr. Andrew Sledd, Professor of New Testament Creek in Emory University.

Dr. Hugh H. Harris, Professor of Religious Education in Emory University.

In addition to the above, tentative engagements have been made with several specialists of elementary work; and, of course, the officers and specialists of the General Sunday School Board will constitute a part of the faculty of the Training School.

To those who attended last year it is only necessary to say that not only will the high grade of work of last year be maintained, but that in accordance with the purpose of the management the program will be strengthened and improved from year to year in order to make the school stand in the very forefront of schools of this nature in America. For detailed information regarding program, entertainment, etc., address John W. Shackford, 810 Broadway, Nashville, Tenn.

Hard Colds. People whose blood is pure are not nearly so likely to take hard colds as are others. Hood's Sarsaparilla makes the blood pure; and this great medicine recovers the system after a cold as no other medicine does. Take Hood's.—Adv.

HAPPINESS.

Happiness is not a fixed quantity, like the world's gold supply; so that the more one man has the less his neighbor is likely to have. Real happiness is an infection. You can never force it upon anyone. Each individual must "take" it. I have heard people say, as explaining the misery of many, that there is not enough happiness to go around. But the comment misses the very nature of happiness. The more there is in the world, the more there is likely to be. The larger the number of happy people, the faster the infection will spread. But each must invite it. One child is happy with the crudest sort of toy, whereas another child is unhappy with an armful of toys. To the latter kind of soul, grown or ungrown, you can never give happiness, for there are not enough toys to supply everybody. Happiness is of the heart, not of circumstances.—George Clarke Peck.

WIRELESS AND FRENCH TO BE TAUGHT SOLDIERS.

Extension Department of Millsaps Offers Free Instruction to Men who are Going to the Army.

The extension department of Millsaps is prepared to offer those who contemplate entering the army, free instruction in French and wireless signaling. — Professors Burton and Harrell have tendered their services free of charge to the men subject of the draft.

The course in French will cover twenty-five lessons especially prepared for soldiers by two Harvard professors with the advice of U. S. Army officers. The course is designed for those who have had no previous knowledge of French, and it is believed that even in the short period one may acquire a familiarity with the fundamental principles of grammar and pronunciation that will serve as an excellent foundation for gaining a command of the language after reaching France. The class will meet at night at Millsaps College three or five times a week, as the members may desire. The total expense will be the cost of the small text books to be used. Each recitation will require about an hour's preparation.

Those who are interested in such a course are to communicate with Professor Burton without delay and arrange for ordering the text books. The first meeting of the class was held in the main building of the college at 8 p. m., January 15. Professor Burton may be found at 2 Park Avenue, phone 2122.

The course in wireless signaling will give elementary instruction in the use of the wireless instrument, and will likewise be offered free of charge to men subject of the draft. Those interested are advised to consult with Professor Harrell without delay. He may be found at his residence on Arlington Avenue, phone 1261.—Clarion-Ledger.

Hair Needs Food

just as every other living thing does, and, just as every other living thing, it will die if it is not fed. Hair food takes the form of the natural oil on which it subsists. Fifty years ago the Creoles of Louisiana, who prided themselves on their hair, discovered a recipe for beautiful hair. By the use of this natural hair oil, "La Creole," they kept their hair beautiful, light and fluffy. This secret has been handed down through generations and presents the very best hair food and hair disease remedy. Does your hair fall out? Is it coarse? Is it stiff? Has it lost its natural luster? Then ask your dealer for a bottle of "La Creole" hair dressing. The price is only $1.00 and it will be the life of your hair. If he can't supply you, write at once to the Van Vleet-Mansfield Drug Co., Memphis, Tenn.—Adv.

GOLD DUST.

It must be the union of heart with heart, God and man sharing common sorrows and common joys. This is peace: man's life moving in God's life in frictionless communion. — J. H. Jowett.

Self-control may be developed in precisely the same manner as we tone up a weak muscle—by little exercises day by day. Let us each day do, as mere exercises of discipline in moral gymnastics, a few acts that are disagreeable to us, the doing of which will help us in instant action in our hour of need.—W. G. Jordan.

CALOMEL SELDOM SOLD HERE NOW

Nasty drug salivates, makes you sick and you lose a day's work.

Every druggist in town—your druggist and everybody's druggist—has noticed a great falling-off in the sale of calomel. They all give the same reason. Dodson's Liver Tone is taking its place.

"Calomel is dangerous and people know it, while Dodson's Liver Tone is perfectly safe and gives better results," said a prominent local druggist. Dodson's Liver Tone is personally guaranteed by every druggist who sells it. A large bottle costs 50 cents, and if it fails to give easy relief in every case of liver sluggishness and constipation, you have only to ask for your money back.

Dodson's Liver Tone is a pleasant-tasting, purely vegetable remedy, harmless to both children and adults. Take a spoonful at night and wake up feeling fine; no biliousness, sick headache, acid stomach or constipated bowels. It doesn't gripe or cause inconvenience all the next day like violent calomel. Take a dose of calomel to-day and to-morrow you will feel weak, sick and nauseated. Don't lose a day's work! Take Dodson's Liver Tone instead and feel fine, full of vigor and ambition.

WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

Need Help to Pass the Crisis Safely—Proof that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Can be Relied Upon.

Urbana, Ill.—"During Change of Life, in addition to its annoying symptoms, I had an attack of grippe which lasted all winter and left me in a weakened condition. I felt at times that I would never be well again. I read of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and what it did for women passing through the Change of Life, so I told my doctor I would try it. I soon began to gain in strength and the annoying symptoms disappeared and your Vegetable Compound has made me a well, strong woman so I do all my own housework. I cannot recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound too highly to women passing through the Change of Life." —Mrs. FRANK HENSON, 1316 S. Orchade St., Urbana, Ill.

Women who suffer from nervousness, "heat flashes," backache, headaches and "the blues" should try this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

HOUSTON, MISS.

Dear Dr. Meck: We arrived here on Dec. 7—the very day the severe cold spell started—and received a cordial welcome. Two automobiles met us at the depot and the ladies received us at the parsonage. They had prepared for us warm fires and a splendid spread, which we all enjoyed very much. We are well pleased with our charge and the people of it. I hope that you may have a good year, blessed of God.

E. M. SHAW, P. C.

MYRTLE, MISS.

Dear Dr. Meck: We have had a good beginning here at Myrtle, and we hope to have a great year. We have a nice, new, modern parsonage, and on Christmas Eve we found out that old Santa Claus was a woman, for nearly every one in the town came and brought something good, and now our pantry is well supplied. They even brought us a nice, fat hen for our Christmas dinner. We are well pleased with the outlook. Pray for us that this may be the greatest year of our ministry.

J. G. JOHNSON, P. C.

BLACK HAWK, MISS.

Dear Dr. Meek: Having been appointed to the Black Hawk charge on Jan. 8, I moved my family here on Jan. 10. We were met at Lexington with a car and were brought to the Black Hawk parsonage, where we found some of the good ladies waiting to welcome us. To show their appreciation of our coming, they had provided a warm fire and a delightful supper to aid the physical body. Each of us did justice to the nice supper. We found the pantry filled with all kinds of fruit, pickles, preserves, and many other delicious things. Notwithstanding the sleety, snowy, and icy weather that met us here, the delivery buggies are still running. With such people to work with as we have here I doubt not that we will have a gracious year.

Best wishes for the Advocate.

A CALL TO METHODIST COLORS.

By Charles D. Bulla.

Mr. Justice Harlan, of the United States Supreme Court, once spent a day at Marshall Hall, a summer resort a few miles below Washington City on the Maryland side of the Potomac. He picked up a gun in the shooting gallery, aimed it at the target, pulled the trigger, and, to his surprise, hit the bull's eye. His companions, in admiration of his skill, urged him to try it again. But the well-poised justice, knowing the center shot to have been wholly accidental, could not be induced to take any chance of lowering his record.

The first meeting of the Louisiana Conference Wesley Bible Class Federation was held in Alexandria, on March 14 and 15, 1917. It was a pronounced success. The second meeting of the Federation will be held in Mansfield, on Wednesday and Thursday, March 13 and 14, 1918.

Will the Bible classes of Louisiana repeat the fine work done a year ago?

The Federation program will be of the Wesley Bible Class type.

A Good New Year's Letter.

Birmingham, Ala., Jan. 4, 1918.

Rev. Charles D. Bulla, D.D.,
Nashville, Tenn.

My Dear Brother Bulla: I take pleasure in accepting the invitation to deliver an address at the meeting of the Louisiana Conference Wesley Bible Class Federation on March 13 and 14. Yours fraternally,

J. H. McCOY.

Stick a tack on the map at Mansfield.

Mark your calendar at March 13 and 14.

Keep your eye on the sun-dial. You cannot afford to miss the next meeting of the Federation.

I expect to see a great company of "My Brother and I" Methodists at Mansfield. Do you?

A Godsend to Rheumatics.

Here it is. Those awful pains of rheumatism so common during the cold, rainy weather are completely forgotten, and the rheumatism is expelled from your system by the very simple treatment of taking Renwar Salts, which neutralizes the uric acid in the blood. The cause of rheumatism is uric acid in the blood, and Renwar attacks the very cause of this malady and expels the uric acid from the system. Renwar is entirely dependable. It does not in any way injure the stomach or affect the heart. It is prescribed by the best physicians, and your money is refunded if Renwar fails to relieve you of your rheumatism. Give Renwar a trial and you will never regret it. Mr. Benagh, of the Nashville Railway and Light Company, says: "Within two or three days after using Renwar my rheumatism disappeared." Price 50c. Ask your druggist for it, or write WARNER DRUG COMPANY, NASHVILLE, TENN.—Adv.

THE TIME IS SHORT.

Oh, my dear friends, you who are letting miserable misunderstanding run on from year to year; you who are keeping wretched quarrels alive because you can not quite make up your mind that now is the day to sacrifice your pride and kill them; you who are passing men sullenly upon the street, not speaking to them out of some silly spite, and yet knowing that it would fill you with shame and remorse if you heard that one of those men were dead to-morrow; you who are letting your neighbor starve till you hear that he is dying of starvation; or letting your friend's heart ache for a word of appreciation or sympathy, which you mean to give him some day; if you could know and see and feel, all of a sudden, that "the time is short," how it would break the spell! How you would go instantly and do the thing which you might never have another chance to do.—Phillips Brooks.

Why I Believe in Nuxated Iron

A Strength-Builder For The Nation

BY E. SAUER, M. D.

Probably no remedy has ever met with such phenomenal success as has Nuxated Iron. It is conservatively estimated that over three million people annually are taking it in this country alone. It has been highly endorsed and used by Former United States Senators and Members of Congress; Physicians who have been connected with well-known hospitals have prescribed and recommended it; Monseigneur Naunlnl, a prominent Catholic Clergyman, recommends it to all members of the Catholic Church. Former Health Commissioner Wm. R. Kerr, of Chicago, says it ought to be used in every hospital and prescribed by every physician. Sarah Bernhardt—"the Divine Sarah," the world's most noted actress, has ordered a large quantity sent to the French soldiers to help give them strength, power and endurance.

Dr. A. J. Newman, late Police Surgeon of the City of Chicago, and former House Surgeon Jefferson Park Hospital, Chicago, says Nuxated Iron has proven through his own tests of it to excel any preparation he has ever used for creating red blood, building up the nerves, strengthening the muscles and correcting digestive disorders.

Dr. H. B. Vail, formerly physician in the Baltimore Hospital and Medical Examiner, says that time and again he has prescribed Nuxated Iron and surprised patients at the rapidity with which the weakness and general debility were replaced by a renewed feeling of strength and vitality.

If you are not strong or well, you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of Nuxated Iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see how much you have gained.

Note:—Nuxated Iron, which has been used by former Members of the United States Senate and House of Representatives, and other prominent people with such surprising results, and which is prescribed and recommended above by physicians in such a great variety of cases, is not a patent medicine nor secret remedy, but one which is well known to druggists and whose iron constituents are widely prescribed by eminent physicians everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products, it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black nor upset the stomach; on the contrary it is a most potent remedy in nearly all forms of indigestion as well as for nervous, run-down conditions. The manufacturers have such great confidence in Nuxated Iron, that they offer to forfeit $100 to any charitable institution if they cannot take any man or woman under 60 who lacks iron and increase their strength 100 per cent. or over in four weeks' time, provided they have no serious organic trouble. They also offer to refund your money if it does not at least double your strength and endurance in ten days' time. It is dispensed by all good druggists.

YOU ARE PARTLY MADE OF IRON

That is, iron is an essential constituent of pure, healthy blood.

Peptiron, the new iron tonic, combines pepsin, iron, nux, celery and other blood and stomach tonics that physicians prescribe.

It is a wonderful corrective of anemia, paleness, languor, nervousness—whether caused by hard work, worries—over-use of salts and other blood-depleting cathartics that are doing so much harm to many people just now—or any other cause. Peptiron will restore the iron strength that you must have for cheerful performance of daily duties.

Peptiron is in convenient pill form, chocolate-coated and pleasant to take. Get it today.

THE DOMINION OF LOVE.

The image of God is love, and love is the most ambitious thing in the world. Wherever it rises, it claims universal dominion. There are four things over which love claims dominion. The first is "the fish of the sea"—the little nibbles on the waters of life. Does that seem a small claim? It is a tremendous one. It requires more love to stand worry than to stand grief. The second is "the fowl of the air"—the restless thoughts of the heart. Love can arrest unrest. It can remain unmoved amid the flight of old forms of faith; it can recognize the one presence beneath the constant change of apparel. The third is "the cattle"—the earthly or animal nature. Love can overcome that. How many a young man has it made pure! How many a sensuous soul has it refined and beautified! Love has done more than law to lift the heart above the mire. The fourth is the thing that "creepeth upon the earth"—the moments of human insignificance in which it seems presumptuous in man to hope. There are seasons in which I ask myself, "What is my petty life amid the vastness of the stars!" But love makes me stand erect. It gives me a sense of immortality, of imperishableness. It lifts me above all material things, however magnificent. It tells me there is room in the inn amid the guests of my Father. It carries me up from the manger of my own humiliation. It makes me say, "What a piece of work is man!"—George Matheson.

A FATHER OWES HIS CHILDREN A CHRISTIAN EDUCATION.

Practically all fathers recognize that they owe their children an education, but there are still multitudes of professing Christian men who do not seem to realize that they owe their children a Christian education. It is passing strange that fathers and mothers will bring up their children with the greatest care in the nurture and admonition of the Lord until they are sixteen or seventeen years of age and then send them off to school or college without the slightest inquiry into the religious influences of that school or college. As a result many of the boys and girls from our Christian homes are being sent to schools and colleges where their minds and morals are poisoned for life. I have seen one splendid young fellow after another go from Christian homes to such colleges and have seen them return utterly indifferent to religion. When you think of sending your child to college, your first question ought to be: "What will be the moral and spiritual influence of that college on my child?" Fathers, you owe your children a Christian education.—Christian Observer.

END STOMACH TROUBLE, GASES OR DYSPEPSIA

"Pape's Diapepsin" makes sick, sour, gassy stomachs surely feel fine in five minutes.

If what you just ate is souring on your stomach or lies like a lump of lead, or you belch gas and eructate sour, undigested food, or have a feeling of dizziness, heartburn, fullness, nausea, bad taste in mouth and stomach, headache, you can get relief in five minutes by neutralizing acidity. Put an end to such stomach distress now by getting a large fifty-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin from any drug store. You realize in five minutes how needless it is to suffer from indigestion, dyspepsia or any stomach disorder caused by food fermentation due to excessive acid in stomach.—Adv.

The secret of the unique combination of strength and gentleness, of force and unselfishness in Jesus, lies in the motive of his life. His aim was to serve. "I am among you as one that serveth." Men have sought for ornaments and trophies, for implements and servants, for honor and distinction. Christ sought for none of these. Unlike the kings of the Gentiles He exercised his authority merely to do good. And this magnificent ideal cuts across the law of the survival of the fittest with sharp distinction. Imported into our international relationships and into our class divisions it would revolutionize the world. —Herbert Parrish.

CHANGE IN PLACE OF COUNCIL MEETING.

On account of the crowded condition of the hotels in Louisville, Ky., caused by the cantonment located there, it has been thought best to change the place of the Council meeting, and Louisville has regretfully relinquished it for this year.

Church Street Church, Knoxville, Tenn., Holston Conference, comes forward with a most cordial invitation, which the Council gratefully accepts. Mrs. W. B. Sullins, 315 Seventh Street, Knoxville, Tenn., is General Chairman of the Entertainment Committee, and Mrs. H. A. Evans, Marion Apartments, Knoxville, Tenn., Vice Chairman. All communications in regard to entertainment should be addressed to Mrs. Evans. The date of the Council meeting is April 3-11.

LOUISIANA ANNUAL MEETING.

The Eighth Annual Meeting of the Louisiana Conference, Woman's Missionary Society of the M. E. Church, South, will be held in First Church, Shreveport, Feb. 25-28.

Mrs. H. R. Steele, Educational Secretary, will be the Council guest, and Miss Janie Watkins, of China, will be our missionary.

MRS. A. P. HOLT,
Corresponding Secretary.

LATEST NEWS FROM OUR MISSIONARIES TO AFRICA.

A recent letter from our missionaries en route to Africa, written from Loando, Angola, November 13, announces that, after waiting three weeks in Cape Town for a steamer, they have been compelled to stop in Loando because of an epidemic of yellow fever in Matadi. This will prevent their continuing on their journey for at least a month. It will be of interest to our readers to know that during their stay in Loando our missionaries have been granted the use of the Girls' Boarding Home, owned by the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church. The school is not in operation at present, so our young women are finding themselves quite at home in comfortable quarters and feeling that God is indeed good to them.

HONOR FOR A CHINESE WOMAN.

Dr. Hugh King Eng, of Foochow, who was the first woman of the Chinese race to graduate from a medical school, has been so honored and respected by the authorities that she has been given the right to hold property in her own name, the first woman in that province, if not in all China, to whom such a privilege has been granted. She has decided to exercise the right of disposing of it—also a new thing in China for a woman—and has made out a deed of the property, worth about $6000, as her offering to the Jubilee Fund of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church.—The Expositor.

SOME CHANGES AMONG OUR WORKERS.

Miss Annie Mutch, Head Resident of the Wesley House at Memphis, Tenn., has been forced to retire from the work because of the death of her only sister. She will make her home in Birmingham, Ala., in the future and will have charge of her sister's children. Miss Frances Denton was called from New Orleans to Memphis.

Miss Hazel Cooper, Head Resident of Wariota Settlement, at Nashville, Tenn., has been called to her home at Linden, Ala., because of the serious illness of her mother. It is uncertain when she will be able to return.

Both of these women will be missed from the work, not only because of their splendid consecrated lives, but because, through their untiring efforts, plans were on foot for the enlargement of the work in each place. At Memphis Wesley House a day nursery was being considered, and at Wariota plans had been launched for the building of a gymnasium. They have planted the seed, another will water them, and, perhaps, a third will reap the harvest—so it often happens in God's service. All glory and honor to those who prepare the soil and plant the seed!

May God's guidance be vouchsafed to these handmaidens of his. For the one who permanently retires from the service to assume new responsibilities we pray that she may ever feel that she has God's strong arm to lean upon and that she may lead her sister's children home to Him who always has a tender, yearning love over the motherless ones.

We pray that Miss Cooper's mother may be restored to her if it is the Father's will; if not, may his tender love comfort and sustain her.

Miss May Treadwell, for a number of years missionary to MacDonell Institute, Durango, Mexico, has been secured as principal for the new school to be opened at Nogales, Ariz. Deaconess Cornelia Godbey has also been appointed missionary to Nogales, and will begin her work of friendly visiting among the Mexicans and as pastor's assistant to the Mexican church at once. There are more than 12,000 Mexicans in Nogales alone.

A wise selection was made when Miss Godbey was sent to this work. Will anyone who had the privilege of hearing her sing at the Council meeting of 1917 ever forget the deep impressiveness of her sweet voice? We feel sure she will soon sing her way into the hearts of the Mexicans and be an instrument in God's hands in leading many to the foot of the Cross, where they will find Jesus satisfying to their souls.

Miss Annie Belle Williams, who has been at home on furlough from Japan, sailed from San Francisco on the steamship Korea Maru early in January. Miss Williams was appointed acting prineipal of the Lambuth Memorial Bible Training School, in Kobe, at the recent Annual Conference in Japan, and on the death of Miss Bonnell she became principal of that institution. While in the homeland, Miss Williams spent some of her time in Bible study, and this gives her added preparation for her work in the Bible school.

Bracing as a North Wind

AT the end of a hard day, just sit down to a cup of Luzianne Coffee. See how you pick up with every savory sip. Luzianne is far, far different from any other coffee. It's got something that all the others seem to lack. And it's packed in dust-proof, moisture-proof cans that bring Luzianne to your kitchen just the same as when it left the roaster. Buy a can and try it for yourself. An iron-clad, air-tight guarantee says that if you are not entirely satisfied with Luzianne, your grocer will give you back your money. And he will.

Order Fertilizers Now

or You May Have to Do Without Them This Season

The freight congestion is serious. You will help yourself, us, the railroads, and the Government by giving your order for Fertilizers NOW to your dealer. If all the farmers do this, the dealer can then "bunch" his orders, and be able to order his cars of fertilizers loaded to full capacity. The Government urges that all cars be so loaded.

When the goods arrive haul them home, and put them into your barn until you are ready to use them. If the movement of railroad cars becomes any more serious you may not get a pound of fertilizer at any price.

Our 50 factories, and distributing points are so well located geographically as to enable us to get fertilizers to you with minimum amount of hauling.

From the Field

Long Beach, Miss.

Dear Doctor Meek: Just a word about our work this year. Bishop Murrah read us out for Long Beach at Conference, so here we are, doing the best we can. We were kindly received by the people, after our return for the second year's work. Shortly after the New Year the ladies of the Missionary Society gathered at the parsonage bringing with them lots of good things to eat for us. Since then we have not had to bother the grocery man, for which we are very grateful. I trust the coal man has not deserted you as he has us. We are about to go on a strike here, and not patronize him any more. That is, if the pine-knots hold out.—Claude P. Jones, P. C.

Gallman Charge (Miss. Conf.)

Whereas a meeting of the Board of stewards of the Gallman charge, Brookhaven District, Mississippi Conference, M. E. Church, South, was called on Wednesday, January 2, at 2 o'clock p. m., and whereas it was the sense of this Board that the Church has grown on the charge and the Kingdom of God advanced in a pleasing degree during the past Conference year, and whereas we attribute this success in a measure to the leadership and supervision of our efficient presiding elder, Brother Leggett, and our pastor, Brother C. A. Schultz, therefore be it, Resolved, 1, That we render thanks unto our Heavenly Father for the degree of success attained in His name.

Resolved, 2, That we pledge our support to our presiding elder and pastor during the ensuing Conference year for the furtherance of the kingdom of heaven on earth.

Resolved, 3, That we agree to pray most earnestly for a greater spiritual awakening of the people in these tremendous days, when our nation is in the throes of a tragic war.

Resolved, 4, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the New Orleans Christian Advocate for publication, and a copy put in the church record.

Signed: J. E. Bridges, I. W. Enochs, M. A. Eady, J. F. Welch, H. F. Mackey.

Drugs Excite Your Kidneys, Use Salts

If your Back is aching or Bladder bothers, drink lots of water and eat less meat.

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get seared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which removes the body's urinous waste and stimulates them to their normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids so they no longer are a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this, also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.

WAR WORK COUNCIL OF THE Y. W. C. A.

A hotel for American women in Paris has been opened by the War Work Council of the Young Women's Christian Association. The building is the well known Hotel Petrograd, formerly Hotel St. Petersburg, 33 rue Caumartin, near the Madeline and the Opera.

The house accommodates 225 and is available to all American women engaged in war relief work. The house is already filled with women in uniform—workers of the Red Cross, the Young Women's Christian Association, the Fatherless Children of France, and other relief associations. Casual visitors to Paris are not now encouraged by the French authorities. The steam heat, baths and hot water are appreciated by Americans. A social room and evening entertainments for both men and women make the house a center for American life. The rates for women are 5 franes (about $1) per day, upward. In the pension rates range from 7:50 francs to 11:50 francs per day (from about $1.50 to $2.30). Before the house was opened an American girl earning $80 a month was obliged to spend $60 for bare living expenses.

Miss Blanche Geary, formerly Economics Specialist of the National Board of the Young Women's Christian Association, is the head of the hotel. Miss Mabel Little, of Cornell University, is manager. Mrs. S. C. Armstrong, the widow of General Armstrong who founded Hampton Institute, is hostess.

In providing quarters for American women in Paris, the Young Women's Christian Association is adapting to war conditions its well-tested housing policy. Proper shelter, food, recreation, and opportunities to meet men friends are the foundation on which efficieney rests. Women in America are determined that their representatives, engaged in arduous and monotonous war relief work in Paris, shall not have their strength drained away by lack of common living necessities.

ODD GEOGRAPHICAL FACTS.

The following list of odd things about the earth that the average person does not know has been compiled by Professor R. H. Whitbeck, of the University of Wisconsin geology department:

Did you know—

That the Pacific end of the Panama canal is farther east than the Atlantic end?

That Venice, Italy, and Montreal, Canada, are in about the same latitude?

That if an express train had started out from the earth for the planet Neptune at the birth of Christ, and had traveled sixty miles an hour day and night ever since, it would not yet be half way there?

That Cuba would reach from New York to Chicago?

That the mouth of the Amazon River is as near to Europe as it is to New York?

That Texas is larger than Germany and as large as 212 Rhode Islands?

That when measured in degrees of longitude, San Francisco is about in the middle of the United States including Alaska?

That the entire continent of South America lies farther east than Florida?

That Glasgow, Scotland, is in the same latitude as Alaska?

That, if the southern end of Chile, South America, were placed at Florida that single country would extend northward entirely across the United States?

Christianity is simply coming to Christ and staying with Him. It is nothing else. That is Christianity. "Whether we live, to live unto the Lord; or whether we die, to die unto the Lord." To come to Him is to be made alive, when we share His life and shall share it forevermore. To come to Christ is the beginning of communion, and communion is partnership, and partnership is eternal glory.—J. H. Jowett.

WANTED 15,000 YOUNG MEN AND WOMEN

The Government has enlisted the aid of Draughon's College in securing 10,000 stenographers and thousands of other office assistants, making, so to speak, DRAUGHON'S a recruiting and training station for Government office assistants.

Miss Gilley, on recently completing, BY MAIL, Draughon's Bookkeeping—an eight-weeks' course—received the following telegram from the Government:

(Copy of Telegram)

Washington, D. C.—Miss Vera Gilley, Murfreesboro, Tenn.: You are appointed bookkeeper Revenue Bureau, $1,000.00 a year. Report 234 Treasury Bldg. ROPER, Commissioner.

Another Telegram.

Washington, D. C.—Miss E. J. Laws (Draughon's), Nashville, Tenn.: You are appointed stenographer, $1,100.00 a year, Surgeon General, War Department. Report room 506 Mills Building. NINAS, Chief Clerk.

The foregoing telegrams are worded along the line of other telegrams the Government is sending almost DAILY to Draughon students, offering them $1,000.00 to $1,200.00 a year to begin on. If you prefer a position with a business concern, Draughon's will guarantee it.

$300.00 a Month.

B. H. WILKINSON, Bookkeeper, Bloom Clothing Co., Lead, S. D., writes: "Draughon's Bookkeeping, which I took by mail, changed my position from clerk, at $25 a month, to bookkeeper, at $100.00 a month. Just accepted position with New York concern at $300 a month."

$5,000.00 a Year.

W. O. PARSONS, Mgr., Equitable Life Assurance Society, Rome, Ga., writes: "On completing Draughon's Shorthand by mail, I accepted a position as stenographer, at $75.00 a month; now making $5,000.00 a year."

By the Draughon method of instruction—the method indorsed by business men—the necessary training can be taken BY MAIL just as well as at college, and at about one-sixth the cost. For rates on course BY MAIL or AT COLLEGE, write

Look, Mother! If tongue is coated, cleanse little bowels with "California Syrup of Figs."

Mothers can rest easy after giving "California Syrup of Figs," because in a few hours all the clogged-up waste, sour bile and fermenting food gently moves out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again.

Sick children needn't be coaxed to take this harmless "fruit laxative." Millions of mothers keep it handy because they know its action on the stomach, liver and bowels is prompt and sure.

Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which contains directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups.—Adv.

THE MANIA FOR MEETINGS AND MOVEMENTS.

By Bishop W. A. Candler.

"Forsake not the assembling of yourselves together" is an apostolic injunction which the American people obey perfectly. Indeed, they overdo it.

There is a mania for meetings and organizations.

Every profession and every trade has its association, with officers, dues, an official organ, and all sorts of meetings, seasonable and unseasonable.

Even the sufferers from hay fever have a national association, the nasal bond holding them together in distressing fellowship.

The number of religious assemblies has become so great that many of them injure religion in their attempts to serve the cause. Like parasites, they sap the life of the body to which they cling. The manifold conventions held are beginning to be injurious in many respects.

In former days most any thriving community of pious people was glad to entertain any religious body which was characterized by worthy aims and proper methods. But the number of associations and conventions has so increased in recent years that the people are not now so hospitably inclined toward religious assemblies. They have grown weary of them and are not to be blamed for having grown tired of opening their homes to all sorts of delegations. Even necessary and proper meetings are no longer desired in many places. Thus the spirit of hospitality has been impaired by being imposed on too frequently.

But this is not the worst result. The damage to home life which has been wrought by the multiplication of meetings is a more serious consequence.

There is a widespread neglect of family worship, and to a considerable degree it may be traced to the enormous increase of meetings outside the home. A zealous man or woman, undertaking to attend all the "societies" of the Church and the annual conventions of the societies, is forced to neglect the home. What can compensate the Church for the extinguishing of the altar fires in the homes of the people?

Why cannot the Church—the whole Church—attend to its proper business without splitting itself up into so many societies and wearing itself out with factionalism?

The waste of money on needless machinery is enough to accomplish a vast deal of good if directly applied to the work of the Church, without the intervention of multiplied societies and expensive conventions.

Our Lord commanded his followers to go into all the world and give his gospel to every creature. The missionary obligation rests on his words, and it is a perfectly plain matter. Nevertheless there may be many who have to attend a half dozen missionary conventions a year in order to keep their zeal for the mission cause from expiring. A great deal of money is expended in this way which would achieve more if placed in the treasury of the Church directly. The outlay upon ourselves to keep us disposed to meet our missionary obligations reminds one of the amount of water which has to be poured into a dry wooden pump before any can be gotten out of it.

A reasonable number of missionary meetings for the purpose of becoming informed concerning the needs of special fields and the general progress of the work is necessary, but a constant compassing of sea and land to keep one's interest alive in missions seems something worse than useless. It may become a sort of dissipation.

Another hurtful result of multiplying meetings arises from the programs and speakers. Men and women are appointed to read papers and make addresses on a great variety of themes, and most appointees for such service strive to say something "original" and striking. The quality most in request is what is called "snap." This brings a temptation to care less for what is true than for what is new. But once a man has said a thing, he gets ready to contend for it. What at first he was a trifle uncertain about he begins to believe as strongly as if it were Holy Writ. Out of multiplied meetings, therefore, have sprung great swarms of faddists, hobby riders, and reformers. Our land is covered with them as Egypt was infested with the plague of locusts. They would devour all the best things of the past in order to make room for all the untried things which imagination can conceive under the stimulation of the desire to be fresh and sparkling in an address before a convention.

Excessive meetings are the breeding grounds of rickety reformers, who would, if they could, set the world afire in order to be known as the most brilliant incendiaries of the age.

Close akin to this evil result is another. It is this: A man who speaks for a cause may easily fall into the delusion that he has by his speech discharged fully his obligation with reference to it. His moral energy is so exhausted by speaking that he has nothing left for action.

It is an old jibe to talk of temperance reformers who spoke for temperance often under the stimulant of drink. Of course it was unkind and unfair, but nevertheless it is true that the temperance sentiments of some men have been for speaking use only.

And there are some men who have no more than a speaking acquaintance with the cause of missions. Their consciences are satisfied by their speeches, and they feel that nothing more should be expected of them.

Pulpit orators have been known to plead the cause of the neglected classes of the slums who would never have accepted willingly a pastorate to a Church located in a slum district. Guthrie refused any other sort of pastorate, because his heart was really with the poor and distressed people of a great Scotch city, but he was not famous for making the rounds of conventions and delivering addresses on "Social Service." He served while others talked.

Our Master has warned us of the danger of prophesying in his name without really knowing him and of saying "Lord, Lord," very solemnly without doing what he commands. The habit of speechmaking at conventions brings this peril very near to many men. In that market place speech is in great request, and the demand creates the supply.

May not a deal of vanity and pride enter into the overfondness of some people for conventions? In the conventions there are offices to be filled and titles to be conferred. The zeal of such people vanishes like a mist when they are not elected to office by the convention. They like uppermost seats in the conventional synagogues. How otherwise could they ever be known? The rolls of officers for certain conventions are crowded with the names of very interior men who have been lifted into notice by election to positions who without such election would never have been heard of beyond the limits of the militia districts in which they reside. They dearly love "publicity" and the "publicity bureau" of the convention. During the sessions of their conventions their faces become nearly as familiar to the readers of the local newspapers as the face of Lydia Pinkham or the horse and rider in the advertisement of Mexican Mustang Liniment.

There is perhaps one other society needed in America, and no more than one. Perhaps a society is needed to kill about half the societies which are existing already. What a blessed organization that would be!

But it would reduce printers' bills; for all the conventions and their officers must have much printing, such as circulars, questionnaires, announcements, programs, etc. It would reduce also the postal receipts of the government. Likewise railway fares would be reduced; for more people would stay at home, and fewer people would be galloping over the land in pursuit of meetings. Upon the whole, however, there would be much saved. Postage would be reduced, but prayers in the home might become more common. Fewer passenger tickets might be sold; but if people stayed at home more, there might be produced a greater tonnage of freight, for running about is rather unproductive business.

If we had fewer conventions of reformers and more people pursuing wholesome lives at home, there might be fewer reformations needed. The mania for meetings and movements leads to the neglect by parents of multiplied thousands of children who in mature life need reforming, because parental negligence has deformed them.

THE ESSENTIAL THING.

However much noise a man may make about what he is doing in the way of achievments that are generally accounted commendable, unless he abides in Christ he cannot bear truly spiritual fruit. There is doubtless much Church work that men applaud that the Master will adjudge to be of little value. Do we not need to keep in mind the fact that there is a time coming when "the fire shall try every man's work, of what sort it is?"

THE DAILY THOUGHT.

Most of all the other beautiful things in life come by twos and threes, by dozens and hundreds. Plenty of roses, stars, sunsets, rainbows, brothers and sisters, aunts and cousins, but only one mother in all the wide world.—R. L. Stevenson.

GIFTS OF THE HEART.

Gifts from the hand are silver and gold, but the heart gives that which neither silver nor gold can buy. To be full of goodness, full of cheerfulness, full of sympathy, full of helpful hope, causes one to carry with him blessings of which he is himself as unconscious as a lamp is of its own shining. Such a one moves on human life as stars move on dark seas to bewildered mariners; as the sun wheels, bringing all the lessons with him from the South.—Beecher.

WHAT IS WORSHIP?

"To sit quiet in a pew in the house of God is not all of worship. A man's body may be in a pew and his mind and heart be a thousand miles away. Worship is concentration. Body, mind, soul fixed on God, communing with God: that is true worship. The Spirit comes into the heart of the worshiper, and brings the things of God to him. He prays, and praises, and becomes conscious of God. The truth is applied by the Spirit to the individual heart, and the worshiper becomes conscious that he has been sitting in a heavenly place with Jesus Christ."

CHRISTIANS FEED ON THE BREAD OF LIFE.

I heard once about some artificial bees, and they had some secret spring in them, so that they could make those bees walk around and fly, and they were so perfect that you could not tell them from the natural bee, but put a little honey down and you could soon tell which were the artificial and which were the real bees; and so you can tell if you bring the bread of heaven to people who are artificial Christians, and who are Christians who live on bread; because it sounds good, they like to get the bread of heaven; and if you can only get to feed upon this living bread you become strong, but if you have only been living on form you become weaker and weaker, and there is no power.—D. L. Moody.

THE HEAVENLY LEADER.

Whenever we are in great straits, we may look for a special revelation of our Lord. The moment of our extremity is ever God's opportunity. Our dark clouds are the canvass on which he loves to paint his fairest colors. Joshua's experience was limited. He knew of only two sides, his own and that of his adversaries. But the Angel-Warrior insisted that he belonged to neither the one side nor the other, but to another host, which was marshaled behind the veil, waiting for his word of command. This was the host that was to overthrow the power of the enemy, and win the land for his chosen people.

A similar vision is granted to each hardly-beset warrior. We all have our walls of Jericho. Again and again we come up against insuperable difficulties. We go out to consider our position, and cast ourselves in desperation on God. Then the angels of God meet us; then our eyes are opened to see that the mountain is full of horses and chariots of fire; then Jesus stands beside us in the fight against social wrongs, deeply rooted evils, and the hosts of wicked spirits. All we have to do is to take our marching orders from his lips. "What saith my Lord unto his servant?" Probably the one thing for us, is to bare our feet in reverence.—F. B. Meyer.

"If you are on a railway train, your falling asleep will not hinder you from reaching your journey's end. If you are in Christ you will pass into glory, even though you may do so in a state of insensibility."

GOD WORKS IN A MYSTERIOUS WAY.

A great big question-mark is written on the face of every present day movement whether it pertains to Church or State or commerce. Everybody is inquiring what is the meaning of all the commotion, uneasiness, strife and bloodshed going on in the most civilized portions of the earth. Can it be the outcome of a few distorted minds reaching for the goal of universal empire like the child stretching its hands to grasp the moon, or is it just a-happen-so in the affairs of national and international movements? In fact, does it not now appear that there is a great underlying cause, and that that cause is Providence working to bring His people to a more conscious realization of His authority and His right to govern? We should keep before us the fact that Christian enlightenment brings increased responsibilities, both with respect to the Divine commands, as well as the cry of humanity.

It seems almost anomalous when we consider that while organized Christendom was extending to an enlarged degree the Gospel privileges and the teachings of Christ to the remotest and darkest continents and sections on earth, yet at the same time not only preparation was being made and actual battle engaged in, but there was every indication of a prevalence of practical infidelity and personal indulgence to a hurtful degree among the leaders politically and commercially in the very territory where these preparations for the extension of the Gospel were being made. There are things which God will not permit his professed followers to indulge in which He may tolerate in others who make no claims to discipleship or allegiance to His authority. The wicked may and do flourish like the green bay tree, but it is because he desires none other, and in fact makes that his god. The Divine record concedes to him his reward, and in that he may revel and seemingly spend a joyous time. His final ending, however, is tragic, such as Christ strongly condemns and urges that men should abhor. Whenever an individual or a people commit their ways unto God there is quite a different attitude and obligation assumed toward the great plan of individual and social redemption as outlined in the Sermon on the Mount. The Christian man assumes the obligation of the bortherhood of man, and it would appear that he is guilty of social treason if he should revel in self-indulgence while his fellow-man is in need. It was the closing up of the ears of compassion to the urgent cry of suffering humanity that seemed to grate more upon the refined sensibilities of Christ than almost any other sin.

Is it not true that within the last fifty years the rich have been growing richer and the poor poorer, and along with this has there not been quite a widening of the river of indifference, if not also that of repugnance, between the two? Has not the Church in some sections found herself opposed, sometimes neglected, in her effort to minister unto both? Are not the two requiring a different gospel, when, in fact, there is and can be but one? Have the men owning and representing great institutions yielding munificent profits been religiously fellowshipping with the men who labor with their hands for the daily wage and live in obscure and humble homes? Living as we do under the benign influence of the Christian religion, and most of us accepting and appropriating its blessings in a general way, will God continue to permit us to lay by in store in superabundance unless the doctrine of stewardship and the principles of scriptural division become more universally adopted and practiced by those who have been fotunate, yea, and even blessed by a providential hand in this wonderful country? There was no fault found with the man who gathered the great crop that the God of nature had bestowed upon him, but the sin was in tearing down the old barns and building others sufficient in size to hold safely for his own selfish indulgence in the far away future.

We therefore ask who knows but what a chastening rod is being laid upon the backs just now of our own American people, as well as others so favorably situated across the sea, in order to bring us to a proper sense of our obligations assumed as Christian people and to let us study afresh and better understand the right relationship to our fellow-men? Is it not better that this be done than to have it said, "Thou fool, thy soul shall be required of thee?" Does not the laying on of the chastening hand still indicate that God is interested, yea, and even loves His own?

There are signs already of the good effect of the chastening rod, although the fires of national and commercial strife are still burning. Men are to-day turning their thoughts as well as their activities to the distribution of wealth in a way to bring the greatest happiness to mankind as never before. Bankers, merchants, manufacturers, farmers, and professional men are thinking less of hoarding up profits and salting down unearned increments, and more of the well-being of others. Institutions that are established for the relief of suffering and to administer the balm of healing to the minds and bodies of the poor are not only challenging the attention, but are commanding munificent gifts from sources not dreamed of twenty-five years ago. Many of the great leaders of finance are openly declaring that no greater disgrace could befall the rich than for them to die without leaving behind some shining mark of large benefactions to institutions that are really bringing help and sunshine. Are not these but the prophesies of the coming time when the wills of the departed rich will carry bequets in large sums for building and endowing hospitals, colleges, universities, etc.? Can we not say that we can see men moving up a step in advance of that as they administer upon their own estates while they live by setting apart much of their earnings each year for the carrying on of this benevolent work? Can we not say that God yet works in mysterious ways his wonders to perform? Who would have thought ten years ago that $400,000 would have been raised in and around Memphis, Tenn., within one year's time for the building and maintenance of hospitals? And yet that has been done. The Methodists in January of 1917 raised $175,000 and the Baptists in January of this year raised about $250,000. The manner in which our great captains of industry and owners of large tracts of land, as well as others of smaller means, are cheerfully contributing to these institutions leads us to the final conclusion that the hearts of men are being turned in a more sympathetic way toward charitable institutions and the work that they are doing than ever before, and who knows but that this is one of the delightful fruitages of God's overruling Providence in all of this strife and conflict and bloodshed that we see about us to-day?

THE CARD-PLAYING HOME.

A converted gambler of Chicago said with emphasis and from wide experience: "The card-playing home is the kindergarten of the gambling saloon." Says Mr. John Bigelow: "Nine people out of ten, when they for the first time accept an invitation to join a game of whist or poker, have no more suspicion about the passions that they may be apt to nurse than the maid of sixteen when she engages in her first flirtation." The "Christian Index" observes: "We have never known a reputable, spiritually-minded, soul-winning preacher to be a card player, nor have we ever known church members, distinguished for their piety and spirituality and for their regular attendance upon the mid-week prayer meeting, who were card players. Card playing is not profitable for the development of Christian character and for enlarging the usefulness of Christians in the promotion of spirituality and consecration in the lives of others. The tendencies of card playing, like those of dancing, are in the wrong direction. Just as the dance furnishes victims of vice, just so social card playing furnishes recruits for the gambling room."—Raleigh Christian Advocate.

THOSE SARATOGA ROSES.

By Rev. S. A. Steel, D. D.

We have named our Mansfield home "Melrose Manse." It is a sweet little nest, with a rose-vine arching the entrance, a big grassy front lawn, and far enough back from the street to escape the noise. There is a nice garage, a big yard for chickens, and a garden plot in the rear of the house; and beyond that the College grounds, where Bobbitt's merry maidens romp under the trees. Shankle left a lot of useful junk. He had one of those little garden hoes, about as heavy as a golf-stick. The idea! I got me a "Scovill No. 1." When that strikes the sod something is cut loose.

I had just read in the Northern Methodist papers that Dr. Goucher predicts there will be a united General Conference by the time the roses bloom in June. I suppose they are those Saratoga roses he spoke about last May, whose fraternal fragrance so overcame some of our Southern visitors that they have been dancing the "Union Fling" ever since. I was ruminating on the issue, and trying to see if I could feel comfortable in a union Church. I began thinking over the men I know with whom I would have to associate. There is Goucher himself. Fine as silk, I said; I'll trust him to do the square thing every time. Then I ran on until I came to the name of "C. B. Spencer." Why sure, I said; that fellow's heart is as big as his brain, and that is as big as all of outdoors. And so on, until I found that if I just had to knock under, I would find high-class company in the union Church.

The mail was handed me. One letter was from a distinguished Northern Methodist minister, college president, and so forth. He lamented my untimely decease, and thought Dr. C. B. Spencer very extravagant in these war times in using so much material to make my shroud. I said, Hello! I had Spencer down as one of the agreeable fellows with whom I could fraternize in the union Church, and it seems he has been officiating at my funeral. I immediately wrote to him, and told him his blade must have been the fabled scimeter, whose stroke was so keen its victim did not realize he had been smitten until he moved, when he fell asunder. Before I moved I would like to take a look at my shroud. He at once sent a copy of his paper, the General Christian Advocate, containing his editorial comment on my anti-union sentiments.

Shrouds are usually white, but this is of deepest black, and covers four columns. Moreover, it is saturated with anti-fraternal acid, probably to consume the corpse. Some of the acid was left over, and he emptied it on the New Orleans Advocate. The fabric of this shroud was so deftly woven, bore such close resemblance to Teutonic "Kultur," that I thought it must bear the trade mark, "Made in Germany." But upon reading it I found it was made in Kansas City, and woven in a Unification Commissioner's loom! I have no idea of being buried in it; but it is an interesting sample of Saratoga product.

Dr. Spencer says that my views on Unification are "camoflage," "unreality," "deception," "camouflage undiluted," "piffle;" that my motive is to stir up race prejudice; that I am tainted with "Phariseeism;" and that my spirit is the same as that by which the angels fell in the beginning! Ain't that fine for one I had put down on my fraternal list as a jolly good friend? Camouflage means lying, "a falsehood intended to deceive." I don't know what "piffle" is, Meek. Do you? Is it worse than lying? Those Saratoga roses have thorns; maybe "piffle" is one of the stickers. It is the first time I have ever been accused of insincerity.

Of course, I shall not attempt to reply to Dr. Spencer's article. When a man accuses you of "camouflage," discussion is ended. Then "piffle," Meek—that "piffle" gets me. I suppose it belongs to the secret code of the Commissioners. I do not question Dr. Spencer's sincerity in earnestly desiring the union of the two Churches, or doubt that he really believes it would promote the highest interests of the Kingdom we all desire to see come in this sin-weary world. I make no comment on his accusation of my motives. But I do say that Dr. Spencer's article, "But, Sirs, Not By Camouflage," reveals the temper of the Northern Methodists in this matter of the union of the two Churches. We may have been "like fools wandering forty years in the wilderness;" but that folly will be wisdom compared with the reckless disregard of consequences if we put ourselves under the control of a Northern majority. We see in the case of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church how that majority will set all considerations of equity aside, and gobble up the property of the minority. Of course, we will not submit without a fight to the last ditch; but it means endless litigation, the rekindling of the old fires of antagonism, and a reign of confusion fatal to spiritual progress.

Dr. Spencer's article proved to be a shroud for the baby unification "Hope," just born in my heart. I buried the little unfortunate, and it was soon reduced to nothing by that acid wrapping. To change the metaphor, the flickering spark in my breast, from which I was honestly trying to kindle a unification fire, was quenched by the Spencerian spray. I will pray more earnestly than ever that the dear old Methodist Episcopal Church, South, may escape these destroyers, and not go down in June; but sail on, riding the stormy waves in the strength of God. "She has landed many thousands, and can land as many more!" I want to go to heaven in her, Meek; and I don't want to go before the roses bloom in June. I have walked her decks for more than fifty years, and, though only a stoker in the hold, have helped to keep her fires burning, and sung hallelujah as her keel cut the flashing brine and her pennant streamed proudly to the gale! It makes my heart ache to think that she must perish, her honored name be buried in a "dead past," and all her sacred memories sacrificed on the altar of expediency. Dr. Rawlings may be willing to say, "Good-bye, old Ship;" and Dr. Moore see her go down with tearless eyes; and Dr. Thomas watch her sink without a sigh; and Dr. DuBose wave her a long farewell; and Dr. Werlein pronounce the benediction at her grave. But it will be the saddest day in my life when the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, ceases to exist.

Meek, I feel somehow that we are to survive the submarines, and get to sea again all right. As long as a spar of the old ship floats I'll cling to it. I'd rather drift to glory on a fragment of the old ship that has brought me safe thus far across the swelling seas than ride into port a captive on the proud Cruiser that sinks her. Two things are uppermost with me now, Meek: To whip the Kaiser and avert the union of the two Churches.

Mansfield, La.

AN OPEN LETTER TO THE GENERAL CONFERENCE DELEGATES OF THE MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

Dear Brethren: You may think the following words presumption, but you were elected to your present position by the suffrage of your brethren, and the humblest of them has a right to speak.

If the humblest has a right to SPEAK, he has a right to be HEARD.

If this open letter be presumption, the prayer of the Psalmist to he kept from presumptuous sins would be appropriate now, but it will be a "back number" when this letter is concluded.

You were elected by your Conference as delegates to the General Conference which meets in Atlanta, Ga., next May.

The approach of the General Conference should remind you that we are now facing a crucial hour in the history of Southern Methodism.

The General Conference will decide certain questions which have engaged the attention of the press for many months, but decisions do not always settle things.

Despite General Conference action, nothing will be settled unless it is settled right.

Your votes may turn the scales in the direction of future prosperity for our Church, or the reverse. This fact should impress you with the responsibility of your position, and the need of thoughtful deliberation.

The dictionary man says that a delegate is a representative.

There are representatives and misrepresentatives.

A misrepresentative votes his own sentiments; a representative votes the sentiments of his constituency. The vote is the classifying element.

Your constituency is composed of the members of the Mississippi Conference.

You know, or should know, the sentiment of your constituency on the unification question, and the specifications of the Eleazer propaganda.

On these matters you have it in your power to be a representative or a misrepresentative. Your vote will designate your class.

You noted the fact that many ballots were cast before the delegates were finally chosen. That was because your Conference wanted to elect safe men.

In the unexpected thought of your Conference, "safe men" signified men who would vote in the negative on unification (except on the basis of the Oklahoma plan) and the items of the so-called "Laymen's Address."

In this connection, do not let the difference between represent and misrepresent be forgotten—especially in Atlanta next May.

Since you are men of laudable aspirations, presumably you would like to succeed yourselves four years hence.

We have heard it said that men in the political world sometimes dig their political graves.

Political aspirants dig their political graves by misrepresenting the sentiment of their constituency.

It is possible to dig ecclesiastical graves with the same implement.

The fact that some delegates to the last General Conference did not succeed themselves is significant. The explanation: Class legislation.

Your attitude on the vital questions named will be noted, and by your votes you may toll your own funeral bell.

Dr. John M. Moore, the prophet of unification, asseverates that unification is as certain as anything can be.

Then, the disruption of the M. E. Church, South, is as certain as anything can be.

Your brethren voted for you because they believed you would stand for the continued autonomy of Southern Methodism—not for its disruption.

While you are in Atlanta making history for future generations to read, we, who sent you to represent us, shall pray for you that you may vote as we pray.

Yours for Southern Methodism,

JOHN W. RAMSEY.

REV. WILLIAM S. HARRISON.

Some time in the autumn of 1855 I went with my father to the Fourth Quarterly Conference of the Randolph Circuit. It was at this meeting that two young men, A. C. Smith and W. S. Harrison, were recommended for admission into the traveling connection. Brother Smith served long and faithfully in the effective ranks and went to his reward in 1895. On account of personal disability many years of Brother Harrison's life were spent in the supernumerary or superannuate relation. But these were not idle years. They were spent profitably to himself and to the Church. He died in a good old age in favor with God and men.

Under God, Brother Harrison was a product of Methodism. He grew to be a workman that had no occasion to be ashamed of his work, nor was the Church ashamed to own him as one of her workmen. He came from the ranks of the humble. I know nothing of his parentage and early surroundings, but I know that when he joined the Conference he was to all outward appearances a most unpromising case. Brother Smith encountered no trouble in the examination nor in receiving the vote of the Quarterly Conference. He was good looking, fairly well educated, and presented a handsome appearance. In these respects Brother Harrison was lacking. He had not mastered the rudiments of the English language, and in answering questions he gave the Conference some specimens of his home-made pronunciation. The examination was a searching one—two hours or more in length. Brother Harrison, though deficient in education, had studied the doctrines and polity of Methodism, and believed in them. This was worth more to him under the circumstances than a full knowledge of grammar or literature. This, coupled with fluency of speech and his superior natural ability, put him through.

When the case was put to the Quarterly Conference there was a long and exciting debate. Dr. Du Bose, the leading layman, was a personal friend of Brother Harrison, but opposed recommending him to the Annual Conference on the ground that his education was too limited to thrust him out upon the Church. He advocated delay, and generously offered to send him to school. Brother Sterling Adams, an influential local preacher, advocated immediate recommendation, believing that he had in him such elements as would soon overcome the handicap and make him an acceptable and useful preacher. "As for preaching," said Brother Adams, "he can do that now. He can beat some of us who have been at it twenty years."

Brother Harrison was received into the Memphis Conference and remained with that body until the oraganization of the North Mississippi Conference in 1870, when, being in the Mississippi end of the Conference, he elected to remain there. For ten years or longer he attracted no more attention than men of ordinary talent—not as much as some. It was claimed that he was "too much of a book-worm." That he was too much of a book-worm to succeed on l arge, hard circuits is perhaps true—such, for example, as the Oxford Circuit with eighteen appointments, which he traveled in 1862. But he was laying a foundation, broad and deep. If he couldn't get a college education, he was determined to be a man of learning. And he succeeded. In due time the fruits of his application began to appear. He sprang suddenly into notice and into prominence. I think it likely the spring would have been made earlier in his ministry but for the intervention of the war, which so sadly deranged and damaged both the country and the Church.

Brother Harrison's opportunity came when Water Valley assumed prominence. Several years prior to his appointment to the place, it had been rising in importance, but was better known as a railroad town than a church town. We had a modest frame building on the hill across the railroad from where our church now stands. The membership was made up of live, active Christians. The presiding elder, Rev. F. S. Petway, appointed to the district at the time Brother Harrison was appointed to the station, was jubilant over the situation. He paid the church the highest compliment, saying: "I found at Water Valley the finest type of Methodism I have seen in many years." And he was as complimentary of Brother Harrison as he was of the church. He was in the right place, and had begun a wonderful work. His resources, which had been accumulating during the fourteen years past, were drawn on, and he gave his people sermon after sermon of the highest order, and soon his church could hardly hold the people that flocked to hear him. His mind and heart and energies were quickened, and he responded, not only to the call for the gospel, but also for pastoral oversight. After that, I never heard of any one complaining that he was "too much of a book-worm." There was, however, a slight complaint that he had drifted into what we call to-day the higher criticism. That complaint was short-lived. He was often associated with Dr. J. J. Wheat, and I have the idea, but not the proof, that Dr. Wheat had something to do with keeping him to the old paths. If I am not mistaken, the Doctor got the better of him on the points involved in a private discussion at the old Water Valley camp-meeting. Brother Harrison did a wonderful work in Water Valley. He left the church in a flourishing condition.

From Water Valley Brother Harrison went to Columbus, following the brilliant and erratic Dr. J. B. Cottrell. Columbus was then one of the strongest and most aristocratic churches in the South, and withal thoroughly grounded in the Methodist faith. Sending Brother Harrison there was a recognition of his great ability and moral worth. How he succeeded in Columbus I do not know. Before he went there, I was separated from the Conference by transfer and was laboring in Arkansas. I have no doubt, though, that he maintained his reputation as a preacher and worker.

In his retirement from the active ministry Brother Harrison entertained and edified the church through the public press. He wrote and published three books, and gave many delightful articles to the church papers. He was a true Christian, as guileless as Nathanael, and as true as St. John. He has reaped the reward of the faithful. JNO. W. BOSWELL.

HERE, THERE, YONDER, AND MANY THINGS.

Now, Doctor, that caption looks muchly like a potpourri, and if this passes inspection by your readers it may look like a poor pot. However, if there be no death in the pot no harm is done. It's been such a long recess that I've forgotten where I left off—somewhere about the time of the gathering of the clan. Yes, they came, all of the fellows, with a few connectionals thrown in for good measure. Our people gave them a hearty welcome—every family said "we had the pick," and all who felt so said "I had the best home." It had been such a long, long time since a Methodist Conference had met in this city that many doubted of its entertainment, but we had room and to spare. All here pronounced it a great occasion. I have a grievance against the Editor, however; "he came, he saw," but we saw him never a bit, though on parting, his colleague expressed himself as well pleased. There was a conspicuous absence of connectional brethren. The representative of the Board of Missions, Hounshell, made a fine impression upon the Conference and some were ready to say that there is good Bishop timber in him. I understood that he is a product of Emory and Henry—that institution which has four of her sons in the Episcopal College at this time. Sam Steel represented the Sunday School Board. His lecture on the "Pioneers of Methodism" was charmingly delivered and graciously received—only Steel could do it to perfection—but some of us were looking for things "new and old" in fine dress on the work of the Sunday school. "Somebody," he said, "switched him off." Sorry. Well, the shouting and the tumult died, and I soon found myself in the same old harness pulling at the tug as though no captains or kings had been here—burying the dead (6), marrying the young couples (6), receiving members (5), giving certificates (5), and the first Quarterly Conference almost forgotten. Doctor, a fellow has to hump himself in these days of commissioners, boards, and bureaus, or he'll get run over.

Our Mississippi Bishop pleased everybody—his hostess said. "Charming"; his old boys said, "Old Doc's improving"; the Conference said, "Ain't he kind," and the people said, "His sermon on Sunday was up to their ideas of a real Bishop." There were fewer moves than I recall at any past session, which in the face of the strenuous times was wise.

By the way, I am one ahead. I read your extract from Bishop Candler on using the pulpit for advertising all sorts of movements, and congratulated myself that I had fallen in with his suggestions long since. Why, already before January has passed I've received letters asking for sermons on three different calls, even to spraying fruit trees. Where does the time come to preach Jesus, the Savior of men, with all these calls upon us?

Well, we took our mid-winter vacation with the children, and though it was cold, down almost to zero, we enjoyed the days sitting round the fires playing "William a trimble toe" and "club fist," and listening to the prattle of the younsters. Sometimes they stepped on your toes, and occasionally there was a scrap over some toy, but that was all in the game. A pleasant episode was an hour with "little Maggie Allen," now Mrs. Magruder, of Tunica—the same bright, cheery, sparkling little girl (now a mother) as when we knew each other in Canton—she in the Sunday school, I in the pulpit. She told me that she took the New Orleans Advocate and read everything from my pen; so she'll see this to recall a suggestion and a promise, granddaughter to David Wiggins, a fine chip off the old block. * * * Dr. Chappell called for relief for the Armenians and Crawford Street Sunday school responded with $44.50; then came the missionary relief fund and a response of $10; so we begin. Crawford Street is represented by eighteen or twenty boys "somewhere in France" or in the home cantonments, and we are realizing that we are in the struggle.

On the morning of the 18th (you see I'm one day older than General Lee) I woke up to recognize that I was passing another milestone—and wasn't it cold? Well, we've had it that way in these parts almost without let-up for six weeks, and the Morning Herald says that the ice in the Mississippi at this point has stopped the railroad transfer and the ferryboat across to the Louisiana side. And the fuel supply? Well, just as everywhere, short and scrappy. We have had reports of one or two very old colored people who have succumbed to the weather. We gave the brethren a hearty welcome, but we are mighty glad they got away before this weather came. The order of the weeks has been ice, snow, rain, and blizzard upon blizzard. The plumbers have been reaping a harvest (when they could work) and the people have been grumbling over broken pipes and flooded houses. The pastor of Crawford Street has had a reminder of the pioneer days in his three weeks' experience, bringing water from his neighbors in the old time "blue buckets" for every purpose, culinary and sanitary—in the parlance of his college days he's been having "jay bird baths." None of your "plunges" for me when the mercury "gets" below 32 Fahrenheit. My self-respect and finer feelings rebel. I recall a poem in one of McGuffey's Readers wherein the school boy rejoices with his sled and sport, but my feelings are more in sympathy with the widow whose lament is for the comfort of herself and her little ones. Others may prate over the "Beautiful Snow," but I prefer the "Perfect day in June." If I recollect aright, the same man didn't write both those poems. How could he?

The morning papers record the death of Capt. W. T. Ratliff of Raymond. In his going Mississippi has lost one of her foremost citizens, prohibition one of its stanchest friends, and the Baptist Church one of her leading supporters.

When the weather clears up and we have a chance to see, I'll write something of the plans of Crawford Street for 1918. Enough for now.

T. B. HOLLOMAN.

A MATTER OF MUCH IMPORTANCE.

To the friends of National Prohibition:

We have an opportunity now staring us in the face to do the biggest thing in temperance work that was ever done in the U. S. A.—that is, to ratify the National Prohibition Amendment. We will ask the Louisiana Legislature, when it meets in May next, to ratify this amendment. I wish to request that every Sunday school, every congregation, and every Bible class call on those who represent them in the Legislature, both House and Senate, to vote for this amendment. Do it now, and let me know the result of your conference. We cannot afford to defer this matter; it is too important. The other side is at work day and night. It is possible that, as Christian people, we are less interested in conserving the health and morals of our people than are the opposition in debauching them? Again I appeal to you to get busy and keep this office informed as to what you are doing. A. W. TURNER.

DR. COOK'S PAMPHLET VERSUS THE BISHOPS.

By Rev. J. F. Corbin.

"Adopt these policies if you will, but I serve notice now that if I am assigned to the episcopal superintendence of the Mexican field they will not be carried out under my administration."—Bishop Denny.

"In my opinion, the agreements there (Cincinnati) made by our representatives have no authority in law, and were unwise in fact. I cannot approve them, and they will not be carried out under my administration until the General Conference has met and passed on them."—Bishop Candler.

"I am unalterably opposed to spending one dollar or one cent in the promotion of so-called union enterprises until we are able to take better care of the valuable institutions we already have on hand."—Bishop Hoss.

It is generally understood that the Bishops in their mid-year meeting in 1914 adopted a resolution expressing their opinion that the Cincinnati Plan was not legal and requested or instructed the Bishop in charge of the Mexican field not to carry it into effect.

"What right have the Bishops of the Church to decline to participate in any plan or policy adopted by the General Conference Boards, so long as they keep within their authorized functions, as in this case?—Dr. Cook.

"The missionary operation of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, shall be administered by a Board of Missions, which shall have charge of all foreign missions of the Church."—Dr. Cook.

That we may arrive at a correct conclusion in this matter let us turn to the law and testimony. The Discipline of 1914, in paragraph 395 says, "The missionary operations shall be administered by the Board of Missions;" paragraph 400 says, "The Foreign Department shall administer all missions of the Church in foreign lands," and paragraph 400, last sentence, says "The Secretaries of the Foreign Department shall direct this work." The Bishops say that the Cincinnati Plan was not legal, while Dr. Cook says it was. Here is a clear-cut issue. Let us see what the law is on this subject.

The Charter Says:

"The object of said corporation is to provide for the support of public worship, the building and maintenance of churches, parsonages, schools, hospitals, chapels, and such other religious, educational or benevolent institutions as may be necessary or proper to the work of missionary bodies in the United States or in foreign countries; to provide for the support of superannuated missionaries; * * * to print books for the Indian, German, Mexican, and other foreign missions, under the direction and according to the law of the said Methodist Episcopal Church, South."

The amended Charter requires "the directors or trustees of the Board to be governed by the laws, rules, regulations, and usages of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South."

The Board is the creature of the General Conference, from which it derives all its powers and to which it is responsible for all its transactions. It has not been organized and turned loose to operate without limitations. It must work under the direction and according to the law of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South."

We find the following language in the Discipline, page 155, paragraph 398: "The Board shall have authority to regulate its own proceedings; to appropriate money to defray current expenses; to establish missions; to build churches and residences for missionaries, and to build and maintain hospitals and schools; to select and publish books and other suitable literature for its work at home and abroad," to aid in the establishment and support of training schools for Christian workers, for native converts and preachers, and to co-operate with other Churches in the establishment and support of such schools wherever it may be practicable; to make provision for the missionary education of the Church; to provide for the support of superannuated missionaries and widows and orphans of missionaries who may not be provided for by an Annual Conference; to provide funds and to appropriate the same for the maintenance of all the work under its care. It shall annually pay to the Board superintending the Epworth Leagues, as a cultivation fund for the development of missionary liberality in the Epworth Leagues, a sum equal to 10 per cent of the amounts contributed by the Epworth Leagues for missionary specials. It shall also publish annually a statement of its transactions, naming the missions supported by it and the amount paid to each, and lay before the General Conference a report of its operations, including the location and value of property held by the Board."

A Few Items of History on the Subject.

Please keep in mind that the above is the law on the subject at this time, and I desire to give you a little of the history of legislation on the relation of our work and missionaries in the foreign field to other Churches. Before the division of the Methodist Church in 1844, and up to the organization of our Church in 1846, the language stood as follows in the Discipline, namely: "It shall be the duty of the Bishops to instruct all our foreign missionaries that whenever they come in contact with any of the members of the Wesleyan Methodist Conference they shall not interfere in their respective charges any further than to help them when they request, but shall on all occasions cultivate a spirit of friendship and brotherly affection as brethren engaged in the same common cause, namely, the salvation of the world by grace through faith in our Lord Jesus Christ."

1846 to 1866.

"It shall be the duty of the Bishops to instruct the missionaries that whenever they come in contact with any of the missionaries of other Protestant orthodox Churches they shall on all occasions cultivate a spirit of friendship and brotherly affection."

From 1866 to 1882.

I fail to find a word in the Constitution of the Board of Missions in regard to our missionaries and other Churches or a word concerning "co-operation and union" with other demnominations.

1882 to 1910.

In 1882 the General Conference inserted this clause in the Constitution of the Board: "To aid in the establishment and support of training schools for native converts and preachers, and to co-operate with other Methodist bodies in the establishment and support of such schools wherever it may be practicable in the foreign field."

It should be remembered that this co-operation was limited to three things, namely: 1. It was limited to "training schools for native converts and preachers; 2. It was limited to "other Methodist bodies;" 3. It was limited to "the foreign field."

1910 to 1918.

In 1910 the General Conference changed this language to read as follows: "To aid in the establishment and support of training schools for Christian workers, for native converts and for preachers, and to co-operate with other Churches in the establishment and support of such schools wherever it may be practicable."

The change was made by striking out "other Methodist bodies" and inserting "other Churches" and omitting "in the foreign field."

There is not a word in the Board's Constitution in regard to UNION, and if "co-operation" is at all practicable, it is limited to two things:

1. It is limited to other Churches and not to be with Bible Societies, Associations, Latin-America Committees.

2. It is restricted to "training schools" and not to be in "theological seminaries, printing establishments," "union colleges, transfer of members, territorial occupation," etc.

I am told that much depends on the meaning of "TRAINING SCHOOLS." The dictionaries tell us what a training school is:

1. The Century Dictionary says: "A school or college where practical instruction is given, especially in the art of teaching; a school in which instruction and practice in teaching are united; a normal school."

2. The Standard Dictionary says: "A school for practical instruction and drill; as, a training school for nurses or for Christian workers."

3. Webster says: "Training college, a normal school. Training school, a school which gives technical training; as, a training school for nurses."

4. In reports and statistics from the mission field these schools are always listed as distinct from other schools and colleges. For example, the data handed out at Cincinnati showed that our Church had but one "Training School" in Mexico.

I have carefully gone through the record of our Church from its organization and insist that the General Conference has never granted a scintilla of authority for co-operation as to a single item in the Cincinnati Plan with the exception of "Training Schools." I challenge Dr. Cook or Dr. Anybody to show that the Board has ever received such authority. It is needless to say that we are doing so in other fields. I insist on the law.

If the Board of Missions cannot co-operate with the Epworth League of our own Church without permission from the General Conference; if it can not pay out money to "publish books and other literature" and to support its own superannuated missionaries "without authority from the General Conference," it certainly cannot "co-operate with eleven boards" of other churches and pay out money to establish and support great Union Publishing Houses and Great Union Secular Colleges.

With all these facts before us we think it is not strange that the Bishops refused to carry out in Mexico this far-reaching and drastic plan.

TO THE PASTORS OF THE LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

Dear Brethren:

I fully realize that the severe weather has necessarily delayed and hindered the Advocate campaign in our Conference.

May I suggest that you appoint your committees in each congregation and send them forth soliciting new subscriptions?

Last week's paper reported the work of some of the pastors, and I hope that next week will show that each of us is doing what he can to tide the Advocate over the troubles caused by the war.

We must see that the paper is maintained, which we hope can be done without raising the rate of subscription from $1.50 to $2.

Push the matter all you can, and do not stop because the special week has passed.

Respectfully,

JNO. F. FOSTER,
Manager for Louisiana.

A PLACE FOR THE HUMBLEST.

The humblest servant in his house who can do nothing more than talk to a few children, or carry a cup of cold water to a fainting one, or place a few flowers on the table in the sick room, or read a few verses from a psalm, or sing a few stanzas of a hymn to an aged Christian, may rejoice in the consciousness that his little work is finding a place in the grand plan that has its sweep through the centuries; that the little ripple of his love is helping the flow of the tide that is to cover the earth with glory; that his feeble heartbeats are in unison with the pulses of the eternal God.—James Owen.

Every Christian should be like Christ, should live with Christ, and find the fountains of his being in Christ. Through such lives Christ can speedily win the world to Himself.—R. E. Speer.

NORTHERN METHODIST SUNDAY SCHOOL LITERATURE.

"Church, pastors, literature—there can be no separation either in purpose or work without disaster to the Kingdom program. The church is Methodist, the pastor is Methodist—but the pupil cannot be Methodist if a literature is used for Bible study which is not in harmony with the church-pastor program. Non-denominational Sunday school literature, whatever its merits and motive as literature, is a switch to sidetrack a gigantic, definite, worth-while Kingdom purpose. It is bad business for the preacher to wreck his church's program and injure his own future. And this is just as true for the layman."

The above is from one of our official papers. The following is from the Adult Bible Class Monthly, a part of the literature that we are told will make good Methodists bring along some kind of a kingdom, and that the preacher must support or "injure his own future" (Whip-cracking.):

"There was of course no such tabernacle ever built. Our previous studies, based on the earliest historical documents, have shown that no such building existed, and that the worship which such a building would involve was not the actual worship at any time before the exile. The author of this code could not have believed that any such tabernacle ever existed. It was his way of expressing an ideal of worship for his own time, and his contemporaries so understood him."

This statement is positively infidel, and radically destructive, and makes the books of Exodus and Numbers to be mere fabrications, and much of them wholly untrue. If this criticism is true, then Stephen did not know what he was talking about when he said: "Our fathers had the tabernacle of witness in the wilderness, as He had appointed, speaking unto Moses that he should make it according to the fashion that he had seen" (Acts 7:44); and Hebrews 8 and 5: "Moses was admonished of God when he was about to make the Tabernacle. For see, saith He, that thou make all things according to the pattern showed to thee in the mount," is a lie; it never did happen. Indeed, this criticism nullifies the whole of the eighth and ninth chapters of Hebrews and invalidates the sublime spritual teaching of the sacred Scriptures drawn from the Tabernacle story, that appears more frequently throughout the entire Scriptures than almost any other one teaching; indeed, if this criticism is true, the Bible is in no sense a dependable book. And we are told that the preacher that will not O. K. and peddle such faith-wrecking, soul-destroying teaching will wreck his own future. Well, I say that any Methodist preacher—and layman—who has iron in his blood, sense in his head and grace in his heart, will resent such threat, and spurn such treason to his Church and Lord.—Dr. L. W. Munhall, in the Eastern Methodist.

WAR HONOR ROLL.

Sons of Louisiana Conference Preachers in the Army and Navy Service.

The following is a partial list of the sons of Louisiana preachers who have enlisted in the service of their country, as compiled by Rev. J. F. Foster and published in the Louisiana Conference Minutes:

D. C. Barr: —— Barr, Infantry.

S. S. Bogan: Hardy Bogan, Infantry.

P. M. Brown: Lieutenant S. Perry Brown, Infantry.

Briscoe Carter: Charles W. Carter, Officers' Training Camp.

S. J. Davies: Sergeant Stephen E. Davies, Medical Reserve Corps.

W. W. Drake: Sergeant Major Marlin W. Drake, Quartermaster's Corps.

Alonzo Early: Corporal J. B. Early, Infantry.

Jno. F. Foster's nephew: Sergeant Horace F. Foster, Artillery.

Jesse Fulton: Lieutenant E. S. Fulton, M.D., Medical Reserve Corps.

W. F. Henderson: Lieutenant Henderson, M.D., Medical Reserve Corps.

F. B. Hill: Lieutenant William Hill, Infantry English Army, Palestine; Lieutenant E. S. Hill, Royal Field Artillery, Palestine.

G. P. White: Corporal S. A. White, Artillery.

There are many more names which should appear on this roll, but the compiler does not know them and has no further information.

A man must not choose his neighbor; he must take his neighbor that God sends him. In him, whoever he be, lies hidden or revealed a beautiful brother. The neighbor is just the man who is next to you at the moment. This love of our neighbor is the only door out of the dungeon of self.—George Macdonald.

A GOLDEN WEDDING.

On Christmas Day of 1917, Mr. Evander M. and Mrs. Martha A. Calhoun celebrated at their home, near Mt. Olive, Miss., the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding, which occurred on Dec. 24, 1867. Both had passed their three score and ten years, and were enjoying good health, being in the best of spirits. Everything in connection with the occasion served to make it an enjoyable one to them as well as their guests.

The following persons were present: Mrs. Lou and Mr. H. C. Turnage, Mrs. Eva and Mr. R. H. Sinclair, Mrs. Dora and Dr. H. G. Williams, of Prentiss, Miss., Mr. H. E. and Mrs. Zula Calhoun, Mr. D. M. and Mrs. Ernie Calhoun, Mrs. Nannie and Mrs. H. A. McNeil, of Mt. Olive, Miss., Mrs. Nora and Rev. W. W. Graves, of Rolling Fork, and Miss Cora Calhoun, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Calhoun, Mr. John Calhoun, Mrs. Nancy Calhoun, Mrs. Virginia Calhoun and Mr. H. A. D. McNeil; nearly all their grandchildren and great-grandchildren who number 29, and a few other friends.

The majority of the guests were on hand by 11 o'clock, notwithstanding the fact that it was a rainy morning. A short service was conducted by Rev. W. W. Graves and the writer, after which we were ushered into the dining-room and enjoyed to the fullest extent the bounteous repast, and with the social spirit of the occasion it was time to leave before we were aware of it. Several beautiful and valuable presents were presented to the happy couple.

Brother and Sister Calhoun were originally from Clarke County, Ala., but settled in this community about the time of their marriage. Their family connection in this section of the county is numerous, and constitutes many of its best citizens and church people. They have long been devout members of the M. E. Church, South—Brother Calhoun since the age of ten, and Sister Calhoun since the age of twenty-one, being before that a member of the Baptist Church. They have regularly kept erected a family altar for more than thirty-five years. He has taken the New Orleans Christian Advocate since it was first published. Brother Calhoun is also an honored Confederate veteran and a member of the Masonic fraternity.

MR. AND MRS. E. M. CALHOUN.

In them we see the promise fulfilled: "The generation of the upright shall be blessed." It is always so. May their like increase!

Their pastor, R. T. PICKETT.

PORT GIBSON FEMALE COLLEGE.

Dear Doctor Meek: As we have just entered on the second term of the current session of this time-honored institution, I think it proper that I should say to the readers of the Advocate that all the girls, except one, that were with us before Christmas have returned, and two new ones have entered.

Because of the fact that we raised the curriculum when I came here four years ago, our senior class numbers only four this year, but this class is doing extra good work, and I am sure will reflect credit on their alma mater.

We have recently had done something like nine hundred dollars worth of improvements on the buildings and premises. We hope to be able to improve a good deal more in the near future.

We have raised our curriculum from time to time, so that now we require fourteen full Carnegie units for entrance into our Freshman Class; and then sixty-four full college hours for graduation.

We account ourselves very fortunate in having secured Dr. W. G. Henry, pastor of the Methodist Church in Brookhaven, Miss., to preach our Commencement Sermon and deliver our Baccalaureate Address.

Respectfully,

T. J. O'NEIL, President.

Port Gibson, Miss., Jan. 29, 1918.

"What a trouble these branches are in! So much to see to in getting out their leaves! So much to see to in expanding their buds! If they would give their attention to abiding in the Root, everything would go on better. Then the Root would take care of it all, and leaves and buds would soon come right."

The Home Circle

AFTER ALL.

Mary Cranston tore off her hat and jacket and threw herself upon the couch, her fingers pressed upon her aching eyes. She was sick of teaching—sick of it!

She had had dreams of being an influence in the lives of her boys, but somehow she was just tired of it all.

In came a shabby woman, with nervous hands and eyes where sorrow had long made a home.

"I know I'm making bold to come," she said, "but it's sore trouble we're in. Jim, he wouldn't have let me, but I said it is a sweet woman's heart she has, and she'll help us if she can. It's Jim Maloney's mother I am."

Mary remembered Jim Maloney. She had worked so hard to help the boy, and now—

"It's the truth I'm telling ye, deary," the trembling voice went on. "Jim's father was not—honest, and I was desperately afraid for Jim till he came to you. Then, sudden-like, he straightened up.

"'Mother,' he says, 'she believes me, and I ain't going back on her.'"

"And he didn't, deary; I know he didn't. After he went to Craig & Shipper's, every night he'd look me straight in the eyes, and I knew. Then, yesterday, there was money lost, and they accused him. They—they knew about his father. Jim sent word to me, and 'twas this:

"'Tell Miss Cranston I didn't go back on her.'—So I made bold——"

Mary's hand closed about the fluttering fingers.

"I'll come with you this minute," she said. "I think that we can get him out, and if not, we'll tell Jim that we're proud of him."

Two hours later Mary returned. She had persuaded Jim's employers and the look in Jim's eyes—grateful, honest eyes—had rewarded her a thousand fold.—Unidentified.

"MOTHER SAID NOT."

"Children," called Mrs. Taylor, "I want you to go to grandmother's on an errand."

John and Marie came running, for they liked to go to their grandmother's home, which was about two miles from their own; and when Mrs. Taylor consented to the children's remaining until after dinner their joy was complete. It was mid-winter, and very severe weather, and John was anxious to take the sled and go down to grandmother's on the ice, the river being frozen over. Marie could ride on the sled, and he would put on his skates and skim along holding the rope.

But Mrs. Taylor shook her head decidedly. "The Big Walnut is a most treacherous stream," she said in reply to her children's pleading. "You never know whether it will bear you up or not. The current is so swift and strong that it does not freeze solid enough, and it is always so full of air holes. I would be perfectly willing for you to go that way if it was safe, Johnnie boy; but, as it is, I must decidedly say no. It is not much farther by the road, and you may take the sled and coast down all the hills anyway."

John was not half pleased. He thought he knew best. Mother was too silly for anything to be afraid of the Big Walnut. With the mercury almost down to zero, of course there wouldn't be any danger. If only boys and girls didn't have to mind mothers, he'd prove to Marie that the ice was all right.

However, John had been trained to obey mother pretty well, and he hadn't the least idea of doing anything else when he started to his grandmother's. But he talked regretfully all the way; and when at the dinner table the hired man, Sam Phillips, assured him that the Big Walnut would bear up a team without a doubt, his wish to venture home upon the ice became so strong that it grew into a resolution to do so. He was positive that mother would not care. She had said that she would be perfectly willing if it were only safe, and it was safe—Sam Phillips said so, and, of course, he knew all about it.

But John had not reckoned on little Marie's objections. "Mother said not!" she exclaimed sturdily, and it isn't good to disobey mothers ever."

"But she said she was willing if it were safe," persisted John; "and Sam says it is. I'll throw rocks on it first and try it, and go out with a big club and pound it, and let you see. It's so fine riding on the ice, Marie. I haven't got my skates, that's the only thing. But I can slide a long ways at a time and pull you right along."

"Well," said Marie, wavering before the temptation, "if you're sure mother won't care."

"I know she won't," said John.

"And you must pound it awful."

"Yes, I will," said John, going out on the glittering surface and pounding it here and there with a heavy stick.

"It cracked," cried Marie in alarm. "I heard it just as plain. It cracked awful. Come back right away, Johnnie Taylor."

But alas! it was too late for John to return. With a loud report the ice parted between him and the shore, and here and there it bent and yielded and broke until Johnny's refuge was only a little island of ice at the mercy of the current.

"Oh, oh, oh!" wailed Marie, running up and down the bank hopelessly. "What shall we do, Johnnie Taylor? If you had just minded mother!"

"Yes, I wish I had," cried John. "Can't you do something, Marie?"

Marie looked all about and screamed as loud as she could; but the farmhouses were a long distance away, and there was no one in sight. Meantime there was Johnnie, her Johnnie, in danger of drowning in the cold, icy water. Suddenly her eyes fell upon the long, stout rope attached to the sled. She sprang toward it and began to untie the knots frantically.

John saw what she was about and cheered her on. "You're the very smartest and plucklest little girl I ever saw," he declared. "Fasten one end around that little tree, Marie, and sling the other to me. I guess you can do it. Not quite. Try again; don't get discouraged. Now! That's it; I've got it. Now I can pull myself to the shore all right." And he did, not without a good deal of difficulty; but he managed it. "It's a mighty good thing I didn't go very far out on the ice," said the boy when they were on their way home. "If I had, you couldn't have reached me with that rope."

"It's a gooder thing that I did not go on the ice," said Marie wisely, shaking her little head, "or there wouldn't have been anyone to throw you the rope, and we'd both have been drowned. It isn't a good thing to disobey mothers ever."

"Indeed it isn't!" And John meant it.—Presbyterian Standard.

JUST BEING KIND.

"What is the nicest thing to you about Christmas?" asked one girl of another as they were walking together, chummily. The answer came slowly, as if she had thought about it. She was a girl who had plenty of money to spend, and she liked to use it unselfishly. But she had early discovered that one may not always bestow even where the heart prompts, without much exercise of tact and delicacy. To please one's self by giving is sometimes to put a friend under a troublesome obligation. It may even hurt the pride of the needy one, or, if there are no ties of kinship or friendship, take the look of being intrusive. All these thoughts she had evidently turned over in her mind, and this was her answer: "It gives an excuse for being kind." Do we always take advantage of that excuse? Do we seek out the sensitive ones to whom we could not give at any other time and send our gift, so wrapped up in love that no one could be hurt by it? That little phrase, kept constantly in mind, would almost transform Christmas.—The Wellspring.

NIGHTINGALES AS HOUSEHOLD PETS.

In some parts of Europe the nightingale takes the place of the canary as a household pet, we are told. Nightingales, when fully grown and well trained, are wonderfully fine singers.

In some cases, when a person owns a nightingale which is a beautiful singer, the bird is used as a teacher in this way: The neighbors bring to the house cages with young nightingales in them so that they may learn some of the beautiful notes of the master singer. Curiously enough, the young birds seem to realize that they are there to learn, for they keep very quiet and listen carefully while the old bird sings. When he has stopped singing they will all attempt a few notes, until, after the teacher nightingale has repeated his song many times, the young birds are able to go through with it.—Apples of Gold.

BAD TEMPER SHORTENS LIFE.

Ill-temper is contagious. So, by the same token, is kindliness. And either may become habitual. The child may acquire the habit of pouting, frowning, stamping its foot, crying, or giving expression to unkind and angry words when reprimanded or when things go wrong, says Dr. Albert S. Barnes in The Mother's Magazine. His mental irritability unfavorably affects his vasomotor system, and his blood vessels, being overworked, become prematurely aged. The same child may, with wise teaching and a real desire for self-improvement, acquire the habit of smiling self-control under the same distressing provocations. In this case his vascular system is protected from overstrain and retains its youthful character for a longer time. After awhile the behavior becomes very largely a matter of habit.

This subject is as important for children in the home and at school as for their elders in the home and business and social worlds. A sunny temper will penetrate the knotty problems of arithmetic as well as those of the woodpile, and will untangle the intricacies of a foreign language or transform a disordered kitchen, better than a sullen one. The cheery disposition is likely to be a part of the victorious character. Popularity may not be a very high recommendation; but, other things being equal, it is better to be popular than grouchy. The grouchy person is most woefully handicapped, and must needs have many excellent qualities before he can hope to rise to equally high esteem with his less gifted but more cheerful comrades.

Real politeness is the kindly expression of a kindly intent. Ill-nature and politeness are antagonistic and cannot dwell together for long in the same individual. Politeness in its genuine essence contributes toward the well-being of all, even to long life; while impoliteness and irascible temper may shorten life.—Western Christian Advocate.

Have we ever sacrificed any wish, any ambition for Christ's sake? Have we ever sacrificed any time for Christian work? Have we ever promptly refused a profitable business proposition in order to do a definite Christian service? Have we actually ever sacrificed any money for a good cause? Have we ever really denied ourselves something that we very much wanted to take the money for some one else more needy than ourselves? If not, we do not and cannot know the meaning of this word 'love."—Edgar De Witt Jones.

WAR CONDITIONS

— REFLECTED IN —

TELEPHONE SERVICE

Among the unforeseen conditions which the war has imposed upon us is the necessity of practically suspending the commercial development of our business.

Confronted with an unusual increase in the use of the telephone and a strong demand for new and additional service, we cannot accept or fill orders except subject to practically an indefinite delay.

This situation is due to the importance of conserving our supplies so that the government's requirements may be promptly met by giving the War Department service anywhere and at any time the request is made.

THE WORK OF THE UNIFICATION COMMISSION.

After a stay of more than a week in Savannah, Ga., where the Unification Commissions of the Methodist Episcopal Church and the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, are at work, the Editor reached home about midnight last Saturday, and since then he has had several telegrams pertaining to the pending union negotiations; but it is not possible at this time (Tuesday morning) to make a statement setting forth exactly the status of the proceedings, which have not yet been completed. The indications are that a majority of the two Commissions will agree concerning the status of the Negro in the proposed unified Church, but that this agreement will not be by a unanimous vote of either Commission. We prefer not to undertake to explain the compromise arrangement which seems likely to be adopted, and which we consider very unsatisfactory, until after the adjournment of the Commission, which at this writing is still in session. The action of the Commissions will not by any means settle the question as to whether the two Churches are to be united, since its findings will have to be approved by a two-thirds vote of the General Conference and by a three-fourths vote of the members of the Annual Conferences before the plan can be put into effect.

OUR UGLY HOMICIDAL RECORD.

The Literary Digest of January 19 contained some interesting figures concerning our country's record as to homicides. We quote briefly from the article which it carried on this subject: "In his review of homicide figures in The Spectator, Mr. Frederic L. Hoffman points out that in the thirty-one large American cities which have been under examination for a number of years the average murder rate for 1916 was 9.2 per 100,000 of population against an average rate of 8.4 for the preceding five years. During the period 1911-1915 the male homicide rate for the whole country was 10.7 as against a female homicide-rate of 2.9. Eleven out of every seventeen male murderers used firearms, as did half of the murderesses. 'These figures,' says Mr. Hoffman, 'indicate the practical value of more effective restrictions upon the use and possession of firearms and the urgency of more drastic methods of police supervision and control.'"

The total number of homicides in the United States for the year 1916 (the latest figures available) was 7450, which led to but 107 legal executions. This is certainly a poor record as respects the enforcement of legal penalties, though, of course, there were a good many convictions to terms of imprisonment.

The following table pertaining to killings in American cities which Mr. Hoffman gives in The Spectator is worth noting:

Cities.	Homicides.	Rate.
Memphis, Tenn.	134	89.9
Atlanta, Ga.	59	31.0
New Orleans, La.	95	25.6
Nashville, Tenn.	29	24.8
Charleston, S. C.	14	23.1
Dayton, Ohio	26	20.4
Savannah, Ga.	13	18.9
St. Louis, Mo.	124	16.4
Cincinnati, Ohio	58	14.1
San Francisco, Cal.	63	13.6
Chicago, Ill.	330	13.2
Louisville, Ky.	31	13.0
Cleveland, Ohio	85	12.6
Washington, D. C.	38	10.4
Baltimore, Md.	54	9.2
Indianapolis, Ind.	24	8.8
Minneapolis, Minn.	31	8.5
Los Angeles, Cal.	41	8.1
Pittsburg, Pa.	40	6.9
Seattle, Wash.	23	6.6
Philadelphia, Pa.	110	6.4
Buffalo, N. Y.	28	6.0
Spokane, Wash.	8	5.3
New York, N. Y.	256	4.6
Hartford, Conn.	5	4.5
Boston, Mass.	30	4.0
Newark, N. J.	14	3.4
Providence, R. I.	8	3.1
Rochester, N. Y.	5	1.9
Milwaukee, Wis.	8	1.8
Reading, Pa.	2	1.8
	1,786	9.2

The Literary Digest calls attention to the fact that Memphis, Tenn., stands at the head of the list in these statistics, as it also did in those of the preceding year. That city, however, has an able defender in its great daily, The Commercial Appeal, which says: "Memphis had only 16 murders actually committed within its corporate limits; the others were committed outside of the city. There is more killing in the vicinity of Memphis than any other Southern City, and many of the victims come here to be treated and die, so that their deaths are charged up to this municipality." The Commercial Appeal also expresses the hope that the elimination of the saloons and gambling houses will give the Bluff City a better showing for the year 1917, when the figures are summed up.

"Southern editors attribute the high murder rate in this section to the large Negro population. The Atlanta Constitution declares that the Negroes in the Southern cities hold human life much more cheaply than do the white people. For instance, 'it very often happens that a Negro who would not dare to kill a white man, when in the heat of passion, or with a drink of liquor in his stomach and with a razor in his pocket, will unceremoniously cut the throat of a member of his own race.'"

But whatever may be the cause of the discreditable record of the Southern cities, they should bestir themselves to stay the bloody hand of violence and to make human life safer within them. The suppression of the dram-shop and other evil resorts and more faithfulness in meting out justice to criminals would doubtless contribute much toward a betterment of conditions.

NUMBERS NOT EVERYTHING.

There are apparently some persons who seem disposed to think that the success of a Church is to be measured entirely by its numerical strength, but in this they are very much mistaken. If this were the standard by which to gage the merits of a religious denomination the crown would have to be awarded to the Roman Catholic Church, as the following figures taken from Augustus Conrad Ekholm's volume, "Christianity's Greatest Peril," (Page 62) show:

Roman Catholics—total membership in 1914	13,794,697
Increase since 1900	5,621,686
Combined membership of 35 of the leading Protestant Churches in 1914	22,775,470
Increase since 1900	5,282,845

The fact is, the spirituality of a Church's membership, the soundness of its teaching, and the extent to which it is empowered and used of the Holy Spirit are the true measures of its strength. There are not a few people in this day who need to re-read the story of Gideon and to grasp anew the important lesson that it teaches. Unconverted and worldly members of a Church are in reality not an asset, but a liability.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

One of the finest lists of subscribers to the Advocate received this year has come from Rev. W. R. Lott, our gifted young pastor at Merigold, Miss. It consisted of 12 new and 6 renewal subscriptions. Thank you, Brother Lott.

Writing from Prairie Grove, Ark., Rev. Thos. I. Beck says: "We are having a good beginning in our new charge." Brother Beck's many Louisiana friends will be pleased to know that his work is progressing satisfactorily.

Rev. W. A. Bowlin, our faithful pastor at Cockrum, Miss., says, in a business communication: "We have been kindly received in our new field of labor, but the severe weather and la grippe have hindered the work to some extent. However, there is much to encourage us in the Lord's work."

Rev. R. G. A. Carlisle, of Longview, Miss., sends us some subscriptions to the Advocate, and in his business letter thus refers to the work of his charge: "Things are moving off nicely as we enter upon our second year in this field, though we have been considerably hindered by the bad weather."

A note from Rev. D. R. McDougal, our pastor at Calhoun City, Miss., states that he has recently been quite ill, but is able to be about his work again. The work of his charge has started off encouragingly. He assures us that he will do his best to take care of the interests of the Advocate in his field.

The young folks of the Shiloh church pleasantly remembered their pastor, Rev. C. H. Strait, of the Johns (Miss.) charge, with a bountiful "pounding" on January 17 of this year. Brother Strait is planning to make an Advocate "drive," having been assigned 18 new subscriptions as his quota by the District Stewards.

The friends of Mrs. F. R. Hill, Sr., the wife of the late Dr. Felix R. Hill, who was widely known in Southern Methodism as a pastor and preacher, will be interested to know that her address is changed from Urbana, Ill., to 1330 South First street, Louisville, Ky., where she will reside for a while with one of her sons.

Rev. E. H. Cunningham, Treasurer of the Epworth League Board of the North Mississippi Conference, says: "Rev. J. E. Thomas, of Amory, is the first man from the Aberdeen District to send in a remittance to cover his Epworth League assessment for 1918." It is nothing new for Brother Thomas to be in the lead in carrying forward the work of the Church.

Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, of Sardis, Miss., Field Secretary of the Sunday School Board of the North Mississippi Conference, desires us to know that "the preachers of the Sardis District are going to increase the subscription list of the Advocate." The unusual weather conditions have deterred matters in that section, but Brother Gladney is of the opinion that a normal stride will be attained ere long.

Rev. R. S. Walton, of Winnfield, La., sends us this cheering message: "After making a canvass for the Advocate, I am glad to report 7 new subscriptions. Also, it gives me pleasure to report that my entire Board of Stewards are now subscribers to our church paper." He further sends 4 renewal subscriptions. On account of the meningitis situation, Brother Walton states, the schools and churches of his city are closed.

"Rev. C. A. Northington, pastor of the New Albany (Miss.) Circuit, has remitted in full for his Epworth League Assessment for 1918." So writes Rev. E. H. Cunningham, Treasurer of the North Mississippi Conference Epworth League Board. All of the interests of the Church are invariably well cared for by Brother Northington, who is one of the live wires of his Conference.

Rev. M. L. McCormick, of the Americus charge, Mississippi Conference, whose address is Harleston, Miss., has made an excellent beginning in his first year with his present flock, who have "pounded" the parsonage for the second time.

Having begun successfully the third year of his ministry on the Mayhew charge, North Mississippi Conference, Rev. R. L. Ellis states that some of his members have doubled their assessments. The cold weather, which has been the severest known in his section for years, has interfered with most of the ministers in their plans for forward movements.

Dr. F. N. Parker, loaned for a while by the Louisiana Conference to Emory University, Atlanta, Ga., for the purpose of occupying the chair of Systematic Theology in that institution, which he does with credit, remarks in a note to the Editor that a good session of the School of Theology is being enjoyed, though the attendance is a little off on account of the claims of the war Y. M. C. A.

Rev. R. A. Sibley, of Summit, Miss., writes: "I see in the Journal of the last session of the Mississippi Conference a list of the preachers of our Conference who have sons in the army or in training for military service; but for some reason my name is omitted. My son, Robert A. Sibley, is with Battery E, 331st Field Artillery, Camp Grant, Rockford, Illinois. I should be glad if you would let this statement appear in the columns of the Advocate."

We reproduce from The New Orleans Times-Picayune the following press dispatch: "Tylertown, Miss., Feb. 1.—Ground was broken here for the new $15,000 Methodist church to-day at 10 o'clock. The ceremonies were opened with prayer by Rev. J. L. Low, of the Baptist Church. Mrs. J. R. Conerly, the oldest member of the church, was given the privilege of moving the first dirt. The building will be rushed to completion under the leadership of the popular pastor, Rev. H. A. Gatlin."

Rev. W. S. Lagrone, of Drew, Miss., sends us the following note: "Rev. D. M. Miller, a well known local preacher residing here, recently passed away, after an illness of two weeks. He was one of the pioneer preachers of this section. A more extended notice will be sent to the Advocate later." Brother Miller was a man of excellent character and he contributed much toward the establishment of Methodism in the Mississippi Delta. We regret to be informed of his decease, and we extend heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved.

Mrs. Christian Keener, of Biloxi, Miss., in a letter to us renewing her subscription to the Advocate, makes the suggestion that, since the names of the sons of the Methodist preachers of the North Mississippi Conference who are in the army and navy are to be published in the Advocate, a list also should be given of the women who have volunteered to serve as Red Cross nurses. The Advocate will take pleasure in publishing such information if some one in a position to do so will compile the data.

Rev. R. I. Collins, of Courtland, Miss., writes us as follows: "Rev. H. C. Morehead is quite sick at this time. He has been confined to his room most of the time since he returned from the session of the North Mississippi Conference at Oxford. He is one of our noblest men and is deeply interested in the Master's work. Please ask that prayer be made for him and his loved ones." We regret to learn of Brother Morehead's illness, and we trust that he is ere this much better. Let the brethren heed this request to remember him and his family at the throne of grace.

We are taking pleasure in recording new and renewal subscriptions not elsewhere acknowledged, as follows: Rev. C. H. Ellis, Yazoo City, Miss., 2; Mrs. Christian Keener, Biloxi, Miss., 2; Rev. W. N. Duncan, Winona, Miss., 4; Rev. G. W. Gordon, Noxapater, Miss., 3; Rev. E. M. Allen, Hub, Miss., 2; Brother L. R. Dexter, Abbott, Miss., 2; Rev. J. W. Dorman, Water Valley, Miss., 7; Rev. John F. Foster, Shreveport, La., 3; Rev. H. C. Murphy, Springfield, La., 10; Rev. J. M. Gulnn, Brooksville, Miss., 3; Rev. M. L. McCormick, Harleston, Miss., 5; Rev. R. L. Ellis, Mayhew, Miss., 2; Rev. H. B. Thomason, Bayou Chicot, La., 3; Rev. S. A. Brown, Leland, Miss., 3; Rev. P. O. Lowrey, Pleasant Hill, La., 5; Sister H. J. Norris, Oak Ridge, La., 2; Rev. B. T. Crews, Vincent, La., 9; Brother T. M. Babington, Franklinton, La., 2; Rev. J. L. Evans, Haughton, La., 12; Sister W. A. McKenzie, Homer, La., 4; Sister Effie Monaghan, Nettleton, Miss., 8.

THE SECRET OF JOY.

Love in the heart to God is the secret of joy. It smoothes the way, it levels hills, it wades deep streams, it climbs without fatigue high mountains, makes all happy without because all is at harmony with God within. The world adopts a bungling plan to secure its happiness. When a man begins to get a little dissatisfied with himself, the worldly plan is to improve his grounds, lay out his estate afresh, and try to find enjoyment by altering circumstances, just as if whitewashing a sepulcher would scatter the darkness and the corruption that are within; but a Christian knows, what he has long been taught in God's blessed word, that the true way is, first to get the springs of happiness in the heart within, and then he has love to God and love to all mankind without. The inhabitant of the lighthouse lights the lamp within, and the sailor finds security without, and rides in safety. The Christian has the light kindled within, and then all beauty, and harmony, and safety, and peace prevail outside. Man's plan of finding happiness is to give us something that we have not; God's process is to make us something that we are not. Man would remake the bed of the sick patient; God heals the patient. Man would alter the external circumstances; God relights the lamp of love within, and all shines happy and beautiful without, because all is right within. To a man whose heart is not right within, the very light of his own fireside will seem sad, and the gladdest voices under his roof will sound sorrowful; but to him whose heart is right in its love, and its affection, and its relationship to God, the most melancholy sights will shine bright, the wilderness will rejoice before him, and the solitary place will look glad. Let one under some crushing stroke of affliction, or with a sense of some bitter bereavement, go forth to this world's brightest landscape, and it will only reflect his own sadness, and all voices will sound to him sepulchral; but let one who has received some unexpected happiness, whose heart has been made suddenly glad, go out, and all nature will respond to and reflect his happiness, and the external world will look bright, because the internal world has been lighted up before.—John Cumming.

THE CREATOR OF SMILES.

"I think of the mother of my boyhood days who lived as seeing Him who is invisible," writes the Rev. George T. Dowling in the Churchman. 'She was a very old-fashioned woman, was my mother, with her sweet, quiet ways. You never would have found her picketing the White House gates. But, oh, what a happy home she made; and what a song at evening time she was to everyone who knew her. How often I have seen her, when burdened with care, pass into the little room where she was accustomed to kneel and pray. And she has come forth radiant and filled with peace. Then I learned where my mother got her smiles."

THE ATTRACTION OF THE CROSS.

By Rev. J. H. Jowett.

I sat a little while ago in one of the chambers of the National Gallery, and my attention was caught by the vast miscellaneous crowd as it sauntered or galloped through the rooms. All sorts and conditions of people passed by—rich and poor, the well-dressed and the beggarly, students and artisans, soldiers and sailors, maidens just out of school and women bowed and wrinkled in age; but, whoever they were, and however unarresting may have been all the other pictures in the chamber, every single soul in that mortal crowd stopped dead and silent before a picture of our Savior bearing his cross to the hill. And when the Church is seen to be his body—his very body; his lips, his eyes his ears, his hands, his feet, his brain, his heart; his very body and when the Church repeats, in this her corporate life, the brave and manifold doings of Judea and Galilee, she too shall awe the multitude, and by God's grace she shall convert the pregnant wonder into deep and grateful devotion.

IN THE MORNING.

Who that has watched anxiously through the long and trying hours of the night has not felt the thrill of hope that comes with the breaking of the day? With the sun new-risen and the birds in every tree, the dark shadows of the mind seem to flit away and the bright expectancy of hope thrills and comforts the soul. Joy cometh in the morning. And how comforting that morning is and how good is the God of all our mercies who grants it unto us. Can we hope that every dark night that visits us with sable fears and sore trial of our faith and trust will break into glorious dawning and that eyes that shed bitter tears will greet the sun shining with joy and hope? As God is God and love and light are the habitation of His throne, we may so hope, no matter how dark or fearsome the night may be, or however long the sun may delay his coming. There is no man anywhere in all the universe that God has made but may say, the morning cometh and morning brings its joy.—The Christian Guardian.

Orville Wright, the noted inventor of the airplane, so much in use on the war front, received quite an ovation recently when Lord Northcliffe said: "The memorial which I bring here upon behalf of the Royal Society of Arts of Great Britain is a small one, but spiritually very precious. Wilbur and Orville Wright were the first persons to ascend from earth in a mechanically propelled airplane. To them and to them only is due the credit. Moreover, they were the real inventors of the means of controlling all airplanes." With his usual modesty Mr. Wright simply said, "Thank you."—Evangelical Messenger.

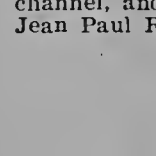
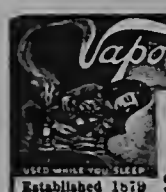
Sage Tea Darkens Hair to Any Shade



Don't stay gray! Here's a simple recipe that anybody can apply with a hair brush.

The use of Sage and Sulphur for restoring faded, gray hair to its natural color dates back to grandmother's time. She used it to keep her hair beautifully dark, glossy and attractive. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect.

But brewing at home is mussy and out-of-date. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for a 50-cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get this famous old preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients, which can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.



A well known downtown druggist says it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, it becomes beautifully dark and glossy.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire a more youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

RUBEN S. DONNELL was born on October 16, 1846, and died on December 28, 1917. He lived near Johns, Miss. He was too young to fight in the Civil War, but lived through Reconstruction Days, and saw this country plunged into the present awful conflict. He has a son in one of the training camps now ready to defend his country. He was a loving father and a devoted husband. He loved his family and his home. He was a good neighbor and citizen, and will be missed by all who knew him. He leaves five boys and three girls and a faithful companion to mourn his death.

HIS PASTOR.

Johns, Miss., Jan. 23, 1918.

The death of JOHN C. DANIEL, of Pucket, Miss., occurred on Friday, Jan. 18, 1918. He was born on April 21, 1846. John seemed to be a favorite name with the family, and he lived true to the name. He joined the Church at the age of 16 years, and was always loyal to it. He set a good example and lived a life above suspicion. Being a Junior Warden in the Masonic Lodge at Pucket, he had a Masonic funeral. He was loved by every one who knew him, for he was regarded as a man in every respect, and by his going away we feel that we have lost one of the best men in the church at Pucket; but we know that our loss is heaven's gain. May his mantle fall on his son, who, with his wife and mother, mourns the departure of the deceased.

HIS PASTOR.

Johns, Miss., Jan. 23, 1918.

Our brother, A. R. BRYAN, was laid to rest on November 28, at the Wimberly graveyard. The funeral services were conducted by his brother-in-law, Rev. T. J. Martin. He had been a faithful member of the M. E. Church, South, for many years. He was a devoted husband and father. He leaves a wife, three daughters, and a nephew he raised. His mother and father had died when he was quite small. A host of relatives and friends are left to mourn, but not without hope. He had been in failing health for several years, but was so uncomplaining, being always ready to help the suffering. But God saw fit to take him. We are God's children and must submit to His will. Faith unites us with Christ in God. He says, "I will never leave nor forsake you," and He will guide us even unto death. May God comfort the bereaved ones until we all meet in that beautiful city not made with hands to dwell forever with our loved ones. Let us not cease to pray that we may be found waiting when the summons comes, for this was our brother's way.

His sister, J. S. C.

Brother S. C. LILES was born in 1895, and died on Jan. 19, 1918, aged 22 years. He is the first of the Tyro Circuit Military Honor Roll to answer the "draft" to the spirit world. He was converted, joined Mt. Vernon Church in 1914, and lived a consistent member of the same until his death. He joined the Navy in December, 1917. His pastor can testify that he was one of the most faithful in attendance at the church services; his father bears witness that he was always faithful and obedient in the home; and his military record shows that he adhered to his home training and fidelity to purpose, in that he was twice promoted during his short stay with the forces. He lived a beautiful life. He volunteered to enter the service of his country. He was not slain in battle. He was overtaken by disease, and fell the victim of measles and pneumonia. He died young, but did he live in vain? Did he not add his "bit" to the sum total of sentiment in behalf of world freedom and the brotherhood of man? Did he not record one life against that pernicious idea that the wholesale slaughter of humanity is justifiable on selfish grounds? Did he not give all that militarism might be crushed; that nations might come to learn war no more; that the day might be hastened when men should beat their swords into plowshares and their spears into pruning hooks? He hath done what he could. May each of us do as well!

His pastor, A. M. BENNETT.

A STATEMENT FROM ATLANTA.

Dr. J. H. Eakes, Chairman of the General Conference Committee on Entertainment, and Hon. John S. Candler, Chairman of the Local General Conference Committee, have sent out a statement which gives assurance that Atlanta will be able to care for delegates and visitors to the General Conference. The statement says, in part:

"We have a division of the army of the United States in camp near Atlanta, and we have a large base hospital located near the city; but we have had both since the early fall. In the beginning, when there were a great many officers and soldiers coming into the city and passing through it, all of our hotels were greatly taxed to take care of these soldiers and their families as well as their other business; but the officers and men are now settled here, most of them having obtained quarters, and are permanently located, and the pressure from this source is not nearly so great as it was during the fall. Since we have had these soldiers encamped around us and with us our hotels have taken care of the session of the Georgia Legislature, which in its membership and officers makes about as large a body as the General Conference and which always draws a great many visitors from all over the State. We have entertained several conventions in that same time, and so far as we have heard the hotels have cared for all, and but little complaint has resulted from crowding.

"We believe that we have more good hotels in Atlanta than are located in any other city of the South, not excepting Louisville and New Orleans. We know that we have more trunk line railroads entering this city from every section of the country than any other city in the South.

"We beg to assure the brethren that everything will be done that is possible under existing railroad conditions to get the delegates here in comfort, and all necessary arrangements have already been made to keep them comfortable after they get here and during their stay in our city.

"The hotels have already entered into contracts with us, fixing a rate for all delegates and officers of the Conference; and they assure us that they will take care of visitors to the Conference on as reasonable terms as it is possible to do under the conditions of the markets."

THICK, GLOSSY HAIR FREE FROM DANDRUFF

Girls! Try it! Hair gets soft, fluffy and beautiful—Get a small bottle of Danderine.

If you care for heavy hair that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine.

Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff. You can not have nice, heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp; the hair roots famish, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast. Surely get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store and just try it.

From the Field

Abbott, Miss.

Dear Brother Meek: We have had a bad winter so far, but our pastor, Rev. W. L. Graves, has not yet missed an appointment at our church. He is in his third year with us. I wish that he could be with us three more years and longer. He is not only a preacher, but a worker also. All the people on the charge love him and his family.—L. R. Dexter.

Greenville, Miss.

Dear Advocate: The year begins with us auspiciously. Bad weather has greatly hindered our work, but the congregation was large last Sunday and we have ground to hope that when better weather comes we shall have large audiences. Eleven have been received into the Church since Conference and the work is running smoothly. We are much pleased.—E. S. Lewis, P. C.

Vivian, La.

Dear Dr. Meek: We are moving along very nicely with our work. We have a good people. They gave us a splendid reception and pounding on our return for the second year. I have been reading the Nashville Advocate and the Arkansas Methodist for 39 years and the New Orleans and Texas Advocates for 25 years. I enjoy them very much as the years go by. I read with relish your editorials on unification. Keep your eye on the whole scheme and turn on the light. We can trust you at the helm.—B. T. Crews, P. C.

Oak Ridge Charge (Miss. Conf.)

Dear Dr. Meek: Sunday, January 27, was a day to be remembered at Old Redbone Church on the Oak Ridge charge. As we were singing the closing song a lady came to me and said that her husband and daughter wanted to join the Church, and it was a precious service as we took the family into the Church—the husband and daughter on profession of faith and the wife through restoration—and the presence of the Lord was manifest! I thank God and take fresh courage! We are having some difficulty getting to our appointments, but the Lord unusually blesses us when we do get to them. In the fight.—J. A. Wells, P. C.

Indianola, Miss.

Dear Brother Meek: You and the members of the North Mississippi Conference will be interested in learning several facts in connection with the work here at Indianola. These incidents are related with no ulterior motive in view. Far be it from the intention of the writer to pin a blue ribbon on himself. The good people here deserve all the credit. The pastor's salary has been increased $300, thus placing this charge back in the $1500 class. Our people consented to a 25 per cent increase in Conference collections, taking an assessment of $500. Half of this amount has already been collected through the efforts of our Laymen's Missionary Committee, under the leadership of W. M. Lockhart and D. F. Voorhies. These men are making a personal canvass of all of our members and intend securing the full amount at once and sending same to the various Conference Boards instead of waiting until the end of the year. One-half of the pastor's salary was collected when he came. He is being paid like any other employee, by the month. There are so many other good things which I could report that, if I did so, it might sound like Mark Twain's "little steamboat with the big whistle." I must emphasize again the fact that the credit is due entirely to the noble people that go to make up the church here. A finer set of men and women I have never met. In the future I shall resent the charge that "the Delta people pay but won't pray." Our folks do both. I trust that these facts may prove helpful and inspire other boards to emulate the example of our board.—Chas. D. McGehee, P. C.

GOD CARES.

What a vast proportion of our lives is spent in anxious and useless forebodings concerning the future—either our own or that of our own dear ones. Present joys, present blessings slip by and we miss half their flavor, and all for want of faith in Him who provides for the tiniest insect in the sunbeam. Oh, when shall we learn the sweet trust in God that our little children tell us every day by their confiding faith in us?

We, who are so mutable, so faulty, so irritable, so unjust; and He who is so watchful, so compassionate, so loving, so forgiving, why can not we, slipping our hand into His each day, walk trusting over that day's appointed path, thorny or flowery, crooked or straight, knowing that evening will bring us sleep, peace and home?—Phillips Brooks.

There is no finer chemistry than that by which the element of suffering is so compounded with spiritual forces that it issues to the world as gentleness and strength.—G. S. Merriam.

CALOMEL MAKES YOU SICK, UGH!

"Dodson's Liver Tone" Better Than Calomel and Can Not Salivate.

Calomel loses you a day! You know what calomel is. It's mercury; quicksilver. Calomel is dangerous. It crashes into your bile like dynamite, cramping and sickening you. Calomel attacks the bones and should never be put into your system.

When you feel bilious, sluggish, constipated and all knocked out and believe you need a dose of dangerous calomel just remember that your druggist sells for 50 cents a large bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone, which is entirely vegetable and pleasant to take and is a perfect substitute for calomel. It is guaranteed to start your liver without stirring you up inside, and can not salivate.

Don't take calomel! It makes you sick the net day; it loses you a day's work. Dodson's Liver Tone straightens you right up and you feel great. Give it to the children because it is perfectly harmless and doesn't gripe.

Tobacco Habit Easily Conquered

A New Yorker of wide experience has written a book telling how the tobacco or snuff habit may be easily and completely banished in three days with delightful benefit. The author, Edward J. Woods, 1629-A, Station E, New York City, will mail his book free on request. The health improves wonderfully after the nicotine poison is out of the system. Calmness, tranquil sleep, clear eyes, normal appetite, good digestion, manly vigor, strong memory and a general gain in efficiency are among the many benefits reported. Get rid of that nervous feeling; no more need of pipe, cigar, cigarette, snuff or chewing tobacco to pacify morbid desire.

The foregoing telegrams are worded along the line of other telegrams the Government is sending almost DAILY to Draughon students, offering them $1,000.00 to $1,200.00 a year to begin on. If you prefer a position with a business concern, Draughon's will guarantee it.

$300.00 a Month.

B. H. WILKINSON, Bookkeeper, Bloom Clothing Co., Lead, S. D., writes: "Draughon's Bookkeeping, which I took by mail, changed my position from clerk, at $25 a month, to bookkeeper, at $100.00 a month. Just accepted position with New York concern at $300 a month."

$5,000.00 a Year.

W. O. PARSONS, Mgr., Equitable Life Assurance Society, Rome, Ga., writes: "On completing Draughon's Shorthand by mail, I accepted a position as stenographer, at $75.00 a month; now making $5,000.00 a year."

By the Draughon method of instruction—the method indorsed by business men—the necessary training can be taken BY MAIL just as well as at college, and at about one-sixth the cost. For rates on course BY MAIL or AT COLLEGE, write

All Traces of Scrofula Eradicated from the System

By the greatest of all purifiers.

A common mistake in the treatment of scrofula has been the use of mercury and other mineral mixtures, the effect of which is to bottle up the impurities in the blood, and hide them from the surface.

The impurities and dangers are only added to in this way.

For more than fifty years S. S. S. has been the one recognized reliable blood remedy that has been used with highly satisfactory results for Scrofula. Being made of the roots and herbs of the forest, it is guaranteed purely vegetable, and absolutely free from all mineral ingredients.

You can obtain S. S. S. from any drugstore. Our chief medical adviser is an expert on all blood disorders, and will cheerfully give you full advice as to the treatment of your own case. Address Swift Specific Co., Dep.. F Atlanta, Ga.

DOCTOR URGED AN OPERATION

Instead I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Was Cured.

Baltimore, Md.—"Nearly four years I suffered from organic troubles, nervousness and headaches and every month would have to stay in bed most of the time. Treatments would relieve me for a time but my doctor was always urging me to have an operation. My sister asked me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before consenting to an operation. I took five bottles of it and it has completely cured me and my work is a pleasure. I tell all my friends who have any trouble of this kind what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me."—NELLIE B. BRITTINGHAM, 609 Calverton Rd., Baltimore, Md.

It is only natural for any woman to dread the thought of an operation. So many women have been restored to health by this famous remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, after an operation has been advised that it will pay any woman who suffers from such ailments to consider trying it before submitting to such a trying ordeal.

HE WAS A SUCCESS.

And yet he died poor, unhonored, and unrecognized, and he rests in a forgotten grave; but he loved God, he loved his fellows, and he did his best to translate that love into service. And that is success. We misjudge men. We measure them by faulty standards. The dollar standard is useless, for Christ died poor, and Commodore Vanderbilt left millions. Fame is not an accurate measure, for sometimes it rests upon falsehood. History is not always true, and some little men have great reputations, and some great men are unknown. Kant was dead long before men realized the greatness of his thought. Education is no true test of success. The unlettered father is sometimes a much bigger man than his cultured son, and the doctor of divinity is often a lesser saint than some of his uneducated hearers. Mountain peaks and stars are grand, but they are no more useful nor beautiful than the blades of grass. To be just and merciful; to love honor and truth; to be pure and kind and loving; to live our faith and help our neighbors, this is true success.—The Christian Guardian.

Constipation

You are apt to think lightly of a slight case of constipation. Did you know that constipation is incipient auto-intoxication or self-poisoning? You cannot be too careful, for constipation without treatment is liable to become the source of far more serious ills. To be entirely healthy and have a clean body, it is necessary to keep the bowels clean and the liver active. When constipated, take Van Lax, for it is the ideal treatment for constipation. Contains no calomel and no habit-forming drugs. Does not gripe or nauseate. It is pleasant in taste and results. Sold everywhere by the best dealers. "PRAYERS OF CONVERTS."

Congo missionaries are often struck with the beauty of the prayers of the Congo converts, and some striking phrase or sentence is sometimes remembered. These are sentences translated from the prayers:

"We have two hands, each full of seeds, seeds of goodness and seeds of evil. Day by day we scatter these seeds. Father in heaven, help us to fill both hands with good seed. I indeed am not worthy to be an evangelist to my people. I hold some bad seed in my hand. Daily I seem to scatter evil seeds, and as yet I am not worthy to tell others of Jesus."

"Jesus, thou art as the stone in the village where the people may all go to sharpen their knives. The good and the bad alike go to the stone. So in thy mercy all men may come to thee. Coming, bad, blunt, worthless lives may be made sharp and good lives made more useful."

"As dry sticks on a fire make a blaze, as oil in the machine makes the wheels run smoothly, as rain makes the trees and vegetation grow and flourish, as the sunshine warms and gladdens, even so let thy Holy Spirit dwell in our missionary, that his heart may be ablaze with love and zeal; his tongue ready to tell the message of thy love, that we may grow in grace and be warmed and gladdened by thy presence in our midst."

"I am fatherless; let me take thee, O God, as my Father and give thee my heart, my love, my life. * * * Make me willing to give up my own desires and will and dedicate myself to thee and do thy will alone."—From "Congoland," by Kenred Smith.

HARDNESS OF THE HEART.

The persistent refusal to obey God and to do the right results in the hardening of the human heart. There is nothing to perplex us about the question, "What hardened Pharaoh's heart?" He had one opportunity after another to do what he knew God wanted him to do, but he refused. Persistent perseverance in doing his own will, and refusing to do God's will, hardened his heart. It developed into a bad habit. By his own perverse wilfulness he strengthened his heart against the Lord, and his resistence grew stronger every day. It is possible that we may do the same thing to-day.—Anonymous.

PATIENCE.

We have need of patience with ourselves as with others. We may not refuse help because they stumble, forget often, and are slow to learn life's imperative lessons, nor have we a right to grow discouraged with ourselves and say our efforts are useless because we fail so often. After every wandering, there must come the patient retracing of the steps, after every fall the picking oneself up and going on again.—Anonymous.

MISSING THE POINT.

Great experiences of the Spirit are generally defeated by trifles which absorb and depress us. These trifles come to us as duties and the minute and manifold sense of obligation shuts out the larger vision in which alone we may find peace. Our duties come between us and the meaning of our lives. As year follows year and we grow older, we see more and more clearly how much of the higher possibilities of life we have missed.—John Kelman.

Uric Acid in Meat Clogs the Kidneys

Take a glass of Salts if your Back hurts or Bladder bothers you —Drink more water.

If you must have your meat every day, eat it, but flush your kidneys with salts occasionally, says a noted authority who tells us that meat forms uric acid which almost paralyzes the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken, then you suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids, to cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a teaspoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize the acids so they no longer irritate, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink.

Simplicity is an exact medium between too little and too much.—Sir Joshua Reynolds.

Cured His RUPTURE

I was badly ruptured while lifting a trunk several years ago. Doctors said my only hope of cure was an operation. Trusses did me no good. Finally I got hold of something that quickly and completely cured me. Years have passed and the rupture has never returned, although I am doing hard work as a carpenter. There was no operation, no lost time, no trouble. I have nothing to sell, but will give full information about how you may find a complete cure without operation, if you write to me. Eugene M. Pullen, Carpenter, 862D Marcellus Avenue, Manasquan, N. J. Better cut out this notice and show it to any others who are ruptured—you may save a life or at least stop the misery of rupture and the worry and danger of an operation.

Make Your Own Cough Syrup and Save Money

Better than the ready-made kind. Easily prepared at home.

The finest cough syrup that money can buy, costing only about one-fifth as much as ready-made preparations, can easily be made up at home. The way it takes hold and conquers distressing coughs, throat and chest colds will really make you enthusiastic about it.

Any druggist can supply you with 2½ ounces of Pinex (60 cents worth). Pour this into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. Shake thoroughly and it is ready for use. The total cost is about 65 cents and gives you a full pint—a family supply—of a most effectual, pleasant tasting remedy. It keeps perfectly.

It's truly astonishing how quickly it acts, penetrating through every air passage of the throat and lungs—loosens and raises the phlegm, soothes and heals the inflamed or swollen throat membranes, and gradually but surely the annoying throat tickle and dreaded cough will disappear entirely. Nothing better for bronchitis, spasmodic croup, whooping cough or bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and is known the world over for its prompt healing effect on the throat membranes.

Avoid disappointment by asking your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions and don't accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Sunday School

NORTH MISSISSIPPI SUNDAY SCHOOL NOTES.

By Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, Sardis, Miss.

It has been said that our nation will not get into this war against Germany until it gets upon the conscience of our people. Nor will the Church of God conquer the ever present enemy, the world, the flesh, and the devil, until the thing gets upon the conscience of our leaders. We may thank God and take courage that it has ever been upon the conscience of some and the number that wait before the throne is ever increasing.

Brother Shearer has enrolled to take the teacher-training course as an individual student. One class in his school at Kilmichael is to study "Heroes of Faith in Japan," the second quarter, and another class has promised to take the teacher-training course and thus be prepared for the work of the future. A hundred classes in the Conference could be led to do the same effective work.

There are few men who take a greater pride in their teachers and in the entire work of the school than does Brother J. B. Small, our superintendent at Winona. The teachers in the elementary division recently accepted the standards for beginners, primaries, and juniors. I do not think it will be long before this division of the school can be classed in the first rank.

Consecration is meaningless unless that consecration enters into service. One reason some of our leaders fail to study the books that deal with childhood is because they have been taught that it is worth more to rescue one old sinner than it is to save a multitude of children from a life of sin. We have got to unlearn some errors before we can learn what God wants us to do.

We have a thousand and one important tasks to perform, but the most important of all is the nurture of our own children. Most people agree that this statement is true, but not all of us act that way. Of course, we love our children, but love is not a substitute for a knowledge of their nature and their need of nurture. This is one good reason why preachers, parents, and teachers need to study "Life in the Making," the first book in the course of teacher-training.

Trained teachers will increase the number at Sunday school; trained teachers will be apt to hold those that enroll in the school; trained teachers will know how to bring every child to a definite decision to accept Christ; trained teachers will supply the Church with efficient teachers, superintendents, stewards, and leaders of all kinds; trained teachers will increase the number of missionaries and raise up a vast company of liberal givers to support these missionaries. "An army is no stronger than its leaders." The teachers of to-day are making the Church of to-morrow. God help us to make the teachers after the pattern of Christ.

RFOM REV. J. C. CHAMBERS.

I had the great pleasure of being with Rev. D. W. Ulmer and his good people at Brooklyn the first of last month. They took a $25 mission special for Japan. I think that is fine for a Sunday school of that size. Two of the teachers of the school enrolled for teacher-training work, and I feel that the visit was very profitable to me.

Central Church, Meridian, will keep their preacher in China again this year, and, in addition, they are going to maintain a medical bed an an afternoon Sunday school in Japan, amounting to $175. I think that is very fine.

I was with the good folks of Jackson in an officers' meeting, and their help was an inspiration to the Field Secretary. The officers' meeting at Port Gibson was very interesting, indeed. We provided for two Institutes, and we felt that it would increase the attendance and interest to have it so.

I had the privilege of speaking to the college girls at that time and visiting Chamberlain-Hunt, too. Brother O'Neil is now requiring three units of teacher-training work as supplemental work to his Bible course. I found a much stronger Bible course than I had thought of. With the Bible course they already offer and the teacher-training now offered, they will be enabled to give their graduates two diplomas.

Brookhaven, my old home, was most gracious to me, indeed. One class was organized the Sunday I was there. Dr. Henry is in great favor with his people. They have a great church, and when the Sunday school is thoroughly organized it will be well equipped for all work.

I visited Whitworth and had the privilege of speaking to the students. Five units of teacher-training work is now required. I was dumbfounded to find the strong Bible course offered there. I believe, with the 5 units offered now, that a graduate will have the highest grade of our Teacher-Training Diploma. I found a hearty welcome and the authorities were most gracious in granting my request. I feel that we ought to be extra proud of our college Bible courses. Miss Drake impressed me as being unusually fitted to do this work. I thank God and take courage.

Pray for me that God will keep me in His way and work.

JOHN C. CHAMBERS,
Joint Field S. S. Secretary,
Mississippi Conference.

FOOT TROUBLES.

No Need of Them, Says Brooklyn Man, Who Has Evidently Solved a Big Problem.

According to the testimony of hundreds of people living in the southland and elsewhere, E. P. Simon of 1589 Broadway, Brooklyn, N. Y., has successfully developed a system of shoe building having for its prime object the conquering of foot and shoe troubles. It appears that Mr. Simon's establishment has become national headquarters for people whose feet require his remarkable comfort shoe, known as the EzWear, but obtainable only of the inventor. Mr. Simon's new catalogue shows several hundred shoes that combine comfort with style at amazingly low prices and is now ready for free distribution.—Adv.

"CASCARETS" WORK WHILE YOU SLEEP

For Sick Headache, Sour Stomach, Sluggish Liver and Bowels—Take Cascarets to-night.

Furred Tongue, Bad Taste, Indigestion, Sallow Skin and Miserable Headaches come from a torpid liver and clogged bowels, which cause your stomach to become filled with undigested food, which sours and ferments like garbage in a swill barrel. That's the first step to untold misery—indigestion, foul gases, bad breath, yellow skin, mental fears, everything that is horrible and nauseating. A Cascaret to-night will give your constipated bowels a thorough cleansing and straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist will keep you feeling good for months.

There are thousands of men in India ready to accept Christ, but for the superstition and devotion of their women folk for their old religion. Let no one imagine that after all the centuries of oppression, women have no influence in India. The women in India are a "power behind the throne" as in other lands. When India's womanhood is reached, India will soon be Christian.—Bishop Warne.

CHANGE IN PLACE OF COUNCIL MEETING.

On account of the crowded condition of hotels in Louisville, produced by the cantonment located there, it has been thought best to change the place of the Council meeting and Louisville has regretfully relinquished it for this year.

Church Street Church, Knoxville, Tenn., Holston Conference, comes forward with a most cordial invitation which the Council gratefully accepts. Mrs. W. B. Sullins, 315 Seventh Street, Knoxville, Tenn., is General Chairman of the Entertainment Committee and Mrs. H. A. Evans, Marion Apartments, Knoxville, Tenn., Vice Chairman. All communications in regard to entertainment should be addressed to Mrs. Evans. The date of the Council meeting is April 3-11.

ATTENTION! LOUISIANA AUXILIARIES.

Items each auxiliary should send to its district secretary at once:

a. Amount of pledge for 1918.
b. Membership goal for 1918.
c. (1) What definite war work are you doing?
(2) Have you an Honor Roll of the boys who have gone from your church?
(3) Have their names been sent to Mrs. R. W. MacDonell, 810 Broadway, Nashville, Tenn.?
d. Names of auxiliary members who have died during 1917 for Memorial Page of Minutes.
e. Your 1918 list of officers.

MRS. A. P. HOLT,
Corresponding Secretary.

REPORTS.

It may not seem an opportune time to speak of reporting just as the books for the last quarter are closed. Yet it is for this reason that the subject is discussed. The glaring deficiency of some of our auxiliaries is so evident. One Conference officer's report showed only twelve reports had been sent to her. Another officer has tried every scheme to try to persuade the women to send reports to her. Still another remarks that her report is not a full one, she is sure. From these facts you must see how inaccurate the Conference reports are compelled to be. No matter how efficient the Conference officer is, she is dependent upon the corresponding auxiliary for a record of the work of her department.

If you should fail to receive your literature, how would you feel—and would you be silent about it very long? When you receive so regularly month by month your supplies, it should be a matter of pride and appreciation to return the report to the proper officer.

This is near the beginning of the new year. In some auxiliaries new presidents are taking hold of the work. In others the old officer has pledged herself to renew her energy. This is a call to each president to form a resolution that throughout 1918 each report shall be sent in properly filled out. Do you have a cabinet meeting to make out reports? It will take only a few minutes and will add much to your efficiency.

Miss MARGARET LEACH.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

Montana is the third largest State in the Union, and it contains many such counties as Fergus, in the eastern part, which has a population of more than 1200 and but one minister of the gospel.

Utah has more than 150 towns which have never heard a minister.

To celebrate the deliverance of Jerusalem from Turkish rule a procession of 15,000 students and 20,000 members of scientific associations marched to the convent in Rome where is the tomb of the poet Torquato Tasso, who in the sixteenth century wrote "Jerusalem Delivered."

Hundreds of bells throughout Rome were rung during the ceremonial at the convent, where Cardinal Lega said mass and blessed the immense crowd.—The Expositor.

Twelve years ago the Syria Mission and the American Bible Society decided to bring out a new edition of the Arabic Bible, and two years later the mission press at Beirut purchased paper and machinery ready for work. Dr. Franklin E. Hoskins and his helpers worked on for over nine years, with many trials since the war began. Gas gave out, then coke, then wood, then they bought olive stones from the refuse heap at the native oil presses for fuel.

At last a dozen bound copies of the new Bible were finished. One copy was sent in sections to New York where it was put together in the offices of the American Bible Society.

Here it is guarded safely. Its importance lies in the fact that if anything should happen to the dozen copies in Syria and Constantinople and to the unbound sheets and plates of the whole edition now shut securely within Syria, all the copies necessary of the Arabic Bible which has taken nine long years to produce can be multiplied by means of photography.—Continent.

The Indian population of the United States exclusive of Alaska is about 350,000, or roughly one in every 231 of the whole population. The numbers are increasing slowly. In 1916 the birth rate was 31.85 per thousand and the death rate only 23.33.

The first Bible printed on this continent was in an Indian language. Its translator was John Eliot. The Bible societies have now translated the book into a round dozen Indian languages, and the Protestant missionaries teach their pupils to read it in English.

Latin America has been practically cut off from the Bible. The priests have told the people it was an immoral book. And more than once the Bibles the Protestants have taken there have been publicly burned. But religious freedom is entering many of the States, and now "tons of Bibles" have been carried into South America and colportage is compassing the whole land.—World Outlook.

DO NOT OMIT THIS.

If your society did not observe a pledge day in January, by all means do this in February. The more generous the amount of money pledged early in the year and the greater the number of women who make a pledge, the larger will be the financial result of the year. The cards prepared for obtaining the pledges have been found very helpful.

In Ye Olde Dayes Folkes Knew Goode Coffee

"When It Pours, It Reigns"

WHEN good fellows of long ago gathered about ye festive board for a snack and a smack, they demanded that coffee be ye very best in ye land.

That's the kind you get today when you drink Luzianne. Just try it. If it doesn't taste better than any other coffee, you've got a real "kick" coming to you, and your grocer will refund every penny you paid for it.

Get in line with the thousands of good people who drink Luzianne regularly. Buy some today, in the air-tight, sanitary can.

"Every bag of V-C Fertilizer made 100 pounds of pork!"

"YOU remember in the spring, Bill, I applied V-C Fertilizer to that corn land. You were a "Doubting Thomas." You didn't think 'twould pay. Where no fertilizer was used, my yield was about the same as yours, but where the crop was fertilized, the yield per acre was 13 bushels more. It cost me about $3 to get those extra 13 bushels.

"Now I've turned in my hogs. Those 13 bushels of corn will make more than 100 pounds of hog meat. It's just plain business sense to convert $3 worth of fertilizer into $20 worth of pork. 50 acres of my corn land will make $1,000 more profit on hogs than was possible without V-C."

There are lots of men like Bill whose farms are under-productive because they do not replace the plant foods each crop extracts.

Others like Mr. McIver Williamson, of South Carolina, use from 1400 to 2000 pounds to the acre and not only make more corn — but make it at a much lower cost per bushel—and enrich the land as well. They convert chemicals into cash.

V-C Fertilizers contain every element needed to make both stalk and grain.

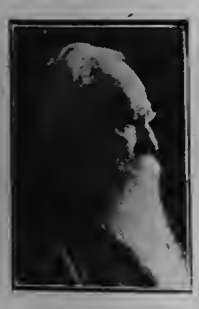
Ruptured?—

Throw Away Your Truss!

For Many Years We Have Been Telling You That No Truss Will Ever Help You---We Have Told You the Harm That Trusses Are Doing. We Have Told You That The Only Truly Comfortable and Scientific Device for Holding Rupture is the Brooks Rupture Appliance---And That It Is

Sent on Trial to Prove It

If you have tried most everything else, come to me. Where others fail is where I have my greatest success. Send attached coupon to-day and I will send you free my illustrated book on Rupture and its cure,. showing my Appliance and giving you prices and names of many people who have tried it and were cured. It is instant relief when all others fail. Remember, I use no salves, no harness, no lies.



I send on trial to prove what I say is true. You are the judge and once having seen my illustrated book and read it you will be as enthusiastic as my hundreds of patients whose letters you can also read. Fill out free coupon below and mail to-day. It's well worth your time whether you try my Appliance or not.

The Above Is C. E. Brooks, inventor of the Appliance, who cured himself and who is now giving others the benefit of his experience. If ruptured, write him to Marshall, Mich.

Soundly Cured

At the Age of 81

Mr. C. E. Brooks,
Marshall, Mich.
Dear Sir:—

Less than a year ago I sent to you for an appliance which came promptly. I at once put it on and it fitted perfectly. I have worn the appliance not quite 10½ months. It has cured my rupture.

I tried the other day while the appliance was off, to see if I could force anything out of the opening to make a break there but I could not though I tried hard.

Now I think this quite remarkable as I am in my eighty-first year. I am an old veteran of the Civil War, born and raised in the town of New Boston, State of New Hampshire, from which place I enlisted in the 10th N. H. Vol. Inft. in Co. C, commanded by Col. M. T. Donahue.

I cannot feel but that I owe you this testimony for I had never expected to be cured. However, thanks be to God I found a cure through the valuable appliance you made for me.

Your friend,
E. A. RICHARDS.

Cured Without Operation

"Was Sure He Would Be a Cripple."

Ada, Minn.
Mr. C. E. Brooks, Marshall, Mich.
Dear Sir:—

Enclosed is a picture of my children, and the little man you see seated on the chair is the one who was cured by your Appliance.

He had been ruptured quite a while before we wrote you, and I was sure that he would be a cripple the rest of his life. However, some helping hand showed me an ad. In a newspaper, with the result that he was in perfect health through the wearing of a Brooks Appliance for just three months.

The doctor advised an operation, which I would not consent to. Your advice was to put an Air Cushion Appliance on him, and I must say that it is worth ten times what it cost.

I wish you could have seen him before we used the Appliance and now, when he is fully as sound as anyone could be.

I cannot thank you too much for what you have done for my boy.

Yours respectfully,
OLIVER HANSON.

CURED IN THREE MONTHS

Salem, Ohio.
430 Cleveland Av.
Mr. C. E. Brooks,
Marshall, Mich.
Dear Mr. Brooks:

I am sending you a small picture of my son, who is now five years old.

We ordered your Appliance for him when he was only two months old, and yet want to say in about three months all signs of rupture were gone, and he is some boy to-day.

I shall be very glad to say a good word for you whenever the opportunity presents itself.

Yours very truly,
T. A. McLAIN.

VETERAN CURED

Mr. Wm. McAdams, of Kansas, Ill., is a veteran of Co. "H" 59, Regt. Ill., Vol. of which he was Second Lieutenant.

He has fought against the suffering and torment of Rupture for years and has finally won the victory as the following brief letter tells:

Mr. C. E. Brooks,
Marshall, Mich.
Dear Sir: I laid your appliance aside March 2nd and have not worn it for twenty-five days, for I think that I am cured. I hope that I may never have to wear it again.

Yours truly,
WM. McADAMS, Sr.,
Kansas, Ill.

Doctor Pronounces Him Cured

119 Towle Avenue.
Mishawaka, Ind.
Mr. C. E. Brooks,
Marshall, Mich.
Dear Mr. Brooks:—

Answering your letter, will say we need no more Appliances, as our son has been completely cured by wearing your Appliance.

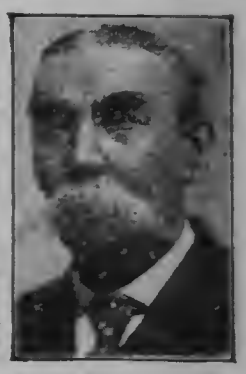
We recently had him examined, and the doctor said the opening was entirely closed and that it wasn't necessary to wear it longer.

Thanking you for your kindness, I am,
Yours very truly,
MRS. H. TOLLMAN.

Remember

I send my Appliance on t rial to prove what I say is true. You are to be the judge. Fill out free coupon below and mail to-day.

Ten Reasons Why



You Should send for Brooks Rupture Appliance

1. It is absolutely the only Appliance of the kind on the market to-day, and in it are embodied the principles that inventors have sought after for years.
2. The Appliance for retaining the rupture cannot be thrown out of position.
3. Being an air cushion of soft rubber it clings closely to the body, yet never blisters or causes irritation.
4. Unlike the ordinary so-called pads, used in other trusses, it is not cumbersome or ungainly.
5. It is small, soft and pliable, and positively cannot be detected through the clothing.
6. The soft, pliable bands holding the Appliance do not give one the unpleasant sensation of wearing a harness.
7. There is nothing about it to get foul, and when it becomes soiled it can be washed without injuring it in the least.
8. There are no metal springs in the Appliance to torture one by cutting and bruising the flesh.
9. All of the material of which the Appliances are made is of the very best that money can buy, making it a durable and safe Appliance to wear.
10. My reputation for honesty and fair dealing is so thoroughly established by an experience of over thirty years of dealing with the public, and my prices are so reasonable, my terms so fair, that there certainly should be no hesitancy in sending free coupon today.

Pennsylvania Man Thankful

Mr. C. E. Brooks, Marshall, Mich.

Dear Sir:—Perhaps it will interest you to know that I have been ruptured six years and have always had trouble with it till I got your Appliance. It is very easy to wear, fits neat and snug, and is not in the way at any time, day or night. In fact, at times I did not know I had it on; it just adapted itself to the shape of the body and seemed to be a part of the body, as it clung to the spot, no matter what position I was in.

It would be a veritable God-send to the unfortunate who suffer from rupture if all could procure the Brooks Rupture Appliance and wear it. They would certainly never regret it.

My rupture is now all healed up and nothing ever did it but your Appliance. Whenever the opportunity presents itself I will say a good word for your Appliance, and also the honorable way in which you deal with ruptured people. It is a pleasure to recommend a good thing among your friends or strangers. I am,

Yours very sincerely,
JAMES A. BRITTON.

CHURCH NEWS ITEMS.

On an assessment of $415,446 for education the Annual Conferences of our Church paid last year $326,917, an increase of $46,160 as compared with 1916.

Dr. C. M. Bishop, President of Southwestern University, Georgetown, Tex., has been appointed pastor of Austin Avenue Church, Waco, Tex. He succeeds Dr. F. P. Culver, who was appointed pastor of First Church, Waco, Tex., as successor to Dr. A. L. Andrews, deceased.

The Louisville Conference instructed its Board of Education to inaugurate a campaign to secure within the next five years at least $300,000, ten per cent of which is to go to Emory University and the balance to be used in endowing the three Conference schools.

The report of the Educational Commission to the two Conferences of South Carolina showed that $127,000 had been subscribed toward the $300,000 sought for the three colleges of that State. The Conferences directed the Commission to continue an active campaign through 1918.

The Memphis Conference authorized the Board of Trustees of the Memphis Conference Female Institute to amend as may be necessary this school's charter or to secure a new one, and recommended that its name be changed to the Memphis Conference Woman's College. This Conference also authorized its Board of Education to begin as soon as practicable a campaign for at least $500,000 for this institution.

The Virginia Conference instructed the Board of Education to appoint a Commission to take in hand the raising of $2,000,000 for additional buildings, equipment, and endowment of the schools and colleges belonging to that Conference. The immediate objective of this Commission is to be the securing of $100,000 in scholarships of $1000 cach for Randolph-Macon College and the completion of the $100,000 fund already started for Blackstone College for Girls.

EXCHANGE OF PASTORS.

Our Methodist preachers in New Orleans exchange pulpits on the second Sunday night of each month.

The following exchanges are scheduled for Sunday night, February 10, 1918:

Rev. W. H. Coleman of First Church to exchange with Rev. F. M. Freeman of the Parker Memorial Church.

Dr. U. G. Foote of the Rayne Memorial Church to exchange with Rev. A. F. Vaughan of the Carrollton Avenue Church.

Rev. C. C. Wier of the Algiers Church to exchange with Rev. A. J. Gearheard of the Louisiana Avenue Church.

Rev. R. M. Brown of the Felicity Church to exchange with Rev. J. A. Alford of the Second Church.

Rev. J. C. Rousseaux of the Epworth Church to exchange with Rev. W. A. Mangum of the McDonoghville Church.

This method of exchanging the preachers once a month promises to be helpful to both preachers and people. It gives the preachers an opportunity to meet our Methodist people, and an opportunity is given to the people to hear the other pastors without running away from their own church. I believe it will bring us closer together as Methodists and will help to give unity of purpose and aim in all our work.

RECIPE FOR GRAY HAIR.

To half pint of water add 1 oz. Bay Rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and ¼ oz. of glycerine. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it at home at very little cost. Full directions for making and use come in each box of Barbo Compound. It will gradually darken streaked, faded gray hair, and make it soft and glossy. It will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy, and does not rub off.—Adv.

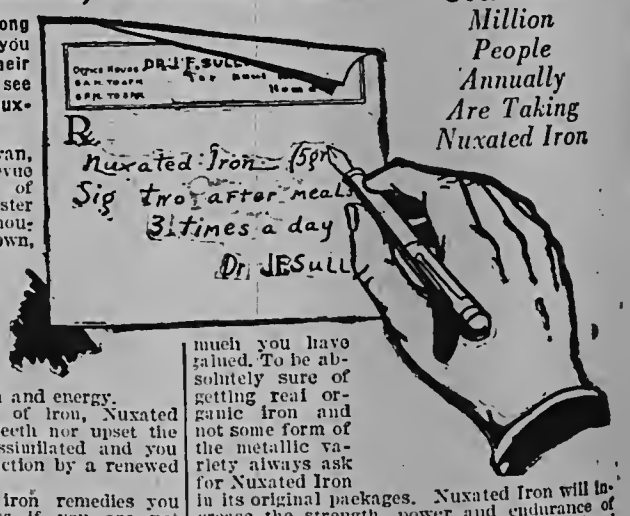
SOUR, ACID STOMACHS, GASES OR INDIGESTION

"Pape's Diapepsin" neutralizes excessive acid in stomach, relieving dyspepsia, heartburn and distress at once.

Time it! In five minutes all stomach distress, due to acidity will go. No indigestion, heartburn, sourness or belching of gas or eructations of undigested food, no dizziness, bloating, foul breath or headache.

Pape's Diapepsin is noted for its speed in regulating upset stomachs. It is the surest, quickest stomach sweetener in the whole world, and besides it is harmless. Put an end to stomach distress at once by getting a large fifty-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin from any drug store. You realize in five minutes how needless it is to suffer from indigestion, dyspepsia or any stomach disorder caused by fermentation due to excessive acids in stomach.

A little boy takes a rose which he has just plucked from a bush in the garden, and plants it in a pot with earth, and brings it to his father, saying, "Father, look at my rose!" The father pities the boy's delight, for he knows the flower must soon wither away for want of root. And so the great Father in heaven looks down at the plans we make without Him and He knows they must shortly wither and die. Nothing can succeed but that which is rooted in God.—Wade Robinson.



"Say Doctor, This Prescription Works Like Magic"—Physician Explains Why Nuxated Iron

Quickly Increases the Strength and Energy of Men and Brings Roses to the Cheeks of Nervous, Rundown Women

Over Three Million People Annually Are Taking Nuxated Iron

Ask the first hundred strong healthy looking people you meet to what they owe their strength and energy and see how many will reply "Nuxated Iron."

Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly Physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Dept.) of New York and the Westchester County Hospital, says: "Thousands of nervous, run-down, anaemic people suffer from iron deficiency but do not know what to take. There is nothing like organic iron—Nuxated Iron—to quickly enrich the blood, and thereby put roses in the cheeks of women and give men increased strength and energy.

Unlike the older forms of iron, Nuxated Iron does not injure the teeth nor upset the stomach, but is readily assimilated and you can quickly recognize its action by a renewed feeling of buoyant health.

No matter what other iron remedies you have used without success if you are not strong or well you owe it to yourself to make the following test:

See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired; next take two five-grain tablets of Nuxated Iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see how much you have gained. To be absolutely sure of getting real organic iron and not some form of the metallic variety always ask for Nuxated Iron in its original packages. Nuxated Iron will increase the strength, power and endurance of delicate, nervous, run-down people in ten days' time in many instances.

NOTE—Nuxated Iron recommended above by Dr. Sullivan can be obtained from any good druggist with or without a physician's prescription, on an absolute guarantee of success by its manufacturers or money refunded. It is dispensed by all good druggists.

NEW ORLEANS
CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

Vol. 65—No. 7. Official Organ of the Louisiana, Mississippi, and North Mississippi Conferences, Methodist Episcopal Church, South. Whole No. 3234.

ROBERT A. MEEK, Editor. NEW ORLEANS, LA., THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 14, 1918. CHAS. O. CHALMERS, Publisher.

Editorial

"There are nettles everywhere,
But smooth, green grasses are more common still;
The blue of heaven is larger than the cloud."

The palm of excellence in all things does not belong to this generation. Where, for instance, is the living poet who equals Shakespeare? There is something wrong with the thinking machinery of one who can sneer at the marvelous past.

* * *

While recently in Savannah, Ga., we lounged a good deal in two of that city's prominent hotels, and the only kind of religious papers that we saw in them for free reading by the public were Christian Science periodicals. One of the surprising things of the world is the immense activity of the votaries of error to propagate their teachings. If we, as Christian workers, are to outstrip them we need to be aflame with energy.

* * *

Conferring in meetings and planning for Church work (though a reasonable amount of counseling is good) cannot take the place of actual doing to extend the Master's Kingdom. Agricultural institutes may help the farmers, but their crops must be worked or there will be no harvests. Too much time out of the fields would result in disaster. It may be that, in more ways than one, modern Christianity is in danger of becoming too "conventional."

* * *

"Billy" Sunday, who is conducting evangelistic services in Washington City, has been entertained at luncheons by Mr. Lansing, the Secretary of State, by Speaker Champ Clark, and by the Hon. Nicholas Longworth, with Col. Roosevelt as an associate guest. This is very different treatment from that which was accorded John Wesley and George Whitefield, the great evangelists of the eighteenth century, who had to find preaching-places in the streets and open fields, and who not infrequently were persecuted by both the upper and lower classes. Is not this higher appraisement of the value of the service of spiritual workers a clear indication that the world, notwithstanding the many discouraging evils that yet exist, is better than it was in former times?

The wisest of men cannot see far into the future and are but poor judges of the significance of what is going on in human affairs. God's ways are not as our ways, and the occurrence to which the multitudes attach but little or no importance may be the one that will influence most profoundly the coming decades and centuries. Dr. James Stalker, the well known writer, impressively says: "We never know when a great event may be happening. The next morning (after the birth of Jesus) the noise and bustle broke out again in the inn yard; the citizens of Bethlehem went about their work; the registration proceeded; and in the meantime the greatest event in the world's history had taken place." It is because of the smallness of man's knowledge and power that we always need to have faith in God. He has not abandoned the earth, and, when the outlook is gloomiest, he may be coming to the rescue by methods of which we do not dream.

NO AGREEMENT PERFECTED AT SAVANNAH.

After sitting for full two weeks, and devoting perhaps ten days to a discussion of the status of the Negro in the proposed unified Church, the Joint Commission on the Unification of American Methodism failed to reach an agreement at Savannah, and adjourned to meet again in St. Louis on April 10. As we stated in the Advocate last week, when we left Savannah on Friday night, February 1, the indications were that a majority of the two Commissions would get together, and that there would be a considerable and influential dissenting minority on each of them. According to the information that came to us, there was never any prospect of a report commanding the unanimous support of the Commissioners. And it now develops that the proceedings failed to pan out even as much as was expected when we left the scene of the Commission's labors. One distinguished member of the body, who was present at every sitting, has expressed the conviction that the points at issue when the adjournment was taken are of a kind which it will be exceedingly difficult, if not impossible, to adjust.

We should like to tell our readers what the compromise arrangement which commanded the largest support was, and who stood for it and against it; but we prefer not to do this until the Commission has had an opportunity to give to the public a complete statement concerning its work and accomplishments. And this we think it should do, making the information imparted full and explicit, without any further delay. Our General Conference is only a little over two months off, and in a matter so important—a matter involving the very existence and the whole future of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South—rosy, general statements, of a vague and indefinite character, are not sufficient. The great body of our membership, by every token of fairness and justice, are entitled to know exactly what is pending. With the Commission not meeting until April 10, and the General Conference assembling the first of May, there will not be time enough for the Church to be made acquainted with the facts, that it may have an opportunity to convey its sentiments to its great law-making assembly, which is its servant, not its master.

The people have already been too much ignored in the handling of this momentous issue. Four years ago, the report of the original Joint Commission was not published until it appeared in the Daily Advocate that was issued at Oklahoma City. The great masses of the Church knew nothing about it. The paper which there subsequently came from the Committee on Church Relations was before the General Conference only a few minutes, and it was passed without any discussion or explanation of its provisions. When the Commission met last summer and adjourned without giving out its proceedings, the Methodist public was led to believe by the later statements of some of the Commissioners that all would be made known after the January meeting. Yet with the General Conference practically in sight, the Church is still almost completely in the dark as to what is being done in the way of determining its future destiny. This, too, when there is talk of having a called session of the Northern General Conference to settle everything in a jiffy. In the name of the two million Methodists of the Church, South, whose sacred rights and priceless interests are involved, we respectfully request our Commissioners to lift the curtain on the full record of the Unification proceedings. This, we feel sure, they can easily arrange for by correspondence in case they lack the necessary authority, if they only will.

PREACHMENT AND PRACTICE IN ACCORD.

Daisy Fitzhugh Ayres, in a recent Washington letter to the New Orleans Times-Picayune, among other things, says:

"Everybody watches the Hoovers eat, when the Hoovers eat in company, and it must be a hardship and a handicap to be a Hoover, laying patriotism aside. To have to be a living example all the time and practice what you preach is no picnic. Mr. and Mrs. Food Administrator Hoover are a good looking couple, he with his fresh, almost cherubic countenance, and she with her sparkling personality and good looking clothes. Mrs. Hoover, before clubs and things, is almost as active with the eatless propaganda as is her husband. Yet neither look the least bit starved, though they take their own medicine manfully."

Mr. and Mrs. Hoover deserve commendation for keeping their practice in accord with their preaching. This is by no means always an easy thing to do. It is because so many exponents of Christianity fall so far short in this respect that the Gospel does not win its way more rapidly. Those who proclaim a difficult standard for others in anything are pretty certain to be watched to see if they themselves conform to it. Paul recognized this fact when he spoke of Christians as "living epistles, known and read of all men."

AN EXAGGERATED STATEMENT.

How easy it is to fall into exaggeration! To illustrate, it is a very common occurrence now to hear people say that Christianity is on trial at this time as it never before was in its history. Such an utterance will not at all bear analysis. There was a period when a few score disciples of Jesus were the sole human advocates of the faith in a world that was wrapped in heathen darkness. None of our modern cities present problems any more difficult than those found in Ephesus, Corinth, and Rome, which was called "the sewer of the universe." Indeed, none of our present-day municipalities, bad as they are, can compare in wickedness with these ancient ones. The proof of this may be seen in the ruins of Pompeii. The Kaiser is not in a class with Nero as to depravity. Twentieth century Christianity, with its scores of millions of communicants and its magnificent equipment and resources, confronts no such task as that which lay out before the infant Church in the opening decades of the Christian era. And the same Gospel that triumphed in the beginning will conquer now, if it is only faithfully lived and expounded. There is no call for a new teaching. The fact is, the NEW TEACHING of Germany is largely responsible for the present deplorable situation.

THE FLOWER OF PRAYER.

One flower blooms only for God's eye,
Our secret prayer!
We seek the Father in sweet solitude,
And find Him there.

"Not to be seen of men!" But One
Fails not to see!
In secret prayer He gives us gifts for men—
Rich gifts and free.

Our intercession, strong, sustained,
Is faith's full flower!
The Father breathes on those for whom we pray
His Spirit's power!

—Mrs. Merrill E. Gates.

YOU YOURSELF.

Your greatest problem is yourself. You are also your greatest treasure. If you can get yourself determined upon—find out what you are and what you are for—and if you can discover and develop the elements of value in your nature, your life will take on the beauty of orderliness and your need of the savings bank will be less and less, for you will be your own riches.—Richard Wightman.

THE RIGHT OF YOUTH.

The desire of youth to live its own life is overwhelming and is to be expected. Parents who unthinkingly hold that these young lives were put into the home for the pleasure and benefit of the parents and that they must, therefore, conform in every last degree to the destiny marked out for them, may expect some sort of trouble. Each human soul is sent into the world to express its own individual portion of the divine life, and those who would suppress this power or direct it into channels which they have unalterably marked out are working contrary to divine law.—Mrs. Woodallen Chapman.

THE VALUE OF A PLAN.

Every Christian life needs a plan—steady, well-kept, good all the year round—to give direction to all Christian efforts. Without a plan, we become fitful, zealous at one time, cold at another. Satan cannot conquer a Christian life that has a plan to live by. Our circumstances in life are very different, and by necessity the plans will be modified thereby; still, each one should realize the value of system, and arrange a method which accords with our vocation.

If you plan to go to church each Sunday, you will be there more regularly than if you leave it to be decided from time to time. Whatever you resolve to do will sometimes be difficult to perform, and you have saved your resolution if you can meet the difficulty with the response, "That's my plan," and follow it out. If we could read the records of human life, we would find that we have many times fallen into bad habits, neglected our duties, yielded to temptation, broken our good resolutions, simply because our Christian life was a kind of haphazard, go-as-you-feel sort of thing, and lacked a well-kept plan.—Gospel Advocate.

TO EVERY MAN HIS WORK.

This was the final message of the departing Lord to His disciples. There is no excuse for idleness in the Kingdom of God. So much is to be done, and so varied is the work, that all hands may find employment. The cry comes from the poor laboring men in these days, who stand on our streets, "No man will hire us," but there is no lack of toil in the Church of Christ. Every Christian in a congregation may find something to do. There ought not to be an idle, inactive, and unfruitful member in the household of faith. What a world this would be without work! What a Church we would have without the active cooperation of persons belonging to it! Long ago man has found out that the 'curse of labor' proves a blessing to him. The very elements of destruction are the materials of human bliss. Heaven is built up on the ruins of the fall. And the ladder by which we ascend is honest and useful toil. Work is not only a duty, but a privilege. Every noble deed is a step upward in the path to glory. Instead of praying that God should grant us less work, our petition should be that He would give us greater heart and growing strength to meet all its claims. The idea of a man coming into the Church for salvation has no place in the life of Christ, nor in the teachings of the Apostles. The great aim of the Church is to edify the saints and to evangelize the sinners. A congregation is not a field to work in so much as a force to work with. We are coworkers with God.—Reformed Church Messenger.

A PLEA FOR THE FAMILY ALTAR.

As we stand face to face with the oncoming new year, bringing with it an unprecedented tide of rabid and frightened unrest, many grave responsibilities, and problems of tremendous import, the right solution of which will determine the future success and safety of the home and the Church, it behooves us as Christians to look to the rock on which we stand for a foundation, and to the goal toward which we are daily striving. We should seek to make our calling and election sure, and, having done all we can, to stand firmly upon our feet and let the countenance of God shine upon our face—uncertain about our days, about the termination of the propensities of the times, but certain about the God in whom we trust.

I hear some anxious brother ask, "Where shall we begin to fortify, to erect the breastworks that shall be a safe refuge, a pavillion of peace for the hungry soul, the faint heart, and the tempted life, from the vicissitudes, the disappointments, the failures, and the changing scenes of life?" And, then, I hear another answer, in clarion tones and with all the emphasis of his soul, "The home." And more and more are we beginning to realize the fact that the strength of a nation is in its Christian homes. If our nation, to-day, lacks power and personal purity, it is because the home has failed in its mission and has never realized the wealth of its own endowment, or discovered and developed the sleeping powers that lie hidden in the hearts of those who constitute and brighten the home circle. Despite the significance of this fact, how few really Christian homes may be found in the several charges of our Conference to-day! You ask the question, "What constitutes a really Christian home?" It would be an endless task to enumerate all of the sacred ties that cement the fabric of home life into a happy union, but well may we say, and without any fear of contradiction, that no chord in the home-life is quite so binding or securing as the family altar. It is essential to the welfare, the success and happiness of every home. It is as a band of fire around home-life; within its circles there is safety; where it is absent there is danger and weakness. Tell me of the home in which the family altar has been established, around which the happy loved ones daily meet in holy communion with their Heavenly Father, and I can tell you of a really Christian home, where every heart is filled with godly reverence and where all of the plans and problems of life are settled in the light of divine wisdom and guidance.

The family altar is indeed the only true and safe basis for permanent happiness and moral integrity. Yea, "happy is the man who is never so happy as when he opens the Bible to read and pray with his wife and children."

Only a short time ago, a good layman of my church, who is a kind father and a devoted husband, said to me, with tears in his eyes, that in spite of his desire to live right before God and his fellow-men he had yielded to temptation and committed an act of which he was ashamed and for which he was heartily penitent. He confessed that this act was due to his non-observance of certain habits and methods of living essential to fostering and developing a healthful and vigorous spiritual life. In conclusion, he said, "I know wherein lies my strength, my success, and deliverance from further temptation. It is in the observance of family prayers, and, by the help of the Lord, I will be a big enough man and a good enough father to hold prayers with my family."

Brother layman, brother church-member, is it true that you have failed to exercise and to observe this divine privilege? If you have, won't you think over this all-important matter, and pray about it, and, then, in the name of all that is high, holy, and just to yourself, to your family, to your Church, and to God, won't you now and evermore honor God with the family altar, and at this sacred place, pray daily, with all the earnestness of your soul, for the consecration of your loved ones, for divine blessings on your pastor and church, for the success and salvation of others, and the triumphant coming of the Kingdom of God?

UNIFICATION AND COLORED METHODISM.

Bishop C. H. Phillips,
One of the Bishops of the Colored Methodist Episcopal Church.

The unification of the Methodist Episcopal Church and the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, is one of the most important as well as titanic questions that are engaging the attention of the Methodist denominations. The Negro was the rock upon which Methodism split in 1844 and the place he is to occupy in the reorganized Church constitutes one of the most difficult, if not most serious, problems the leaders of the two Churches must deal with before unification can obtain.

That the Negro is too often the "bone of contention," too often "Banquo's ghost that will not down," too often the special subject of discussion in both Church and State, most of us will admit. It was unfortunate that he should have been involved in the split of 1844 and is equally unfortunate now that the unification of the two great Methodisms should center so largely around him. The Negro was in no respect responsible for his appearance in this country, for his subsequent enslavement, nor yet for the severance of American Methodism. But if the efforts to unify the two great Methodist bodies should fail, it would be utterly impossible to absolve him from sharing the responsibility of the failure with all the tremendous consequences such a failure could involve.

Though a spectacle to the world, few of his friends will impute to him the desire for notoriety or judge him rashly or hastily on account of conditions over which he has no control. This is a time of remission, not of accusation; of indulgence and toleration, not of strict scrutiny; of grace and favor, not of trial and condemnation. And yet, the Negro in the Methodist Episcopal Church has an opportunity to magnify the feelings, aspirations, and ambitions of his race, an opportunity to dignify and emphasize its race consciousness. No such opportunity has ever been given to the Negro to honor himself and his race, to demonstrate his self-respect and faith in his efficiency to control and govern his own church affairs, as is now given to the Negro in the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Two Main Propositions.

Whatever propositions may be offered looking to the place to be apportioned the colored members of the Methodist Episcopal Church in the reorganized body, will, in my opinion, in the last analysis, narrow down to two: (1) a proposition to accept some kind of a subordinate or inferior relation to the general Church; (2) a proposition to be organized into a separate or independent church. The Negro could not with conformity to the established rules and customs by which he always had an innate nexus to the Methodist Episcopal Church, of which he is an integral part, entertain the former proposition. He could, it seems to me, with every sense of propriety, accept the latter.

Some of the leaders of my race foster the idea that any church which for the sake of expediency, and out of the eternal fitness of things, advocates the organizing of white and black folks into church societies of their own, encourages race distinctions, invites race separation, and, actually, builds the Church of Christ on racial lines. I dissent from these opinions. Racial consciousness or racial integrity is not repugnant to the teachings of Christianity. Nor is the doctrine of the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man obliterated and Christianity gone bankrupt, because social conditions and lineal idiosyncrasies as they exist in this country seem to require both races to worship God under their own vine and fig tree.

The Negro enjoys about as much religious freedom as he could possibly desire. He can conduct his own church affairs and hold his conferences, conventions, and all religious gatherings at will. He can open his church houses at any hour of the day and close them at any hour of the night. In affairs purely religious, in affairs that concern him, his children, and church jurisdiction, he may be monarch of all he surveys, his rights there are none to dispute. But the moment he is brought into connection with the white man in church government, the latter is quite sure to be the ruling figure. United Methodism could render the Negro race a much better service by working to procure equal rights for him on the common carriers of the country, in the abolition of segregation laws, in jury cases, and in all civic affairs, than by giving him any kind of relation in the reorganized church that could be considered secondary, a mere veneering when compared with the white man's status.

Race Distinction No Violation of Christianity.

I can see where no violence can be done to Chrisianity if all the Negro Methodists of the United States could be organized into one great church and all the white Methodists into another, forming two great bodies, coming together when necessary, and, finding common ground upon which they can stand, doing work for our common interests and the general welfare of mankind. When our Lord healed the demoniac of Gadara He told him to go home to his friends and tell them what great things had been done for him. In looking up the phrase "go home to thy friends," I found that in the original, Mark used the word "oikos" and not "oikia." "Oikia" invariably means the dwelling-house, while "oikos" means not only a house, but race, lineage, nationality. So our Lord bade the demoniac to go to his own race, his lineage, his nationality, and tell the things he had seen, heard, and felt.

I feel that I have been sent to preach the Gospel to all men as opportunities present themselves and as occasions and the necessities of men demand. But in a larger and more particular sense, as conditions obtain in this country, I feel I have been called to preach to, and administer the social, educational, and religious affairs of my own race and nationality. This is true of all Negro ministers. But the white man, because of his greater strength, his superior advantages, his centuries of civilization, his monetary supremacy, must, as he has in the past, sustain some kind of helpful relation to our race. To withdraw either his presence or his helping hand, or both, would prove disastrous, to us as a race and detrimental to the common cause of our Lord and Master. The white man brought us the Gospel in the days of slavery, and schoolhouses, colleges, and education since our emancipation. We drop tears of gratitude for what our friends, North and South, have done for us in our poverty. For what they did was to us a citadel which can never be stormed; a wall of adamantine strength; a harbor where no billows rage.

Appreciation of Methodist Episcopal Church.

The Methodist Episcopal Church has been like a tender mother to the Negro within her province. She has thrown her educational and religious garment about him; covered him with her wings; permitted him so to stand in her legislative councils and departmental boards as to experience both the power and clemency of the Church, and, oblivious of, if not indifferent to, hostile criticism, has made her bosom his asylum and repose.

But the Negro, in my estimation, has outgrown both his previous and his present status in the Methodist Episcopal Church. For fifty years he has been receiving the best kind of training and the most helpful contact from the leaders of his Church. His growth in knowledge, ethical culture, moral and religious awakening have manifestly prepared him for a more exalted race leadership than can find fruition in his present limited official church relations. The 333,000 Negroes in the Methodist Episcopal Church, among whom are a large number of efficient, really able men and women, comprising one of the most invaluable groups of all the Negro denominations, possessing all the tastes and ambition which the white man possesses, desiring all things spiritual, intellectual, and temporal that are common to him, are too large a body to be assimilated in a satisfactory manner on a parity with all the other groups which are to form the reorganized Church.

Suppose the Negro should be granted a Regional Conference with authority to enact laws, elect general officers and Bishops, and be given a satisfactory representation in the General Conference as to the quantity and social status of his delegates, would not this whole spectacle give the appearance of an independent Negro church making an effort to exist inside of a white body of Methodists? Could the experiment prove successful? Would Negro Bishops preside alternately with white Bishops in the sessions of the General Conference? Inasmuch as there will be no more Methodist Episcopal Church nor Methodist Episcopal Church, South, when the two are united, would not the reorganizing of the Churches afford the Negro a most excellent opportunity to assume a new relation to the Methodist Episcopal Church and to world-wide Methodism without embarrassment to himself or others? Would not a General Conference of his own with two or three hundred delegates mean more to him and to the race than thirty or forty delegates with somewhat restricted social prerogatives in a General Conference of the reorganized Church?

Independence a Necessity.

The Negro can never attain his zenith in church government or preferment; cannot draw out what is best and noblest in him; cannot reach his highest development in racial consciousness or self-assertiveness; cannot know his own potentiality or what real religious freedom implies, as long as he must lean upon and allow other people to man his ecclesiastical ship, and as long as he is regarded as a "ward," a "dependent," a racial "immaturist," occupying a secondary place in governing his own affairs. It is best for him that the responsibility of church government and direction should rest in his own hands.

No argument is needed to prove that the Negroes of the Methodist Episcopal Church are capable of autonomy. The achievements of the three large Negro Methodist denominations, and the Negro Baptists tell the story of what they would accomplish. In a church of his own the Negro has longitude, altitude, and latitude. Should not these be preferred to restrictions and petty discriminations, which are usually found where Negro people and white people coalesce in church government? Prejudice is one of our most common evils. I would not if I could apoligize for its presence. I could not if I would drive it into startling stillness. It cannot be squelched by force. It may not be throttled by abuse. Recognizing its presence, we should deal with it, according to the light and conditions which comfort us, knowing that every contribution we make for its elimination will be making it better for generations yet to come.

The Church, South, and the Colored Methodist Episcopal Church.

"In a late issue of the Central Christian Advocate, Dr. I. Garland Penn said the Colored Methodist Episcopal Church had 240,798 members, and the colored people in the M. E. Church numbered 339,783. Let us deal with these figures without regard to their accuracy or non-accuracy. "Where there are Negro Bishops," said Dr. Penn, "the growth is supposed to be greater, but in this instance the Negro membership in the Methodist Episcopal Church without colored Bishops is 98,985 members in excess of the Colored Methodist Episcopal Church with their colored Bishops."

But Dr. Penn does not state the relative strength of these bodies when our Church was organized in 1870. The fact is, there were always more Negro members in the Methodist Episcopal Church than in the Colored Methodist Episcopal Church. A careful study, however, of the comparative growth of these two bodies will clearly show that the Colored Methodist Episcopal Church has grown far more rapidly than the colored constituency of the Methodist Episcopal Church. At the close of the war, and for many years afterwards, we did not have a single church north of the Mason and Dixon line. But the Methodist Episcopal Church had a number of congregations at the North even before the organic birth of the Colored Methodist Episcopal Church.

Relative Growth of Colored Methodism.

Rev. A. B. Hyde, D. D., professor of Greek in the University of Denver, at the time he wrote his excellent book entitled "The Story of Methodism," in the chapter on "Methodism Among the Freedmen," speaking of the growth of the Methodist Episcopal Church, uses these words: "In 1884 it had in the South over 400,000 communicants, of whom three-fourths had been added since the war, and these were about equally divided between whites and colored." Thus it would seem that there were about 200,000 Negroes in the M. E. Church in 1884. At the General Conference of our Church held at Washington, D. C., in 1882, the statistics showed we had 125,000 members. According to these figures, the increase of Negro members in the Methodist Episcopal Church in the last thirty-three years has been 139,783, and 115,985 in the Colored Methodist Episcopal Church, an excess of only 23,985 in favor of the colored membership of the Methodist Episcopal Church. When one remembers how the Methodist Episcopal Church, rich in men and means, built schools in almost every State from Baltimore to Jacksonville, Atlanta, Spartanburg, Nashville, Marshall, and Austin; how a large number of consecrated men and women taught in these schools and both directly and indirectly built a tremendous influence in favor of the Methodist Episcopal Church; how hundreds of thousands of dollars were emptied into the South for the Negroes' moral, intellectual, and religious uplift; how the Woman's Home Missionary Society aided the forces at work along the same lines that the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society was doing abroad; how the Church Extension and Missionary Societies have contributed money to needy churches and worthy preachers, making their mission preachers the best paid of any of our Negro churches—I say when one remembers all these things, he can but wonder why the colored membership of the Methodist Episcopal Church has not had a more pronounced growth and extension.

The Colored Methodist Episcopal Church started out in 1870 with eight Annual Conferences and no schools. Now we have thirty-three Annual Conferences and ten or twelve institutions of learning. The Methodist Episcopal Church makes a contribution of nearly $250,000 each year for church building and for the maintenance of its twenty Negro schools. Dr. Blake is authority for the statement that a prominent colored leader informed him that there were only two self-supporting Negro Conferences in the Methodist Episcopal Church. All our Conferences are self-supporting. By this I mean whether they be strong or weak, all the support they receive comes directly from our own efforts. The Methodist Episcopal Church, South, has never through any of its boards made yearly appropriations to help us maintain our ministry, or develop our church extension or missionary activities. The only yearly appropriations we receive from this Church are those coming from its Board of Education for Paine College, which it supports, and for two or three others of our schools. These contributions might aggregate some ten or fifteen thousand dollars a year.

We have built our schools and maintained them through great sacrifices. We have erected our churches, supported our ministry, and extended the limitations of our Church from Florida to Pennsylvania and the Atlantic coast, and from the Atlantic coast to New Mexico, Arizona, and to the Golden Gate of California. Despite unfavorable conditions, lack of means, hostile influences here and there, our growth has been healthy, permanent, phenomenal.

If Unification Prevails.

If the unification of the Churches prevails—and I sincerely trust it will—our most cordial relations with the Church, South, must undergo a change. We have been loyal to our "mother" and our loyalty has cost us much. Years ago our relations were either misunderstood or maliciously misrepresented. But none of these things moved us. We dared to love the Church and leaders that gave religious instruction to our fathers, and led thousands of them into the Kingdom of Christ. My mother used to take delight in telling me I was christened by a minister of the Church, South.

Bishop Capers, Early, and Andrew were wont to rise to sublime heights of sacred eloquence while pleading for the welfare of the slaves. Bishop George Pierce and Dr. Lovick Pierce, his father, were no less conspicuous in their services to a helpless people. Bishop Joseph S. Key's first appointment, we are told, was to a Negro mission at Athens, Ga., where he received a salary of $100, out of which he paid his board. But there is a still larger number whose memories we cherish and whose ministry, crowned with success as they labored among the Negroes on the plantations of the South, lives with us, a hallowing influence to this day. Since the war, we have had men like Atticus G. Haygood, Charles B. Galloway, David Morton, and J. D. Barbee, men of large sympathies and purity of purpose who were not ashamed of being known as "friends to the Negro."

In view of our past and present relations to this Church, it is natural for us to possess some kind of a peculiar feeling should we see our relations changed, and, if Dr. Blake's plans should prevail, see the Negroes of the Methodist Episcopal Church become the beneficiaries of the united Church. Speaking of the results which would accrue to the Negro from the impact of the two great bodies, Dr. Blake says: "Both Churches would give the Negro a sympathy and support that he has never had. Six million white folks would put themselves behind his enterprises. There would be an outpouring of money for his schools, his churches, and his ministry, such as he has never known. A new day would dawn in racial cooperation and it would be the brightest and best day that the Negro has known since his birth of freedom."

Would the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, subscribe to a plan like that? Would she repudiate the Negro who has claims upon her that are maternal and inherent, the Negro for whom she has done so little, and become a party to do great things for the Negro who has no claim upon her in comparison with the one from whom she will sever relations?

I know I am not charged with the responsibility of finding a place for the Negro in the reorganized Church. But, as an outsider, I am interested, and I trust no person will impute to me effrontery for saying that I sincerely trust that such a place will be given the colored constituency of the Methodist Episcopal Church that can with every sense of propriety be offered to the Colored Methodist Episcopal Church. Personally, I should be delighted to see the Negro organized into an independent Church. Its Bishops and leaders could then negotiate with the Bishops and leaders of the Colored Methodist Episcopal Church for union, which union, if formed, would, I believe, redound to the glory of God and the best interests of both denominations. The unification of the two Churches effected, the roseate picture drawn by Dr. Blake should then become a reality. The two Negro Churches, backed and strengthened by the two denominations, sustaining a relation to them that would be in keeping with the demands, social customs, and spirit of the age, would become a greater factor in our racial development, a more potential force in the Kingdom of Christ.

But if a relation be given the Negro in the Methodist Episcopal Church that cannot possibly be acceptable to our Church then I should be glad to know, what will the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, bequeath the Colored Methodist Episcopal Church?

The whole Negro race in general, and the Colored Methodist Episcopal Church in particular, are interested in the adjustment to be made of this problem.

THE SACRIFICE.

Rev. Ulysses Grant Foote, D. D.

O God! Thy sons through anxious days of old
Laid bare their lambs a bleeding sacrifice.
With incense rare their vows rose to the skies;
Thy blessings came with graces manifold.
Salvation's pledge was thus for long retold,
Where age by age beyond each other lies,
Beneath those sensive, purpled, Syrian skies,
That thy redemptive sons might find a fold.

We've heard the distant tumult of the strife;
The mother wailing for her pierced child,
Till Herod and Golgotha both seem mild.
A savage lust despoils both maid and wife,
And poisons all the sacred springs of life.
E'en bells that woke thy joys are now exiled,
And mutely lie, with ruined temples piled.
Thine ancient law demands a life for life.

We sail our ships from out thy western seas,
From thy forgotten sunset skies and lands,
To bring a sacrifice with bleeding hands,
And give our sons for world-wide liberties.
Our incense burns with sweet humanities;
Our faith, our love, our sense of right demands
A gift like thine—some holy, pain-pierced hands;
Some broken hearts to pledge our human pleas.

O give our sons a Samson's muscled power—
A stealthy Gideon's strong hand and sword!
Elijah's challenge led a tyrant toward
A curtain fire; then his remorseful hour.
The truth has ever bloomed a bloody flower;
For Abel's blood met that his lamb outpoured;
The ages lift the cross with blood all gored,
While we, appalled, have come unto this hour!

GOOD NEWS FROM GRENADA COLLEGE.

Mr. E. V. Catoe has recently given the magnificent sum of $5000 to Grenada College for the purpose of erecting, in connection with the new dormitory, a library building on the campus. Mr. Catoe is one of the foremost citizens of Webb, Miss., and is one of the most progressive planters and business men of the Yazoo Delta. He has been a life-long Methodist and is one of the most progressive and liberal men of his church. In the work of erecting the new Methodist Church at Webb, which is one of the most modern and handsome church buildings in the North Mississippi Conference, Mr. Catoe was one of the leading spirits and largest contributors.

This handsome gift to Grenada College is certainly very commendable in him, and will supplement a long-felt need in the equipment of the College, as the institution has never had a distinctive library building. Plans are now being made for the library, together with plans for the new dormitory, and just as soon as the winter freezes are over, work will be begun on them; and I confidently believe that they will be finished and ready for the opening of the next session.

The College is having a most prosperous year. It has the largest enrollment of students in its history, and one of the strongest faculties that it has ever had.

T. M. BROWNLEE,
Grenada, Miss. Commissioner.

A CONFLICT BETWEEN THE GOVERNMENT AND THE CHURCH IN RUSSIA.

A sharp conflict has arisen between the Greek Catholic Church and the Bolshevik Government in Russia, as is indicated by the following press dispatch:

"Petrograd, Sunday, Feb. 3.—The soviet issued a decree to-day, signed by Nikolai Lenine and other members of the de facto government, absolutely separating the Church and the State, eliminating church income from the State and confiscating all church realty, furnishings and paraphernalia. The decree stipulates that religious societies may continue to use the property exclusively for religious services, although the title is vested in the State.

"Religious freedom is guaranteed so long as religious societies do not interfere with social order, limit the rights of individuals or hinder the republic. No religious scruples are to exempt persons from their duties as citizens. The religious oath is cancelled and replaced by promise.

"Marriage ceremonies and birth registrations are to be performed by the civil authorities. Religious teaching is abolished in State schools and in private schools with a similar curriculum.

"No State assistance will be given to any church, society or religious agent. No religious society will be permitted to own any property, but will merely be permitted to borrow it from the State for church services.

"An official statement issued by the department of public welfare concerning a clash over the seizure of the Alexander Nevsky monastery says the monks offered forcible resistance and incited a mob to violence by ringing all the bells of the monastery and summoning the parishioners. The statement adds that monks attacked a Red Guard with a club and that the soldiers were forced to shoot in self-defense.

"Small parades of prayerful members of the orthodox Church were held to-day in protest against the seizure by the Bolsheviki of church property. The largest parade centered at the Kazan Cathedral plaza."

Dr. Tikhon, Patriarch of all Russia, has struck back at the Bolsheviki by issuing an anathema, a thing which, however, is very little feared in this age. But, as a contemporary suggests, Dr. Tikhon still has a very powerful weapon at his disposal. If he should lay the country under an interdict closing the churches and not permitting the priests to baptize, officiate at marriages and bury the dead, the effect upon the superstitious population might be such as to stir up an insurrection against the Government.

Some of the measures sought to be put in force by the governing authorities are evidently quite extreme; but it may be that this development, in the final outcome, will make for the purification and betterment of the Church in Russia.

CHURCH EXTENSION COMMITTEE TO MEET.

The Executive Committee of the Church Extension Board of the Mississippi Conference will meet in the Capitol Street Church, Jackson, Miss., on Tuesday, March 12, at 2 p. m. Let all who have business with the Executive Committee communicate with Rev. L. E. Alford, Secretary, Shubuta, Miss.

W. M. WILLIAMS, President.
Collins, Miss.

IMPORTANT NOTICE.

Rev. George G. Yeager, of Mendenhall, is the first pastor to pay his assessments for Conference Claimants in full, the amount paid being $88. What he has done, others can do. Who will be the next?

W. E. MORSE,
Treas. Joint Board of Finance.

TO OUR SUBSCRIBERS.

The little pink or yellow address label on the copy of the Advocate which you receive weekly shows your name and address, and the date of expiration of your subscription. Dec1917 indicates that your subscription expired Dec. 1, 1917, and that it is past due, and should be renewed Subscribers will please examine the labels on their papers, and if it is found that the subscriptions are past due, they should remit at once. Conditions are such that we cannot afford to continue sending the paper to those who are in arrears. If a subscriber does not want the subscription to continue, we expect him or her to pay that which is due us, and notify us to stop sending the paper. Attention to this matter will be greatly appreciated by the management of this Advocate, and it will be the means of helping us to avoid losses by discontinuing the paper to those who do not desire it.

The Cuban Mission Conference will meet at Santiago on Feb. 21. It will be presided over by Bishop W. B. Murrah.

Pope Benedict laments the fact that his efforts in behalf of peace have been misunderstood, and, he thinks, used to incite prejudice against him.

Bishop John W. Shaw, of San Antonio, Texas, has been appointed Archbishop of New Orleans, to succeed the late Archbishop Blenk (Roman Catholic).

Of the 323 delegates to the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, soon to meet in Atlanta, only 102 were in the last General Conference—63 clerical and 39 lay.

A corporal in the Headquarters Troop of the 101st United States Cavalry, writing in "Trench and Camp," a weekly published for the soldiers, suggests "Onward, Christian Soldiers," as a battle-hymn for our army. It would make a great and inspiring one.

Senator Joseph Ransdell has consented to serve as chairman of the Louisiana State Committee which will undertake to raise a war service fund for the Salvation Army. Ex-Governor Earl Brewer will act as the chairman of a similar committee in Mississippi.

Bishop W. A. Candler was quite unwell with a bronchial affection during the late meeting of the Unification Commission in Atlanta. Upon his return home, it was discovered that his condition was worse than he had thought it to be, but he is now improving.

Dr. E. G. B. Mann, presiding elder of the Lexington (Ky.) District, is happy in the acquisition of a fine new district parsonage. Dr. Mann is one of the strong men of the M. E. Church, South, who has an unusual capacity for turning off work and bringing things to pass.

Rev. J. A. Phillips' Mexican Church in San Antonio, Texas, has 250 church members, an Epworth League that numbers 35, and a Woman's Missionary Society with a membership of 30. This congregation is said to embrace many devoted personal workers for the Master.

The three largest buildings of the Glenn Springs College, a Baptist mountain mission school, near Maysville, Ky., were destroyed by fire on Feb. 6, involving a loss of about $150,000. Two of the structures burned were dormitories, but all of the 150 students housed in them escaped without injury.

Bishop John H. Hamilton, Chancellor of the American University, Washington, D. C., is easily the most distinguished-looking man on the Joint Commission on Methodist Unification. He is also bold and outspoken, having no concealments. However much one may differ from such a man, one cannot but admire his candor and courage.

A New York dispatch reads as follows: "Secretary Daniels has appointed Richard J. Davis, of Boston, a chaplain in the Navy, according to a statement given out by Albert F. Gilmore, of the Christian Science Committee on Publication." Mr. Davis is said to be the first Christian Scientist made a naval chaplain. This would seem to be a case of breadth overmuch; but when the State directs religious activities all faiths are apt to be treated as on a parity. And there are apparently many who pass for Christian people who regard such a trampling underfoot of all denominational differences as a thing to be commended.

Cardinal Gibbons has declared himself against the National prohibition amendment. He put forward the doctrine of States' rights in his public statement defining his position, but this was not by any means his only objection. He seems to think that such prohibitory legislation affects adversely the general character of a people. This is a strange view in this day when the frightful evils of the liquor traffic are so generally recognized by even secular governments. We do not believe, however, than the Cardinal voices the sentiments of anything like all the Roman Catholics in the United States, though the attitude of that denomination toward the dram-shop has been, we think, much too tolerant.

Our Advocate Campaign.

TO OUR FRIENDS.

The campaign to extend the circulation of the New Orleans Christian Advocate has been considerably interfered with by the unfavorable weather, but, notwithstanding the adverse conditions, many of our pastors and friends have done excellent work and have sent in quite a lot of new subscriptions, as well as a good many renewals. We desire to express to these helpers our high appreciation of the fine service which they have rendered. We trust that the canvassing for the Conference organ will not stop because the time specifically set for pressing its claims has passed; but that, on the contrary, it will be kept up until a faithful effort has been made to place the paper in every Methodist home in Louisiana and Mississippi. If all our pastors would do as well as some of them have done, the Advocate would soon be on a great boom.

SOME MESSAGES.

Rev. J. H. Felts, Holly Springs, Miss.: "When the unusual weather is over with, I think the 'boys' of the Holly Springs District will be heard from. I know some of them who are at work successfully."

Rev. R. S. Lawson, Toccopola, Miss.: "I will canvass my whole charge, and hope to be able to send more subuscriptions."

Rev. S. A. Brown, Leland, Miss.: "I have secured 18 new subscribers. Our quota is 20. We will 'go over the top.'"

Rev. R. G. Moore, Moorhead, Miss.: "The enclosed list of names, with those I sent last week, doubles your number of subscribers here. I shall yet endeavor to secure others."

Rev. W. M. Williams, Collins, Miss.: "I hand you herein 5 subscriptions, 4 of which are new. This is nearly half of the ten that I am expected to get. I am confident that I will secure that number, and possibly more."

Rev. J. L. Lay, Calhoun, La.: "I am sending you 2 subscriptions. There will be more to follow."

A SUMMARY OF RECEIPTS.

We are indebted to the following friends, to whom acknowledgment has not been made elsewhere, for two or more subscriptions sent in within the past few days: Rev. O. L. Tucker, Bastrop, La., 13; Rev. SUBSCRIBE FOR THE DAILY ADVOCATE.

The eighteenth session of the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, will convene in Atlanta, Ga., on Thursday, May 2, 1918, and will last about three weeks. Many important matters will be brought before the Conference. The most vital one, perhaps, will be the unification of the Churches, North and South. The question will be discussed in all its phases, and the report of the Committee on Unification will open up angles at which the speakers for and against will have full play for oratorical display. A daily edition of the Christian Advocate will be published. The publishers have employed skilled and trained stenographers to report its proceedings. Great and important questions pertaining to Church government and administration will come before the Conference. If you are interested in what this great ecclesiastical body will do, send $1.25 to Smith & Lamar, Nashville, Tenn., and order a copy of the Daily Advocate sent to your address. The subscription books are now open.

THE METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH, SOUTH, AT LOUISVILLE, MISS., which has been recently erected at a cost of approximately $25,000. The completion of this excellent structure reflects much credit upon our congregation at Louisville and their efficient pastor, Rev. W. C. Carlisle.

The Great Battle

GOOD FOR THE MASONS.

The New Orleans Item says: "The Grand Lodge of Masons of Louisiana, in session in New Orleans last week, adopted a resolution to exclude any person engaged in the manufacture or sale of intoxicating beverages from membership in the Masonic Order hereafter. This action, some of the Masons say, forcasts an active campaign by the Masons of Louisiana in behalf of the National Prohibition Amendment. The resolution referred to was adopted by an almost unanimous vote. Belief was expressed in the meeting that the Nation would have prohibition within five years."

A FORWARD MOVEMENT IN NEW JERSEY.

Prohibition has struck even New Jersey, as the following statement, taken from The Outlook of February 6, shows:

"New Jersey has long been reproached with the fact that with but one single exception (Nebraska), she is the only State in the Union to have no local option law whatever. Lately, however, and as one result of last fall's elections, the Legislature has shown a disposition to meet the public demand for such a law. The Senate lately passed a local option measure by a vote of 16 to 5. On January 29 the lower House concurred, and thus a long-standing reproach is removed."

WANT THE FACTS KNOWN.

National Legislative Superintendent Edwin C. Dinwiddie, of the Anti-Saloon League of America, asked for a statement touching the resolution introduced by Representative Cary of Wisconsin, calling for an investigation of "current rumors which are afloat and printed in the public press as described by the Anti-Saloon League to the effect that our soldiers in Europe are drunkards, afflicted with vile diseases and filling the prisons," etc., said that the charge ascribed to the Anti-Saloon League by Representative Cary was without foundation, as have been a number of similar charges against temperance workers ever since the declaration of war against Germany.

Therefore, Superintendent Dinwiddie said, in view of the recurrence of similar unfounded insinuations and charges against League officials, he proposed to request the Committee on Rules of the House to perfect and report the Cary resolution to the House of Representatives with a view of having investigated the attitude of the League on questions affecting the war, its methods of conducting its work, and the constituency for which it speaks.

But, in so doing, Dr. Dinwiddie said, he would also ask that the character and methods of those connected with the liquor business be likewise investigated, their activities in politics, the sources of their revenues, and their attitude on vital public issues connected with the war.

Superintendent Dinwiddie added that he felt the temperance people of the country would welcome the "turning on of the light," on the whole proposition to which Mr. Cary's resolution refers.

MR. DANIELS TO SERVE.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 4.—(Special).—Hon. Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the Navy, to-day agreed to serve on a committee of one hundred distinguished laymen of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, to determine the missionary budget of the Southern Methodist Church for the next five years. This important church event will take place at Memphis from March 19 to 21.

This committee will have submitted carefully prepared surveys of all mission fields of the Church, and will be asked to determine what the Church ought to undertake to raise per annum for the next five years.

The day following the meeting of this committee in Memphis the joint committee of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and the Methodist Episcopal Church will hold a conference.

Secretary Daniels will be prevailed upon to attend this conference.

Secular News

It is claimed that the extremely cold weather has damaged the Louisiana strawberry crop about 50 per cent, as compared with the average yield for the past several years.

Chicago claims to be the world's largest lumber market. Its receipts of lumber during the past year were 3,349,000,000 feet, and 1,485,000,000 feet were shipped to other points.

Marshal von Hindenburg is quoted as having said that he expects to be in Paris by April 1. He possibly may reach the French Capital by that date, but, if so, we expect it to be as a prisoner.

Mr. Frank H. Simonds, the well known war correspondent, predicts that Germany will make a desperate effort to break through either the British or French line in France in March or April.

Col. Roosevelt has recently submitted to two operations: one for fistula and one for abscesses in his ears, and at the time of this writing some solicitude is felt concerning his condition. He is at a hospital in New York City.

The Hon. Andrew Bonar Law stated in the British House of Commons a few days ago that the German U-boats have killed a total of 14,120 British non-combatants—men, women, and children. What an indictment of Germany this is!

Dr. Simon Flexner, head of the Rockefeller Institute of New York City, and an expert in the treatment of meningitis, was reported to be at Camp Beauregard studying the conditions there last week. The situation at this cantonment is thought to be generally improving.

Ten months of war are estimated to have cost the United States approximately $7,000,000,000, which has been at the rate of $710,000,000 a month, or $24,000,000 a day. Of this huge sum $4,121,000,000 was loaned to our allies. The entire cost of the American Civil War was about $8,000,000,000.

Two young women, Miss Daisy Inez Greenwood, of White Castle, La., and Miss Louise Bates of Detroit, Michigan, have lately matriculated in the Audubon Sugar School at the Louisiana State University, at Baton Rouge, being the first young ladies that ever studied in that department, which is said to be the leading one of the kind in the country.

We take the following from a secular daily: "Rice grown directly from seed grains a thousand years old will be served to the Emperor of Japan when he attends the maneuvers of the Japanese Army in the Shiga prefecture. These ancient rice grains were found inside of a wooden image of Vaisravana, in a little Buddhist temple in the village of Iwame."

Disease, starvation, and expulsion are said to have reduced the number of Jews in Jerusalem since the outbreak of the great war to 30,000, about 40 per cent. The British authorities have cabled that there is urgent need for the hospital unit which the Hadassah, the women's Zionist organization, are planing to send from the United States, with the British furnishing the transportation.

President Carranza, of Mexico, according to report, sent the Kaiser a very laudatory message on the occasion of his recent birthday. A press dispatch represents El Democrata, a paper published in Mexico City, as having lately carried a statement affirming that the United States is preparing to invade Mexico with an armed force. This is perhaps some further fruitage from Germany's vicious propaganda in the Western Hemisphere.

Mr. McAdoo is spoken of as the busiest man in President Wilson's Cabinet. He holds the following positions: Secretary of the Treasury, Chairman of the Federal Reserve Bank System, Chairman of the Federal War Loan Board, Chairman of the International High Commission, and Director General of Railroads. Though 55 years of age, Mr. McAdoo is said to have the appearance of a man not over forty, with a figure as "lithe, erect, and graceful as a girl's." He is being mentioned for the Presidency of the United States.

The Cunard liner Tuscania (a British vessel), which was transporting American troops to France, was torpedoed and sunk by a German submarine in the Irish Channel last week. There were 2156 American soldiers on board, mostly from Michigan and Wisconsin, and of these it now seems that less than 125 were lost. When the danger was greatest the American troops engaged in singing lustily the "Star-Spangled Banner" and "My Country, 'Tis of Thee." This is the first ship transporting American soldiers to Europe that has been attacked by a submarine. The Tuscania was being convoyed by English war ships.

TAD'S SISTER.

She was only an ordinary girl with simple frock and a sunbonnet, and, as my mind was busy, I should scarcely have noticed her at all had it not been for the kind words I heard her utter as I was waiting for my tram.

"Oh, well, let's not wait for him!" said one of her two companions, pulling her by the arm.

"Why, I promised him, you know," was the serious reply, "and I wouldn't go without him, Sarah."

"Well, he's only your brother. You need not be so particular about keeping your promise to him."

"But I need to be particular about keeping my promise to anybody, my brother just as much as anybody else," Daisy replied firmly, but in the same sweet tone. "I never disappoint Tad, if I can help it. He knows it, too, and depends upon me. Mamma says breaking a promise is as bad as telling a lie, and you don't want to do that, you know."

"Well, what is he about? Where is he, anyway? He ought to be here by this time," remarked another girl.

"He had to go on an errand for father, but he was to meet me here at two o'clock to go with us to the picnic."

"I'm afraid we'll be late," grumbled she in reply.

"I'm sure we will," said Sarah.

"Then suppose you two go on and don't wait for me," Daisy said quietly. "I shall not mind; but I wouldn't go without Tad for anything."

"Oh, it wouldn't be nice to go without you!" Sarah objected.

"Well, here he comes now," cried the other, and just then a lad of about ten years could be seen hurrying along the street. In a few moments he joined the group, asking anxiously, "I didn't keep you waiting long, did I?"

I looked at Tad; there was nothing about him to attract the attention of a stranger, except it might be his bright, happy face; but his sister's eyes rested lovingly upon him as she replied, "No, only a few minutes, Tad."

"There, Daisy," he said, "I brought your waterproof and galoshes. It looks cloudy, and I'm almost sure it will rain before we get home. No, you needn't take them," and he held on to the things he had brought. "I can carry them; I just wanted you to know they were handy."

"Oh, thank you, Tad," the girl said, heartily. "I shall probably need them."

They were starting now, and as Sarah took her place beside Daisy, she remarked, wonderingly, "How polite you two are to each other! Are you always like that?"

As they moved off I caught only a part of Daisy's surprised answer, and that was, "Of course; why shouldn't we be?"

And the question will bear being repeated with some addition: Why should not all sisters and brothers be happy in the same love and consideration that Tad and Daisy gave each other?—The Messenger for the Children.

THE LITTLE RED BALLS.

Mary Ann Elizabeth and Bobby carefully looked on as big Cousin Madge from the city washed the cranberries and put them in a pan upon the stove. They were dark red and almost as big as the marbles Bobby had stored away in a small wooden box.

"Do they grow in other countries than our own?" he asked.

"Yes," said Cousin Madge, "they also grow in Europe and Asia. Shall I tell you how the foresight of one man developed the cranberry in America?"

"Oh, please do!" pleaded Mary Ann Elizabeth at once.

"In the Cape Cod district and in the marshlands of New Jersey the cranberries grow wild just as our common weeds grow wild here. Any person some years ago could pick them in the stray corners and in the marshes. The people sold them to the sailors, who were very fond of them.

"It was sixty years ago that a man, who bore the spider-like name of Webb, came to New Jersey. He was a hustler, although he had only one leg. During one autumn he picked cranberries and succeeded in selling them in his own neighborhood. Then he began to think of the possibility of growing cranberries for market.

"He noticed that the salt-water bogs where the cranberries grew wild were often covered with a coating of sand. He also noticed that in these sand-covered bogs the cranberries grew larger and had a better taste than those without the film of sand.

"And then and there poor old one-legged John Webb caught a big idea. He held on to it. He developed it. Out of his bog he jerked the stumps and other debris. He carefully leveled the surface and put on two or three inches of sand-covering. Then he planted slips from the wild bushes.

"Webb's work was a success. Since he blazed the way, the little red balls that help so much to make merry both Thanksgiving and Christmas have been cultivated, and now cranberries are a staple holiday food or embellishment."

"What does a plant look like?" queried Bobby.

"The cranberry plant," Cousin Madge continued, "may well be called a creeper. It is also an evergreen. The leaves are dark and shiny and about an inch long. They bloom in May or a little later, and the flowers have a beautiful rose-pink hue.

"The berries ripen in August and September. Then the armies of pickers arrive. The best of them will pick four bushels daily. The land yields about 35 barrels, or $300 worth to the acre. So you see the growing of cranberries is very profitable and that we owe much to John Webb, who discovered their true value."

"Cousin Madge," asked Mary Ann Elizabeth, "how many kinds of cranberries are there?"

"Dears," she replied, as she peeped at the cranberries stewing in the pan upon the range, "the kinds are fewer than the fingers of one hand—just three in this country. They are the bell-shaped, the oblong or bugle, and the round or cherry, which is probably the kind you have most often seen at the market-house.

"Most of the cranberries are dark red, but their color varies from dark purple to pink. The cultivation of cranberries is an industry in New Jersey, but they grow wild in the marshes of several sections."—Southern Churchman.

THE OTHER SIDE.

They were hewing some timbers for a barn. After watching the old carpenters shape the great logs into straight, square sticks, one of the young helpers asked if he might take a hand at the hewing. Taking the great ax he began, following the line as he had seen the old carpenters do. After he had squared one side he looked his work over with some pride, for the stick appeared square and true. Then one of the carpenters stepped up and looked at his work.

"The top, the side nearest you, is square, but the other side is not," said the old workman. "You followed the line on top and that part is straight and true, but the other side you neglected. It wouldn't line up on the other side after the stick is turned."

"Neglected the other side;" how often we neglect the other side of life! Many of us, like the young helper, follow the "line"—the laws of society and the man-made customs. We are quite faultless in the performance of things nearest us—business, pleasure and the like, but in the pursuit of these do we not often "neglect the other side," the greater side of life? After completing some earthly task we look our work over with pride, but, like the helper, we often have not hewn the other side true. Some men live lives that from the earthly side appear square and true, but when the Great Carpenter looks them over he will reject them because only true and square lives go into the construction of the kingdom of heaven, and many, many of us, I fear, "would not line up on the Other Side after the stick is turned."—Unidentified.

A PAYING INVESTMENT.

Tom was a bright young fellow. He came from the farm. He knew nothing of college ways, and not much of the town. He had brains and purpose. He entered the college and it took him four years to reach his graduation day. His record was excellent. He had many A's.

A month before graduation he wrote his father and mother, farmer folk still, a long letter. To them it was a glorious letter. It said he had been honored with the valedictory. He said he knew it was a busy time on the farm in June, but that his graduation would never mean as much to him if they could not attend and witness his triumph—the result of their sacrifice.

They came, honest, plain and eager, and had a good seat Commencement Day. It was all so strange, so new. At last, it was Tom's turn. The valedictory was direct, simple, beautiful, wonderful. The great company cheered Tom to the echo. It cheered him again and again.

The cheering broke out afresh and would not subside until Tom came forward and bowed his acknowledgments. His happy mother fidgeted, but kept silent. The proud father could stand it no longer. Leaning over and touching the arm of his wife of the years, the delighted farmer said to her in a coarse whisper, "Mary, that's by all odds the best crop we ever raised."

He was overheard throughout the great audience. Women wept. Men sought refuge in their handkerchiefs. Students laughed. But the people who had been giving to that college through the years, and who heard the remark following Tom's triumph, were glad for the investments they had made and resolved to keep on helping a bit longer.—Pittsburg Christian Advocate.

TRY IT THIS WEEK.

Let no day pass without personal secret communication with God.

Begin each day by taking counsel from the word of God, if but one verse while you are dressing.

Put away all bitter feelings and broodings over slights or wrongs, no matter from whom received.

Have on your heart some person or some cause for which you are pleading God's blessing each day.

Let no opportunity pass to say a kind word, do some kind deed, or at least smile upon those you meet. Do this not affectedly, but sincerely as unto the Lord.

Guard well the door of your lips that no unchaste word, jest or story, no slander or cutting remark, no irreverent or untruthful statement, shall pass out.

Remember each day that Christ will surely come, suddenly come, quickly come; and it may be this day will determine how his coming will find us, it must to thousands.—From the Bulletin of the Reformed Church-on-the-Heights, Brooklyn, N. Y.

WAR CONDITIONS

—REFLECTED IN—

TELEPHONE SERVICE

Among the unforeseen conditions which the war has imposed upon us is the necessity of practically suspending the commercial development of our business.

Confronted with an unusual increase in the use of the telephone and a strong demand for new and additional service, we cannot accept or fill orders except subject to practically an indefinite delay.

This situation is due to the importance of conserving our supplies so that the government's requirements may be promptly met by giving the War Department service anywhere and at any time the request is made.

BISHOP PHILLIPS' ARTICLE.

We trust that no one into whose hands this issue of the Advocate comes will fail to read the illuminating article from the pen of Bishop Phillips, of the Colored Methodist Episcopal Church, the denomination that was started by our Church, which appears on Pages 2, 3, and 4. We do not agree with everything that Bishop Phillips says, but we do not hesitate to affirm that no more informing utterance than this has emanated from any source since the discussion of the unification question has been under way.

We think that the following points in this very able paper should be specially noted:

(1) The conviction is expressed that the Negroes in the Methodist Episcopal Church could with much more self-respect go into an independent Church than they could accept "a subordinate or inferior relation in the general Church."

(2) It is held that "racial consciousness or racial integrity is not repugnant to the teachings of Christianity." "Nor," according to the writer, "is the doctrine of the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man obliterated and gone bankrupt, because social conditions and lineal idiosyncrasies seem to require both races to worship God under their own vine and fig tree." The Bishop further says: "I can see where no violence would be done to Christianity if all the Negro Methodists of the United States were organized into one great Church and all the white Methodists into another, forming two great bodies, coming together when necessary, and, finding common ground on which they can stand, doing work for our common interests and the general welfare of mankind." (There are some white Southern Methodists who, we hope, will lay this utterance to heart, for, in view of some of their writings, they need to do so.)

(3) The following statement is very strong and thought-provoking:

"The Negro can never attain his zenith in church government or preferment; cannot draw out what is best and noblest in him; cannot reach his highest development in racial consciousness or self-assertiveness; cannot know his own potentiality or what real religious freedom implies, as long as he must lean upon and allow other people to man his ecclesiastical ship, and as long as he is regarded as a 'ward,' a 'dependent,' a racial 'immaturist,' occupying a secondary place in governing his own affairs. It is best for him that the responsibility of church government and direction should rest in his own hands."

(The plain logic of this contention seems to be that if the Negro Methodists of the United States are ever united it must be in an independent Church. Such plans as those of Dr. Du Bose, Dr. Blake, Dr. Goucher, and Judge Rogers discriminate against the Negro more than they recognize him, and would have the effect of keeping largely upon him the heavy hand of white domination. And if one of them should be adopted, it would probably be a bar to the unification of the colored bodies, for there is little likelihood that the self-governing Negro Churches would ever surrender their independence to enter into such a relation.)

(4) Bishop Phillips shows that the C. M. E. Church has grown faster than the Negro element in the Northern Methodist Church, notwithstanding the vast amount of money that has been poured out to aid the latter. According to the Bishop, the Negro contingent in the Church, North, has increased since 1884 only about 70 per cent, while the C. M. E. Church since 1882 has increased more than 90 per cent. (This representation leaves those who have been apologizing for our Church's action in placing its Negroes in an independent organization, and affirming that it was a regrettable mistake, in a rather awkward position. We have reason to be ashamed because we have not done more for the C. M. E. Church, but not because we established it. It has had a glorious and honored history—one of which there is every reason to be proud.)

(5) The question finally asked by Bishop Phillips, that if some such plan as that of Dr. Blake should prevail, if the Church, South, would be willing to assume new obligations to another body of colored Methodists, and leave the members of the C. M. E. Church to shift for themselves, is one that Southern Methodists would do well to ponder. For our part, we have no idea that the Southern Methodists will ever do anything of the kind. It would certainly be a most discreditable procedure for them to consent to pay an assessment imposed by some Freedmen's Aid Bureau for the Northern Methodist Negroes, while repudiating their sacred obligations to the colored people who have remained true to them through all the storm and stress of the past. Nor do we believe that the Methodists of the South will ever present to the communicants of the C. M. E. Church the alternative of submitting to the sacrifice of their freedom and entering, against their convictions, into a hybrid relation with another group of Negroes, such as is being suggested by some, or being disinherited and set adrift. Such an attempt at coercion, in all probability, would be as futile as it would be improper.

HE DESERVES IT.

The plan to have the Methodists of America to erect an equestrian statue of Francis Asbury at the National Capital was a happy conception, and it should be promptly carried out, as no doubt it will be. The subscriptions taken for this purpose at the recent sessions of the Advocate's patronizing Annual Conferences should be paid without further delay, that the Methodism of this section may not be delinquent in this most commendable undertaking.

Asbury was the real founder of American Methodism, which is an imperishable distinction; but, in addition to this, in promoting the Methodist movement, he contributed largely to the upbuilding of this vast republic, now the mightiest nation on the globe. Therefore, he is justly entitled to be honored in the beautiful city which is the seat of our Government, and it is fitting that the statue that is to commemorate his life and labors should be an equestrian one, since so large a portion of his busy career was spent in the saddle. Of the toils of this remarkable man, Bishop H. N. McTyeire thus writes in his superb "History of Methodism":

"Beginning his itinerant ministry at seventeen, Francis Asbury ended it in his seventy-first year. During that time it is estimated that he averaged a sermon or an exhortation a day. The extent of his journeyings, during his ministry of forty-five years in the United States, was equal, upon an average, to the circumference of the globe every five years—and this by private conveyance, mainly on horseback. During the last thirty-two years of his life he presided over 234 Annual Conferences, and ordained about 4000 ministers. To him has justly been applied the remark of a British essayist, that it is vain to talk of men numerically: if the passions of a man are exalted to a sum-mit like the majestic steadiness with which St. Paul points out the single object of his life, and the unquenchable courage with which he walks toward it, he is a thousand men!"

This last sentence leads us to recall the reported utterance of the First Napoleon, who, in commenting upon the value of leadership in the achievement of important ends, is said to have declared: "Men are nothing; a man is everything."

AN INTERESTING GATHERING.

Bishop Heard, of the African Methodist Episcopal Church, while presiding over a Negro Annual Conference at Kentwood, La., a few days ago, made the following deliverance, which was wired to the New Orleans Times-Picayune, from which we are taking it:

"The Federated Council of Negro Bishops to be held in Louisville, Ky., on February 15, is the most important meeting of its character ever held in America. In foreign and home lands one million and a half communicants and a million and a half followers listen to representatives of these Churches every Sabbath of the year.

"The question of the union of these bodies will be one of the prominent features of the council. There also will be an expression as to the economic condition of the Negro in America, as well as his relation and duty in the present crisis. These Bishops are in charge of work in all the Southern States and 60 per cent of the farmers of the South are members of their communions.

"The labor question will also be discussed and steps taken, if possible, to readjust the Negro's place as a laborer in this country. Many of the closed shops of the North have been opened and the labor unions have let down the bars and invited him in. We are not now convinced that the Negroes should at this time enter these unions.

"It is further thought that the Negroes in the M. E. Church may have a delegation there looking to the union of all colored Methodists, and this will help them to solve the problem as to the union of the M. E. Church and the M. E. Church, South, as the Negro is the backbone of contention in this proposed union."

We scarcely think that Bishop Heard's reported statement that the Negro Methodists embrace more than 60 per cent of the farmers of the South is correct, since there are between two and three million Negro Baptists in the United States, most of whom are in the Southern States. This conference, however, will represent a great constituency and will doubtless be an interesting and influential one. As we see it, any attempt to fix the status of the Negro Methodists in a unified American Methodism apart from the consideration of these Wesleyan bodies is a short-sighted one, evincing a woeful lack of ecclesiastical statesmanship.

THE WISE COURSE OF THE CANADIANS.

The extremists who are trying to speed to a consummation with a whoop-'em-up and hurrah policy the union of the two Episcopal Methodisms in the United States are loud in their insistence that there should not be any delay, because the great war now raging demands immediate action.

On the other hand, up in Canada, where the Methodists, Presbyterians, and Congregationalists are trying to unite, and where the movement has gone much further forward than that in progress among the Methodists of the United States, the negotiations have been suspended until after the war, it being held that such a period as this is not calculated to yield the best results in such an undertaking.

Which of these views is correct? It seems to us that sound common sense is on the side of the Canadians. Uniting Churches is largely a matter of constitution-making, and excitement and a disturbed state of things are not helpful to this kind of work, in which calm, philosophic thought is needed.

Moreover, we need now to concentrate our attention upon the great task of winning the war. Contention and strife about other matters are liable to interfere with this supreme duty, and would, therefore, seem to be out of place in this crucial hour. Nothing is more evident that the union of the Churches, North and South, cannot be accomplished along the impending lines without a considerable, if not stormy, struggle. Why not, then, let the project go over until after the war has ended? Are the hot-haste proponents of unification afraid of the sober, second thought of the Methodist masses? Well, if there is not enough merit in the proposal to unite the two bodies for the cause to survive a brief postponement, it certainly ought not to be rushed through by high-pressure methods at this abnormal time.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

"All goes well with us," is the brief message from Rev. J. A. Hall, of Greenwood, Miss. They may not say much, but Brother Hall and Greenwood are always to the front in the work of the Church.

Three subscriptions have reached us from Lake Arthur, La., having been sent by Rev. S. L. Riggs, who hopes to send us more soon. Brother Riggs reports that the work of the year has begun favorably in his charge.

Dr. H. C. Morrison, the well known Kentucky evangelist, will begin a series of revival services at the new St. Mark's Church (this city), of which Rev. W. E. Thomas and Rev. G. V. Romano are the pastors, on Sunday, Feb. 17.

The New Orleans District Conference will convene in Felicity Street Church on March 5, and will be in session two days. Dr. Hoyt M. Dobbs, of the Southern Methodist University, Dallas, Texas, is expected to attend and deliver two or three sermons.

Rev. T. M. Brownlee, Commissioner for Grenada College, says: "I have been quite busy since Conference and am getting along splendidly with my work." An interesting statement from Brother Brownlee appears elsewhere in this issue of the Advocate.

The work of Rev. W. E. Dickens is progressing well at Pachuta, Miss. Brother Dickens has our thanks for 3 renewal subscriptions to the Advocate, one of which is for Brother Cameron, aged 90 years, who has long been a reader of the Conference organ. Blessings on these fellow-workers!

"I am serving a good people, and my work is progressing encouragingly." So writes Rev. A. A. Sims, our pastor at Carthage, Miss., the county-seat of the good old county of Leake. Brother Sims' letter contained a remittance to have the Advocate visit weekly for the next year 7 homes in his charge.

Rev. O. L. Savage, of Webb, Miss., continues to remember our office with subscriptions to the Advocate. Of the goodly number that he has sent in, 8 have been new ones. His apportionment is 10, which, of course, he will secure. One runs no risk in relying upon Brother Savage to take care of any good cause.

Through the courtesy of their Editors, we have on our desk the Minutes of the Louisiana, the Mississippi, and the North Mississippi Conferences. These Annuals are in their usual attractive forms. Secretaries Parker, Watkins, and Countiss, and their assistants, are workmen that needeth not to be ashamed.

A letter from Rev. G. B. Love, of Marietta, Miss., brings us 6 subscriptions to the Advocate, for which we are grateful. This faithful toiler comments as follows upon the work of the year: "We have been hindered considerably by inclement weather and bad roads, but everything is moving along nicely with us."

One of the finest lists of subscribers that have come to our office this year was sent in by our gifted young pastor at Gunnison, Miss., Rev. I. F. Holland. It embraced 11 new and 5 renewal subscriptions, with a handsome check to correspond. The Greenville District is making an admirable showing in our Advocate campaign.

Rev. E. H. Cunningham, of Kosciusko, Miss., reports as follows concerning his work: "Things are moving on well here. We have a delightful people to serve, and they are manifesting a keen interest in the affairs of the Church." Brother Cunningham has been looking after the interests of the Advocate in his field, with gratifying success.

We have regretted to learn that Rev. and Mrs. J. T. Leggett, of Brookhaven, Miss., have recently had in their home a very sick son—about six years of age. We trust that since our information came the condition of the stricken one has improved. The work of the Brookhaven District is prospering under Brother Leggett's capable leadership.

Rev. H. B. Thomason, of Bayou Chicot, La., is doing some excellent work for the Conference organ, having forwarded a number of names for our mailing files. Brother Thomason says: "It is my aim to put the Advocate in every Methodist home in my charge this year. It is the surest way that I know to secure a revival that grows and lasts."

While recently in Savannah, Ga., we chanced to meet some visitors from the North Carolina Conference, who spoke to us in terms of high appreciation of Dr. Franklin N. Parker, who resided in the Old North State when he was at the head of the Biblical Department of Trinity College. Dr. Parker evidently made a great impression upon the Tar Heelers.

Rev. C. T. Floyd is expecting great things in his pastorate at Holcomb, Miss. Brother Floyd's communication brought us 12 new subscriptions, for which we take off our hat to him. And he states that he has not yet exhausted the material in his territory. We trust that this hustling worker will find our paper a valuable assistant in his labors for the Master.

Dr. Isaac L. Peebles, of Meridian, Miss., writes: "Please let me request the preachers and laymen throughout the State of Mississippi to write their Senators and Representatives in the State Legislature to pass an act exempting from taxation all preachers who have given 35 or more years to the ministry, and whose annual income from all sources does not exceed $600."

We are sorry to learn that Rev. R. H. Harper, of Oakdale, La., is ill with la grippe and that his little son, Robert, is seriously sick with pneumonia. We pray that this gifted minister and the precious boy may soon recover. Let the readers of the Advocate, who have so often enjoyed the products of Brother Harper's pen, remember these afflicted ones at the throne of grace.

Rev. H. B. Perritt, of Abbeville, La., writes as follows: "To my very great astonishment, I see in the Louisiana Conference Minutes that my name is included in the list of ministers who have sons in the Army. I haven't a son in the world, much less in the Army. I have an adopted son in Mississippi going to school, but he is only 16 years old. Please correct this mistake."

We are in receipt of the following item from Rev. E. Nash Broyles, Treasurer of the Board of Education of the North Mississippi Conference: "Rev. W. R. Goudelock, of Acona, Miss., has sent in a remittance to cover his educational assessment, being the first pastor in this Conference to do so." We are pleased to see Brother Goudelock and the choice people whom he serves thus leading the van.

Rev. Guy Ray sends us two subscriptions, and thus reports from the Mashulaville (Miss.) charge: "I find many good people here. On account of the severe weather and an epidemic of measles, I have not yet been able to do much at two of my churches. We have six churches in our care, and we are expecting, by the help of the Lord, to have a good year. More subscriptions will follow."

Mrs. D. S. Purvine, formerly of North Mississippi, but now of Natura, Okla., sends us, through Rev. J. H. Felts, a two years' subscription to the Advocate. Though in another State, she feels that she must have her old-home Church paper. In his note Brother Felts says: "Mrs. Purvine is one of the splendid women that we have lost to the West." We are happy to keep the name of this transplanted Mississippian on our mailing files.

That prince of Christian gentlemen, Rev. J. M. Wyatt, is happy in his work at Shelby, Miss. He has given us since Conference 21 new subscriptions and one renewal subscription to the Advocate. His salary has been fixed at $1650, an advance of $150 over that paid last year, and the assessments for home and foreign missions and the expenses of delegates to the General Conference have been paid. Our Shelby flock is, indeed, a choice one.

Rev. J. W. Ramsey, of New Augusta, Miss., forwards to our office some subscriptions to the Advocate, and in his business letter, among other things, says: "Rev. W. B. Jones, our presiding elder, was with us yesterday, Feb. 4, and held our first quarterly conference. The reports of the stewards showed the finances to be in advance of those of last year. One church has already provided for both the pastor's salary and the benevolent claims."

Rev. A. R. Beasley, of McCool, Miss., Feb. 5, sends us 8 subscriptions to the Advocate, and adds the following in his business note: "We are well pleased with our charge, the work of which has started off well. The people have been very kind to us, and I find them ready to take the Conference organ and respond in any other financial way when I call upon them. I hope to lead in the Durant District in sending you new subscriptions." Thank you, Brother Beasley.

Dr. Jno. T. Sawyer preached to a good congregation at the Mary Werlein Church Friday night, the pastor, Rev. W. E. Thomas, being unable on account of sickness to be there. He reports that close attention was given to his message. On Sunday at 10:30 a. m. he preached a sermon to the children of Brother Hayes' Sunday school at the Presbyterian Church in Westwego, over the river. There was a large attendance of children. The Presbyterians have a live plant in Westwego.

Brother A. M. Bradfoot, of Fernwood, Miss., favors us with 6 subscriptions, and in his letter thus remarks: "These subscribers are all new. I hope to send others soon. The people of the Fernwood charge are so thoughtful and kind that I feel constrained to let the Lord, if he will, use me as never before." Fernwood has long been regarded as a sort of preachers' paradise. We are happy to note that Brother Broadfoot seems to be standing well the good treatment that is being accorded him.

Rev. George H. Thompson, presiding elder of the Meridian (Miss.) District, has scheduled for this week—Feb. 11-15—a Church Workers' Institute, the announced program of which contains many excellent features. Dr. H. M. DuBose, of Nashville, Tenn., the versatile Editor of the Methodist Review, and Rev. J. A. Bowen, of Tupelo, Miss., were requisitioned as speakers from outside the district. Brother Thompson obviously believes in planning wisely for the work of the year in the outset.

From a personal letter from Rev. T. S. Randle, a Louisiana Conference veteran, who resides at Calaveras, Texas, we take the following: "I have been sick for three months, not being able to do anything, but I am glad to say that I am improving slowly. Please ask all the readers of the Advocate to pray that I may soon be able to work for our Lord and Master. My wife and I hope to visit my brother at Farmerville, La., this summer, and to assist him in his meetings." We trust that Brother Randle will gain more rapidly in strength as the days pass.

We are indebted to the New Orleans Times-Picayune for the following item: "Dr. Henry Beach Carre, formerly of New Orleans, but now of Vanderbilt University, probably will go to France to enter the army Y. M. C. A. work. Great pressure has been brought to bear on him to accept such a post, and he received another call last week from Dr. Fletcher S. Brockman, Associate Secretary of the Y. M. C. A. Committee, looking to that end. Should Dr. Carre accept, he probably will leave for France early in April. In addition to his connection with Vanderbilt University, Dr. Carre is Superintendent of the Monteagle (Tenn.) Assembly, and is President of the Tennessee Anti-Saloon League."

BISHOP BROOK'S HUMOR.

"The figure of Jonah," remarked the elderly gentleman, "reminds me of Phillips Brooks's explanation to a skeptic who said he doubted if a whale's throat was large enough to swallow Jonah."

"'There was no difficulty,' Bishop Brooks assured him. 'Jonah was one of the minor prophets, you know.'"—The Baptist Observer.

"If you want Christ in your home, be sure He will see the open door, come in, and abide there. But He will not force an entrance."

If Hair is Turning Gray, Use Sage Tea

Don't look old! Try Grandmother's recipe to darken and beautify faded, streaked hair.

That beautiful, even shade of dark, glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray or streaked, just an application or two of Sage and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred fold.

Don't bother to prepare the mixture; you can get this famous old recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients for 50 cents a large bottle, all ready for use. It is called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound. This can always be depended upon to bring back the natural color and lustre of your hair.

Everybody uses "Wyeth's" Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair has disappeared, and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy and lustrous. This ready-to-use preparation is a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire dark hair and a youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

Mrs. FRANCIS ANN JERNIGAN, daughter of Samuel M. and Bernice Jewell, was born on Dec. 11, 1847, and departed this life on Jan. 8, 1918, after a short illness. She was married to George W. Jernigan on March 8, 1866. She survived her husband a few years. Sister Jernigan was the mother of eleven children, six of whom are still living — one son, Thomas, and five daughters, Mrs. W. M. Maulden, Mrs. J. M. Mosley, of Pontotoc, Miss., Mrs. J. A. Donaldson, of Oxford, Miss., Mrs. W. O. Cain, of Fairfield, Texas, and Miss Myrtle Jernigan, who is teaching in Oklahoma. She also has a foster son, named Dwight, whom she raised from infancy. Sister Jernigan professed faith in Christ when quite young and joined the Presbyterian Church, but some twenty years ago she came into the Methodist Church with her husband. They had a delightful Christian home near Palestine, in Pontotoc County, Miss., where they reared their family. For some years she had lived in Pontotoc. The ministers of both churches found a home and a welcome at Brother George W. Jernigan's, where they delighted to go. Sister Jernigan had been a sufferer from asthma for many years. She bore her affliction with such patience that it attracted special comment. She lived a beautiful life, was strongly attached to her family, and loved her Church. Besides her children, she leaves a devoted brother, W. J. Jewell, and a sister, Mrs. Harriet Jernigan, and a host of kindred, all of whom will cherish her memory. Her beautiful Christian character will live for good throughout the coming years. W. M. YOUNG.

W. M. MAULDEN was born on Dec. 8, 1859, in Chesterville, Miss. He attended school in Pontotoc, Miss., when a young man. He was married to Miss Nannie B. Jernigan on Feb. 16, 1893, and lived all his married life in Pontotoc, Miss. Of this union were born 9 children, two having preceded the father to the spirit world when they were small children. He leaves behind to mourn his departure his devoted wife and seven children—Milton, Katie, Georgie, Jannice, Olive, Bird, and Joe Bryant; also four brothers and many kindred, among whom is Miss Mary Smith, a cousin, who has lived with the family through all these years and whom they loved as their own. Brother Maulden was converted and joined the M. E. Church, South, under the ministry of the Rev. W. M. McIntosh in a revival held by him in Pontotoc about 25 years ago. He filled the responsible place of collecting steward for his church for nearly twenty years and did it well, but for some years he has had a hard fight with lung trouble. He was forced by his illness to give up his active church work. Brother Maulden was a man of intense industry, a safe and vigorous business man, but his affliction cut him down in the prime of his days. The writer was with him in his dying hour, and he was perfectly rational and conscious that the end had come. He called the different members of the family to him and gave them his parting blessing, commending those who waited on him in his last days' illness. This was a touching scene—one that we shall never forget. May the blessings of our Heavenly Father abide with the afflicted family! W. M. YOUNG.

"Generally speaking, those that have the most grace and the greatest gifts, and are of the greatest usefulness, are the most humble, and think the most meanly of themselves. So those boughs and branches of trees which are most richly laden with fruit bend downward and hang lowest."

FROM FIRST CHURCH, COLUMBUS, MISS.

Report from Every Member Canvass.

Dear Doctor Meek: The following statement from the Columbus (Miss.) Commercial will indicate the success of our Every Member Canvass held last Sunday afternoon.

"Every Member Canvass Arouses Much Interest.

"Thirteen committees composed of two gentlemen each were warmly received in the homes of hundreds of members of the First Methodist Church Sunday afternoon, when they made a drive to raise $1150 for the Annual Conference benevolent funds for the Church. The move proved successful, and with the exception of a small amount, which is expected to be received this week, the report made at the Sunday evening service at the Church showed that the goal had been practically reached.

"Rev. S. L. Pope, the pastor, is much encouraged over the success of the drive to raise the fund, and desires to thank those who so ably assisted in making the canvass and those who made donations.

"The Conference fund at the First Methodist Church is usually raised during the last month of the year by the pastor, but in order to relieve the Rev. Mr. Pope of the loss of time and bother, which would naturally have been attached to this work, the members decided to raise the fund early in the year."

We made the canvass for all the collections ordered by the Conference, and secured practically the whole amount. About $1000 was laid on the table Sunday night at the evening service. The men who did the work were jubilant and the Church was full of rejoicing. As the committees were called to report two by two, cheer after cheer would break forth from the audience. We did not mind clapping our hands in God's house when we realized he had heard our prayer and given us victory. There are to be no groaning, agonizing, frantic appeals at the close of the year 1918 in First Church. We have paid in full both our Foreign and Home Missionary assessments, with our part of the expenses of delegates to the General Conference, and have the money in bank to pay the other larger assessments that remain against our Church.

I must say I never knew the membership of a Church to be more responsive than have these First Church people. The committee report that a royal reception was given them as they visited the homes last Sunday afternoon. Our faces are turned forward, not backward, and we are expecting the blessings of God to be on us. S. L. POPE.

Columbus, Miss.

"WHAT BEAUTIFUL HAIR!"

Have you ever heard that remark made as some one passed by who had carefully kept hair? Did it not make you envious and did it not make you ashamed of every coarse, stiff or gray hair in your head? Did it not make you wish that you, too, had kept your hair carefully and could hear similar compliments passed on ou? Don't envy a beautiful head of hair. It is your privilege to have one. The beauty of the hair depends entirely on its care; and its luster depends on the food on which it subsists. Hair must be fed. Every single hair is a distinctly individual living thing and it demands food. Unless you feed it, it is going to be stiff and coarse and void of beauty. Follow the example of the Creoles of Louisiana, who pride themselves on their hair. Get their recipe. It was kept as a race secret for many years but you can get it now by asking our dealer for "La Creole," the natural hair dressing, or by sending one dollar to the Van Vleet-Mansfield Drug Co., Memphis, Tenn.—Adv.

Catarrh is an excessive secretion, accompanied with chronic inflammation, from the mucous membrane. Hood's Sarsaparilla acts on the mucous membrane through the blood, reduces inflammation, establishes healthy action, and radically cures all cases of catarrh.

TIME TO READ THE BIBLE.

IF YOUR CHILD IS CROSS, FEVERISH, CONSTIPATED

Look, Mother! If tongue is coated, cleanse little bowels with "California Syrup of Figs."

Mothers can rest easy after giving "California Syrup of Figs," because in a few hours all the clogged-up waste, sour bile and fermenting food gently moves out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again.

Sick children needn't be coaxed to take this harmless "fruit laxative." Millions of mothers keep it handy because they know its action on the stomach, liver and bowels is prompt and sure.

Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which contains directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups.—Adv.

Fertilizers

Feed the Fields that Feed the World!

THE world is asking for bread and meat. Bigger crops cannot be raised by increasing your acreage, the shortage of labor makes that impossible. To meet the demand for bread more grain must be raised on the acres you now cultivate. You must fertilize. You cannot ship away more fertility in the form of bigger crops unless you bring more fertility in.

To raise more livestock, we must have more feed. The only way to grow more feed, is to add to your soils supplies of plant food. Upon the use of fertilizers depends both bread and meat.

In the vast storehouses in the earth, Nature provided food for the soil, Nitrates and Phosphates, just as she provided food for man and beast. These plant foods we gather from the four corners of the globe, and make into V-C Fertilizers that are balanced crop rations—that benefit the crop immediately—nourish it from seed time until harvest. The crop is not overfed on one element and starved for the lack of another.

Freight is Congested—Order Early!

We have more than 50 factories in the North, South, East and Middle West. We are able to get fertilizers to you with a minimum amount of hauling, but the car shortage is serious. Fertilizers should be ordered early, so that the dealer can assemble his orders and have every car loaded to maximum capacity. If you do not order now you may have to do without them!

We have published a series of crop books, which are really text books on better farming. They are written by a foremost authority. Tell us what crops you are interested in, and special books about these crops will be sent you free.

Sunday School

SOMETHING BESIDES GOODNESS NEEDED.

There has recently come to our Sunday school headquarters here at Nashville a pencil-written letter of which the following is a copy, omitting names:

"Smith & Lamar Publishing Co.

"Dear Sirs

"I am writing you in regard to the way you have of Puting out Sunday school literary I am the superintendent of ——— Sunday school and I find that your lessons are not Printed as scriptures are, and Dont Expec eny more orders from us, unless you Will Print lessons as scriptures are wrote for we Dont Want to teach children enny other way But gods way. I hope you will consider this matter and Do as god word says Da.

"Please read the 22 ch. of Rev 18, 19, 20 Verses.

"I hope you will git som good out of it.

"read 1st. John ch. 9 V. Now I trust that god will lead you to Do his will, and not to Do as scribes.

"yours as a Bro.

"_____"

I am printing this letter here not to ridicule its writer or to hold him up to scorn, but as an illustrative text for a few remarks concerning the nature and need of our modern Sunday school work.

The writer of the above letter is representative of many superintendents, other officers and teachers in our Sunday schools—good, sincere Christian men and women; but uninformed, untrained and of circumscribed vision. Many of them, possibly the best "fits" that can be secured for the places they fill; but I feel that some of them could be replaced by others better qualified.

The writer above quoted displays in his letter not only lack of language-training, but ignorance concerning the Scriptures one would hardly expect to find this day in a Methodist Sunday school superintendent. From his letter he evidently knows nothing of the various translations of versions of the Scriptures and therefore believes that in printing in our Sunday school periodicals the American Revised Version our "Publishing Company" is not printing the Scriptures as they are written. He also believes that the injunctions in Revelation xxii 18 and 19 have reference to the whole body of writings in our Bible, and that as the printing of the American Revision "adds to" and "takes from" the version with which he is familiar (and I rather suspect he believes that God wrote it, or ordered it written, just as it is printed in the King James Version). Therefore our publishers are guilty of great sin, and need to be cited to 1 John i,9.

This good man's letter helps one to understand why, of two fine educational systems side by side in this great land of ours, and both absolutely essential to the development of man's God-given possibilities, one ranks high in the general public estimation and consideration and the other yet has to make its slow progress against a quite general public opinion that does not even credit it with being an educational institution at all. Our public school system, through control and management by trained men and women, probably has no superior system anywhere. But in the matter of religious education the Church has been so slow in recognizing the technical nature of the task, and therefore preparing trained leadership for it, that still our Sunday schools in most communities do not receive the respect and regard the public school does. And it will continue to be that way, and we will continue to touch in our Sunday schools only a small fraction of the boys and girls of the "educable age" until there is a church-wide recognition of the real importance of that work and a more adequate provision for it in the way of leadership, housing and equipment.

To help bring the day of such "recognition" nearer, the General Sunday School Board has a committee at work on an Exhibit which will occupy the entire basement floor of the great Wesley Memorial Church in Atlanta, Georgia, during the General Conference when it meets there next May. This Exhibit will include completely equipped Sunday school quarters from the Cradle Roll class to the Home Department, and will visualize as it has never been done before what a modern Sunday school should be and do. It is hoped to make this one of the most effective object lessons the American Sunday school world has seen. In later communications we shall take up the different departments of the Exhibit and tell you something about them.

And the whole thing is to help raise the standard so high that, added to the "goodness" of our brother quoted above, there shall be a trained intelligence that will make impossible any more such letters.

A. L. DIETRICH,
Secretary Exhibit Committee.

"We shrink from any precise or dogmatic statements concerning a future of which we know nothing. It is absolutely enough for us to believe that our future lot will more than satisfy us, even though our hearts were a hundredfold more exacting than the tenderest heart can be. The heart of God will be satisfied—that is enough."

"From the human standpoint we may often seem to fail, but God's point of view is the true standard whereby success can be measured."

BUGGY VALUES

depend as a rule on their durability, beauty of lines, and reasonableness of price, and so do "Ames-bilt" buggies, for they are made from select material by skilled workmen, in designs tested through years past and manufactured in a modern buggy factory where costs of production are reduced to a minimum.

A good buggy is so difficult to judge, however, that the mark of greatest value is the confidence resulting from the reputation of its maker. That is why has been for years recognized as a conscientious buggy expert and why the many attractive styles of "Ames-bilt" buggies have been in such demand throughout the land.

They are made from hard, tough, Kentucky hickory, and consequently have the strongest shafts and wheels that can be made. Only the best of hardwood and other materials are used in the bodies. Skilled workmen and modern machinery produce perfection as far as buggies are concerned.

Ask your dealer for an "Ames-bilt" buggy. If he can't show you one write for a catalog of over a hundred excellent designs that considering quality are extremely reasonable in price.

Save your Hair! Get a small bottle of Danderine right now—Also stops itching scalp.

Thin, brittle, colorless and scraggy hair is mute evidence of a neglected scalp, of dandruff—that awful scurf.

There is nothing so destructive to the hair as dandruff. It robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life, eventually producing a feverishness and itching of the scalp, which if not remedied causes the hair roots to shrink, loosen and die—then the hair falls out fast. A little Danderine tonight—now—any time—will surely save your hair.

THE OLD RELIABLE BLOOD BUILDER

Still retains its supremacy. People still take Hood's Sarsaparilla because it is an old family friend, has proved its merit to three generations—in purified blood, expelled humors, restored appetite, relieved rheumatism, banished tired feelings.

It long ago became recognized as the standard blood purifier and general tonic. It originated in a Boston physician's successful prescription, and comprises medicinal roots, herbs, barks and berries such as are often prescribed for ailments of the blood, stomach, liver and kidneys. Buy it in the same style package your mother bought it in,—same fine appearance, same pleasant taste, same certainty of good results.

MONEY RECEIVED AND CABLED.

Cleveland H. Dodge, Treasurer of the American Committee for Armenian and Syrian Relief, announces the total contribution received during the week ending January 29, 1918, to be $203,067.70. This includes all contributions from individuals, societies, churches and towns.

The total amount cabled to the field since January 1, 1918, is $1,403,000. This sum will be disbursed through the relief stations as follows: Asia Minor via Constantinople, $450,000; Syria via Beirut, $150,000; Greece and Macedonia via Athens, $3000; Russian Caucasus via Erivan and Tiflis, $400,000; Western Persia via Tabriz, $250,000; Central Persia via Teheran, $50,000; Palestine via Cairo and Jerusalem, $100,000.

Sunday School Campaign.

$500,000 for Armenian and Syrian Relief has been received by the National Committee for Armenian and Syrian Relief, 1 Madison Avenue, N. Y., from the Sunday schools of America. The Sunday schools of other nations, notably Japan, $200, and Egypt, $2000, have responded to the appeal. Checks are still coming in as a result of the Christmas drive.

UGH! A DOSE OF NASTY CALOMEL

It salivates! It makes you sick and you may lose a day's work.

You're bilious, sluggish, constipated and believe you need vile, dangerous calomel to start your liver and clean your bowels.

Here's my guarantee! Ask your druggist for a 50 cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone and take a spoonful to-night. If it doesn't start your liver and straighten you right up better than calomel and without griping or making you sick I want you to go back to the store and get your money.

Take calomel to-day and to-morrow you will feel weak and sick and nauseated. Don't lose a day's work. Take a spoonful of harmless, vegetable Dodson's Liver Tone tonight and wake up feeling great. It's perfectly harmless, so give it to your children any time. It can't salivate, so let them eat anything afterwards.

COURT STREET CHURCH, HATTIESBURG.

Dear Brother Meek: The pastor and his family have been received very cordially by the good people of Court Street Church. Notwithstanding the prolonged inclement weather, and considerable sickness among the people, the outlook is encouraging for a very prosperous year.

Our first quarterly conference has just been held and the pastor's salary fixed at $1800, a substantial increase. This is my first association with Rev. W. B. Jones as presiding elder, and I am sure that his genial, affable disposition has endeared him to all who know him. In a quiet, pleasant manner he inquires carefully into every interest of the Church.

I am fortunate to have had in my predecessor, Rev. T. W. Adams, a man so abundant in labor that I have heard nothing but praise for his ceaseless activity, and expressions of love for his kindly ministrations to the people.

The proximity of Camp Shelby has transformed Hattiesburg. The town is filled with soldiers, many of whom have their families, and every house is taxed to its limit. Business of every kind seems to boom. I am informed that one business house sold $225,000 worth of goods in the month of January. The Church here is called upon to meet and solve many new and intricate problems, for which great tact and wisdom are required. But the Gospel of Jesus Christ is the only known panacea for the evils of this world, and in times of great stress like this, which are not local but world-wide, Christian people should present an uncompromising attitude against every form of worldliness and unrighteousness.

The claims of the The Advocate are being looked after—several new subscriptions have been secured, and others will be taken.

Sincerely and cordially,
C. F. EMERY, Pastor.

SARDIS DISTRICT PREACHERS' MEETING.

Despite the inclemency of the weather the preachers' meeting of the Sardis District, held at Sardis, Jan. 29-30, was in every way a great success. The attendance was small, on account of the weather, but those who were there felt that it was time well spent as the discussions were very helpful and inspiring. The preachers were of one mind touching the most vital part of our work—the importance of leading men and women, boys and girls, to the Christ. At a similar meeting last year, the goal for the district was "1000 souls for Christ and the church in 1917." And the goal for 1918 is a still larger number. Many of the preachers present pledged themselves, under the leadership of God, to reach at least 100 souls for Christ and the Church this year.—Senatobia (Miss.) Democrat.

The doctrine of the atonement is such to me that, without it, philosophy would lead by self-evident truth only to the conclusion that we, of all men, are most miserable, since we have sinned, and do not know a way of escape. There is to me such clearness that, if you say no atonement ever has been made, philosophy, to me, is not good tidings, for it is clear tidings of a necessity not met.—Joseph Cook.

A LETTER FROM BROTHER MORRIS.

Dear Doctor Meek: Leaving New Orleans with my family on Friday, December 7, we arived in Atlanta in sufficient time to get the full benefit of the Billy Sunday services on Sunday, December 9. It was a very cold day, but from eight to twleve thousand persons were present at each of the three services. The sermons at the morning and night services were good. They were simple and delivered with great earnestness, but were not more impressive than a number of sermons I have heard. In the afternoon Mr. Sunday must have been at his best. I had never heard such a terrific arraignment of the liquor traffic. Statistics, striking illustrations, pointed facts, so convincing and overwhelming, were marshaled, that it seemed there was nothing left for the traffic or its supporters but sure and awful damnation.

Leaving Atlanta early Monday morning, we did not have the much desired privilege of visiting our great university there.

Rock Hill, the little city in which we are living, has a population of 10,000 or 12,000. It is the seat of the South Carolina State Normal, Winthrop College, which has an attendance of 1200. There are eight cotton mills and one automobile factory here—one of the few in the South. We have three Methodist churches, but the Presbyterians and Baptists are numerically stronger than our Church. The church that I serve, West Main Street, is made up largely of workers from the cotton mills and the automobile factory.

This country is very much like the clay hills of North Louisiana. The distinctly Southern sentiment is more pronounced here than in any place I have ever lived. Much is made of Robert E. Lee's birthday, while the Daughters of the Confederacy are very influential. The moral atmosphere here is excellent. Baneful Romish influences—the dance, wine drinking, and other sinful amusements—have little to do with society. While I love Louisiana and my many friends there, it is refreshing to live where you feel that your children are safe from such dangerous influences. We are pleased to receive the Advocate and keep in touch with Methodism in Louisiana.

C. M. MORRIS.

Rock Hill, S. C.

WAYNESBORO, MISS.

Dear Dr. Meek: I have no special news to tell. I am having an awfully good time in my present field of labor. I am down over my books, and don't know it is cold, except now and then when I go out to see what the world is doing. I am going to try to finish my course this year in the University of Chicago, as I have notice of credit that will be allowed for outside work. My pastorate is delightful—a quiet community and an appreciative people. We are to have Dr. Du Bose with us soon, the district conference is to be with us later, and the people ask me to invite a "live Bishop" to come to see us some time this year. So, you see I will not miss Dr. Holloman as much now as I did last year.

Come by on your way to the General Conference, and I will try to go with you—just for the fun in it.

Yours truly,
C. M. CHAPMAN,
Pastor.

Mothers of the South Prepare for Trouble!

When a girl becomes a woman, when a woman becomes a mother, and when a woman passes through the changes of middle life, are the three periods of life when health and strength are most needed to withstand the pain and distress often caused by severe organic disturbances. Many thousands in this section would testify just as do the following:

LENOIR CITY, TENN.—"Some years ago I broke down from overwork and exposure. My brother thought I would die. I took Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and it brought me out all right. I have also taken several bottles since and it always helps me. I can say it is a wonderful medicine. I recommend it to all broken-down women. It is the best medicine for nervousness and for prospective mothers that I ever saw."—MRS. MARY L. WALKER.

SYLACAUGA, ALA.—"My wife used Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription during expectancy. She had been having a great deal of trouble and used the 'Prescription' with wonderful results. She had practically no suffering, where before she had suffered intensely. No one can tell in words the good the 'Prescription' did my wife; it is simply a wonderful medicine. Every woman in the land ought to use it."—A. HUDGINS.

WOMAN'S MISSIONARY WORK.

General Julian S. Carr, of North Carolina, after a visit to the Orient, during which he made a careful study of mission work, writes: "Just a word with reference to missions. As a business man, I have carefully studied the question at first hand. The man who, for any reason, opposes missions is, to put it plainly, a fool. He is wronging God, his country, humanity, and himself. The very best use the world can make of its surplus is to put it into missions, and my prayer and heart's desire is that my beloved America may lead in this work."

ANNUAL MEETING OF LOUISIANA CONFERENCE W. M. S.

The eighth annual meeting of the Louisiana Conference Woman's Missionary Society of the M. E. Church, South, will be held in First Church, Shreveport, Feb. 25-28.

The special guests of the Conference will be Mrs. Hume R. Steele, Educational Secretary, who comes as the Council representative, and Miss Janie Watkins, missionary from China.

Names of delegates should be sent at once to Mrs. Geo. Sexton, 903 Wilkerson Street, Chairman of the Committee on Entertainment.

MRS. A. P. HOLT, Cor. Sec.

A MESSAGE TO THE WOMEN OF THE NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

The sixth annual meeting of the W. M. S. of North Mississippi is to be held early in March. This will be a gathering of workers from all parts of the Conference to map out what shall be undertaken for 1918 in all the different activities of the Society. There is much information to be gained from the interchange of ideas with each other; there is enthusiasm to be gained from meeting together; there will be spiritual uplift. We need to have representatives from all the auxiliaries that the results of this meeting may be taken into the remotest portions of each district.

Have you ever been discouraged as you struggled through the year's work and wondered if any others had the difficulties you were experiencing? All of us have questionings of this kind and need something to hearten us. Plan now to be at the annual meeting. Many good things are in store for those who attend.

The plans made at Conference will transform into service the zeal we have for doing God's will. May we show a greater zeal, greater consecration, greater efficiency, greater faith, and may 1918 be the greatest year in missionary activities that North Mississippi has ever had.

MISS MARGARET LEACH,
Superintendent Study and Publicity.

MRS. HUME R. STEELE IS HIGHLY HONORED.

Mrs. Hume R. Steele, Educational Secretary of the Woman's Missionary Council of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, was elected President of the Federation of Woman's Foreign Mission Boards of North America at the annual meeting held in New York City, Jan. 18-19.

The Federation of Woman's Foreign Mission Boards is composed of forty-one Mission Boards of the United States and Canada and two interdenominational agencies. It is one of the most influential missionary organizations, and has accomplished much in providing Christian literature for women and children in mission fields and in promoting union institutions for the higher education of women in foreign lands. Mrs. Steele's election to the Presidency of this body is a source of gratification to her many friends, as it is not only a recognition of her ability, but puts Southern Methodism in its rightful place among the other great Mission Boards.—Extract from a notice appearing in the Nashville Tennessean.

THE HOUR OF DISILLUSION.

Abeut the hour of disillusion. There is that bitter in the cup. To drink that cup alone—in Africa—how endure? In Africa there comes an hour when the distrust and the ingratitude of men—black men, sometimes white men—turn the tropic air to winter. This is especially, pathetically, true of the young missionary who first encounters the defection of the black Christian, who first sees the lad he trained for evangelist turn trader, who first sees the girl who was to be the mother of new Africa go wild. Young missionaries suffer, then, according to their temperament, their hour of disillusion. And those senior missionaries—those single souls chosen of God to bear the solitude of the third watch—they have, while the world sleeps, their crushing hours of disillusion. Mackay, Coillard, Livingstone—these men of many disillusions—how did they endure—who was then their friend? "Lo, I am with you alway," says Livingstone to himself in such an hour. And of this promise he writes in his diary—for a man must talk to himself when he is in the hungry country—"It is the word of a gentleman of the most sacred and strictest honor, and there's an end on't."—From "An African Trail."

OUR WORK IN MEXICO.

At a conference of Mexico missionaries and Secretaries of the Board of Missions, held in El Paso, Texas, in December, many important subjects vital to the future development of our work in Mexico were fully discussed.

It was the unanimous opinion of those present that where our work has been closed it should be reopened as soon as conditions make it possible for our workers to return and that a redistribution of territory is advisable. Under the new Constitution of Mexico it will be necessary to reorganize the educational work conducted by the Council, and it was thought that institutional work might be effectively used as a means of benefiting the people and giving them the gospel.

Calhoun City, Miss.

The first quarterly conference of the Calhoun City charge was held at the Methodist Church in Calhoun City on January 27 and 28. In spite of the disagreeable weather, Rev. T. H. Lipscomb, our presiding elder, was present and delivered two very able sermons. The local pastor, Rev. W. R. McDougal, was confined to his bed, and not able to attend, but the reports from the various churches were encouraging, and the outlook for the year 1918 is promising, both from a financial and spiritual standpoint.—"A Member."

Homer, La.

Dear Doctor Meek: There are two slight errors in the financial table for this charge as shown in the published minutes for the last session of the Louisiana Conference. One of these is in the case of the assessment for Conference Claimants. The minutes show an assessment of $94, with a payment of $80 made. The amount of the assessment as given me by the Secretary of the Board of District Stewards was $80, and this is the amount that was paid. The other error is that of the missionary special raised by the Sunday school which was $122, but which appears in the minutes as being $112.

How these errors occurred, I do not know. It may have been that the errors were made in my reports to the Statistical Secretaries. They are slight, but I believe that it is justice to the people here to call attention to them. Our people worked hard to pay out in full, and of all the assessments we certainly would not have slighted that for the Conference Claimants. This statement does not intend to censure any one.

We had a fine day last Sunday and are having some most helpful prayer meetings. We are making plans fer a meeting to be held in April. We have made no report of work done for the Advocate, but your interests will not be forgotten.

With best wishes, I am.

Yours faithfully,

W. L. DOSS, Jr.

WHO WILL FOLLOW DR. JOWETT?

The pastorate of the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church in New York has been made vacant through the resignation of Dr. John H. Jowett, whose pulpit ministry has made the great pulpit an even better known center than it had ever been. After repeated entreaties for a reconsideration, Dr. Jowett has announced his intention of leaving for England in March. The pulpit committee in seeking a successor has considered scores of candidates, among whom have been "Billy" Sunday, Dr. John Timothy Stone of Chicago, Dr. S. Parkes Cadman of Brooklyn, and Robert E. Speer of the Presbyterian Board of Missions. At present the reports indicate Professor Harry Emerson Fosdick, the author of some of the most popular books of the last years. Dr. Fosdick is a professor in Union Theological Seminary in New York. Should he succeed Dr. Jowett, it would be a case of a Baptist succeeding a Congregationalist in a Presbyterian pulpit.—N. W. Christian Advocate.

If your druggist doesn't carry Renwar in stock tell him to order it for you from WARNER DRUG COMPANY, NASHVILLE, TENN.

METHODISTS WILL BEGIN HOSPITAL SOON.

Construction of the Methodist Hospital, which is to cost $400,000, will be begun in May, according to Thomas B. King, Financial Agent, who addressed the commissioners of the four Conferences united in the great undertaking yesterday, February 5, at a meeting in Mr. King's office.

He assured the 24 members of the North Mississippi, Northern Arkansas, Mississippi, and Memphis Conferences that the plans of the architect are being made and that work on the foundation will be started within the next three months.

The structure will be erected on the old Mallory residence grounds, eight and one-half acres in extent, on Lamar Boulevard. With the exception of the last note against the property, the purchase price has been paid and the financial agent reported that there were almost sufficient funds in bank to liquidate the entire indebtedness.

It is planned to use the residence now on the grounds as a nurses' home and administrative office for the hospital. The hospital building will cost over a quarter of a million dollars and will have accommodations for approximately 450 patients when completed.

Over 300,000 Methodists in the four Conferences have joined in the undertaking and already $175,000 has been pledged. Mr. King reported yesterday that $8600 had been subscribed during this year, 1918, and that, on the whole, contributors were paying their subscriptions as they fell due, though a small number were slightly in arrears.

The Commissioners adopted a charter with the incorporators constituting the entire Board of Commissioners. The charter is broad and grants all the authority necessary from a legal standpoint to build and operate a modern hospital and receive endowments for the institution. The charter was drawn up by Capt. G. T. Fitzhugh.

A meeting of the Commissioners will be held in Memphis on March 6 to complete the organization authorized by the charter. John H. Sherard is President and L. M. Stratton is Secretary of the Commission.—Memphis Commercial Appeal.

You Can Tell the People Who Have Iron in Their Blood—Strong, Healthy, Vigorous Folks!

Doctor Says Ordinary Nuxated Iron Will Increase the Strength of Nervous, Run-Down People in Two Weeks' Time in Many Cases.

"ONE glance is enough to tell which people have iron in their blood," said Dr. E. Sauer, a Boston physician who has studied widely both in this country and in great European medical institutions. They are the ones that do and dare. The others are in the weakling class. Sleepless nights spent worrying over supposed ailments, constant dosing with habit-forming drugs and narcotics and useless attempts to brace up with strong coffee or other stimulants are what keep them suffering and vainly longing to be strong. Their real trouble is lack of iron in the blood. Without iron the blood has no power to change food into living tissue and therefore, nothing you eat does you good; you don't get the strength out of it. When iron is supplied it enriches the impoverished blood and gives the body greater resistance to ward off disease. I have seen dozens of nervous, rundown people who were ailing all the time increase their strength and endurance in from ten to fourteen days' time while taking iron in the proper form. And this, after they had in some cases been going on for months without getting benefit from anything.

If you are not strong or well you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of nuxated iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see for yourself how much you have gained. There is nothing like good old iron to help put color in your cheeks and sound, healthy flesh on your bones. But you must take iron in a form that can be easily absorbed and assimilated like nuxated iron if you want it to do you any good, otherwise it may prove worse than useless.

NOTE—Nuxated Iron recommended above by Dr. E. Sauer, is one of the newer organic iron compounds. Unlike the older inorganic iron products, it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money. It is dispensed by all good druggists.

Salts is Fine for Kidneys, Quit Meat

Flush the Kidneys at once when Back hurts or Bladder bothers —Meat forms uric acid.

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well known authority. Meat forms uric acid which clogs the kidney pores so they sluggishly filter or strain only part of the waste and poisons from the blood, then you get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity, also to neutralize the acids so they no longer cause irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which all regular meat eaters should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.

TEN SERMONS IN THIRTY SECONDS.

Charles Stelzle.

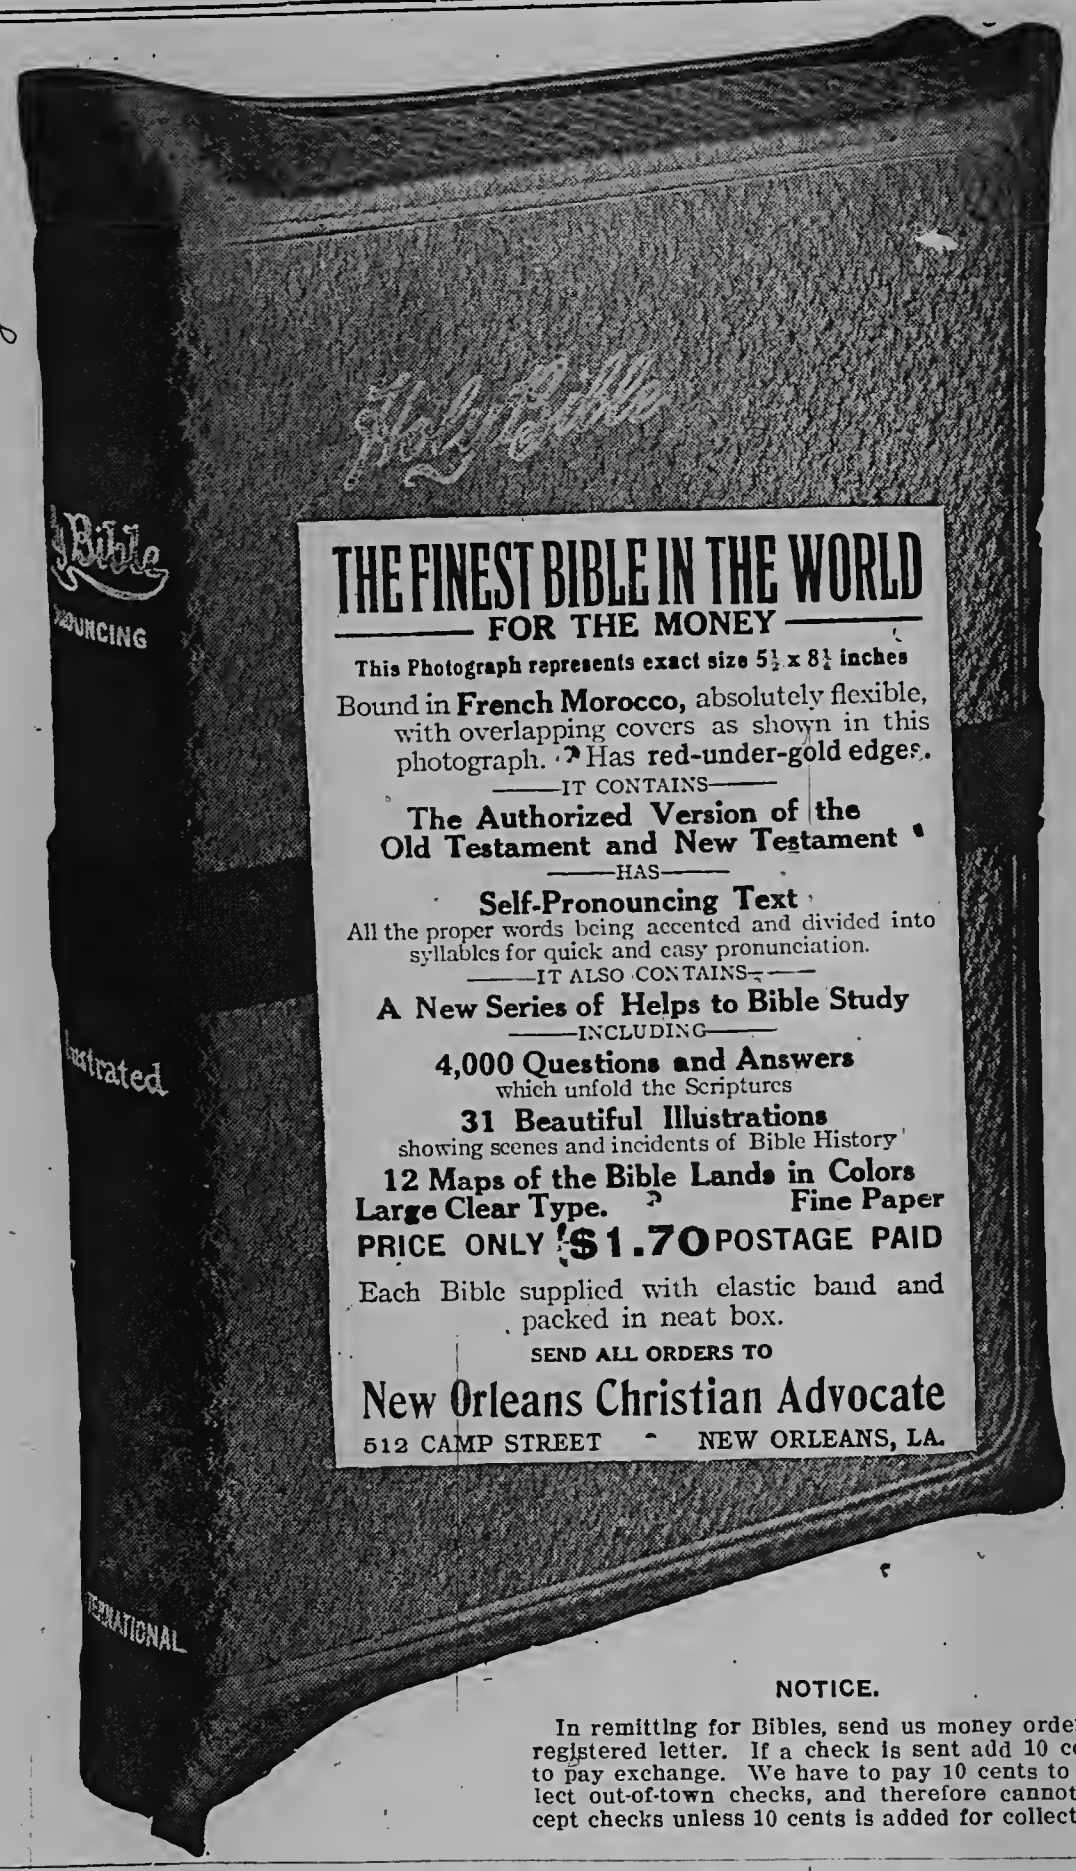
The devil never taunts the man of whom he is sure.

Innocence is ignorance of sin; virtue is sin conquered.

We are punished not so much for our sin, as by our sin.

Reputation is what others give us; character is what we give ourselves.

If any man were half as good as he knows how to be, he would be twice as good as he is.



Most men are sorry, not because they have sinned, but because of the result of their sin.

Some men are trying hard to get rid of sins. They will never succeed until they conquer sin.

There are many kinds of "memory methods," but no one has ever invented a scheme which will help a man to forget.

Most men flatter themselves that they cannot be fooled by their fellows, but they are fooling themselves by supposing that they can fool others.

Some people find fault because it requires ten dollars to save a soul in a religious campaign, but they are indifferent to the fact that a man may spend ten dollars in a single night and send his soul to hell

JUST THREE THINGS.

"I once met a scholar," says Bishop Whipple, "who told me that for years he had read every book that he could which assailed the religion of Jesus Christ; and he said he would have become an infidel but for three things.

"First, I am a man. I am going somewhere. To-night I am a day nearer the grave than I was last night. I have read all such books can tell me. They shed not one solitary ray upon the darkness. They shall not take away the only guide and leave me stone-blind.

"Second, I had a mother. I saw her go down the dark valley where I am going, and she leaned upon an unseen arm as calmly as a child goes to sleep on the breast of its mother. I know that this was not a dream.

"Third, I have three motherless daughters (and he said it with tears in his eyes); they have no protector but myself. I would rather kill them than to leave them in this sinful world if you blot out from it all the teachings of the gospel."—Christian Commonwealth.

SALARY OF SOLDIERS.

A private in the army of the United States gets $33 a month in addition to board, clothing and medical attention. If he goes to Europe he gets $36.99 a month. If he has a wife she gets direct from the Government $15 a month. If a wife and one child it is $25 in addition to his pay, two children $32.50 additional, etc.

Allowance is also made for others who are dependent upon him such as parents, $10 a month each, and $5 a month for brothers, sisters, etc., who are dependents. If he becomes blind or loses both feet or both hands, etc., he gets $100 a month as long as he lives whether married or not. If he dies from injuries in service the dependents get from $20 to $75 a month.

The Government allows him to take out insurance up to $10,000 at a rate no higher than in times of peace. Officers get higher salaries. So you see while the soldier has a hard task to perform Uncle Sam looks carefully after his interests. We are glad the Government is able to do a good part by those who bear our burdens in defending our flag and country.—Central Methodist.

THE STATUS OF THE UNION NEGOTIATIONS

The Joint Commission on the Unification of American Methodism has issued a statement setting forth the results of its labors, the full text of which we are carrying in this number of the Advocate. The Commissioners are to be commended for giving this information to the Methodist public, though we think they should have gone further and also have lifted the curtain on the entire proceedings of the body, authorizing the publication at the earliest date possible of the stenographic records of each of the three meetings that have been held. The reports of the sessions at Baltimore and Traverse City are already in print, and, in view of the fact that at Savannah the utterances of every member were said to have been promptly submitted to him for correction, it presumably would not take long to have the full proceedings to come from the press. An accurate account of the various movements of the Commission, along with the discussions that took place, would enlighten the two Churches as to the true situation as nothing else could, and would show to each of them precisely what has been done in the way of a faithful effort to carry out the instructions of its General Conference. We do not doubt that the circulation of these printed reports would be sufficiently large to cover the expense of their issuance; so we venture to express the hope that the Commission will at once order the veil of secresy raised as to its entire deliberations. In our opinion, The Churches involved are entitled to know all that has gone on, that they may be in a position to deal intelligently with the momentous issues that are now before them.

What Was Done at Savannah.

Before taking up for discussion any of the features (tentatively agreed to or merely recommended) of the plan of union now before the Commission, we desire, in view of the various representations that are being made in the public prints as to what was done in Savannah, to touch briefly upon that question. The report concerning the Judicial Council, which was stated at Traverse City to have been practically agreed upon, was taken up on the first day of the late meeting and largely completed, very little time being consumed in doing so. What the features of this report yet remaining to be acted upon are, may readily be ascertained by running over that part of the general statement of the Commission. As a matter of fact, nearly the whole meeting at Savannah was taken up with an effort to fix the status of the Negro in the proposed unified Church. At Traverse City there were three reports from the Sub-Committee having this matter in hand: one, signed by a majority of its members, proposing to place the Negroes of the Church, North, in an Associate General Conference; another, signed by Bishop Denny and Judge H. H. White, recommending that they be placed in an independent Church, and a third one, signed by Dr. R. E. Jones and Dr. I. Garland Penn (the colored members of the Northern Commission), urging that they be gathered into a Regional Conference and given their full rights and privileges. When the Commission was about to adjourn at Traverse City, these reports were all re-committed to the Sub-Committee for further consideration.

At Savannah, this Sub-Committee laid before the Joint Commission, to be considered, two unsigned plans, without making any definite recommendations. One of these was to place the Negroes of the Methodist Episcopal Church permanently in a Sub-Regional Conference, with a restricted representation (having both a voice and vote) in the General Conference; the other was to place them in an Associate General Conference, very much after the order of the plan that has been championed in the Church press by Dr. Blake, Dr. Du Bose, and others. Following the submission of these plans, there was a general discussion of the question of the status of the Negro as related to American Methodism and the unification movement covering a period of perhaps a week, when finally Judge Rogers, of the Northern Commission, proposed a scheme blending the two suggested arrangements. It provided that the Northern Methodist Negroes should go at once into a Sub-Regional (or Central Conference) with ten representatives in the white General Conference, with both the power to speak and vote in that body; but that when this Associate Regional Jurisdiction (or Central Conference) should come to have 600,000 Church members within its bounds, it should become an Associate General Conference, after which it should still have ten representatives in the white General Conference, with the privilege of speaking but not voting. The Associate General Conference would also be allowed to elect one member of the Constitutional Council to be constituted for the whole Church, and accorded representation proportionate to its membership on all the distinctively connectional boards and societies of the Church in which its interests would be involved." The two recommendations (marked 1 and 2, shown at the close of the Commission's general statement—see page 5 of the Advocate) were also made a part of the Rogers' plan.

This plan was referred to a Committee of Eight (four from each of the two Commissions), which reported favorably upon it without any material alterations. It was later adopted by a majority of the Southern Commission (a minority dissenting), provided the Negroes in the C. M. E. Church and the Negroes in the M. E. Church, would unite, and, upon the taking place of this union, they should at once be gathered into an Associate General Conference; and that if union should not be effected between these two bodies, all the money raised for the Negro work in the reunited white Church from that portion of it now predominantly Southern Methodist should go to the C. M. E. Church.

The Northern Commissioners, in a separate meeting, agreed that if the Southern Commissioners accepted the report, they would accept it, provided any member of the Joint Commission should have a right to propose any amendment to that report.

Later, the Joint Commission adopted the following resolution: "That we accept the Report of the Committee of Eight as the basis of a plan for determining the status of the Negro and foreign jurisdictions and that we proceed to the consideration of the report seriatim." When this report was taken up, the two Commissions disagreed as to two of its three chief provisions, the third not being taken up, after which it was voted to adjourn until April 10, when the Joint Commission will reassemble in St. Louis. It is our understanding that the Northern Commissioners did not desire a fixed representation of ten delegates in the white General Conference, preferring a sliding scale, and that they were not willing to make it imperative that the Negro contingent in their Church should pass into an Associate General Conference upon reaching the number of 600,000. As we have before stated in the Advocate, there was never any prospect of a unanimous report by either of the Commissions. There would certainly have been a minority report from the Southern Commission if Judge Rogers' scheme had been accepted by the Northerners, and we do not doubt that there would also have been one to their denomination by representatives of the Church, North. We were informed in Savannah that both Dr. R. E. Jones and Dr. I. Garland Penn (the two colored men on the Northern Commission) were uncompromisingly hostile to the Rogers' scheme.

A Statement by Dr. Jones.

It may be interesting to our readers, in this connection, to see the following statement by Dr. Jones, taken from an extended editorial in his paper of February 14: "Two propositions (concerning the Negro) were presented, both of which were inseparably linked. The first was called a preferential plan, and provided for the placing of the Negro in a Central Conference (formerly called Sub or Associate Regional), to which Conference would be granted legislative powers on all matters local, and with power to elect Bishops, subject to the confirmation of the General Conference (white), and with fixed representation in the (white) General Conference. It was further provided in the report that when this jurisdiction reached a membership of 600,000, it should automatically become a Jurisdictional Conference or an Associate General Conference with practical autonomy, with power to elect Bishops, with full legislative and judicial powers, with one representative on the Constitutional Council, and with representation on all the Connectional Boards. On this report there was a disagreement. First, as to fixed representation in the General Conference, and, second, as to whether the Central (or Sub or Associate Regional) Conference should automatically, upon reaching a certain number of members, become an Associate General Conference. After eleven days of continuous discussion of the question, morning and afternoon, with a number of conferences and separate meetings of the Commissions, the two Commissions failed to agree on the status of the Negro in the reorganized Church, but agreed to meet on April 10 in the city of St. Louis to formulate a report embracing matters on which there was an agreement, which

THE OUTLOOK AND THE UPLOOK.

"When the outlook is dark, try the uplook."
These words hold a message of cheer;
Be glad while repeating them over.
And smile when the shadows appear.

Above and beyond stands the Master.
He sees what we do for His sake;
He never will fail nor forsake us.
"He knoweth the way that we take."

"When the outlook is dark, try the uplook."
The uplook of faith and good cheer;
The love of the Father surrounds us.
He knows when the shadows are near.

Be brave, then, and keep the eyes lifted,
And smile on the dreariest day;
His smiles will glow in the darkness;
His light will illumine the way.

"DON'TS" FOR SUNDAY STAY-AT-HOMES.

Don't stay away because company comes; bring them.

Don't let the Sunday paper keep you; we have something better.

Don't stay away because it rains. That would not keep you from business.

Don't stay away because you won't be missed in the crowd. God misses you.

Don't stay away beeause it isn't your denomination; the same excuse would keep you out of heaven.

Don't stay away because you have no influence; the church-goer preaches a sermon as long as the way thither.

Don't stay away because you know more than the preacher; God may have something to say to you worth hearing.

Don't stay away because the Church does not need you; never did the Church need more, good men and women.

Don't stay away because the Church is imperfect; should you find and join the perfect church, its perfection would cease.

Don't stay away beeause you do not need the Church; 'tisn't so. If you must look at the dirt six days, take one to examine the clouds.—Christian Age.

FAILURE.

Argue and elaborate as we will on our burdens, we know fate has been good to us. Life is not all sunshine. If it were, we would very soon grow tired of life. Disappointments, setbacks, disillusionments, come to every one, and we must expect they will eome to us. Indeed, we have no voice in the matter. They will eome to us as surely as day follows night; but do we aeeept them patiently? That is another story.

Many women look only on the dark side of life. "What's the use?" they say, dejectedly. "Everything I try to do turns out a failure." There is a tiny breath of selfishness here. "I" is very prominent in these women's thoughts. Pehaps if they did something worth while for some one else their work would be crowned with success. Doing something for another has never yet turned out a failure. There is not a case on record showing where failure has followed a kind deed done for another. Pehaps this other did not appreciate the efforts taken in her behalf, yet the fact remains that the woman who put herself out to make another woman happy experienced a wonderful happiness herself.—New York Evening Telegram.

A LOVE SERVICE.

Have you, my dear comrade, been serving the Lord blindly and slavishly, simply because it is your duty, and yet with a constant feeling of unrest and unfitness? Oh, how He loves you, and wants to catch your ear, and win your heart, and draw you into a glad love service!

"But I am so weak and faulty, I have failed so often. Surely, the Lord must be discouraged with me," you say. No, no, not if you are in earnest, any more than your mother was discouraged with you when, as a little toddler just learning to walk, you fell again and again. She did not cast you off, but picked you up, and kissed the knees and nose that were bumped, and loved you more than you dreamed. And in all your other failures she still bore with you and hoped for you. So it is with Jesus. Let this love constrain you. "We love Him because He first loved us." Trust Him. Give yourself wholly and heartily to Him, and be sure you serve Him for love, and you will have learned the secret of a holy, happy life.

"O let Thy love my heart constrain.
Thy love for every sinner free;
That every fallen soul of man
May taste the grace that found out me;
That all mankind with me may prove Thy sovereign, everlasting love."

—Lieutenant-Colonel S. L. Brengle, of the Salvation Army.

THE COMMISSION REPORTS.

[We are in receipt of the following, which we take pleasure in laying before the readers of the Advocate.—The Editor.]

The Joint Commission on Unification presents herewith the plan which it is considering for the reorganization and reunion of the two Churches which it represents.

The matter in light face type has been tentatively accepted. The matter in black face type is yet to be aeted upon.

Any inconsistencies that may appear in the plan are due to the faet that it is the work of several committees who worked independently of each other. When the Commission's report is completed it will be consistent in all its parts.

There are other important matters, including the name of the reunited Church, yet to be acted upon.

The Commission will meet in St. Louis, April 10, and at that time it hopes to complete its report and to present a perfeeted plan of reunion to the two General Conferences which it represents.

(1) Each Regional Conference shall have power to elect from time to time the number of Bishops allotted to it by the General Conference according to a uniform principle, and said Bishops shall be confirmed by the General Conferenee, and ordained by the Bishops, unless two-thirds of the members of the General Conference, present and voting, shall object to said confirmation.

(2) Subjeet to the limitations and restrictions of this constitution, each Regional Conference shall have full legislative power over all distinctively regional affairs within its area, including the power to fix the boundaries of Annual Conferences, Mission Conferences, and Missions, and to provide for the organization of the same, provided that no new Annual Conference shall be organized in the States of the United States with less than fourteen thousand church members in full connection therewith.

(3) It shall also have power to receive, own, transfer and eontrol educational, benevolent and charitable institutions of the Church within its own territory which are not otherwise legally provided for, and shall have supervision of all such enterprises, except those which are owned, controlled and supervised by some other organic ageney of the Church.

(4) Each Regional Conference may, in the exercise of the powers provided herein, make rules or regulations not contrary to or in conflict with any rule or regulation made by the General Conference for the government and control of the connectional affairs of the Church.

MEETINGS.

Section 5. Each Regional Conferenee shall meet for organization immediately succeeding the organization of the General Conferenee, and at such other times and plaees as the Regional Conference itself shall determine.

PRESIDING OFFICER.

Section 6. The effeetive Bishops resident within a Regional Jurisdiction shall preside over the sessions of the Regional Conference as these Bishops themselves may determine.

QUORUM.

Section 7. Whenever a Regional Conference is in session it shall require the presence of two-thirds of the whole number of delegates to constitute a quorum for the transaction of business, but a less number may take a recess or adjourn from day to day, or approve the journal at the final session of the Regional Conference.

Section 8. All other matters of procedure shall be governed by rules and regulations as the Regional Conference shall from time to time prescribe.

ARTICLE VII. CENTRAL CONFERENCES.

Section 1. There shall also be constituted the following jurisdictions, each having its own Central Conference.

(1) The Annual Conferences, Mission Conferences, and Missions embracing the work among colored people in the United States and the continent of Africa.

(2) The Annual Conferences, Mission Conferences, and Missions in Porto Rico, Cuba, Mexico, Central America and South America.

(3) The Annual Conferences, Mission Conferences, and Missions, in Europe, the Madeira Islands, and in Africa, not otherwise provided for.

(4) The Annual Conferences, Mission Conferences, and Missions in China, Korea, Philippine Islands and Malaysia.

(5) The Annual Conferences, Mission Conferences and Missions in India and Burmah.

MEMBERS.

Section 2. Each Central Conference shall be composed as follows:

(1) One ministerial and one lay delegate from and elected by each Annual Conference, Mission Conference and Mission of its jurisdiction for each 2000 church members in full connection or fraction of two-thirds thereof, provided that each Annual Conference, Mission Conference and Mission shall be entitled to one ministerial and one lay delegate. The numerical basis of representation in a Central Conference may be changed by a Central Conference, subject to approval by the General Conference, so as to provide that the membership of a Central Conference shall not exceed 400 ministers and laymen in equal numbers.

(2) Ministerial delegates shall be elected by the ministerial members of the Annual Conference, Mission Conference or Mission, and the lay delegates shall be elected by the lay members thereof.

(3) Ministerial delegates of Central Conferences shall be at least 25 years of age and shall have been members of an Annual Conference or Mission Conference for at least 4 years, and at the time of their election, and at the time of the session of the Central Conference shall be members of an Annual Conference, Mission Conference or Mission within the jurisdiction.

(4) Lay delegates of a Central Conference shall be at least 25 years of age and shall have been members of the Church for at least 5 years, and at the time of their election and at the time of the session of the Central Conference shall be members of a pastoral charge within the bounds of the jurisdiction.

(5) Each Central Conference shall be the judge of the election, returns and qualifications of its own members.

AREA AND BOUNDARIES.

Section 3. The area and boundaries of a Central Conference Jurisdiction may be changed by the General Conference, the Central Conference, Central Conferences affected, concurring, or may be changed by the concurrent vote of two successive General Conferences.

PRIVILEGES AND POWERS.

Section 4. (1) Subject to the restrictions and limitations of this constitution and to the rules and regulations adopted by the General Conference in relation to the connectional affairs of the Church, each Central Conference, having not less than 150,000 church members in full connection, shall have power to elect from time to time the number of Bishops allotted to it by the General Conference, and said Bishops shall be confirmed by the General Conference, and ordained by the Bishops, unless two-thirds of the members of the General Conference present and voting, shall object to said confirmation.

(2) The privileges, powers and duties of a Bishop elected by a Central Conference shall be limited to that Central Conference Jurisdiction.

(3) Subject to the limitations and restrictions of this constitution, each Central Conference shall have full legislative power over all distinctively regional affairs within its area, including the power to fix the boundaries of Annual Conferences, Mission Conferences, and Missions, and to provide for the organization of the same, provided that no new Annual Conference shall be organized in the States of the United States with less than fourteen thousand church members in full connection therewith.

(4) It shall also have power to receive, own, transfer and control educational, benevolent and charitable institutions of the Church within its own territory which are not otherwise legally provided for, and shall have supervision of all such enterprises, except those which are owned, controlled and supervised by some other organic agency of the Church.

(5) Each Central Conference may, in the exercise of the powers provided herein, make rules or regulations not contrary to or in conflict with any rule or regulation made by the General Conference for the government and control of the connectional affairs of the Church.

(6) The powers and privileges of a Central Conference, having less than 150,000 church members in full connection, shall be determined by the General Conference.

(7) Each Central Conference Jurisdiction shall be entitled to be represented in the General Conference by five ministerial and five lay delegates, who shall be elected by its Central Conference at the regular meeting preceding the meeting of the General Conference. (Not yet adopted.)

MEETINGS.

Section 5. (1) Each Central Conference shall meet not more than six nor less than three months in advance of the regular meeting of the General Conference, at such time and place as may be determined, and at such other times and places as it may itself determine. Special meetings of any Central Conference may be convened by the Bishops of its jurisdiction and shall be convened whenever a majority of the Annual Conferences and Mission Conferences of the jurisdiction shall request such special session. Provided that the first meeting of a Central Conference shall be convened at such time and place as the General Superintendents may direct.

(2) The effective Bishops resident within a Central Conference Jurisdiction shall preside over the session of the Central Conference thereof, as said Bishops may themselves determine, but if there shall be no Bishop resident in the jurisdiction of said Conference at the time of its session, the General Superintendents shall designate one of their number for such presidency.

ARTICLE VIII. JURISDICTIONAL GENERAL CONFERENCES.

Any Central Conference by a majority vote of its members present and voting, with the concurrence of a majority of the members of the several Annual Conferences, Mission Conferences and Missions of its jurisdiction, present and voting, and with the approval of the General Conference, may become a Jurisdictional General Conference, and when it has 600,000 church members in full connection shall become a Jurisdictional General Conference with the privileges and powers herein provided. (Recommended, but not yet adopted.—Ed. Advocate.)

MEMBERS.

Section 1. A Jurisdictional General Conference shall be composed of an equal number of ministers and laymen to be chosen in such manner as said Jurisdictional General Conference may determine; provided, that each Annual Conference shall be entitled to one ministerial and one lay delegate; and provided further, that the membership of a Jurisdictional General Conference shall not be less than 100 nor more than 300 ministers and laymen in equal numbers.

The first Jurisdictional General Conference shall be constituted in such manner as a Central Conference. (Recommended, but not yet adopted.)

POWERS.

Section 2. Subject to the restrictions and limitations of this constitution, each Jurisdictional General Conference shall, so far as relates to its Annual Conferences, Mission Conferences and Missions, and the members thereof, have all the powers of the General Conference, legislative, executive and judicial.

Provided, that a Jurisidictional General Conference shall not prescribe conditions, privileges and duties of church membership that are contrary to or in conflict with those prescribed by the General Conference, nor shall it define and fix powers, privileges and duties of the Episcopacy contrary to or in conflict with tne powers, privileges and duties of the Episcopacy as defined and fixed by the General Conference. (Recommended, but not yet adopted.)

PRIVILEGES.

Section 3. A Jurisdictional General Conference shall be entitled:

(1) To elect one member of the Constitutional Council as herein provided.

(2) To have representation proportionate to membership on all distinctively connectional boards or societies of the Church in which its interests are involved.

(3) To elect not exceeding five ministerial and five lay representatives to the General Conference, who shall have the right to speak in the General Conference and in its standing committees on all matters which relate to and affect the interests of the jurisdiction which they represent. But said representatives shall not have the right to vote. (Recommended, but not yet adopted.)

And the General Conference may elect not exceeding five ministerial and five lay representatives to a Jurisdictional General Conference, and said representatives shall be entitled to speak on all distinctively connectional matters, but they shall not have the right to vote in a Jurisdictional General Conference. (Not yet adopted.)

(4) To share proportionately in the proceeds of the Book Concern or Publishing House. (Recommended, but not yet adopted.)

MEETINGS.

Section 4. A Jurisdictional General Conference shall meet quadrennially and at such other times and at such places as it may determine.

It shall be governed by such rules of procedure as it may itself prescribe. (Recommended, but not yet adopted.)

ARTICLE VIII. THE GENERAL CONFERENCE MEMBERSHIP.

Section 1. (1) The General Conference shall be composed:

(a) Of one ministerial and one lay delegate from and elected by each Annual Conference within each Regional Jurisdiction for each 14,000 church members in full connection, or fraction of two-thirds thereof; provided, that each Annual Conference shall be entitled to elect at least one ministerial and one lay delegate; and provided, further, that the total number of delegates elected from a Regional Jurisdiction shall not be less than 100.

(b) And five ministerial and five lay delegates from and elected by each Central Conference.

(2) The numerical basis of representation of the Regional and Central Conferences in the General Conference may be changed by the General Conference; provided, that the General Conference shall not be composed of less than 650, nor more than 850, ministerial and lay delegates in equal numbers.

(3) The ministerial delegates from an Annual Conference shall be elected by the ministerial members of the Annual Conference, and the lay delegates by the lay members of the same.

(4) The ministerial delegates from a Central Conference shall be elected by the ministerial members of the Central Conference, and the lay delegates by the lay members of the same.

(5) Ministerial delegates to the General Conference shall be at least 25 years of age and shall have been members of an Annual Conference for at least four years and at the time of their election, and at the time of the session of the General Conference shall be members of the Annual Conference which elected them, or resident within the Central Conference Jurisdiction from which they were elected.

(6) Lay delegates shall be at least 25 years of age and shall have been members of the Church for at least five years, and at the time of their election and at the time of the session of the General Conference, shall be members of a pastoral charge within the bounds of the Annual Conference or Central Conference which elected them.

(7) Each Annual Conference or Central Conference may elect reserve ministerial and lay delegates not exceeding three each, and not exceeding the number of its delegates.

(8) The General Conference shall be the judge of the election, returns and qualifications of its own members.

POWERS.

Section 2. Subject to the limitations and restrictions of this Constitution, the General Conference shall have full legislative power over all matters distinctively connectional; and in the exercise of said powers shall have authority as follows:

(1) To define and fix the conditions, privileges and duties of church membership.

(2) To define and fix the qualifications and duties of elders, deacons, local preachers, exhorters and deaconesses.

(3) To define and fix the powers and duties of District, Quarterly and Church Conferences.

(4) To define and fix the powers and duties of Annual Conferences, Mission Conferences and Missions.

(5) To define and fix the powers and duties of Central Conferences, including their boundaries, and to elect and assign Bishops to the same, except as herein otherwise provided.

(6) To divide, consolidate and change the Regional Conferences; but it shall not take away territory from any Regional Conference without its consent, save by the concurrent vote of two successive General Conferences; nor shall it create any new Regional Conference with less than 500,000 members in full connection.

(7) To define and fix the privileges, powers and duties of the Episcopacy, to fix according to a uniform principle the number of Bishops to be elected by each of the several Regional Conferences; to confirm their election; by a general rule, to superannuate them upon reaching a determined age, and to retire them for inefficiency or unacceptability after due notice and a proper hearing; provided, that it shall require a two-thirds vote to retire a Bishop without the concurrence of the Regional Conference in which his official residence is fixed; and provided, further, that a Bishop shall be assigned for residential supervision to the Regional Jurisdiction by which he was elected, or to the Central Conference Jurisdiction for which he was elected, but any Bishop may be assigned by the General Superintendents to any Annual Conference for presidential supervision if a majority of the resident Bishops of the Jurisdiction to which he is assigned shall concur in said assignment; and provided still further, that the General Conference may assign a Bishop to residence within any jurisdiction with the consent of the delegates of the jurisdictions from which the Bishop is to be taken and to which he is to be assigned. But the consent of a Central Conference delegation shall not be necessary to the assignment or transfer of a Bishop to or from a Central Conference Jurisdiction.

(8) To alter and change the hymnal and the ritual of the Church, and to regulate all matters relating to the form and mode of worship.

(9) To prescribe the method of acquisition, control, and disposition of the real and personal property of the Church and of all its branches.

(10) To govern the judicial administration of the Church, except as herein otherwise provided.

(11) To consider, and, if deemed wise, to disapprove of the decisions of the Judicial Council upon any constitutional question and to require its submission to the members of the Annual Conferences, the decision of a majority of whom, present and voting, shall be final thereon. (Recommended but not yet adopted.)

(12) To control and direct all connectional publishing, missionary, benevolent, and educational enterprises of the Church.

(13) To govern any and all other matters of a connectional character.

RESTRICTIONS.

Provided, (1) That the General Conference shall not revoke, alter, nor change our Articles of Religion, nor establish any new standards or rules of doctrine contrary to our present existing and established standards of doctrine.

(2) The General Conference shall not change nor alter any part or rule of our government so as to do away with Episcopacy, nor to do away with an itinerant General Superintendency.

(3) The General Conference shall not revoke nor change the general rules of our Church.

(4) The General Conference shall not deprive our ministers of the right of trial by the Annual Conference, or by a selected number thereof, nor of an appeal; nor shall it deprive our members of the right of trial by a committee of members of our Church, nor of an appeal.

(5) The General Conference shall not appropriate the produce of the Publishing House, or Book Concern, nor of the Chartered Fund, to any purpose other than for the benefit of the traveling, supernumerary and superannuated preachers, their wives, widows and children.

MEETINGS.

Section 3. (1) The General Conference shall meet in the month of April or May once in four years perpetually at such time and place as shall be fixed by the preceding General Conference, or by a commission to be appointed quadrennially by the General Conference; and the commission shall have power to change the place, a majority of the General Superintendents concurring.

(2) The General Superintendents may, by a two-thirds vote, and shall, when requested by a majority of the Annual Conferences, call a special session of the General Conference.

(3) When the time for the opening of the General Conference has arrived, one of the General Superintendents, designated by the Board of Bishops, shall take the chair and conduct the opening devotions of the session. Following the devotions, he shall direct the Secretary of the preceding General Conference, or in his absence, one of his assistants, to call the roll of the delegates-elect. The General Superintendents, before the General Conference convenes, shall elect from their own number one Bishop, or more, to preside during the session. The General Conference, upon organization, shall elect such other officers as shall be necessary.

VOTING.

Section 4. (1) The ministerial and lay delegates shall deliberate as one body; and, except as otherwise provided, shall vote as one body; but each delegate shall have the right to have his vote, or refusal to vote, recorded by name on the journal.

(2) One-fifth of either order of delegates—present and voting—may require a vote by orders, in which case it shall require the concurrence of the two orders to decide the matter under consideration, except that for changes in the Constitution a vote of two-thirds of the members of the General Conference, present and voting, shall be sufficient, as provided in Article X.

(3) One-fifth of those present and voting may require that a "yea" and "nay" vote be taken.

(4) Whenever a majority of each of two Regional delegations shall so request, a vote shall be taken on any pending motion or resolution, except amendments to the Constitution, by Regional delegations, and it shall require the concurrence of a majority of the Regional delegations—the members thereof voting as one body—to adopt said motion or resolution, provided, however, that no motion or resolution shall be adopted that does not receive a majority vote of the members of the General Conference present and voting.

QUORUM.

Section 5. Two-thirds of the members elected to the General Conference shall be necessary for a quorum, but a smaller number may adjourn from day to day, and at the final session may approve the journal, order and record the final roll call, and adjourn.

ARTICLE IX. THE JUDICIAL COUNCIL.

TITLE AND PURPOSE.

Section 1. There shall be, and hereby is, established a Judicial Council, whose decisions shall be final, except as herein otherwise provided.

COMPOSITION.

Section 2. The Judicial Council shall be composed of one ministerial and one lay member from each of the Regional Jurisdictions and three (3) members to be elected by the General Conference.

ELECTION.

Section 3. The ministerial and lay members from each Regional Jurisdiction shall be chosen by ballot by their respective orders in the several Regional Conferences, during the session of the General Conference, and the members shall be subject to confirmation by the General Conference.

TERM OF SERVICE.

Section 4. Members of the Judicial Council shall serve for eight (8) years, or until their successors are confirmed, and shall be subject to re-election. The term of each member (except as provided in section 10), shall expire at the close of the second General Conference succeeding that at which his term began; provided, that the ministerial members chosen at the first election from the even-numbered jurisdictions and the lay members chosen at the first election from the odd-numbered jurisdictions shall serve for four years, and their terms shall expire at the close of the General Conference next following that at which their terms began. It is provided, further, that the term of the members of the first Judicial Council shall begin at the time of their election and confirmation by the General Conference. (Recommended but not yet adopted.)

PROHIBITION IN MISSISSIPPI.

This book contains 230 pages, is printed on No. 1 book paper, and neatly bound in cloth. It contains the last word on the prohibition situation in Mississippi from territorial days down to September 1, 1917. It will be found of indispensable value to preachers, lawyers, Sunday School workers, and teachers in our literary schools. Indeed, no library in Mississippi, either public or private, will be complete without it, as it records in a vigorous, authoritative way the history of one of the greatest social, moral, and economic problems which has ever demanded solution at the hands of Mississippi patriots. Mailed, postage prepaid, for $1.25 cash.

REV. T. J. BAILEY, D.D.,
Box 314 JACKSON, MISS.

ELIGIBILITY.

Section 5. Members of the Judicial Council shall not be eligible to membership in the General or Regional Conferences, nor shall they hold any other connectional office, nor serve on any connectional board during their term. After the first election no member of the General or Regional Conference shall, during his term of service, be eligible to membership in the Judicial Council. No member of the Judicial Council shall hear, review or determine any case before the Judicial Council to which he may be in any way related, nor shall he sit in the Council while such case is being examined.

ORGANIZATION.

Section 6. The members of the Judicial Council shall convene at the close of each General Conference, and shall organize by choosing from their number, by ballot, a president and a secretary; provided, that the members of the first Judicial Council shall organize immediately upon their confirmation. The secretary shall keep a record of all proceedings, together with the records and documents in each case, with the decision and reasons for the same, and shall report such decisions to the parties involved and also to the succeeding General Conference. All decisions of the Judicial Council shall be in writing.

POWERS.

Section 7. (1) The Judicial Council shall have full power to review upon appeal on constitutional grounds the acts of the General and Regional Conferences, the records and documents transmitted to it from Judicial Conferences, to hear and determine questions of law and all other appeals coming to it in course of lawful procedure from Annual Conferences, from Judicial and Regional Conferences and from the General Conference; provided, that no appeal from any Conference shall be entertained unless the same has been taken by at least one-fifth of the Conference. (Recommended but not yet adopted.)

(2) The Judicial Council shall also have power to arrest an action of a connectional board or other connectional body, when such action is brought before it by appeal by one-fifth of the members of said body or by the General Superintendents. In all cases the decision of the Judicial Council shall be final; provided, that if on a constitutional question there shall be a majority vote of two-thirds of the members of the General Conference, disapproving a decision of the Judicial Council, its construction of the question involved shall then be sent to the Annual Conferences for final approval or disapproval, as provided in sub-section 11, Sec. 2, Article VIII, of the constitution. (Recommended but not yet adopted.)

GOVERNMENT.

Section 8. The Judicial Council shall prescribe rules and regulations for its government and methods of procedure for the hearing and disposition of appeals, which rules and methods shall be printed in the Discipline, and shall not be changed or altered during the quadrennium, without due notice.

QUORUM.

Section 9. Two-thirds of the Judicial Council shall constitute a quorum. Constitutional matters shall be decided by a majority vote of the entire Judicial Council. All other appeals shall be decided by a majority of those present and voting. (Recommended but not yet adopted.)

MEETINGS DURING QUADRENNIUM.

Section 10. The Judicial Council shall meet at the same time and place as the General Conference and shall continue in session until the final adjournment of the General Conference; provided, that if during the session of a General Conference the appeal of a Bishop is pending, the Judicial Council shall defer its time of adjournment until it disposes of said appeal.

The Judicial Council shall convene during each quadrennium at such times and places that it may deem necessary to hear and determine appeals.

VACANCIES.

Section 11. Vacancies shall be filled by the Judicial Council from the same order and jurisdiction in which the vacancy occurs, until the next meeting of the proper Regional or General Conference, which may then fill the vacancy for the balance of the unexpired term.

ARTICLE X. AMENDMENTS.

Section 1. The recommendation of two-thirds of all the members of the several Annual Conferences present and voting, shall suffice to authorize the next ensuing General Conference by a two-thirds vote of its members, present and voting, to alter or amend any of the provisions of this Constitution, and also whenever such alteration or amendment shall have been first recommended by a General Conference, by a two-thirds vote of its members, present and voting, then so soon as two thirds of all the members of the several Annual Conferences, present and voting, shall have concurred therein, provided that such concurrence shall take place previous to the meeting of the next ensuing General Conference, such alteration or amendment shall take effect; and the result of the vote shall be announced by the General Superintendents. (Not yet adopted.)

RECOMMENDATIONS.

1. We recommend that following the adoption of this Constitution, or within four years thereafter, the status of the Colored Central Conference Jurisdiction be submitted to the Annual and Lay Conferences of said jurisdiction for determination, and if a majority of the members of said Annual and Lay Conferences, present and voting, shall elect to accept the status of a Jurisdictional General Conference, said jurisdiction shall be recognized as such with all the privileges and powers of the same, otherwise the Colored Central Conference shall be recognized as a Central Conference. (Not yet adopted.)

2. We recommend that in organizing the Colored Central Conference or the Colored Jurisdictional General Conference the Commission invite the members of the Colored Methodist Episcopal Church and such other Methodist Episcopal church organizations composed of members of African descent to consider the feasibility and desirability of uniting themselves in the proposed organization. (Not yet adopted.)

THE STATUS OF THE UNION NEGOTIATIONS

report should be submitted to the General Conferences of the two Churches."

The Outlook.

But what of the present outlook for the two Commissions to get together in St. Louis? Of anything like a unanimous report by them, we do not think there is any prospect; but as to what a majority of the Commissions may do, we should not like to hazard a prediction. As we see it, so much of all that the Southern Church has stood for has been surrendered, that we shall henceforth be but little surprised at anything that may take place. By a formal resolution (which was published in last week's Nashville Christian Advocate) a majority of our Commissioners admitted that they had exceeded their authority and gone beyond anything embraced in the scope of the Plan of Unification endorsed by our General Conference at Oklahoma City. And Bishop Mouzon expressly stated: "We surrendered our original conception of Regional Conferences; we yielded the principle of representation for the colored man in the General Conference." (See Nashville Advocate of Feb. 15, Page 5.) And the report is current that some of the Southern Commissioners at Savannah were even inclined, in spite of their past assurances to the Church, to stand for leaving Negroes permanently in the General Conference, with both the right to debate and vote.

But a lack of space forbids us to go extendedly into these matters now. It is our purpose to discuss them fully within the next few weeks, showing the extent to which the Oklahoma plan has been departed from, and what we conceive to be the objections to the scheme of union now pending. As will be seen, the recommendation as to the Regional Conferences is exactly as we stated it to be in our issue of November 1, with the exception that they are differently numbered. The territory of the Southern Church is to be literally chopped to pieces in the heart of the South, and no adequate and stable protection for the minority has been provided.

And the General Conference will, under the present proposed arrangement, invariably have a heavy Northern majority. A distinguished Southern Commissioner stated at Traverse City that in the outset "two-thirds of the total number of delegates would amount to 471, and that the delegations from the present territory of the Methodist Episcopal Church would be 398, which would put them within 76 of having two-thirds of the General Conference, not including the representatives to come from the foreign-speaking Conferences in this country." "This comes," he declared, "perilously near putting our branch of the Church in the reorganized Church in the position of having a trifle less than one-third of the delegates to the General Conference." This utterance was not contradicted by anybody. All of these matters we shall lay bare later. In the meantime, let no Southern Methodist make up his mind about any of these issues until he shall have seen them exhaustively discussed and all the facts brought out. This is no time to be influenced by sentimental appeals. The situation is one which calls for calm, clear thought, and conclusions based upon solid reasoning.

MEETING OF TRUSTEES OF THE METHODIST HOSPITAL.

By T. B. King.

The Methodist Hospital Commissioners met in Memphis, Tuesday morning, February 5, 1918, in the office of the Financial Agent. Those present were: Rev. T. W. Lewis, Memphis, Tenn.; Rev. H. B. Johnston, Paris, Tenn.; Mr. L. M. Stratton, Memphis, Tenn.; Mr. T. K. Riddick, Memphis, Tenn.; Rev. J. T. Leggett, Brookhaven, Miss.; Rev. J. R. Jones, Gulfport, Miss.; Mr. P. H. Enochs, Fernwood, Miss.; Mr. L. N. Dantzler, Gulfport, Miss.; Mrs. C. R. McQueen, Meridian, Miss.; Rev. W. S. Lagrone, Drew, Miss.; Rev. J. C. Park, Starkville, Miss.; Mr. Jno. H. Sherard, Sherard, Miss.; Mr. W. T. Reaves, Tupelo, Miss.; Rev. J. K. Farris, Fort Smith, Ark.; Rev. J. R. Nelson, McCrory, Ark.; Mr. T. J. Boston, Earle, Ark.; and Mrs. Adah L. Roussan, Osceola, Ark.

The financial report made by the Agent was encouraging in that all but the last note against the property for purchase money had been paid off, and that there was nearly enough money in the bank to liquidate this one, thereby relieving the property of all encumbrances of every kind. This beautiful property, ideally located, is worth $100,000.

The Commissioners recognized the demand on the part of the members of the Methodist Conferences and others interested to proceed at once to the building of the new hospital and unanimously instructed the Building Committee and those directly in charge of that department to proceed at once to the adoption of plans and the making of a contract for the new building.

The Building Committee assured the Commissioners that the architect had been selected to draw the plans and that it was confidently believed that work would begin on the foundation some time during the month of May, if not sooner. While the high cost of material has been a hindering cause in the past, the greatest obstacles has been the inability to get labor, as well as material, at any price. This fact was accepted as reasonable grounds for not having the new building ready for occupancy.

The Commissioners adopted a charter, with the incorporators constituting the entire Board of Commissioners representing the four Annual Conferences that have joined together to build the hospital. The charter is broad and grants all the authority needed from a legal standpoint to build and operate a modern hospital, receive contributions and endowment therefor, and to do anything else that may be necessary to carry on a first-class institution of this kind. The charter was drawn by Hon. G. T. Fitzhugh, which fact is a guarantee that right of ownership and control to the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, is thoroughly safeguarded.

The report of the Financial Agent showed that during this year, 1918, $8600 had been added in new subscriptions to the hospital fund.

The Commissioners adjourned to meet again in Memphis, March 6, 1918, in order to complete the organization as required under the new charter.

Our Advocate Campaign.

LET THE GOOD WORK BE KEPT UP.

Our Advocate campaign continues to go forward encouragingly. We are most grateful to the brethren for the assistance that they are giving the Conference organ in this time of need. We trust that the good work will be kept up until the utmost possible is done to place the paper in all the Methodist families of Louisiana and Mississippi.

WORDS FROM THE FIELD.

Rev. H. P. Lewis, Jr., Madison Station, Miss., in forwarding us 3 subscriptions, encouragingly says: "This is just a beginning of our work for the paper."

Rev. Olin Ray, our promising young pastor at Tunica, Miss., gives us a fine list of 15 subscriptions (8 of them new), and says: "I hope to send more soon. I think that we shall have no trouble in securing the number apportioned to this charge."

Rev. W. N. Ware, of Walnut Grove, Miss., writes: "I am sending you my check for $22.50 to pay for 12 new and 3 renewal subscriptions. Twelve new ones are my quota; but I haven't got around yet, and I hope to get several more yet." This is a fine showing.

Rev. W. H. Lewis, Jackson, Miss., in forwarding a name for our subscription files, thus expresses himself: "I trust that the Advocate campaign will be a great success. I shall endeavor to keep the matter before my people."

Rev. C. A. Northington, pastor of the New Albany (Miss.) Circuit, gives us 45 subscriptions, and in his business letter says: "Thirteen of these are new; my allotment was only 10." So far Brother Northington and Rev. R. W. Tucker, of Crowley, La., have the blue ribbons as to the number of subscribers secured.

Rev. T. H. Lipscomb, presiding elder of the Aberdeen (Miss.) District, writes: "My preachers are evincing a real interest in securing the number of subscriptions to the Advocate apportioned to them, and I hope to see our quota come up as spring opens and they are able to get about among the people."

SOME RECEIPTS OF SUBSCRIPTIONS.

We are indebted to the following friends, to whom acknowledgment has not elsewhere been made, for two or more subscriptions, sent in since the last issue of the Advocate: Rev. T. C. Cooper, Ellisville, Miss., 1; Rev. J. W. Ramsey, New Augusta, Miss., 2; Rev. S. A. Brown, Leland, Miss., 5; Rev. B. P. Jaco, Lexington, Miss., 7; Rev. R. T. Pickett, Collins, Miss., 3; Rev. S. F. Harkey, Hesterville, Miss., 2; Rev. Jas. M. Lewis, Prentiss, Miss., 5; Dr. W. T. Johnson, Greenwood, Miss., 7; Dr. T. B. Holloman, Vicksburg, Miss., 7; Rev. T. J. Hopper, Abbeville, Miss., 8; Rev. W. The Great Battle

CHURCH LEADERS AND PROHIBITION.

By A. J. Gearheard.

There is no question before the American people that has such lasting possibilities as has the question of prohibition. On the final turning of this issue depends the future safety of the youth of our nation, and to a great extent the vitality of our Church. It is interesting to know just how the moral leaders of America are lining up on the issue. Cardinal Gibbons, speaking for Roman Catholics, gave to the press a few days since a bitter pronouncement against national prohibition. He voiced the stock arguments of the liquor dealers, stressing personal liberty and States' rights.

The Jewish Ledger, spokesman for Jewish thought in the South, published recently an editorial bitterly denouncing prohibition and taking to task a rabbi who has been somewhat active in the cause of prohibition. While there has been no unanimity of action on the part of the leaders of the Evangelical and the Lutheran denominations, those organizations have not taken any strong stand in favor of the proposed Constitutional Amendment. Thus, we see that the burden of moral leadership falls upon the Methodists, the Baptists, the Disciples of Christ, Presbyterians, and Episcopalians—the two last-named denominations being somewhat hindered by intense liberality toward things worldly on the part of the Episcopalians, and a natural timidity on the part of Presbyterians about bringing questions that smack of politics into the pulpit. This timidity constrains their influence to their private influence, which is to a man for prohibition.

I am proud of the part the great Methodist Church, both North and South, is taking in this reform. It would be easy to break into raptures of praise about our activity. Certainly the Baptists and Christians have fought and are fighting with shining steel, but their denominational organization does not give them the united front Methodism presents.

I have been much interested in the Jewish position. In Alexandria, La., Rabbi Leonard Rothstein has taken a positive stand in favor of prohibition. He has been attacked bitterly by the editor of The Jewish Ledger for his activity. Rabbi Rothstein has answered his accuser in the Ledger of February 8, and I append an excerpt from that answer, which is, perhaps, the strongest language ever used by a Jew in favor of abolishing the liquor traffic. The excerpt is as follows:

"Rabbis are often given to disagreeing with one another, but there is one subject upon which they seem to be almost a unit, and that is in their antagonism to prohibition. I am just wondering whether the fact that so many of our people are in the liquor business and that not infrequently the presidents of Jewish congregations are liquor dealers has anything to do with this attitude. Whatever be the explanation, permit me to say that it reflects little credit upon them. And I know of nothing that is better calculated to vitiate our claim as the 'Chosen People' than this constant excoriation of Prohibition and its protagonists. * * * What a fine evidence of our sincerity of purpose, of our own belief in the genuineness of our selection as moral guides it would be if we would say to the non-Jews: 'We like liquor. Our Bible permits us its use. We have indulged in it from time immemorial with impunity because we are a temperate people and never indulge to excess. But we see the stupendous amount of harm it has wrought for you. We know how your leaders have struggled to stay the curse of intemperance among you and have struggled in vain. We realize with you that as long as the traffic in liquor is permitted to continue just that long will this curse continue. We want to help you, we want to do all that we can to keep your people sober and healthy; therefore, we join forces with you in the fight against the saloon. We pledge you our whole-hearted support in your praiseworthy efforts to make prohibition a reality.'

"If we cannot, or will not, go as far as that let us at least maintain a discreet silence upon the subject. In God's name, and in the name of the faith we hold so dear, let us cease this senseless and humiliating campaign against prohibition, in which already too long too many of us have been engaged. We say we are moral and ethical leaders. Let us prove it, and we can do so in no more effective way than by ceasing to align ourselves with those forces that make for degradation and crime, than which there is none more prolific than liquor."

Church News

The Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions (Northern) has 1353 missionaries on its rolls.

Bishop W. A. Quayle is perhaps the most popular lecturer in the Methodist Episcopal Church.

The Baptists of Louisiana are endeavoring to raise $60,000 for their Sanitarium at Alexandria.

Bishop Collins Denny left Richmond, Va., his home city, last week for an official visit to Mexico.

Dr. J. W. Lee, of St. Louis, has been invited by the McMillan Company, the well known New York publishers, to prepare for them a book on the city of Jerusalem.

The place of the meeting of the Woman's Missionary Council of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, has been changed from Louisville, Ky., to Knoxville, Tenn. The date is April 3-11.

Dr. L. C. Branscomb, Editor of the Alabama Christian Advocate, has recently been sorely bereaved in the death of a little daughter. He has the sympathy of many friends in his great sorrow.

Rev. W. A. Borum, D. D., the well known Mississippi Baptist minister, has resigned as pastor of the First Baptist Church of Jackson, Miss., to become the Financial Agent of the Baptist Hospital located in that city.

The Christian Intelligencer, an organ of the Dutch Reformed Church, has lately changed its form to a smaller and more handy size. This is a New York publication, and one of the best of our exchanges.

There were 8033 additions to the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in the State of North Carolina last year, but the net gain was only 2384. The Raleigh Christian Advocate thinks that there was too great a loss, from some cause.

Col. E. C. Reeves, of Johnson City, Tenn., after attending the meeting of the Commission on the Unification of American Methodism lately held at Savannah, Ga., went to Florida to spend some time with relatives. Col. Reeves is one of the ablest of the Southern Commissioners.

Dr. F. P. Culver was taken from the Austin Avenue Church of Waco, Texas, and assigned to First Church, Fort Worth, left vacant by the tragic death of Dr. A. L. Andrews. Rev. Robert E. Goodrich, stationed in St. Joseph, Mo., has been appointed to serve the Waco congregation left pastorless by the removal of Dr. Culver.

Dr. George F. Pentecost, 76 years old, was recently installed as pastor of the famous Bethany Church of Philadelphia. Dr. Pentecost has long been known as one of America's outstanding preachers. Mr. John Wanamaker, who also is an old man, is still the superintendent of the large Sunday school maintained by this congregation.

The Church News Association (New York) says: "The movement for men in Bible classes, always in connection with Sunday schools, started some twelve years ago, and there are now 68,000 classes registered with the Association, besides many other classes existing, but not registered. The number of men in these classes exceeds 2,500,000. The religious bodies contributing the largest numbers of men are, in order, the Disciples of Christ, the Presbyterians, the Methodists, and the Baptists."

The railroads of the United States earned in 1917 about $958,000,000, which will be approximately the sum that our Government will have to pay the roads as compensation under national operation.

ANOTHER OPEN LETTER.

By Rev. T. B. Holloman, D.D.

In the Advocate of February 7th appears a communication entitled "An Open Letter to the General Conference Delegates of the Mississippi Conference," which both surprised and grieved me. For forty-four years I have counted it an honor to be a member of that body, and eleven times I have participated in the election of delegates to the General Conference. Occasionally I've heard charges of "politics," but this comes with a smack of political maneuvering suggestive more of the "secret caucus" than anything I've ever heard. Throughout the entire article there is a threat of intimidation unbecoming our Christianity and our great Church. Such expressions as "digging ecclesiastical graves" and "tolling funeral bells" may be tolerated in connection with political conventions, but are scarcely to be thought of in connection with the spirit of Christ and his Apostles. Unbecoming suggestion is made in this sentence, addressed to our delegates, "Since you are men of laudable aspirations, presumably you would like to succeed yourselves four years hence." Shades of Lamar, who treated political honors as baubles when personal honor, integrity, and conception of right were in the balance! It is befitting that that chapter in his history as a great statesman, and one whom Mississippi delights to honor even to this day, should be read again. Another improper insinuation is made in the statement that "some (two) delegates to the last General Conference did not succeed themselves, because they were guilty of class legislation." Indeed! Who's to be the judge? This writer recalls nothing to warrant such a statement and doubts if the writer of "The Open Letter" can substantiate his declaration. However, I'm not set for the defense of these worthy brethren. They are fully able to take care of themselves.

The very fact that the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, consented to treat upon the question of unification at all, makes it evident, or should do so to every reasonable man, that there is merit in the case, and the fact that some of our greatest leaders and Bishops have consented to serve on the Commission stamps the movement as other than mere child's play—"my doll rags and home, if you don't play as I say." Then if there be merit in the case, wherein is the reason in practically saying to our delegates: no matter how fair the proposition, no matter what the concessions, no matter even though our own terms might be accepted, you are bound by iron-ribbed instructions not to accept—in other words, play the farce in the whole matter.

The writer reminds the delegation that it should stand upon the Oklahoma platform if it represents fairly the sentiment of the Mississippi Conference, and yet there is intimation that there shall be no right of personal convictions or reasonable conclusions. I believe it was the great Henry Clay who once said he'd rather be right than to be president, and it was L. Q. C. Lamar who said in voting against the silver bill that he was voting his convictions as a legislator and thinker. I have such confidence in the integrity, good sense and loyalty of our delegation that I must repudiate the insinuation that they shall have no right of independent thought or action. (It might be in place here to state that I voted for three of the four on every ballot, and am perfectly satisfied with the entire delegation.)

The writer calls attention to the several ballots had before the delegation was completed—yes, there were eight, and it is also very significant that none who were elected received majorities as to boast of—and, as one of those majorities, I believe I voice the sentiment of the body when I say we are willing to trust our men to do the right without any threat that they may dig their "ecclesiastical graves" or "sound their funeral bells." Those who have read my contributions on the subject of unification know my position, but be it far from us to muzzle any self-respecting man.

The Home Circle

WHEN HE GROWS.

I wonder when it is I grow!
It's in the night, I guess.
My clothes go on so very hard
Each morning when I dress.

Nurse says they're plenty big enough;
It's cause I am so slow.
But then she never stops to think
That children grow and grow.

I wonder when! I can't find out.
Why, I watch Tommy Pitt
In school for hours and I can't see
Him grow the smallest bit.

I guess that day we stay the same.
There's so much else to do
In school and play, so I must grow
At night, I think. Don't you?

GUSSIE'S HYACINTH.

Gussie Magee heard the news in school and he immediately raised his hand, saying, "I'll be one of 'em."

Hastening home to his mother, he said, "Muvver, there'e a rich gentleman has sent a lot of hyacinth bulbs down to our school and the boy or gyurl as grows' em the best is goin' to get a prize. I'm goin' ter be the boy."

"Very likely, ain't it?" said his mother.

"Very," he answered. "Where can I find a pot?"

His mother stared.

"The flower pot, I mean, muvver, to put the bulb in."

"I ain't got none," she answered, and returned to her work.

"Muvver," coaxingly, "lend me a cent until saturday. I'll hold some one's bag and give it yer back. I must have a pot or I can't put this 'ere bulb in."

"Can't," she said, "I've no money to waste."

"You'd giv' it ter dad if 'e wanted it fer a drink."

"I'd have ter," she replied, briefly. "That's why I can't give it to you. A flower pot's a luxshery."

"Luxshery or not, I'm goin' ter git it," he said, and went out, looking round with sharp eyes for a pot, but it wasn't there to see.

"I've got ter make one, I suppose," he muttered, and into the first florist's he saw he went, and tapped with his finger on the counter.

The man came out and Gussie stood there and smiled.

"Well," said the man at last, "what do you want?"

"I want a flower pot, but I can't pay fer it, so I'll run an errand fer yer," said Gussie. "Don't mind how fer it is. I want to earn that flower pot. Chink's scarce at home. I'll post yer a letter, take out a parcel—anythin' yer like—fer a cent. I'll do it twice fer a cent, and four times if ye'll giv' me the mould in."

The man smiled. "What's it for?" he asked.

"Hyacinth! Prize! Two dollars!" said Gussie.

"Right you are," said the man. "You can have a pot and welcome, just to encourage you."

"I ain't beggin'," said Gussie. "I'm strong. I'll work it out." And the man let him.

So he got his pot, put in his bulb, and began the care of that flower every day, and every night dreamt what he'd do with the prize money. It needed a lot of care, but Gussie's father came home one evening in a state that he could not see straight, and he knocked the beautiful thing over. In the morning when Gussie got up it lay there in pieces.

Gussie set his lips and forgot to whistle for some days. One day as he was passing the florist's the man stood in the doorway.

"How's the hyacinth?" he cried.

"Dead," said Gussie. "Got knocked down."

"Oh, accident?" said the man.

"Yes,' Gussie answered. "Public-house accident."

The florist stood there watching Gussie's sorrowful face, then, as the boy moved to go the florist stopped him, saying "Come in a minute. How old are you?"

"Why, d'yer want a boy?" cried Gussie. "I'm ready fer yer."

"Stop a minute," said the florist. "I'll tell you what I'll do. You deserved that prize. I'll take you on Saturdays, and give you fifty cents every Saturday for four weeks. Afterwards we'll see."

Gussie has been there now many more than four weeks, so you see, dear children, the Lord saw to it that even that which nearly broke his heart opened a door to something better.—Lutheran.

ODD MOMENTS.

"Mother, how soon will dinner be ready?" asked Louise impatiently.

"In just about ten minutes," responded mother in cheery tones.

"O dear, I do so hate the half hour before meals! I simply can't get settled to do anything." And Louise proceeded to lounge comfortably in a big chair.

Just then her sister, Frances, bounded into the room. "Did I hear mother say that dinner would be ready in ten minutes? There, I had planned to use the fifteen minutes before each mealtime for special memorizing in music, and here five of them have gone already!"

To some people the odd moments in the day are a bore; to others they are precious. Splendid opportunities have been overlooked in the odd moments; wonderful results have been accomplished. A great deal depends on the individual.

If there are certain periods in the day which you dread, make up your mind to have some special work for them. Just before dinner is a splendid time to do brainwork. Difficult problems have often been solved then; the finer points in education have been mastered. The time that most people throw away others use for some special advantage.

Try filling these spots with a definite purpose, and you will be surprised how quickly the minutes pass.—The Visitor.

THE CLEAN MOUTH.

A distinguished author says: "I resolved when a child never to use a word which I could not pronounce before my mother." He kept his resolution and became a pure-minded, noble, honored gentleman. His rule and example are worthy of imitation by every boy.

Boys readily learn a class of low, vulgar words and expressions which are never heard in respectable circles. Of course, we cannot imagine a decent girl using words she would not utter before her father, or teacher, or most esteemed friend.

Such vulgarity is thought by some boys to be "smart," the next thing to "swearing," and yet "not so wicked." But it is a habit which leads to profanity and fills the mind with evil thoughts. It vulgarizes and degrades the soul and prepares the way for many of the gross and fearful sins which now corrupt society.—Unidentified.

A JEWISH FLAG.

It may be for the first time since the Maccabean wars that a Jewish flag has been borne in front of Jewish soldiers, as is now the case in the present war. Jewish volunteers from Galicia have imitated their Polish countrymen and have chosen a national flag for the battles in Russia. On a blue field it shows in white the Mogen David—the shield of David—In it the first name of the Emperor Franz Josef, and round it in Hebrew "Immanuel" and "O Lord, give victory." Blue and white are suitable colors for a Jewish flag, as we find these two colors prominent in the sanctuary of Israel. White represents purity, blue the color of heaven. The shield of David has been used from time immemorial as a sign of recognition among the Jews. Emperor Charles gave to the Jews of Prague a standard with the Mogen David, which is in existence to-day. The Jewish organizations for the care of the sick and wounded have this sign instead of the Red Cross, as have also the field rabbis.—From the Missionary Review of the World.

WELL SAID.

The New York Christian Advocate has recently given a very candid statement of its position on unification. A running controversy has been carried on between that Journal and Zion's Herald on certain features of unification since the sitting of the Commission at Traverse City, Mich. The latter contends for a separate General Conference for the Negro, while the New York Advocate wishes to keep them as they are at present in the Northern Church. Zion's Herald has recently taken a straw vote of the members of their General Conference with reference to their attitude toward the Negro. He has answers from a little more than half the members and in the votes cast his scheme for a separate General Conference for the Negro was sustained by a good majority. It is worthy of note that there was a rather strong vote for an entirely independent Church for the Negro. In our judgment, the latter is the wisest, most religious thing to do. It will be vastly better for all concerned. Anything else will create trouble, involve embarrassing complications, promote factions and dissensions, and be an unending troubler of the peace of Zion. Let us have an ecclesiastical emancipation proclamation for the Negro!—Raleigh Christian Advocate.

IMPROVE COLLEGE.

Modern Dormitory to Cost $60,000 Will Be Erected Soon.

Grenada, Miss., Feb. 12.—There was a very important convocation at Grenada College yesterday afternoon, when the Board of Trustees of the College met to consider the matter of erecting a new dormitory for that now crowded Institution.

There were present: Judge J. G. McGowen of Water Valley, President; E. M. Fant of Holly Springs, H. K. Barwick and Dr. J. W. Sharp of Grenada, and the following ministers: Revs. B. P. Jaco of Lexington, E. S. Lewis of Greenville, W. S. Shipman of Itta Bena, and J. H. Felts of Holly Springs.

There was no debate about the advisability of the new building, and accordingly it was determined to erect the same and that work to that end should begin at a very early day.

The proposed structure is to cost about $60,000 and will be one of the most modern college dormitories in the South. Every room is to have a bathroom and lavatory.

The outlook for this old and honored institution was never brighter.

Only recently the field agent, Rev. T. M. Brownlee, has secured very handsome donations for the college from members of the Conference, several running up as high as $5000.

Another addition to the college which is soon to be a reality is a library building.

The following were named as a special building committee: Rev. J. R. Countiss, President of the College; Rev. R. A. Tucker, pastor of the local church, and Hon. E. M. Fant, H. K. Barwick and T. E. Heath. Another important action of the trustees was the election of President Countiss for another term of five years.—Memphis Commercial Appeal.

WAR CONDITIONS
—REFLECTED IN—
TELEPHONE SERVICE

Among the unforeseen conditions which the war has imposed upon us is the necessity of practically suspending the commercial development of our business.

Confronted with an unusual increase in the use of the telephone and a strong demand for new and additional service, we cannot accept or fill orders except subject to practically an indefinite delay.

This situation is due to the importance of conserving our supplies so that the government's requirements may be promptly met by giving the War Department service anywhere and at any time the request is made.

A DANGER POINT.

Is there any organization that ean eontinue to exist and flourish without guarding its entrance door; without taking eare to see that those admitted into it are in sympathy witb its purposes and are of a kind who will give it support? What, for instanee, would beeome of the Masonie fraternity it it should take in just anybody and tolerate any kind of warfare that reealeitrant members might wage against it? Manifestly it would soon be in a bad eondition. Herein, in our opinion, has been the weakness of some branches of the Christian Chureh. In their lust for members they have eagerly weleomed all who eould be indueed to beeome conneeted with them, paying but little attention to the important matter of true eligibility to membership. The result is that the worldly element in them has beeome strong, and it is to be feared in some eongregations dominant, while Chureh vows are treated by many as if they were of no eonsequenee. Suеh a situation is truly deplorable, and about the only remedy for it is a genuine revival, and a wise insistence that Church membership must be magnified and made to mean more in the future.

SOME OBJECTIONS TO THE ROGERS' SCHEME.

In view of the fact that a majority of the Southern Commissioners on Unification voted for the Rogers' scheme of disposing of the Northern Methodist Negroes in the proposed reorganized Churcli, we desire to state briefly what we eoneeive to be some of the serious objeetions to that suggested arrangement (though the Northern Commissioners would not aeeept even these extraordinary eoneessions).

1. It would leave the Negroes in the white General Conference, with both a voiee and vote, for an indefinite period of time. True, that representation (upon the suggested basis) would not be large, but the prineiple involved would be the same. To be sure, it is provided that when they shall grow to the number of 600,000 they shall be gathered into a general Conferenee of their own. Many years—perhaps a quarter or a half eentury—would pass before they would seeure that many members (they now number something like 340,000, and have gained sinee 1884—33 years ago—only about 140,000); and, furthermore, a eomplieation might arise from the faet that the Negroes of the Church, North, might not be willing to be thus segregated, and, sinee they have full legal rights in that denomination, it is doubtful whether they eould be foreed into any suеh separate organization. Judge Henry W. Rogers, of New Haven, Conn., is reported to have argued before the Unifieation Commission that they could be legally eompelled to accept a separate General Conferenee; but that is merely the opinion of one lawyer. Tbere are others, perhaps quite as eompetent, who hold the view that the Negroes in the Methodist Episeopal Church eould not be thus diseriminated against if they should see fit to resist the effort by an appeal to the eourts. Certainly Judge Rogers' position is eontrary to praetically all former statements by Northern Methodists pertaining to this question. Thus in his issue of January 23, the able Editor of the Western Christian Advoeate (Cineinnati) said:

"First, such action eannot be given legal support. The Negro is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, enjoys its rights and privileges, whieh cannot be taken away from him without his eonsent. He has an interest in all the properties and enterpris s of the Church and eontributes to their support, not only with his money, but his personal bopes and spiritual ambitions. Should any group or party seek to terminiate his membership or READJUST HIS RELATION THERETO WITHOUT HIS CONSENT he could appeal to the civil courts, whieh, without doubt, would issue an injunction against any such procedure. The Methodist Episcopal Chureh eannot dispose of the Negro. With this absolute impossibility, it is, to say the least, impraeticable and unwise to rest the eonsummation of unification on that one condition."

Thus, it will be seen that this proposed eontingent arrangement would be fraught with uneertainty, and might have the effect of ensnaring the Church, South, into an allianee suеh as she would not tbink of entering if all involved were plainly in view in the outset, but from whieh it would be impossible to reeede after she had gone into it.

Furthermore, we may well ask ourselves the question, if we can afford to place our Church in such an attitude as might make her the proseeutor in a movement to foree the Negro contingent of the Church, North, into a subsidiary position whieh they and many of the white Northern Methodists (possibly a majority) might not desire to see established. This, as we see it, would be a most unenviable role for Southern Methodists to have to perform. It would likely draw upon them bitter eriticism from all the publie of the North that might be hostile to suеh an arrangement. If the Negroes of the Methodist Episcopal Church are to be plaeed in a separate General Conferenee, why should the setting up of that arrangement be postponed? We ean see no speeial merit in the 600,000 mark—they would now have in a separate Associate Jurisdietion 100,000 more members than has the C. M. E. Chureh. So, why not effeet this adjustment of matters before uniting the two Churehes? Why drag the Church, South, into an allianee with the Chureh, North, with all of these eontingencies to be worked out afterwards, thus leaving things in an unsettled and uneertain state, and probably paving the way for contention and trouble in the future? There is nothing in the talk about the automatie "SHALL" in this ease. No provision, however imperative, ean enforee itself. It takes the aetion of agents to exeeute it, whieh may always be resisted if there is any basis for opposition.

2. It should also be earefully noted that even if the Negroes should be sueeessfully gathered into an Assoeiate General Counеil finally, there would be Negro representation (without a vote) in the white General Conferenee; a Negro on the Judieial Counеil to help pass upon white legislation; and a number of Negroes, proportionate to the strength of their Chureh membership, on praetieally all the General Boards of the United Chureh, thus giving a Northern and Negro majority on praetieally all of these great and powerful administrative bodies. Moreover, sinee the Negroes would be under the eommon eonstitution of the united Chureh, and would have representation on the Judieial Counеil, presumably they would have a vote on all questions involving eonstitutional changes, along with the whites. Are Southern Methodists willing to stand for all this?

3. Still another objection to this scheme is, that it would in all likelihood bar the way to the uniting of the Negro Methodists of the United States. Bishop Phillips' article, which we published last week, clearly indicated that he does not believe that the C. M. E. Church would be inelined to go into suеh an arrangement. Much less so, probably, would be tbe other great Negro independent Churches. Even Bishop Mouzon, who is eonsidered one of two or three most extreme unionists on the Southern Commission, stated in the Nashville Advocate last week that he regarded an independent Negro Chureh "as the only way whereby to hold out any hope for the unification of the bodies of colored Methodists." Shall that hope be flung to the winds, when a union of Negro Methodists is more needed than that of a union of white Methodists?

A RESPECTFUL REQUEST.

Dr. T. N. Ivey, editor of the Nashville Christian Advocate, eontinues to speak of the "LARGE" number of eolored Methodists in our Church, and of the possibility that we may soon be embarrassed by Negro delegates knocking at the door of our General Conference for seats therein. He stated that in his paper last week that there are "LARGE" numbers of suеh eommunieants in Cuba and Brazil and some in Afriea.

His "Year-BOOK"—1917—shows that we have in Cuba (ineluding whites and all others) 4066 members, and in Brazil 6603. The number in Afriea did not appear to be large enough to be given a plaee in the Doctor's "Year-Book." In the light of these statisties, we would respectfully ask Dr. Ivey to give us the preeise figures showing the number of eolored members in our denomination, and to state where they are. We can then form some idea of what the Doctor means by his indefinite expression "LARGE NUMBERS."

Is it not a bit strange that the possibility of our Chureh being soon embarrassed by these "LARGE NUMBERS" of eolored members sending delegates to the General Conferenee was never mentioned in the public prints until the union agitation appeared to be in sore straits? But we will not argue the question of the seriousness of this situation until our worthy eonfrere had had an opportunity to give us the figures upon which he is basing his alarm.

As regards the Southern Presbyterians, whom the Doetor eites to us as an example of having eolored representatives in their assembly, they are already taking steps to gather the eomparitlvely few Negro members that they have into a separate Chureh, as the Cumberland Presbyterians and Southern Baptists did long ago. Morcover, as respeets the Episeopal Chureh, its government is largely dioeesan, and not connectional, as is ours. For instanee, no Bishop, white or Negro suffragan, could be forced upon Mississippi or Louisiana without the eonsent of the Episeopalians of those States. On the other hand, in the proposed reorganized Methodist Chureh a Northern majority could, through the General Conference, govern anywhere within its bounds. There are not enough Negroes in the Protestant Episcopal Church, nor are there likely ever to be enough, to make the Negro question embarrassing for that denomination in either its general Chureh assemblies or loeally in the Southern States. The Negroes are mostly Baptists and Methodists, and both of the Southern branches of these Churehes have adjudged it to be wise for their eolored members to be in separate and independent organizations. And all the logic of history (what the Negroes have aehieved in the independent bodies, etc.) sustains this view.

WHY NOT USE THEM?

The year is swiftly passing, and, so far as our knowledge extends, but little revival work is going on in the Advoeate's territory. Why not keep our Conference evangelists busy? Surely, in appointing them to be revivalists we must have intended to use them, not to shelve them. So, let us open the way for them to reaeh and save the lost without delay. The Holy Spirit can work in the winter and early spring as well as in the summer months. Our Conferenee evangelists in Mississippi and Louisiana are: Rev. J. H. Bell, Columbus, Miss.; Rev. J. A. Bowen, Tupelo, Miss.; Rev. J. V. Bennett, Brookhaven, Miss.; Rev. W. T. Griffin, Summit, Miss.; Rev. D. E. Kelly, Hattiesburg, Miss.; Rev J. S. Duke, Jaekson, Miss., and Rev. H. T. Young, Jena, La. These brethren are open to engagements now.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

Keep this issue of the Advocate. You will probably have occasion to refer often to the pending plan of unification which it contains within the next few weeks.

Rev. R. G. Lord, of Water Valley, Miss. (Main Street Church), writes: "Everything is progressing finely with us. These people know how to treat a pastor. The outlook generally is encouraging."

Rev. J. L. Carter, of McHenry, Miss., sends 4 new and 2 renewal subscriptions, for which he has our thanks. He states that he is well settled in his new field, and that the prospect is encouraging.

Rev. A. F. Vaughan is planning to hold revival services during the Easter season at Carrollton Avenue Church, this city, of which he is pastor. Brother Vaughan will be assisted by Rev. C. V. Breithaupt.

Rev. W. N. Dodds, of Verona, Miss., writes enthusiastically of his work. He speaks in most appreciative terms of his people, and regrets that this is his fourth year with them, which he is striving to make the best of all.

Rev. H. E. Raley, our pastor on the Meridian Circuit, sends us 3 subscriptions to the Conference organ, and in his business letter says: "We are planning for some great meetings in the year 1918. Our work has opened up well."

Rev. C. A. Northington, our pastor on the New Albany (Miss.) Circuit, who is a leader, not a trailer, in Church work, says: "Everything is going well with us. I have secured all our Conference collections, except three items."

"Things look brighter up this way." So writes our worthy pastor at Eupora and Maben, Rev. H. M. Young, in a communication bringing us 4 new subscriptions. The Editor thanks Brother Young for a kindly invitation to visit his charge.

Rev. W. W. Bruner, of Pleasant Hill, Miss., sends us 4 subscriptions to the Advocate, and thus refers to his work: "Everything is moving along finely, considering the winter that we have had. I hope to send you more subscriptions soon."

Rev. W. M. Williams, our faithful pastor at Collins, Miss., has brought us under obligations to him for another list of 5 subscriptions. This makes for Brother Williams a total of 5 new subscriptions and 5 renewals; and he says, "I will send more soon."

We regret to be informed that Rev. C. R. A. Brantley, our pastor at Vardaman, Miss., has been confined to his bed for nearly two weeks with a serious liver trouble. Let us pray for the speedy recovery of this faithful servant of Christ and the Church.

Rev. Henry T. Young, evangelist of the Louisiana Conference, was scheduled to begin a meeting at Gilbert, La., where Rev. J. R. Roy is pastor, on February 10. We hope that one of these brethren will write the Advocate concerning the results of these services.

The Louisiana Wesley Bible Class Federation will be held in Mansfield, La., March 13-14. An excellent program has been arranged for the occasion. See Brother Breithaupt's statement on page 12 of this issue of the Advocate. By all means, lay your plans to be there.

The Louisiana Orphanage Visitor is on our desk, brimful of interesting matter. We are pleased to note that the movement to raise funds for the new buildings at this institution is making successful headway, more than $20,000 having been secured. Let the good work go on!

Rev. T. H. Lipscomb, presiding elder of the Aberdeen (Miss.) District, writes: "The Aberdeen District Conference will be held at Tupelo, Miss., March 29-31, including the 5th Sunday. Bishop W. B. Murrah will preside and also preach on the Sabbath, which will be Easter Sunday.

Rev. W. M. Commander and family, including his sister, the widow of the late Rev. A. P. Leech, are comfortably domiciled in the new parsonage, recently purchased, at Algoma, Miss. Brother Commander has for years been doing excellent work in the North Mississippi Conference.

Rev. R. M. Evans is pleased with his new field at Isola, Miss., and is hopeful of a good year. The interests of the Advocate are on his heart, and his letter brought us 2 subscriptions to begin with. We always feel that we can count on Brother Evans, who is truly a man of God and a faithful worker.

The Methodists of Pontotoc, Miss., have recently bought an excellent house, splendidly located, for a parsonage. After some improvements are made upon it, Rev. W. M. Young and his family will move into it. Those who know Brother Young will not be surprised to learn that he is held in very high esteem by his growing flock.

Rev. F. L. Crowson, of Webster, Fla., writes as follows: "I should appreciate an opportunity to hold two meetings within the bounds of my old Mississippi Conference the latter part of July and in August. If any brother feels that he can use me, let him write me." We are grateful to Brother Crowson for words commendatory of the Advocate.

Rev. O. L. Savage, of Webb, Miss., has given us 11 new subscriptions to the Advocate from his charge, thus exceeding his quota of 10. He has secured his Conference and Home Missionary assessments ($92) and $17 for the Conference Sunday School Field Secretary. Brother Savage says: "Our people are doing all that could be expected for our comfort."

Dr. S. A. Steel, our eloquent pastor at Mansfield, La. (and perhaps the most brilliant orator in the entire Church), is giving his congregation a series of mid-week (Wednesday evening) addresses on "The Family." The Methodists of Mansfield are highly favored in being able to wait on the ministry of Dr. Steel. How we wish that we could share with them that privilege!

We are in receipt of the following wedding announcement: "At the residence of Mr. J. E. Townsend, at Pineville, La., Mr. Charles L. Coddon and Miss Mamie Sheppard were married on Feb. 9, 1918, Rev. R. V. Fulton officiating. The bride is a daughter of Rev. and Mrs. B. H. Sheppard, of the Louisiana Conference." The Advocate extends congratulations and best wishes.

We have received the following notice, signed by Mrs. J. W. Conger, President, and Mrs. G. C. Jones, Secretary: "The sixth annual meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society of the North Mississippi Conference, M. E. Church, South, will be held in Greenville, Miss., March 1-4, 1918. Please send names of delegates to Mrs. John G. Archer, Chairman of Entertainment Committee."

We have before us the following note from Rev. E. Nash Broyles, of Macon, Miss., Treasurer of the Board of Education of the North Mississippi Conference: "I have just received from Rev. S. L. Pope a check for the educational assessment on First Church, Columbus. This is the second remittance for this cause that has reached me this Conference year." Good for Brother Pope and his fine congregation!

Rev. James G. Galloway, of Forest, Miss., sends us 14 subscriptions to the Advocate, 4 of which are new. Brother Galloway says: "I will continue to press the canvass for the paper here and at Morton. Notwithstanding the bad weather and the fact that there has been much sickness in the community, our work has started off well." We are grateful to Brother Galloway for this fine work in behalf of the Conference organ.

Rev. W. B. Baker, of Sherman, Miss., says: "Our work is progressing nicely. Sherman is one of the nicest little towns on the Frisco railway between Birmingham and Memphis. We have a very fine people to serve. They know how to treat their pastor and are loyal to the Church. I am sending you a list of 6 new and 7 renewal subscriptions. I hope to send you others soon." We take off our hat to Brother Baker for this good service to our paper.

Rev. George Fox, of Bunkie, La., who has lately been successfully pressing the claims of the Advocate in his rounds, sends us the following message: "The Bunkie charge was this year changed from a circuit to a station; and it is by all odds the choicest little station in the Louisiana Conference. I feel that in being assigned to it I was favored beyond my deserts." We dare say that if the Bunkie people were consulted they would non-concur in this last statement.

Rev. Olin Ray, of Tunica, Miss., writes: "We are getting along finely up this way. These pretty days are making us feel good, and the attendance at church is much more encouraging. We are sorry to lose Dr. L. L. Minor, who is moving to his home near Memphis. There is no choicer official to be found anywhere in the Church than Dr. Minor, and he and his family will be greatly missed in the beautiful little church which was largely made possible by their efforts."

The following telegram from Houston, Texas, reached the Advocate office Monday of this week: "Mrs. Lizzie A. Davis, wife of Rev. R. A. Davis, a superannuated member of the Louisiana Conference, died on February 17, at 2:33 o'clock a. m." It is with sincere sorrow that we chronicle this sad occurrence. Brother Davis will have the sympathy and prayers of many friends in his sore bereavement. We hope that some one will send the Advocate a fitting memoir of the deceased.

Miss Mary Wilkinson, aged 11, granddaughter of the late Bishop John C. Keeper, died last Thursday afternoon, Feb. 14, 1918, at her residence, on Elm street, near Carrollton avenue, this city, and was buried from the Carrollton Avenue M. E. Church, South, of which she was a member, on last Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. W. W. Holmes, presiding elder, and Rev. A. F. Vaughan, her pastor, conducted the funeral service, and the remains were interred in the family tomb in Lafayette Cemetery No. 1, on Washington avenue.

Rev. F. H. McGee, of Crenshaw, Miss., sends us the following note: "Considering the inclement weather, our work is progressing well. We have received 9 persons into the Church since Conference. This is our first year in the Delta. The water is fine. We now have plans under way to build a new church at Sledge. We will begin work on it in April. We are with you on the unification issue. I am enclosing one new and 6 renewal subscriptions to the Advocate." Thank you, Brother McGee.

Writing from the University of Mississippi, Rev. Julian S. Duncan, who is serving his first charge, the Oxford Circuit, says: "I have had pretty hard weather to start out on, but the people have been wonderfully good to me. I am confident that, by the grace of God, we are going to have a good year. So far, I have missed only one appointment, but the congregations have been rather slim." Our young friend's letter brought us three names for the Advocate's mailing files, one of which was a new one.

Rev. Wm. Schuhle, our scholarly pastor at Logansport, La., remembers us with some subscriptions and in his business letter appends the following note: "We had a kindly reception here and the outlook is good. The Woman's Missionary Societies both here and at Longstreet have a splendid work projected and they will carry it through. Our genial presiding elder, Rev. C. D. Atkinson, has been here and left us all touched with sunshine. It is just 22 miles to Mansfield; so you see Steel is handy."

Rev. H. R. McKee, our energetic young pastor at Rose Hill, Miss., forwarded to us on Feb. 6 two new subscriptions, which makes four that he has recently secured. Brother McKee says: "This is my fourth year on this charge, and I desire to make it the best one of my quadrennium. The stewards have raised the assessment for the pastor $170. We have recently liquidated a small indebtedness on the parsonage, and are paying some debts of long standing on churches. We have some excellent people on this work."

Sister McCullough, wife of the late Rev. W. D. McCullough of the North Mississippi Conference, writes us as follows from Belzoni, Miss.: "I recently noticed in the Advocate a call for the names of Methodist ministers' sons in the Army and Navy. Dr. W. A. McCullough, one of my sons, has been commissioned as a First Lieutenant, and Jesse H. McCullough, another son, as a Sergeant. G. B. McCullough, my eldest son, volunteered in April of last year, but was not accepted because of overweight. What the draft will do with him, as he is within the prescribed age, we do not yet know. It seems that my faith in God is about all I have left; but he says, 'My grace is sufficient for thee.' Both of my soldier sons are members of the M. E. Church, South. Pray for me and mine."

Rev. Chas. D. McGehee, our gifted young pastor at Indianola, Miss., thus reports: "I am glad to say that everything is moving along well here at Indianola. I have received 30 persons into the Church since Conference, most of them adults and among the best people in the community. The pastor's salary has been increased $300, making it $1500. We will have all the Conference assessments paid in full by the time of the district conference. We have a wonderful people here in Indianola—I never saw better. For the enclosed list of 17 subscriptions (12 of them new), you are indebted to the efforts of Mrs. E. H. Smith, one of our mainstays among the ladies." We extend our thanks both to Brother McGehee and Sister Smith for this good work for our paper. Indianola has certainly started off the work of the new year in fine style.

TO OUR SUBSCRIBERS.

The little pink or yellow address label on the copy of the Advocate which you receive weekly shows your name and address, and the date of expiration of your subscription. Dec.1917 indicates that your subscription expired Dec. 1, 1917, and that it is past due, and should be renewed. Subscribers will please examine the labels on their papers, and if it is found that the subscriptions are past due, they should remit at once. Conditions are such that we cannot afford to continue sending the paper to those who are in arrears. If a subscriber does not want the subscription to continue, we expect him or her to pay that which is due us, and notify us to stop sending the paper. Attention to this matter will be greatly appreciated by the management of this Advocate, and it will be the means of helping us to avoid losses by discontinuing the paper to those who do not desire it.

Your Five Hundred Muscles.

The five hundred muscles in the human body depend on pure and rich blood for their health and contractile energy which is the ability to labor. If they are given impure blood they become enfeebled, the step loses its elasticity, the arm its efficiency, and there is incapacity to perform the usual amount of labor.

What a great blessing Hood's Sarsaparilla has been to the many toiling thousands whose blood it has made and kept pure and rich! This medicine cleanses the blood of all humors, inherited or acquired, and strengthens and tones the whole system. It is important to be sure that you get Hood's Sarsaparilla when you ask for it. No substitute for it is like it.—Adv.

Gray Hair Becomes Dark and Beautiful

Look years younger! Try Grandma's recipe of Sage and Sulphur and nobody will know.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome.

Nowadays, we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients for about 50 cents. Everybody uses this preparation now, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

Mrs. ELIZABETH WHITE (nee Nesom) was born on April 2, 1847, and died on Feb. 5, 1918. She was married to G. F. White on Feb. 5, 1868. Her recent death occurred just fifty years after her marriage. Her husband and four children, Mrs. N. L. Haney, Clinton, La., Mrs. John Chatman, Port Arthur, Texas, Mrs. Charley Gorge, Montpelier, La., and Mrs. W. T. Cobb, Houma, La., survive her. She joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, nearly fifty years ago and lived a consistent Christian life until death. May her children, and all who knew her, follow her as she followed Christ, that they may be able to join her in the great reunion!

Her Pastor, J. L. CADY.

Mrs. M. J. JONES died on Jan. 24, 1918. Sister Jones was formerly a Miss Goff. In her early youth she united with the M. E. Church, South, and had been a faithful member all her life. She was ever ready to lend a helping hand to the needy, and through her kindness won many friends. The writer had known her for only a few weeks, but in that short time he had learned to love her for her many virtues, and had found in her a true friend. On Thursday night, Jan. 17, she was taken ill. Her sickness ran into pneumonia the next day. She spent one week of intense suffering, and on Thursday, Jan. 24, at 12 p. m., she drew her last breath. She is survived by four brothers, one sister, her husband, two sons, and two stepdaughters.

Her body was tenderly laid away on Jan. 26 to await the general resurrection morn. The great crowd of sorrowing friends who attended the funeral bore testimony to her loving nature. That God may, out of His great heart of love, speak abiding peace and comfort to the grief-stricken family, is my prayer. Her pastor,

J. C. ELLIS, Jr.

ZACK TURNER was the son of R. Z. and S. A. Turner. He was born on Nov. 21, 1893, and died on Feb. 3, 1918. He was married to Miss Beulah Hall on Dec. 13, 1916. He leaves his wife, one child, his mother, four sisters and four brothers to mourn his death. Zach was an ideal young man. He was the oldest child, and the death of his father in his early youth placed on this boy the responsibility of providing for his mother and the other members of the family. This he did very efficiently. Zack was converted and joined the Church about seven years ago. He lived a Christ-like life, a life of purity, a life that I have never heard criticized during my pastorate of two years before his death. He was a devout son, a kind husband, and a loving father, and a faithful member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. He was a steward in the Church when he died. He called his family around the bed before going away and gave them the assurance that he was going into the arms of Jesus. Weep not, loved ones. Zack "is not dead but sleepeth." The funeral was held in the Wells' Chapel Methodist Church. It was attended by the biggest crowd that ever assembled there on an occasion like this. I commend the loved ones to the Great Physician who is able to heal all wounds. C. A. NORTHINGTON.

On November 27, 1917, at her home near Williamsburg, Miss., after a brief illness, the spirit of Mrs. ETTA VASHTI McGILVERY passed from this life to that above. Sister McGilvery was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Robertson, of Bethel Church, near Collins, Miss.—a family and community noted for its Christian worth, and from which place have gone out many useful men and women. At the same service she and an aged lady, Mrs. Geiger, a devout Christian character, were buried in the Bethel cemetery.

Mrs. McGilvery was born on March 22, 1884, and was married on October 1, 1908, to Mr. W. S. McGilvery. She was of Christian inclination from a child—coming into a definite Christian experience and uniting with the Methodist Church at the age of eight years; and constantly through life she maintained a rich Christian experience, bearing fruit in active service for the Master.

But our Heavenly Father, through his all-wise providence, saw fit to call the young wife and mother home. She leaves her husband, six small children, her parents, several brothers and sisters, and many other relatives to mourn her departure. May these be enabled, by God's grace, to say: "Thy will be done." We would not call her back. We can go to her; she is free from all we suffer here—forever with the Lord.

May the memory of her life be an inspiration to her loved ones; and may the children become such Christians as their mother was. "She, being dead, yet speaketh." "Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord from henceforth: Yea, saith the Spirit, that they may rest from their labors; and their works do follow them."

Her pastor, R. T. PICKETT.

The subject of this sketch, Brother JOHN BIRDWELL was born in Alabama, on July 1, 1828, and peacefully departed this life on Jan. 31, 1918. His parents moved to Natchitoches Parish, La., while he was quite a child. There he was reared to young manhood. In his early twenties he moved to Holmes County, Miss., where he spent the vigor of his manhood. He was married three times: first to Miss M. E. Brewster in 1855; the second time to Miss Emily Akin, in 1858, and last to Miss Mary Fredonia Russell in 1866, with whom he lived in companionship for 37 years. Brother Birdwell was the father of nine children, of whom 7 were by his last wife—four girls and three boys. Of these 5 survive him. Brother Birdwell was a good companion, and a gentle and loving father, who provided well for his family. He joined the Methodist Church in early boyhood, possibly had 75 years of church life, which remained sacred to him to the end. He often spoke to the writer in an incidental way of his church life in Mississippi, in a manner which evinced his loyalty to its institutions.

Those who had known him for 30 or more years in Louisiana say that he lived a straightforward church life here, ever keeping in the faith of his God. The writer heard him repeatedly in his suffering say "Praise the Lord." He loved his Bible and read it much, and marked the passages most sacred to him. Like the blessed man in the First Psalm, "His delight was the law of the Lord," and in his law he meditated day and night. His life was as a tree planted by the rivers of water, that comes from the throne of the eternal. He left five children, a number of grandchildren and a host of friends to mourn his departure. Our loss is his gain. He was 89 years and 5 months old. His Pastor,

J. C. PRICE.

Mrs. SALLIE (CHAPMAN) JONES BROWNING was born in West Tennessee, on July 25, 1860. Through her immediate family, she was connected with the most prominent families of that State. In 1878 she married David Jones of Taylor, Miss., and came to make her home there. Some years after the death of Mr. Jones, she married Mr. John Browning, in 1899. He many years ago passed into the great beyond, and during these years Mrs. Browning had fought the battles of widowhood. To the shocking surprise of her friends and loved ones, death claimed Mrs. Browning near the noon hour, January 7, 1918. She was not thought to be seriously ill until near the end. She leaves four children (all

THICK, GLOSSY HAIR FREE FROM DANDRUFF

Girls! Try it! Hair gets soft, fluffy and beautiful—Get a small bottle of Danderine.

If you care for heavy hair that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine.

Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff. You can not have nice, heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp; the hair roots famish, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast. Surely get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderiue from any drug store and just try it.

by her first husband) to miss her; two sons, N. B. and J. P. Jones of Taylor, Miss., and Mrs. Georgia Norris and Mrs. Lena Williams of Water Valley, Miss. We buried her in the old family cemetery near Taylor on the evening of January 8, her pastor being assisted by Rev. James H. Felts. Early in life Mrs. Browning heard the voice of the Savior as He said "Come unto me," and in faith she answered the call and the burden of her sins was lifted. She united with the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and was a faithful follower of the Savior, bearing her cross, which was often heavy, without a murmur for nearly forty years. She took a keen interest in the affairs of the community at Taylor, where she lived. She was ready to help in any enterprise for the building up of the community and the Kingdom of God. Many a one has felt her tender and gentle touch and careful attention during the hours of affliction. But God has called her to rest. The children have lost a mother, the Kingdom of God has lost a most faithful suhject, and humanity has lost a friend indeed—but heaven has claimed its own. Her pastor,

R. G. LORD.

ROBERT V. McDONALD was born on April 24, 1836, and died on the morning of Nov. 8, 1917, being 81 years and 7 months old. Brother McDonald was married to Miss Laura O. Hackler in 1860. Theirs was a happy marriage, as was fully demonstrated by the 57 years that they lived together. Eight children were born to them, 6 sons and 2 daughters, all of whom are living except children who died in infancy. In the translation of this true Christian the Church of Christ is deprived of one of its worthy members, for our deceased brother was a God-fearing man. He was a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and loved its doctrines and polity, and best of all he firmly believed in all the teachings of orthodox Christianity. He was not one of those who have doubts about the divinity of Christ. Brother McDonlad was a steward in the M. E. Church, South, for nearly the whole of his married life, and he was also Sunday school superintendent for many years. Preachers were always welcome at his home. He was one of the South's gallant sons who fought bravely in the Confederate Army. He was a true citizen and loved his country. During the dark days of Reconstruction he stood like a mighty oak in a giant forest for principle and the right. He was a good husband, a loving father, and a splendid man, courteous, hospitable, and gentle-spirited. It was my good fortune to be his pastor for nearly two years, after which period at the request of him and his wife I transferred them to the Fayette Methodist Church, and then in the providence of God not long after I was permitted to preach the funeral sermon on Nov. 9, 1917, in the Methodist Church at Fayette, being assisted by Brother J. O. Ware, his pastor. After this the remains were carried to the cemetery for interment. The honorary pallbearers were Confederate soldiers. The body was accompanied by the local Masonic Fraternity and by many relatives and friends. The ceremony was performed by the Masons. Although his body moulders here, the soul is safe with God. We shall know where to find him.

N. S. LOFTUS.

G. P. HAMMERLY was born at Athens, Ala., on August 13, 1829, and died at Iuka, Miss., on January 20, 1918. He was married to Miss Mary A. Scruggs, of Hardy, Miss., in 1856, and two years later moved to Iuka, where they lived a happy life for nearly sixty years. His wife, a consecrated Christian, was ever watchful and ready to help him in every movement, either spiritual or of a business character. Now, it is hers to remain awhile alone, but she knows where his spirit is, and is counting the days till her spirit shall take its flight, and they will be re-united forever.

In the death of Brother Hammerly, the Methodist Church, the town, and the entire community sustained a great loss. He was a prominent business man, being the first merchant in the town, and he continued in the mercantile business, and at his desk, till two weeks before his death. But his chief interest was in the Christian life, and the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, which he joined in early life and loved with a loyal devotion, leading many souls to Christ annually. He entered Sunday school at the age of six years, and attended regularly the remaining eighty-three years of his life. He had been a Sunday school superintendent for the past fifty-three years, a steward sixty years, and a constant reader of the Nashville Advocate fifty-two years. Two weeks before his death, he was present at Sunday school and opened the services with the same zeal and love that had characterized his life-work.

A truer husband and father, I never knew. I had been intimately acquainted with him and closely associated with him for fifty years, and I never knew him to be idle—never saw him do wrong, nor heard him say a word that was not a truthful and righteous expression. His life was an example worthy of emulation.

We stood at his bedside to behold the calm departure of a saint, and he passed to his reward like one going into a sweet, restful sleep. Surviving him are his wife, three daughters—Mrs. Mamie Wells, of Grand Junction, Tenn.; Mrs. Lelia Davis, of North Carolina; Mrs. Laura Copeland, of Iuka, Miss., and one son, E. T. Hammerly, of Memphis, Tenn. One granddaughter, Miss Mary Massey, who was reared in his home, is now engaged in foreign mission work in El Paso, Texas. Brother Hammerly's face is gone from us—and we shall miss him; but his influence will live on, and the fruits of his labors we shall reap for years to come.

AT WAR WITH YOURSELF!

HELP NATURE TO DEFEAT THE DISEASE IN YOUR BODY.

Keep up the fight; do not give up. Nature is trying to serve you in conquering the wrongs that may exist.

Red blood, vim, courage, vitality, all seem lacking. No wonder you are nervous and discouraged.

Why not call to your aid a strong, dependable ally? Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has for nearly fifty years proven its merits as a most powerful tonic and blood builder to the many thousands who have been returned to good health by its use.

Clear the coated tongue, get rid of unsightly skin trouble. Let this remarkable remedy rid your body of the impurities of the blood, let it tone and strengthen you. It often cures the lingering chronic cough.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is absolutely herbal, free from alcohol or dangerous habit-forming drugs. All druggists. Liquid or tablets.

SYLACAUGA, ALA.—"This is a true statement as to the value of Dr. Pierce's medicines. I used one of his great remedies in my own family with good results, namely, 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and found it to be all it is claimed to be. There is no medicine that will come as near doing what it is claimed for it; there's no praise too high for the 'Discovery.'"—W. H. JOLLY, Box 215.

ATLANTA, GEORGIA.—"I suffered for two years with an enlarged gland on the right side of my neck. I tried several doctors and they told me I would have to have the gland taken out, but a friend of mine advised me to try Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and after taking ten bottles my neck is entirely well and I not only recommend it to my friends but to every one I see in the condition that I was. I feel as though I can never be thankful enough for what this medicine has done for me."—MRS. DELLA BOYER, 107 Trinity Avenue.

WANTED—
Both Vegetable and Animal Fats.

Fertilize Your Soy Beans and Peanuts

THE world needs both vegetable and animal fats, and is paying big prices for them. Thousands of farmers are growing soy beans and peanuts—feeding them to hogs—or harvesting and selling to oil mills.

Don't think of growing these crops without fertilizer. If you "hog down" the crop, V-C Fertilizers will greatly increase the yield—give you more pork from every acre. If you sell them as a money crop, you will find that every dollar invested in V-C Fertilizers yields rich returns.

Many think of these crops as legumes that help the soil. They do when you plow them up and turn them under. But nobody is burying soy beans and peanuts in this manner when they bring such excellent prices. They are invariably harvested, and when harvested they take away fertility, exhaust your soil—just as corn, cotton, and all other crops do. They must be fertilized. There are V-C Fertilizers made by formulas to suit these and every other Southern crop.

ORDER V-C NOW

Freight is congested — cars so scarce—that every farmer should give the dealer his orders now. V-C Crop Books tell how to make the most from every acre of soy beans, peanuts, or any other crop. They will be sent free upon request. Just write saying what crops you grow, and the books will be sent you free.

METHODISTS TO MEET IN MANSFIELD, LA.

The Rev. Clyde V. Breithaupt, the Louisiana Conference Sunday School Field Secretary, states that announcements have gone out for the second Wesley Bible Class Federation for Southern Methodist Sunday School workers. The meetings are to be held in Mansfield, La., March 13 and 14, and a large attendance is expected. There were enrolled in new Wesley Bible Classes last year 1172 members. These, with a large number who compose the older classes in the State, will give a larger number from which to draw the attendance than were available last year.

Mansfield is breaking a precedent in that the delegates are to be guests in its homes, whereas heretofore all Federations have been self-entertaining.

Bishop J. H. McCoy, of the M. E. Church, South, Rev. Chas. D. Bulla, D.D., General Superintendent of the Wesley Bible Class Department for all of Southern Methodism; Mr. A. L. Dietrich, secretary for the Gulf division, comprising one-fourth of the membership of the Southern Methodist Church; Hon. H. H. White, a member of the Unification Commission for the two larger branches of Methodism and a delegate to the coming General Conference, and Mr. O. A. Wright, a prominent business man of Shreveport and also a delegate to the General Conference, are some of the speakers for this meeting.

Salts if Kidneys or Bladder Bother

Harmless to flush Kidneys and neutralize irritating acids—Splendid for system.

Kidney and Bladder weakness result from uric acid, says a noted authority. The kidneys filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it often remains to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread, the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again, there is difficulty in avoiding it.

Bladder weakness, most folks call it, because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, this is really one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, continue this for two or three days. This will neutralize the acids so they no longer are a source of irritation to the bladder and other organs which then act normal again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by uric acid irritation. Jad Salts is splendid for kidneys and causes no bad effects whatever.

Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink, which quickly relieves bladder trouble.

NORTH MISSISSIPPI SUNDAY SCHOOL NOTES.

By Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, Sardis, Miss.

One-fourth of our foreign mission work is supported by specials; one thousand churches carry specials, sixteen thousand do not. At least five thousand could carry specials and would be glad to do so if they were only informed of the need and opportunity. Why not try giving the information?

We need to stop and face the main issue every now and then or else we will spend our time in doing things of minor importance. What is the supreme task of the Church, of the individual member of the Church? "Making Christ known." This is evangelism, this is missions.

If the Church is to be more evangelistic and more missionary than it is, we will have to get this main thing on the conscience of the leaders. It may not be possible to have every Sunday school in the Conference to carry a special this year, but it is possible to give some missionary instruction in every school, and after the instruction is given we can hope for contributions to the work of giving the world a knowledge of Jesus Christ.

Here are some of the ways provided by the Church for giving missionary instruction: An art calendar that has been sent to each superintendent in the Conference, a monthly missionary program in the Workers' Council and Missionary Voice, a quarterly that can be used any quarter for seniors—"Japan, the Key to the East," "Heroes of Faith in Japan" for intermediates, "Boys and Girls of an Island Empire" for juniors, "About Little Folks in Japan" for primaries.

Hernando, Senatobia, Sardis, Batesville, Pope, and, in fact, nearly every school in this district proposes to put mission study in the Sunday school during the year. It is no accident that the Sardis District led in specials for missions and reported the largest number of conversions of any district in the Conference last year. The men followed their leader. They are at it again this year more earnestly than ever. Let us never forget it—our mission is "Making Christ known," and if we fail in this we fail in doing the thing that is most worth while.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL MISSIONARY LITERATURE.

I think it is fairly well agreed that we are not as much "on the job" as we might be when it comes to missions. I think we should always bear in mind that our membership is not as rich as others we could mention by any means, and that we are spending a great deal of effort in reaching those here at home that others are leaving practically untouched. I do not mean to say that I feel we are doing all we should, but that we are doing something.

One quarter's study of missions will put a new spirit into the life of the Church. We will be studying the Bible really and truly if the lessons are presented as mapped out, covering all the Scriptures dealing with missions during the quarter.

"Japan the Key to the East" is the book for young people and adults. It gives us a fresh picture of Old Japan and how it was made new. We see that the trouble with Japan is materialism. It is presented in all its nakedness. We long to change the picture when we are shown the possibilities of doing it.

Are the Japanese really Christian? We have heard that question often asked. The chapter dealing with it in this quarterly is very frank, and seems to be a real answer. It will most certainly be profitable for any church to really answer this question in the light of the facts of Japan's history.

Kwansei Gakuin and Dr. J. C. Newton—how our hearts will ever thrill at those two names! Hiroshima and Miss Nannie B. Gaines—we believe in modern miracles sure enough. The Lambuths — God has not forgotten us and we still have the Pauls to hear the call and answer.

Kimura—no, all the Billie Sundays are not of America. Kimura of Japan holds the same place there, and, so far, God has used him quite as wonderfully with his own people.

"As Goes Japan so Goes the East." A study of this quarterly by the Adult Classes of your Sunday school will help in every way to get Japan to go right. It may be used supplementarily in connection with the Adult Student.

"Heroes of Faith of Japan," is for the Intermediates and Seniors. We are given the beautiful story of how Japan got its name. Its wondrous beauty is presented to us, and we feel that this beautiful country should indeed and in truth be God's country.

One thrilling story follows another. One is of Wakasa, who found a Bible, and, though forbidden to read it by the laws of his country, and forbidden to associate with foreigners who could help him understand it, followed the small gleam till the great light comes.

Another is of Nusima, who found God, rebelled at the laws of his country that shut out his fellow-countrymen from this great blessing, ran away to America, and, against privation and hardships, educated himself; who then refused lucrative offers and went back to establish a Christian college for his own people.

The story of Mary Lambuth reads like a fairy story. Could people be thus heroic? Look at our loved Bishop. What marvels God has wrought through this family! It reads like a chapter in Acts. Every Southern Methodist heart must beat a little faster after reading these thrilling chapters.

I do not see how any boy or girl could complete the quarter's work without being stirred to live a holier and nobler life. Nor do I see how they can be used without some one hearing the call, "Whom shall I send, and who will go for us?"

Try these studies in your Sunday school. They will cost you 20 cents a copy. A worthy book for your home! It is a little higher in price than the regular literature, but for the purpose it is one that will be far-reaching in effect in this and in the next world.

GRAY'S OINTMENT.

bears a name that for ninety-seven years has been on the minds if not the hearts of thousands of families. Its use began in 1820, when a North Carolina physician compounded an ointment for treating skin infections. It has been received on its merits and its constant use for nearly a century has made it a family word in every household. It's instantaneous healing effect and its soothing relief to skin infections make it almost indispensable in the home. Gray's Ointment is the first thought in all cases of burns, scalds, bruises, cuts and stings. Telephone your druggist for it, or write W. F. Gray & Co., 806 Gray Bldg., Nashville, Tenn., for sample.—Adv.

THE INDWELLING CHRIST.

To those who hear Him and receive Him, there comes a peace and strength, a patience to bear, an energy to work, which is to the soul itself a perpetual surprise and joy, a hope unquenchable, a love for and a belief in fellowman that nothing can disturb, and around all, as the great element of all, a certainty of God's encircling love to us which conquers sin and welcomes sorrow, and laughs at death and already lives in Immortality.—Phillips Brooks.

DO MISSIONARIES DIE YOUNG?

The Christian Advocate of Madras quotes a discussion of this subject by Rev. Dr. Downie, of the American Baptist Mission, Nellore. Confining himself to his own station, he gave a negative answer to the question. Nellore has a reputation of wide application. Three missionaries, including Dr. Downie, have been in charge. Rev. S. S. Day died at 63. Rev. Lyman Jewett at 84, and his widow has just passed away at the age of 91. Dr. Downie is 76, and still hale and hearty. These three lives, the third not yet completed, cover a preiod of 223 years; and, if wives are added, the total is 465 years, or an average of 77½ years. Dr. Downie himself has been forty-two years at Nellore, and may reach a more mature age than his predecessor. He says: "Young missionaries who come to India with sound constitutions and who exercise moderate care should look forward to living to a good old age."—The Christian.

Cleanliness.

"Cleanliness is next to godliness." We are too prone to think that "cleanliness" refers only to the exterior of our bodies. But unless your bowels are kept open and your liver active, you cannot expect to keep your body clean. The perspiration through skin pores is forced to carry off more than its share of the body's impurities. Do not allow constipation to poison you. Cleanse your entire system with Van Lax, which contains no calomel and no habit-forming drugs. It is pleasant to the taste and produces pleasant results. For sale by the best dealers everywhere. In bottles—price 50c. Manufactured by the Van Vleet-Mansfield Drug Co., Memphis, Tenn.—Adv.

Cured His RUPTURE

I was badly ruptured while lifting a trunk several years ago. Doctors said my only hope of cure was an operation. Trusses did me no good. Finally I got hold of something that quickly and completely cured me. Years have passed and the rupture has never returned, although I am doing hard work as a carpenter. There was no operation, no lost time, no trouble. I have nothing to sell, but will give full information about how you may find a complete cure without operation, if you write to me, Eugene M. Pullen, Carpenter, 862D Marcellus Avenue, Manasquan, N. J. Better cut out this notice and show it to any other who are ruptured—you may save a life or at least stop the misery of rupture and the worry and danger of an operation.

CLEANS THE BLOOD TONES THE NERVES

The gratifying results attending the faithful use of the new medicinal combination, Hood's Sarsaparilla before eating and Peptiron after eating, are seen in purer blood, stronger nerves, improved condition of the whole system.

They are results that make this course of treatment the most economical for sufferers from impure, impoverished blood, weak, unsteady nerves—no other accomplishes so much for each cent expended.

Hood's Sarsaparilla and Peptiron aid each other, and to take both is to derive a four-fold benefit.

If a laxative is needed in connection with them, the gentle and thorough Hood's Pills should be used.

FROM A LAYMAN.

Dear Advocate: Nearly one-fourth of this Conference year has gone, and, from outside appearances, not much has been done—yet, in reality, much has been done in many ways. At the last session of our Conference at Oxford, Miss., it was seen proper to move our pastor, Brother Wyatt, who had served us faithfully for two years. He is a true and conscientious laborer in the Master's vineyard and did much good here. He is an ideal pastor. In his pastoral visits he always brought joy and sunshine into our homes. We loved him and Sister Wyatt and hated to see them go. We trust that they will accomplish much good in their new field. May God bless them and give them many more useful and fruitful years!

The Bishop sent us a man unknown to any one here and on his arrival he did not meet with a very enthusiastic reception. At his first appointment the congregation was small. The mercury stood at zero, and it continued to drop until it reached 10 below on January 12; but at his next appointment, on January 13, he must have warmed things up, for at about 2 p. m. the church was discovered to be on fire, having caught somewhere about the furnace. However, by the exercise of good judgment and by quick action the fire was soon extinguished and there was but little damage done.

The good women here had everything in readiness at the parsonage, and the new preacher and his family were made to feel at home at once. He knew how to take hold of things and the people have fallen in love with him. We predict great things for this year, but we realize that without the co-operation of his church he can't do much. With the help of God's guidance by the Holy Spirit, we can do much. Brother Ward is a strong preacher and a good pastor.

We want to say right here that we heartily indorse Hon. W. A. Belk's article in the Advocate of January 24. He is exactly right when he says that too many of us laymen expect the preacher to rub us down gently and cater to us somewhat before he begins his work, and after his sacred work is entered into we think that he ought to amuse and cajole and perhaps pet us all along. We should remember that we, too, have a work to do and that if we succeed in it we must work. The pastor needs our help, and must have it if he succeeds in doing much.

I read with much interest the letter of Brother Ramsey in the Advocate of February 7. I feel sure that the men elected to represent us of the North Mississippi Conference are safe men, and that none of them are politicians and that they were elected because those who supported them knew them, and knew they would look well after our interests.

Doctor, you are giving us a good paper. I endorse your policy on unification. You are usually right in what you write.

I enjoy reading Dr. Steel's letters. They are both interesting and edifying. There is no one that writes for the Advocate whose letters I enjoy more than I do those of Dr. T. B. Holloman.

Under the leadership of our efficient presiding elder, Brother Dorsey, and our pastor, Brother Ward, and with the co-operation of the church, we are expecting a great year. Pray for us!

H. W. REES.

Booneville, Miss., Feb. 9, 1918.

"CASCARETS" WORK WHILE YOU SLEEP

For Sick Headache, Sour Stomach, Sluggish Liver and Bowels—Take Cascarets to-night.

Furred Tongue, Bad Taste, Indigestion, Sallow Skin and Miserable Headaches come from a torpid liver and clogged bowels, which cause your stomach to become filled with undigested food, which sours and ferments like garbage in a swill barrel. That's the first step to untold misery—indigestion, foul gases, bad breath, yellow skin, mental fears, everything that is horrible and nauseating. A Cascaret to-night will give your constipated bowels a thorough cleansing and straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist will keep you feeling good for months.

RECIPE FOR GRAY HAIR.

To half pint of water add 1 oz. Bay Rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and ¼ oz. of glycerine. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it at home at very little cost. Full directions for making and use come in each box of Barbo Compound. It will gradually darken streaked, faded gray hair, and make it soft and glossy. It will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy, and does not rub off.—Adv.

HON. LEROY PERCY TO SAIL FOR FRANCE.

The Register understands that Hon. Leroy Percy, ex-Senator from Mississippi, and a prominent and well known lawyer of Greenville, who has manifested so much interest in the Y. M. C. A. war work, will depart to-day for New York, from whence he will sail at an early date for France, where he will assist with the Y. M. C. A. work in the war zone. The following clipping bearing on the subject is taken from the current issue of the Yazoo County News:

"Mr. Percy was chairman of the Mississippi Y. M. C. A. war fund campaign recently, with Rev. Philip Davidson of Greenville as secretary, and Mississippians subscribed more than double the amount allotted to the State. Both became intensely interested in the importance of the work and both volunteered their services for personal work on the battle fronts, without salary.

"Senator Percy's appointment has been confirmed and he will begin the work at once. Mr. Davidson is expecting a confirmation of his appointment, and if he receives it in time will leave here with Senator Percy on February 6. Members of the vestry of St. James Episcopal Church, of which Mr. Davidson is rector, will grant him an indefinite leave of absence for this war work and will pay his salary to his family during his absence. Senator Percy's only son, Lieut. William A. Percy, is already on the way to France on important army work."—Clarksdale Register.

IMMIGRANTS TO READ THE BIBLE.

A new distinction for the Bible is the adoption of it by the United States Immigration Bureau as the book on which each incoming alien will be tested to see if he can meet the requirement of the latest immigration law for ability to read in at least his native language. The bureau chief is at pains to explain that he has not thus selected the Bible for any religious reason, but merely because it is the one book available in all the divers tongues and dialects spoken by the multitudes who knock at America's gates. Moreover, the Bible always is translated into common rather than literary speech, and those who can read at all cannot fail to manage its simpler passages. But no Christian citizen will consider it altogether an incidental and unimportant thing that, at the moment of introduction to his new home land, the arriving stranger is to find the Bible the first book put in his hands by representatives of the American government. And the passages chosen for the reading test may well leave a lasting influence on the mind of the new settler in America.—The Missionary Review of the World.

Whether you be men or women, you will never do anything in the world without courage. It is the greatest quality of the mind—next to honor.—James L. Allen.

The Itching and Sting of Blazing, Fiery Eczema

Seems Like the Skin Is on Fire.

There is a harrassing discomfort caused by Eczema that almost becomes a torture. The itching is almost unbearable, and the skin seems on fire with the burning irritation. A cure from local applications of salves and ointments is impossible, because such treatment can only allay the pain temporarily. The disease can only be reached by going deep down to its source.

The source of Eczema is in the blood, the disease being caused by an infection which breaks out through the skin. That is why the most satisfactory treatment for all so-called skin diseases is S. S. S., for this remedy so thoroughly cleanses the blood that no impurities can remain. Get a bottle to-day at any drugstore, and you will see results from the right treatment. Easy to Make This Pine Cough Remedy

Thousands of families swear by its prompt results. Inexpensive, and saves them $2.

You know that pine is used in nearly all prescriptions and remedies for coughs. The reason is that it contains several peculiar elements that have a remarkable effect in soothing and healing the membranes of the throat and chest. Pine is famous for this purpose.

Pine cough syrups are combinations of pine and syrup. The "syrup" part is usually plain granulated sugar syrup. Nothing better, but why buy it? You can easily make it yourself in five minutes.

To make the best pine cough remedy that money can buy, put 2½ ounces of Pinex (60 cents worth) in a pint bottle, and fill up with home-made sugar syrup. This gives you a full pint—more than you can buy ready-made for $2.50. It is pure, good and very pleasant—children take it eagerly.

You can feel this take hold of a cough or cold in a way that means business. The cough may be dry, hoarse and tight, or may be persistently loose from the formation of phlegm. The cause is the same—inflamed membranes—and this Pinex and Syrup combination will stop it—usually in 24 hours or less. Splendid, too, for bronchial asthma, hoarseness, or any ordinary throat ailment.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and is famous the world over for its prompt results.

SOUR, ACID STOMACHS, GASES OR INDIGESTION

"Pape's Diapepsin" neutralizes excessive acid in stomach, relieving dyspepsia, heartburn and distress at once.

Time it! In five minutes all stomach distress, due to acidity will go. No indigestion, heartburn, sourness or belching of gas or eructations of undigested food, no dizziness, bloating, foul breath or headache.

Pape's Diapepsin is noted for its speed in regulating upset stomachs. It is the surest, quickest stomach sweetener in the whole world, and besides it is harmless. Put an end to stomach distress at once by getting a large fifty-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin from any drug store. You realize in five minutes how needless it is to suffer from indigestion, dyspepsia or any stomach disorder caused by fermentation due to excessive acids in stomach.

"Are we praying for our missionaries and for the work in which they and we are engaged? If a million people were on their knees night and morning asking God to thrust out the men and women needed, and to move upon the hearts of the churches so that they would provide the funds needed for their maintenance and equipment, we would see such results as we have never seen and shall not see until we avail ourselves of the infinite resources of our God. There is urgent need now of prayer that is fervent and effectual."

LOUISIANA ANNUAL MEETING.

The Eighth Annual Meeting of the Louisiana Conference, Woman's Missionary Society of the M. E. Church, South, will be held in First Church, Shreveport, Feb. 25-28.

Names of delegates must be sent at once to Mrs. Geo. Sexton, 903 Wilkerson Street, Shreveport, chairman of Committee on Entertainment.

THE PRAYER-LIFE OF A CHINESE CHRISTIAN.

The following is a personal testimony of Ding Li-Mei of Shanghai, secretary of the Student Volunteer Movement for the university in China:

"From boyhood I have taken delight in conversing with my friends on prayer and Bible study. Even when in school I joined two or three of my most intimate schoolmates in secret meetings for prayer and the study of Holy Scriptures. I also knew what it was to retire alone to pray for fellow-Christians in school and church whose zeal had become chilled, or for other important objects. Many times was I conscious of the Lord's favor in answering my most fervent supplications throughout these early years. After finishing school I spent three years in theological studies, giving myself wholly to a search for truth. During these years the number of fellow-pray-ers grew, until by 1899 my prayer list included 105 names, of which nine-tenths were students. The list has continued to grow, until now, in 1917, it numbers 2347, and is divided into three classes.

"The first class is composed of eighteen smaller groups, numbering from six to forty-eight each, made up of those who have all promised to pray every day for all others in the same group. I keep a separate list of each group. The eighteen groups contain in all 342 names.

"The second class has only the names of those who have made individual covenants with me to pray one for the other, and includes pastors, principals of schools, teachers, doctors, merchants, and military men; it contains the names of both men and women, of Chinese and foreigners, of children of seven or eight and youths in their teens, and also those who live in non-Christian families. We mutually remember one another and sympathize with one another. The strength of this bond exceeds that of any merely natural bond by a thousand times ten thousand. In this class I have 1760 names.

"The third class is made up of those whom I have voluntarily selected and especially delight in remembering before the Lord and who for the most part are carrying large responsibilities in some phase or other of the Church's work in Asia, Europe or America, such as Dr. John R. Mott and Dr. Sherwood Eddy, of America, and Dr. F. B. Meyer and Dr. R. F. Horton, of England, a list of 245 names in all.

"As I think back over twenty years of experience in intercessory prayer, the longer I practice it, the more its importance grows on me. I do not know all the benefits which others may have received through these prayers, nor does it matter that I do not. I cannot refrain from enumerating ten out of the uncounted blessings which I myself have experienced in the practice of this habit.

(1) I am so much with the Lord that He seems my closest Friend.

(2) My spiritual life is refreshed like the sprouting grain with rain.

(3) Justice, peace and joy constantly fill my soul as the light fills the heavens and I get uncommon strength.

(4) When I study the Bible I seem to see heaven opened and realize that I am having communion of heart with Christ Himself.

(5) When I talk about the Gospel in private or in public I have an unshakable confidence that the hand of the Lord is supporting me.

(6) My love has been steadily expanded until I now am conscious of no man in the universe whom I cannot love.

(7) When I fall into sin, whether secret or open, whether great or small, I experience an immediate rebuke of conscience, which drives me at once to confession and repentance.

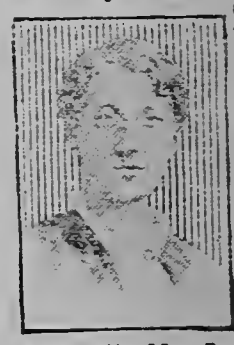
(8) In all my work for the Lord, although the results are not alike evident or immediate, I do not know of any effort that has been in vain.

(9) Intercessory prayer has greatly enlarged my circle of friends among God's co-workers, and through the Lord's kind care those friendships will never cease, but will continue to grow thus far excelling the friendships of the world.

(10) And best of all, I am not the only one who is trying to persevere in intercession. Others in my own and in other Christian organizations, both men and women, in church, school and ministry, have likewise been handed together in similar covenants of prayer these same twenty years. I am personally acquainted with not less than ten who have their individual lists for prayer, besides the cycles prepared for the use of groups. They are unanimous in their testimonies to the blessings of this habit."—Missionary Review of the World.

TRAINED NURSES IN JAPAN.

Almost all nurses in Japan are from the servant class, ignorant and uneducated. They are constantly exposed to the most immoral surroundings and temptations, and something should be done to elevate the whole standard of nursing in the country. This could be done through a properly organized training school conducted on American lines, and a magnificent opportunity is offered for constructive Christian mission work.



Miss Tsuda, the principal of a girls' school in Tokyo, says that a well-equipped training school for nurses is one of the most urgently needed institutions in the Far East.

With a model training school under Christian protection and influence, young women of a much higher class will gladly enter the profession. The work already done by St. Luke's, the Protestant Episcopal mission hospital, proves this true, and the experiment has commanded wide approval throughout Japan. From such a school, educated girls from good families who have completed their training should go out as leaders and head nurses to other hospitals in Japan and Korea.—The Living Church.

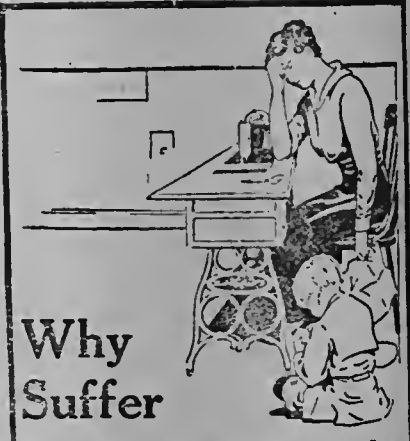
TO ALL WOMEN WHO ARE ILL

This Woman Recommends Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—Her Personal Experience.



McLean, Neb.—"I want to recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to all women who suffer from any functional disturbance, as it has done me more good than all the doctor's medicine. Since taking it I have a fine healthy baby girl and have gained in health and strength. My husband and I both praise your medicine to all suffering women."—Mrs. JOHN KOPPELMANN, R. No. 1, McLean, Nebraska.

This famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, has been restoring women of America to health for more than forty years and it will well pay any woman who suffers from displacements, inflammation, ulceration, irregularities, backache, headaches, nervousness or "the blues" to give this successful remedy a trial.

For special suggestions in regard to your ailment write Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. The result of its long experience is at your service.

Lintonia Charge (Miss. Conf.)

Dear Mr. Editor: "The Lord of hosts is with us, the God of Jacob is our refuge." Psalm 46:7. "When these things begin to come to pass, then look up and lift up your heads; for your redemption draweth nigh." Luke 21:28. Intensely trying weather has hindered and discouraged us, but the sun now shines and the heart sings for joy! With full equipment for service, what opportunities await the Church and ministry for 1918!—C. H. Ellis, P. C.

Walnut Grove, Miss.

Dear Dr. Meek: I am serving my first regular work, and that back at my old home. I have had bad weather to begin with, but I have missed only one Sunday from the pulpit—that was just after the snow in January, and my appointment was twenty miles away over bad country roads. However, I have made my round at last, and I like my work very much. I have secured all the new subscriptions to the Advocate that I was assigned (twelve in number), and have two more churches yet to work and six more days to my credit; so I will get several more, which will more than put me over the "top." I have secured several renewal subscriptions also. I have, furthermore, collected some on the Conference claims. Things look encouraging for a good year. Pray for me!—W. N. Ware.

Estherwood, La.

Dear Dr. Meek: Please allow me a few words concerning the village of Estherwood. On April 1, 1917, a wind came just before the evening preaching service and demolished the M. E. Church. Since then they have been occupying the old Central Methodist Church; so a short time ago they, or the leaders, desired to drive the devil out of our town and purchased the old saloon building, which was one of the first buildings erected in the village of Estherwood, and which had been used as a dram-shop up to last year. God has done all things well. Preparation is now going on to move the old saloon structure and change it from a house of the devil into a church building—a house of God. Our little village is "bone dry" in answer to prayer. God grant that it may ever remain so! We are praying for great things this year in the midst of war and strife. As Christians we should quicken our pace, and to do better in the future than in the past, thus putting the devil to shame.—J. H. Hoffpauir.

Lafayette, La.

Happy am I to be back in dear old Louisiana again, and doubly blessed to have as co-workers such a fine body of women as are in our Missionary Society at this place. They are alert to every good cause and seem to take such pleasure in the Lord's work. At the close of a very inspiring meeting last Monday afternoon, our capable and honored President, Mrs. E. R. Kennedy, stirred our hearts with a woman's plea for the cessation of the horrors of war and the necessity of prayer for the world's peace. At her suggestion, we unanimously pledged to make a prayer for such a miracle of peace the very first thing we did when we awoke in the morning. It would rejoice our hearts if all the auxiliaries of our Church would enter into a similar covenant. Mrs. Kennedy helps our colored friends in their work so much also. She meets with them in their "Community Club" and directs and encourages them. If it were not for occupying too much space, I would like to mention other reasons why I am thankful to be located in Lafayette.

OUR BRAVE ONES AT HOME.

(A home war poem to keep company with L. W. Cain's poem which recently appeared in the Advocate.)

Our good brother and friend, L. W. Cain,
Sets forth praise to our boys in camp,
In all of which he is right in the main,
Giving each glory's immortal stamp.

Cain has a strong son defending the true,
At the front ready to dare and to die.
Rev. L. W. tendered his own services, too—
That he's 100 per cent American none will deny.

Let's remember as well the dear ones at home,
Praying for brother, father, husband friend:
Sharing war's heartaches and pains all alone,
Looking to the day when it all shall end.

These, as much in eternity's hall of fame,
Will clothed in glory be;
Not a one in all America
Will bow at the Kaiser's knee.

While our boys are beyond the seas,
And loved ones at home continue to pray,
Each with purpose strong—no desire for ease—
Desires wicked militarism forever to slay.

Many a brave, noble, patriotic son,
True to principles in the home taught,
Their lives are giving—'tis nobly done—
That justice and truth may be wrought.

Thousands of homes are lonely and sad;
Fathers, mothers, sisters, wives are true—
Praying for brother, son and dad;
See them pass in the grand review.

The God of Heaven speed the hour
For the universal triumph of right—
The death knell to Prussians' power,
And the onward march of eternal light.

E. H. CUNNINGHAM.

Kosciusko, Miss.

STOP! CALOMEL IS QUICKSILVER!

It's mercury! Attacks the bones, salivates and makes you sick.

There's no reason why a person should take sickening, salivating calomel when 50 cents buys a large bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone—a perfect substitute for calomel.

It is a pleasant, vegetable liquid which will start your liver just as surely as calomel, but it doesn't make you sick and does not salivate.

Children and grown folks can take Dodson's Liver Tone, because it is perfectly harmless.

Calomel is a dangerous drug. It is mercury and attacks your bones. Take a dose of nasty calomel to-day and you will feel weak, sick and nauseated tomorrow. Don't lose a day's work. Take a spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tone instead and you will wake up feeling great. No more biliousness, constipation, sluggishness, headache, coated tongue or sour stomach. Your druggist says if you don't find Dodson's Liver Tone acts better than horrible calomel your money is waiting for you.

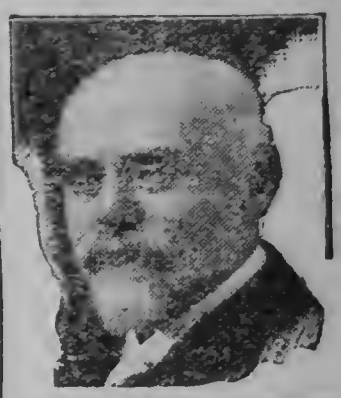
Former Health Commissioner Says Nuxated Iron

Should Be Used in Every Hospital and Prescribed by Every Physician—Attributes His own Great Physical Activity Today at Over 60 Years of Age Largely to His Personal Use of Nuxated Iron



WHAT FORMER HEALTH COMMISSIONER KERR SAYS

"As Health Commissioner of the City of Chicago, I was instructed many times to recommend different bad ones, mineral waters, etc. Never yet have I gone on record as favoring any particular remedy, but I feel that in Nuxated Iron an exception should be made to the rule. I have taken Nuxated Iron myself and experienced its beneficial strengthening effect, and in the interest of the public welfare, I feel it my duty to make known the results of its use. I am well past my three-score years and want to say that I believe that my own great physical activity is due in a large degree to my personal use of Nuxated Iron, and if my endorsement shall induce anaemic, nervous, run-down men and women to take Nuxated Iron, and receive the wonderful tonic benefits which I have received, I shall feel greatly gratified that I made an exception to my hard and fast rule in recommending it. From my own experience with Nuxated Iron, I feel that it is such a valuable remedy that it ought to be used in every hospital and prescribed by every physician in this country."

Wm R Kerr

Former Health Commissioner, City of Chicago.

NOTE—Nuxated Iron, which has been used by Former Health Commissioner Kerr with such surprising results, and which is prescribed and recommended by physicians in every part of the country, is not a secret remedy, but one which is well known to druggists everywhere. Unlike most of the inorganic iron products, it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money. It is dispensed by all good druggists.

Former Health Commissioner Kerr has given years of his life fighting for public health in his own and other cities. It was he who introduced Anti-toxin for Diphtheria in Chicago's Health Department. He purified the milk for the Consumers and thereby helped to save the lives of thousands of babies. He introduced the anti-spitting ordinance which has been copied all over the country and also took care of the sewers and garbage in the interest of public health. He is positive that the widespread use of Nuxated Iron would greatly lessen the worries and troubles of Health Commissioners in keeping up a high standard of public health.

HOW TO FIND HAPPINESS.

Some people dream of happiness as something that will come to them by and by, at the end of a course of toil and struggle. But the true way to find happiness is as we go on in our work. Every day has its own cup of sweetness. In every duty is a pot of hidden manna. In every sorrow is a blessing of comfort. In every burden is rolled up a gift of God. In all life Christ is with us if we are true to Him. —J. R. Miller.

Watch the Baby!

If he is fretful, restless and out of sorts, you can trace the cause to his stomach and liver. If the bowels do not act regularly there is a possible danger of serious illness. Constipation, if allowed to continue, may produce self-poisoning or auto-intoxication, and this condition should be promptly rectified. The best general tonic for the baby or for the older folks is Plantation Chill and Fever Tonic and Liver Regulator, a purely vegetable compound. It contains no Calomel or other injurious drugs. Highly recommended for babies and growing children. It excites and invigorates sluggish livers and puts you on your feet again. Buy a bottle and keep it handy. Price 50c. For sale by the best druggists. Manufactured by Van Vleet-Mansfield Drug Co., Memphis, Tenn.—Adv.

OUR MISSIONARY GOD.

1. Where must we go to find the beginning of Foreign Missions? To the heart of God the Father.

2. How did God begin Foreign Missions? By sending out the first missionary.

3. From where was that missionary sent? From heaven.

4. To what foreign country did he go? To this world of ours.

5. Who was that missionary? Jesus Christ our Savior?

6. Why did God the Father send him? "God so loved the world that He gave his only begotten Son."

7. If God had lacked the spirit of Foreign Missions, what about us? We should not have had a Savior.

8. Did this great missionary stay in the foreign country? No; he returned to His Father's house.

9. Who gathered around Him before he returned? His disciples.

10. What did He tell these disciples to do? Go into all the world and preach the Gospel to every creature.

11. If these disciples had not obeyed, what about our America? We would not to-day have a knowledge of His Gospel.

12. From what church did two missionaries go a few days later? From the church at Antioch.

13. What two men did they send? Paul and Barnabas.

14. Did Paul and Barnabas not have enough impenitent heathen to preach to at home? They had tens of thousands.

15. Should not their own city be evangelized first? God commanded them to go into all the world, to the uttermost parts of the earth.

16. Did God the Holy Spirit suggest that His disciples would go? No; He commanded.

17. If we are indifferent to Foreign Missions, what do we show? Unlikeness and disobedience to God the Father.—Mrs. W. H. Dodge, in Presbyterian of the South.

"This would be a delightful world if its beauty and usefulness were not so marred by the effects of sin. God saw everything that He had made and, behold, it was all very good. It was all designed to contribute to man's happiness and well-being and is wonderfully adapted to that end in so far as it has not been perverted from it by man's own sin."

GIVE "SYRUP OF FIGS" TO CONSTIPATED CHILD

Delicious "Fruit Laxative" can't harm tender little Stomach, Liver and Bowels.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, your little one's stomach, liver and bowels need cleansing at once. When peevish, cross, listless, doesn't sleep, eat or act naturally, or is feverish, stomach sour, breath bad; has sore throat, diarrhoea, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of its little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again. Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which contains full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups.

NEW ORLEANS
CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

Vol. 65—No. 9. Official Organ of the Louisiana, Mississippi, and North Mississippi Conferences, Methodist Episcopal Church, South. Whole No. 3236.

ROBERT A. MEEK, Editor. NEW ORLEANS, LA., THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 28, 1918. CHAS. O. CHALMERS, Publisher.

Editorial

"More servants wait on man
Than he'll take notice of; in every path
He treads down that which doth befriend him
When sickness makes him pale and wan.
Oh, mighty love! Man is one world, and hath Another to attend him."

* * *

True Christianity has no more dangerous foe than counterfeit Christianity. Since his first appearance in Eden, Satan has been a skillful perverter of the truth. It was as a distorter of the Scriptures that he sought to ensnare and defeat the Son of God when he stood at the threshold of his earthly ministry, and this is the strategy that he is still employing in his ceaseless warfare against the Christian Church. Well may we strive to be on our guard against this prince of deceivers.

* * *

One would judge from many of the utterances of this day that democracy and righteousness are synonymous terms; but, as a matter of fact, the two things may be as far apart as the poles. Some commonwealths where all men have the ballot shelter about as much injustice and wickedness as can be found anywhere. A government of the people can rise no higher than the morals and ideals of those constituting its citizenship. We must do more for men than merely to give them political freedom if we would redeem them from the dominion of evil, either in time or in eternity.

* * *

Fitzsimmons, Sullivan, and McGovern, three noted prize fighters, have within the past few weeks gone to their graves. However men may live, in the course of a few years death overtakes them. For none is there any escape. The wonder is that this tremendous truth does not exercise a greater influence in shaping the lives of people. There is no tragedy so terrible as for a human being to expend his powers wholly or chiefly in ministries to himself, acting as if time were the whole of man's existence, and forgetting God and eternity. Well has it been said, "He builds too low who builds beneath the skies."

* * *

It is the part of wisdom to follow the leadings of Providence, rather than to try to rush ahead of it and have it to follow us. Wesley was careful to pursue the former course, waiting always to see the Lord's beckoning hand, and it was wonderful how the various institutions of the Methodist movement developed as they were needed. So true was this, that Methodism has been called "the child of Providence." Are not some of the Church workers of this day inclined to be too venturesome and anticipatory? Would they not be helped if they had somewhat more of the spirit that led the early disciples to tarry for a time at Jerusalem? We must yet have Divine guidance if we are to succeed in saving the sin-cursed millions of mankind. The inventions of men cannot take the place of the leadership of the ascended Christ.

THE SECRET OF A FRUITFUL LIFE.

It should be the earnest desire of every Christian to live a largely useful, a fruitful life. This should be the dominant passion of both the preacher and lay disciple. The Master said in one of his memorable discourses: "Herein is my father glorified, that ye bear much fruit." What must one do to make sure of measuring up in this essential particular to what our Lord expects of him?

There are some who seem to think that great activity in various forms of outward service will yield this much-to-be-desired result. Hence, as Mr. James H. McConkey says in his admirable little book, "The Three-Fold Secret of the Holy Spirit:" "Their life is one continual round of meetings—societies, conventions, addresses, and services, without number. To them hours of prayer are an unknown factor; communion is a meaningless term; waiting on God a waste of precious time; the guidance of the Spirit, and the life of trust are without significance. Yet these lives, with all their busyness, lack a radical something. There is fret and fume, worry and anxiety; a conscious lack of quickening power in service, and an absence of joy, peace, and blessing in the lives they are living with such intensity." And more than this, there is a dearth of truly spiritual fruit in the outcome of all their strenuous efforts.

Well, does Mr. McConkey say: "Works wrought in our own might are dead works; the chamber of prayer is the only true power-house; ministry without annointing is lifeless. We must touch Christ before we can touch men; we cannot pour out if we have not received of him. One touch of a live wire will thrill a man through and through, but you may touch him all day with a dead one and never quicken him. Faith without ministry is dead; ministry without faith—which is ministry apart from Christ—is declared by Christ himself to be NOTHING."

It ought not to be necessary to stress this great truth to Methodists, for never was it more conspicuously illustrated than it was in the life of the great Wesley himself. Highly educated, gifted, and animated by lofty motives, he toiled, prior to his Aldergate Street experience, for thirteen years, and pitiably meager were his achievements; but after he had re-discovered the doctrine that had set Luther afire and his heart had been "strangely warmed," he wrought with a power before unknown, turning thousands to Christ and setting all England aflame. It is not enough to try to work FOR Christ; to be truly successful, we must work WITH Christ. The great religious movements of the world have invariably sprung out of calls to a deeper spirituality and a larger degree of holiness. They have have never been generated by great mechanical combinations, along with latitudinarianism as to doctrines and conduct. Ecclesiasticisms may be built up in the latter way, but not the Kingdom of God.

Whether the world is growing better or worse, it is still gloriously true that "God keeps watch above his own," and that an unfading crown awaits every faithful disciple.

THE PENDING SCHEME OF UNIFICATION.

In the Advocate of last week we printed the full text of the pending scheme of Unification as it was recently given out by the Joint Commission, and discussed briefly the Rogers proposal for fixing the status of the Negro contingent of the Northern Methodists in the suggested new Church. We now desire to take up and examine the plan that has been proposed for the General Conference and the Regional Conferences. We trust that the reader in perusing what we shall have to say will refer to the Plan of Unification that has been officially reported and see whether or not we state things correctly. Certainly, we do not desire to misrepresent any point or any person in the slightest particular, and if we shall make any mistakes it will afford us sincere pleasure to correct them, if only our attention is called to them. What we wish to do is to give to the Methodist public the facts involved plainly and simply, and then leave it to the Church to act as she may please in the matter. This we conceive to be our duty as one of her editors, and we shall endeavor to perform it as best we can, undeterred by insults or any effort at intimidation. Much of what we shall say in this discussion will be but a repetition of an editorial entitled, "Shall Southern Methodism be Dismembered and Absorbed?" which appeared in the Advocate of November 1, 1917, and which we have been requested to reproduce, but which we prefer not to do except in part.

I

The General Conference.

(a) The General Conference of the unified Church is to consist of one House instead of two, as was recommended by the original Joint Commission (both Northern and Southern) and by our General Conference. These two Houses were intended to be a safeguard against ill-advised and hasty legislation, each Regional area having an equal number of representatives in the upper body, just as each State has in the United States Senate. Practically all the great governments of the world regard two such assemblies (one serving as a check upon the other) as a wise and necessary expedient. Yet this protective provision of the Oklahoma plan (and also of the original plan) has been rejected by a majority of our present Commission. Surely there would be no need for a Church of more than 6,000,000 members, and perhaps the richest in America, to take such a step in the interest of economy. The original two-house plan would also have had the further advantage of giving the united Church a more adequate representation in its legislative councils, without having to assemble so many delegates in one body as to make it unwieldy. But, as we have said, this recommendation of our last General Conference has been abandoned.

(b) Each Regional Conference is to be assigned General Conference delegates IN PROPORTION TO ITS NUMERICAL STRENGTH, and the said delegates are to be apportioned among the Annual Conferences in proportion to the number of their PEACE, BE STILL!

Rev. Marvin K. Miller.

I've been reading an old, old story.
A tale of the long, long ago;
And the beautiful thought that it brings me,
I am sure you would like to know.
It tells of a band of disciples,
Launched out in the midst of the sea;
The Savior was voyaging with them
'Cross the waters of blue Galilee.

I read that the Savior was sleeping,
Tired—He had labored all day.
Doing merciful deeds for the masses
Who had crowded each step of His way.
But alas! while the Master was resting
A storm-cloud fast darkened the sky;
And soon all their lives seemed imperiled
By the waves that were dashing so high.

Despair filled the hearts of the boatmen—
Forgetful that He was so near!
"We perish!" They cried as they woke Him,
(Their confidence lost, in their fear).
How gently He smiled and rebuked them;
Then spoke to the winds: "Peace, be still!"
How quickly the storm was abated,
As the elements bowed to His will.

And here is the thought that I gather,
From the tale of the storm on the sea:
It seems that the old boatmen's weakness
Often crops out in you and me.
When the storm-waves of life rise about us,
And threaten our barques to destroy,
We forget that the Master has power
To change all our sorrows to joy.

We forget all the love He has shown us,
When the heart-aches and cares come our way;
We begin to cry out that the Savior
Forgets, and we perish, to-day!
Oh friends, let us not grieve the Master
With our "little-faith" doubts of His love.
When the world seems to be all against us,
Let us turn to our true Friend above!

Pelahatchie, Miss.

GOOD ALL THE WAY.

"The Twenty-third Psalm is one of the first to be learned by the child. It is also the sweetest music that can fall on the ear of the aged Christian who has fought the good fight. Edward Irving, when on his deathbed, repeated it in Hebrew. The dying words of Sir William Hamilton were, 'Thy rod and thy staff, they comfort me.'"—Dr. John Ker.

NEVER OUTGROWN.

Spurgeon wrote: "Many books in my library are now behind and beneath me. They were good in their way once, and so were the clothes I wore when I was ten years old; but I have outgrown them. Nobody ever outgrows Scripture; the Book widens and deepens with our years." One testimony to the Book is a group picture of its haters. "The fool hath said in his heart, 'There is no God'"—hear the verdict, "Corrupt are they." A better testimony to the Book is the picture of Him who said, "Search the Scriptures," and with Christ as a center the picture of the vast group "of whom the world is not worthy."—Christian Intelligencer.

WANTED EVERYWHERE.

The minister needed always and everywhere is the man who knows and loves Jesus Christ and has a passion for souls. He must be filled with the Spirit and must know the Bible. He must have a clear and orderly knowledge of the doctrines of salvation, and must have risen long since above the petty doubts which ill become the man who would speak of and for God. His sermons must be full of unction; and when he speaks of daily living, the breath of heaven must be in his words. The little children must love him, and the young people he drawn to him, and the older regard him as a brother beloved. He is the man whom the poor and the sick welcome, and whose visits are a benediction. Only a plain man, perhaps, but a truly great and good man is this minister whom the vacant pulpit and parsonage need. —Lutheran Church Work and Observer.

CHRISTIAN SERVICE.

By Wm. C. Allen.

I know a young woman who, had she so desired, might have entered into fashionable life with all the possibilities that money, social position and superior education could afford. But she was a Christian and her parents had brought her up with ideals of service. So she preferred to teach school where her Christian talents could influence many young people for good. Was her choice not a wise one?

When in Korea I met with a missionary who years before as a young man had keenly felt that God was calling him into service in that distant land. But apparently there was no opening for him there. He finally decided that he would accept a position as missionary to India, wrote a letter of acceptance and, in New York City, walked to the letter box to post it. Just as he was about doing so he heard behind him a voice in clearest accents: "But what about Korea?" He looked behind him but no one was near. "This is very strange," he said to himself. "I will wait." Instead of mailing his acceptance to India he walked over to the office of the Missionary Board working in Korea. When he entered the elderly Secretary, holding a letter in his hand, remarked, "If ever there was a coincidence in the things of God, here it is. I am holding in my hand a letter from a young man whom we had expected to go to Korea, but in which he informs me that he can not go. Just as I read it, you, who want to go to Korea, enter. Secure your medical examination and if everything is all right, we will send you to Korea." Soon he was en route for that strange land, and for thirty-two years previous to my meeting him his service had been wonderfully blessed. His was an instance of the fact so often seen that when God calls us into a definite service He is sure to open the door.

Much observation in many lands has conclusively proved to me that the day of divine guidance is as bright as ever, but that we must consent to be led by God when He has service for us to perform.

God often leads His children by His providences. Very often we are obliged for a season to walk by faith and not by sight. There may be the willing mind, but not the immediate sense of the Divine guidance that we crave. We are perplexed. The earnest followers of Jesus are humbled by such experiences. Frequently these tests of faith are impatiently met. We nervously feel that we must get at something. We forget the possibility of excellent work being sadly misapplied in the great harvest fields. Our finite comprehension fails to understand the vast range of the operation of God and His deeper purposes with respect to others and ourselves. He may have other plans for us. His desire to secure our willing service is much greater than our ability to serve Him. Under such conditions the best thing we can do is to wait. We read of how Paul, in obedience to the Divine Spirit, waited until he heard the call from Macedonia, "Come over and help us." Then he went forward. Europe heard of the risen Savior. In proportion as Christ's people permit Him to control their activities will the efficiency of their service for Him be increased.

The ways of contributing spiritual help to others are limitless. Perhaps the daily Christian life is the best of all. "They that turn many to righteousness shall shine as the stars for ever and ever."

THE CAMPAIGN FOR THE MILLSAPS COLLEGE DORMITORY.

Dear Dr. Meek: I spent Sunday, February 10, at Greenwood, and was greeted by a fine congregation at the eleven o'clock service. At night a union service was held at the Baptist Church, the sermon being preached by the Episcopal rector, Dr. L. W. Rose. The pastor, Rev. J. A. Hall, who is in high favor with his flock, gave the Millsaps Commissioner a very cordial introduction, and his co-operation in other ways was much appreciated. I am glad to report that the Greenwood Methodists made a liberal response to the call for funds for the Millsaps Dormitory, the aggregate amount subscribed being upwards of $1400, other subscriptions being promised later. Two generous-hearted laymen, namely, Brothers A. G. McLemore and W. L. Craig, subscribed $500 each. May others imitate their splendid example!

In this connection permit me to say that Brother James Hand, of Purvis, recently sent in a check for $500 on his subscription of $1000 to the Dormitory. To him belongs the honor of having made the first subscription outside the city of Jackson.

The Commissioner visited Flora and Brandon during January, and secured some excellent subscriptions at each of these places. Bad weather has necessitated the postponement of several important engagements till later in the season.

On account of the numerous calls to support our Government and auxiliary agencies, such as the Red Cross and Y. M. C. A., in the prosecution of the great war in Europe, some few church people have the idea that the Church should discontinue her campaigns for educational equipment. But to do this would be to make a fatal mistake; for "education is a war measure in that it is for Christian preparedness." Says the editor of the New York Christian Advocate: "The present campaign for educational funds would be sadly out of place at a time like this, when every day is tag day and worthy hands are stretched out to generosity at every corner, were this appeal not fundamentally and vitally a part of war emergency. Stronger Christian schools will produce stronger Christian leadership, and it is only by the ideals of Christ incarnated in men that the mad world can ever be made over in his likeness."

Our Northern Methodist friends are in a great campaign to raise $30,000,000 for the better equipment of their institutions of learning, and $20,000,000 of this amount has already been secured. The Southern Baptists are laboring diligently to raise $10,000,000 for their educational work. Shall Southern Methodism lag behind in this great campaign for Christian preparedness? God forbid. Never has the Church in America had a more urgent call to foster Christian ideals in education, to train men for Christian leadership, and strongly reinforce her educational work than to-day when we are witnessing the disastrous effects upon Germany and upon the world of godless, materialistic culture. Most of the European universities are closed, and the rest are sadly crippled on account of the war. Sad to say, the majority of our American colleges and universities are secularized to an alarming extent, and if culture is to be saved from godless secularism, and if civilization is to be saved from final collapse, the Church must prepare herself for larger service in the reconstruction of society by strengthening her institutions of learning. Higher education without religion only enables men to be more efficiently selfish and devilish. Yours fraternally,

M. M. BLACK,
Commissioner Millsaps College.

Jackson, Miss.

A GOOD INVESTMENT.

In a remote district of Wales a baby boy lay dangerously ill. The widowed mother walked five miles in the night through the drenching rain to get a doctor. The doctor hesitated about making the unpleasant trip. Would it pay? he questioned. He would receive no money for his services, and, besides, if the child's life was saved he would no doubt become a poor laborer. But love for humanity and professional duty conquered, and the little life was saved. Years after, when this same child —Lloyd George—became Chancellor of the Exchequer, the old doctor said: "I never dreamed that in saving the life of that child on the farm hearth I was saving the life of the national leader."

For most men life is a carnival in which one vies with his neighbor in show of costume and ingenuity of mask.—Abraham Solomon.

THE PENDING SCHEME OF UNIFICATION

members and elected by them, as they are at present in the Churches, North and South.

(c) The powers of the General Conference of the unified Church (actual and potential) would be quite as large over all its territory (except possibly in the Missionary or Associate Jurisdictions) as the Church, South, now has over her territory. That is to say, THE NEW GENERAL CONFERENCE WOULD HAVE QUITE AS MUCH POWER (actual and potential) OVER ALL THE AFFAIRS OF SOUTHERN METHODISM as our present General Conference has. The following are some of the things it would exercise power over: 1. It would fix the conditions of Church membership, the qualifications of all ministers of various grades, the powers of Church, Quarterly, and Annual Conferences, Missions, and Mission Conferences. 2. It would fix the duties and powers of the Bishops, making them uniform, indicate to each Regional Conference how many it might name, confirm or (by a two-thirds vote) reject them, retire them, and, under certain restrictions, transfer them from one Regional Conference to another. 3. It would have power to do as it might please with the hymnal or ritual, and to regulate all matters pertaining to the mode of worship. 4. It would control all the distinctively connectional enterprises of the Church, including educational institutions. 5. It could under certain limitations, which might be easily overcome, divide, or change the Regional Conferences, or make new ones. (See Article VIII, Section 2, Paragraph 6, of the Plan officially given out and printed in last week's Advocate.) 6. It would "prescribe the method of acquisition, control, and disposition of the real and personal property of the Church in all its branches." (THIS WOULD VIRTUALLY PLACE THE OWNERSHIP AND CONTROL OF ALL THE PROPERTY OF THE CHURCH, SOUTH, IN THE HANDS OF THE GENERAL CONFERENCE, except such as may be held by independent boards or under charters, in a way that it could not be taken over and transferred.)

(d) The general Restrictive Rules would protect the Articles of Religion, the General Superintendency, the General Rules of the Church, and a few other things, just about as is done at present in the Disciplines of the two Churches, with the exception that a two-thirds vote (or it sub-Section 11, Article VIII, of the Constitution should be adopted, a bare majority) of all the Annual Conferences would be required to effect constitutional changes, instead of three-fourths, which would be a weakening of the protection thus afforded. The position of the Church, South, in the great issue of 1844 is completely surrendered and the General Conference may retire a Bishop not only because he is physically unfit for work, but may set him aside at will for any adjudged inefficiency or unacceptability. Thus all that Bishop Andrew and the great Southern leaders stood for when the Church was divided is abandoned and the Episcopacy for which Asbury, Soule, and McKendree stood is struck down. If asked for by a majority of two Regional Conferences, the vote of the General Conference on a pending question (unless it be constitutional) must be taken by Regional delegations, the members thereof voting as one body, and a concurrence of a majority of the Regional Conferences is required to pass it. (The inadequacy of this arrangement as a protective measure will be discussed further on.)

II.

The Regional Conferences.

(a) Instead of the three white Regional Conferences recommended by the original Joint Commission, the Sub-Committee having the matter in hand has recommended six as follows (we are numbering these Conferences here as we did in our editorial of November 1, 1917, instead of the way the Commission has numbered them—the arrangement of the States and boundaries, however, are identically the same):

1. (Number 5 in the Commission's Report). Minnesota, Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska, South Dakota, North Dakota, Montana, Wyoming, Colorado, Utah, Nevada, Idaho, Washington, Oregon, California, Hawaii, and Alaska. In this Regional Conference, according to the United States Government statistics, gathered in 1906 and published in 1910 (we use these because they are so arranged that the Negroes in the M. E. Church figures can easily be eliminated—we take it that the growth since that time has been fairly proportionate), there are 526,705 white Northern Methodists, and 19,322 Southern Methodists.

2. (Numbered 6 by the Commission). Missouri, Arkansas, Louisiana, Oklahoma, Texas, New Mexico, and Arizona. White Northern Methodists, 114,884; Southern Methodists, 494,861.

3. (The Commission's 1.) Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, and Wisconsin. White Northern Methodists, 927,239; Southern Methodists, 8016.

4. (The Commission's 1.) Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York, Pennsylvania, and New Jersey. White Northern Methodists, 864,621; Southern Methodists, 868 (these are in Pennsylvania).

5. (The Commission's 2.) Delaware, Maryland, District of Columbia, Virginia, West Virginia, Kentucky, and North Carolina. White Northern Methodists, 190,148; Southern Methodists, 477,113.

6. (The Commission's 3.) Tennessee, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, and Mississippi. White Northern Methodists, 47,250; Southern Methodists, 655,758.

Let it be noted that the Regional Conferences in which the Northern Church would be in the ascendency are much the stronger numerically, and that that Church would have a considerable contingent in 2 and 5 (our numbers), in which the Southern Methodists would be in the lead—114,884 in the former; and 190,148, considerably more than one-fourth of the membership, in the latter. On the other hand, in the New England section (our Number 4) the Church, South, would have only 868 members, only a little over 8000 in (our) Number 3, and less than 20,000 in (our) Number 1. The accompanying map will give a view of the boundaries of the Regional Conferences as it is proposed to have them.

(b) As to the powers of the Regional Conferences, we will not write fully now. It is said that they may have legislative powers over all local matters (a very indefinite expression); but the enumerated powers of the General Conference show that these could amount to little more than very restricted powers of administration over a prescribed territory. Take your Book of Discipline and look at how much of it pertains to matters left in the hands of the General Conference and how little relates to matters left in the hands of the Regional Conferences, and you can form some idea of how much legislative power the latter bodies are expected to exercise. And the fact that a Regional Conference is to be made up of the delegates to the General Conference from a certain area, and that it is expected to hold its meeting at the same time and place as the General Conference forbids the idea of its exercising any large legislative functions. Indeed, the Southern Commissioner who at Traverse City suggested the idea of thus making these bodies mere appendages of the General Conference declared that he did not wish them to exercise any legislative powers of importance. And, as has been stated, the General Conference may, under certain minor limitations, rearrange or multiply these bodies. They have no indestructible stability.

Some Plain Deductions.

1. If unification should be consummated along the lines it is now proceeding upon, there would never be a General Conference of the united Church that would not be largely dominated by the Northern Methodists. The proposed plan of electing delegates proves this beyond question. The delegates are to be assigned to the Regional areas in proportion to their Methodist population, and distributed equitably among the Annual Conferences in them, which bodies would elect them. The Regional Jurisdictions in which the Church, North, would be practically solid are the more populous and so would have the larger representation, and, besides this, with the large contingents that they would have in some of the Regional areas in which the Southern Methodists would lead, there would be in them Annual Conferences in which they would have a majority. Hence, there would invariably be a heavy Northern Methodist preponderance in every General Conference. Speaking to this point at Traverse City, Bishop Collins Denny said: "I think a clear statement would show that two-thirds of the total number (delegates to the General Conference), would amount to 474, and the delegation from the present territory of the Methodist Episcopal Church would have 398, which would put them within 76 of two-thirds of the General Conference, not including the representatives to come from the foreign-speaking Conferences in this country. How many the delegates from these foreign Conferences would make, I do not know; but it comes perilously near putting our branch of the Church in the reorganized Church in the position of having a trifle less than one-third of the delegates to the General

THE PROPOSED REGIONAL CONFERECES

This map shows the proposed Regional Conference arrangement in the pending scheme of Unification—the areas being exactly the same, but numbered differently, as this map was made before the Commission submitted its official report. As will be seen, it literally chops the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, to pieces in the very heart of its territory. Louisiana, Arkansas, Missouri, and Texas go into one jurisdiction; Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, Kentucky, and North Carolina into another; and South Carolina, Tennessee, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, and Mississippi into still another. And between these segments there would be no special connecting bond whatever. On the other hand, New England and the Middle States are left absolutely intact, and the great Middle West, and the Far West are each kept pretty well together.

Conference." This statement was contradicted by no one.

2. The recommended arrangement of the Regional Conferences would literally chop the Church, South, to pieces, leaving no special connecting bond whatever between the dissevered fragments. The South proper would not be kept together at all, as was the design in the original plan of unification. When two bodies, one of which is very much larger than the other, are to be united, the more the smaller one is carved up, the more nearly the process approaches that of a simple amalgamation We do not for one moment believe that our last General Conference would have authorized the continuation of the unification proceedings if it had been thought that this wholesale splitting up of the central territory of Southern Methodism was a possibility. Not one of the gentlemen now standing for this program who sat in that body so much as even hinted at such a thing. They did not dare to do it.

When we showed last November how it is thus proposed to dismember the Church, South, Dr. J. M. Moore, indirectly replying to us in the Nashville Advocate, nonchalantly declared that nothing is being done to the Church, South, that is not being done to the Church, North. We wonder if the Doctor thinks that such weak sophistry as that will pass with the Methodists of the South? It is the minority, not the majority, that needs protection. The North has no delicate Negro problem that necessitates local self-government, so secured that unsympathetic or hostile outside influences cannot disturb the existing social order. If the two Churches were directly merged, the one with 4,000,000, and the other with 2,000,000 members, precisely the same thing would be done to each of them, yet it would practically amount to the absorption of the smaller body. And if the present arrangement goes through, the result will amount substantially to that.

New England and the Middle States were left banded together and intact. Why, then, was it decided to chop up the heart of the South? Was the doing of this merely incidental? Look at the following statement taken from the proceedings of the Joint Commission at Baltimore:

"R. E. Blackwell (a Southern Commissioner): "I want, as a great many people in the South want, to break the solid South."

"Bishop Hamilton (a Northern Commissioner): "Amen!"

The fact is, it has been repeatedly declared by influential Commissioners that the splitting up of the solid South was one of the things that must be accomplished in working out a plan of union.

3. The suggested provision for having the Regional Conference to vote by areas, if a majority of the delegates from two such jurisdictions should so request, which seems to be the only attempt to safeguard the interests of the minority, is, as we see it, a weak and wholly inadequate arrangement. The thing that chiefly makes this protection an imperative necessity is the presence in the Central South of some nine or ten millions of Negroes—they are in the majority in some of the States. Now, suppose that the General Conference were to undertake to pass a measure relating to the colored people that the white Methodists in the heart of the South, chiefly grouped in the Regional Conferences numbered 4 and 5 (our numbers) considered vicious and their representatives should insist upon a vote by Regional areas, what could they hope for from the other area containing a Southern Methodist majority—Number 2 (our number)? The States of New Mexico, Arizona, Texas, Arkansas, and Missouri, with their large white majorities, know comparatively little about the Negro problem as a concrete reality, and could not be expected to feel the same concern about the matter as the Conferences in the black belt. As we have before said, while we will not attribute such a motive to those who originated the present Regional Conference scheme, we doubt whether a more catchy and effective method of shattering the power of the Southern Church could be devised than this arrangement to detach from the main body of its membership the elements which are the least Southern in their environments and ideals, linking them with contingents from the Church, North, and empowering them to act in a separate and distinct capacity upon matters of a connectional character.

But even if it were known that the three Regional Conferences in which the former members of the Church, South, would be the stronger, would stand together, the protection thus afforded could not reasonably be regarded as sufficient, because the element of permanence would be lacking. In the course of a few years there would naturally and inevitably be an increase in the number of Regional jurisdictions. To illustrate, the territory embraced in Regional area Number 1 (the great Northwest) is about as large as that embraced in the other five, and could not be expected to be kept together indefinitely. So unstable a safeguard would be a mere rope of sand. The slogan that is being passed around: "The Church, North, would have a majority in three of the Regional Conferences, and we would have a majority in three," has in it, when analyzed, little merit. There would soon be other like bodies. Moreover, the Regional Conferences have been whittled down until they have been practically stripped of all autonomy of consequence. The government of the proposed Church has been so centered in the General Conference that it is potentially supreme, subject to the few restrictive rules; and in that powerful body our people would always be in a hopeless minority. They would be in much the same predicament, under the present arrangement, that the Southern States would be in if Congress were vested with the authority to legislate entirely for them, as it does for the District of Columbia. Is there a single State in the South that would be willing to surrender its rights as a State and be governed wholly by the Federal Legislature at Washington? The fact is, there is just about enough semblance of protection in the pending plan of unification to make possible the confusing of our membership and to serve as a kind of lure to lead them into an alliance (we do not say that this was designed) from which they could never emerge, and in which they would speedily be overwhelmed and obliterated. The real question now before Southern Methodists, stripped of all fair disguises, is, SHALL OUR CHURCH BE DISMEMBERED AND COMPLETELY ABSORBED? This is the issue into which the long drawn-out union movement has at last evolved itself.

METHODISM AT CAMP SHELBY.

By Rev. Roy H. Kleiser, Camp Pastor.

As the brethren who are contributing to the support of my work are doubtless anxious to know what we are doing. I will take this method of reporting. When I went to Bishop Murrah, after my appointment, for instructions concerning my new work, he gave me a very broad (and I doubt if he realized how difficult) commission. My instructions were "to go down there and use common sense and judgment"—two of the most difficult things I have ever attempted. The work of the camp pastor in the initial movement was rather an indefinite and intangible religious occupation. However, through the efforts of the War-time Commission of the Churches, camp pastors have come to be recognized by the War Department and are proving quite a vital factor in the religious life of the camps.

I spent several weeks in looking over the field before making any definite plans for the work. I was invited to preach frequently in the Y. M. C. A. buildings, and I must say I had the most inspiring congregations that I have ever preached to, ranging anywhere from four or five hundred, to as high as fifteen hundred men, at a time. When a man looks into the faces of these boys and begins to preach, it is hard to follow the set outlines of a prepared sermon. Somehow, he wants to forget all he ever heard of homiletics and just talk right out of his heart to the men before him. However, when preaching thus, I was not bringing the Methodist Church before the men and letting them know its interest in them. To do this without introducing sectarianism was one of the first problems I had to face.

After carefully studying the situation, I came to the conclusion that there were two ways open to me. I might go in and out of the Camp, mixing with the boys and making a number of personal friends, and yet to them be just "some sort of a preacher," without a definite attachment so far as they were concerned. On the other hand, I felt that it would be possible to work out a plan by which the Methodist Church could be definitely brought before the Camp, as a vital factor in the life of the Methodist men. Just how to do this seemed rather a puzzling proposition in the beginning. However, we finally worked out what promises to be a very successful program.

The Methodist pastors of the city of Hattiesburg and their people are giving me the heartiest sort of support and co-operation, putting themselves unreservedly at our service.

I have organized a Committee on Methodist Activities, composed of representatives from each of the Methodist churches in the city. This Committee will arrange various programs of activities, both within and without the Camp, for the good of the soldiers, and will act as a kind of board of directors for all Methodist work connected with the Camp. Under their direction, the Social Service Department of the Woman's Missionary Society has undertaken to "mother" one of the Y. M. C. A. buildings. Their work is to give an attractive home-like touch to the building, for, one of the greatest needs, and one which is most missed by all of the men, is the home-like touch of women in their surroundings. The ladies have certainly transformed Building No. 1 since they have had it in charge. They have hung curtains on the windows, put potted plants in the building, tasteful decorations on the walls, and in various ways transformed the barn-like "hut" into an attractive place for reading and writing and spending leisure hours. They have already had one social afternoon, which proved quite a success. An attractive program of entertainment was rendered by local talent of the city, with the assistance of some of the men at the Camp, after which refreshments were served and everybody had a very pleasant time. The point of it all was that the men went away feeling that the Methodist Church was interested in them and trying to add to their comfort and pleasure. We expect to have these socials frequently. In connection with them we have laid down three ironclad rules, viz.: 1. No girls shall be present between the ages of 14 and 18, except where they are on the program, and then they go home immediately after the performance. They are not to enter into conversation with any soldier. 2. No girls between the ages of 18 and 26, except under very careful chaperonage. 3. No evening dresses on any occasion.

We hope soon to have the consent of the Y. M. C. A. to have special occasions upon which the regular Sunday night services of the Y. M. C. A. will be turned over to the Methodist Church, and advertised in advance. On these occasions, I hope to have the assistance of the choirs of the city and have special musical programs as well as the preaching service.

We are arranging a special Affiliated Military Membership for the Methodist men in the Camp, by which they can become definitely identified with some one of the Methodist churches in the city, and at the same time hold their present membership with their home churches. Men who are converted in the services at the Camp are given the vows of the Church and baptized by the camp pastor, and, unless they prefer to be permanently identified with one of the local churches, their membership is sent to their home church, while at the same time they are enrolled with us as an Affiliating Military Member.

In the evangelistic services of the Y. M. C. A., the men who profess conversion are urged to sign what is known as the War Roll Card. This is a direct pledge to serve Christ as their Savior and King. On this card the man gives his name, regimental number, home address, and Church preference. These are all turned in at the Y.M.C.A. headquarters, assorted, and copies of those cards which express preference for his Church are given to each of the camp pastors. I have worked out a plan of following up these cards, and am trying to tie up the new converts with some of the religious work of the Camp. If they are already members of the Church, they are urged to identify themselves at once with the nearest Bible class. If they are not members of the Church, arrangements are made to receive them, and dispose of their memberships as above stated. Where it is possible, men are urged to come to town and assume the obligations of the Church before the regular congregation, but if this is not convenient, I receive them at the Camp.

I am frequently invited to preach in these evangelistic services of the Y. M. C. A., which are held in each of the buildings every Sunday night, and one week night. I have seen a goodly number of professed conversions under my own preaching in the short time that I have been here. Last Sunday night (February 17) I had charge of the services at Y. M. C. A. Building No. 6, and spoke to a splendid body of men. I think there were some 12 or 15 who expressed a definite purpose to begin a new life, and after the services, two men came to me privately and asked to be baptized and received into the Methodist Church at once.

No report could be complete without some mention of the work at the Base Hospital. It has been my sad privilege to minister to several dying men and help them face the Great Beyond bravely; and I think that I have also been able to inspiro courage in the hearts of one or two men to help them make a successful fight for life when they had been given up to die.

At the next meeting of the Committee on Methodist Activities I expect to ask for a committee from each of the Methodist churches to visit tho Base Hospital on regular days and take flowers and good cheer to the inmates.

I am delighted with my work at Camp Shelby as camp pastor. It takes lots of hard work, but there is almost an unlimited opportunity for service. I sincerely hope that I may have your prayers in the performance of my duties.

EVANGELISM.

The winter has been unusually severe, and but little has been done in the revival work of the Church. But the time has now come to be active. We must be about the Master's work of calling sinners to repentance. Our Conference evangelists, the Rev. J. A. Bowen and the Rev. J. H. Bell, have given good proof of their usefulness in the Lord's kingdom. All the pastors of North Mississippi know these brethren to be men of power. Their work has been far-reaching and of the highest value, both to pastors and people. They are specialists in evangelism, in that they lead men to make a decision. They inspire and help the churches wherever they go. Under God, they are doing a great work. Now, brethren of the Conference, let us keep these men at work. Since the severe winter is about over, may we not have a number of early revivals? This should be a year of much prayer and searching of the heart, for we feel that our nation is in the mightiest test of its history, and that the Church must save the nation in this awful visitation. In many places we see signs of a mighty awakening, but in many places the Church, like many parts of the nation, seems to be asleep. So, let our ministry and people of the North Mississippi Conference call to their assistance our Conference evangelists. Don't delay until their time is entirely taken up, but get your dates settled now. The preparation for a meeting is very important. May it be the prayer of tho whole Church that this may be one of the greatest years spiritually that we have ever seen in North Mississippi!

BISHOP THIRKIELD'S VIEW.

In a recent article on the Negro question, Bishop W. P. Thirkield, among other things, said:

"The methods of the State are too often mechanical. The methods of the kingdom of God are spiritual. The State, for example, said: 'We shall make the Negro a man by making him a voter'—an external, artificial process—the enfranchisement of men en masse. It failed.

"However, let me say, incidentally, that while some men call this a blunder, it was one of the strange blunders of providence. While it was inevitable that it should break down, and at great cost to the Negro, yet it did not altogether fail. The ballot in the hand of the Negro for the first time awakened the consciousness of manhood. It is a dictum of Kant always to treat humanity, whether in yourself or another, as a person, never as a thing. The Negro had been classed with chattel and traded as a thing. The ballot in his hands first gave him a name. No longer was he 'Cicero' or 'Pompey,' but Cicero Jones and Pompey Washington. The ballot individualized him. As he stood erect, his forehead bared to the stars, a ballot in his hand, he by that act was lifted out of the herd and made for the first time to count as one. The ballot did more to give to the Negro a sense of personality, of human dignity, and of personal rights, than all the schooling of a race for a generation could have done.

"Trained and efficient manhood in a democracy is the essential basis of participation, and the question of a loyal son of the South, Edgar Gardner Murphy, must have ever increasing significance: 'Is the organization of democracy in the Southern States never to include him? Is he never as a factor of government to be accepted as a participant in our civilization?' This question is now to the front. More than one leading Southern paper bravely faces the question of Negro suffrage. They see that the man who bravely fights to save our democracy is worthy to vote to conserve that democracy. And may God forbid that the Church shall by any racial discrimination or denial lag behind the State!"

BUDDHA INVADING THE UNITED STATES.

S. M. Barnard, in American Home Missionary.

Some months ago I received an invitation to attend a Sunday afternoon service at the Buddhist temple in Los Angeles in honor of the birthday of Buddha. Accompanied by some friends, I went.

The temple is located in one of the less favored parts of the city, but is in easy access to two car lines. It is a two-story frame building on a hill and is in full view for quite a distance.

The building was crowded, and people stood in the aisles for more than three hours to hear what would be said in a Christian nation in honor of Buddha. First, we heard the sound gongs to drive away the evil spirits. Then three Buddhist priests took their places before the altar and engaged in a weird chant.

A priest then came forward with a sacred book and read an "oration to Buddha." Two little Japanese girls ascended to the altar and bowed to an image of the god.

A Los Angeles citizen took charge of the meeting and introduced a Japanese musician and afterwards a cultured American woman, each of whom rendered special music.

One of our city councilmen gave an address in behalf of the city, expressing appreciation of Buddha and his followers.

The mayor was to have done this, but was not present.

A leader in Red Cross circles told how the Japanese in Los Angeles had enlisted 1200 strong in her work.

A Persian woman and her American husband rendered a Persian song; a Persian prophet compared Buddha and Christ; an East Indian woman expounded Buddha's teachings; and a Los Angeles doctor lectured on the sacredness of all life, saying that he could easily worship at the altar of a horse.

The British consul spoke briefly, but had not much to say for Buddha. Not so the Japanese consul, who had much to say, urging that Christianity should make a more careful and sympathetic study of Buddhism. The priest closed the symposium, and the lunch for the audience was spread on the temple lawn.

Brethren, is not this sufficient argument for home missions?

NORTH MISSISSIPPI BOARD OF CHURCH EXTENSION.

The Executive Committee of the Board of Church Extension of the North Mississippi Conference will meet at Winona, Miss., on March 19, at 11 a. m. All parties interested in this meeting should write Rev. J. T. McCafferty, at Durant, Miss., and secure blanks on which to make application to the General Board for donations and loans. Please have your papers in due form before leaving home. It will be too late to correct them after you get to Winona. We will only be in session one day, and we shall begin our meeting promptly at 11 a. m.

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE WOMAN'S MISSIONARY COUNCIL.

The Eighth Annual Meeting of the Woman's Missionary Council will be held in the Church Street Methodist Episcopal Church, South, Knoxville, Tennessee, April 3-11, 1918.

The Workers' Conference will be held Wednesday afternoon, April 3, at 2 o'clock, and an inspirational service the evening of the same day.

Delegates and visitors should correspond with Mrs. H. A. Evans, Vice Chairman General, who will furnish a list of hotels and boarding houses. An effort is being made to secure reduced railroad rates and if the same can be had, due announcement will be made through the Church papers.

Miss BELLE H. BENNETT, President.
Mrs. FITZGERALD SALE PARKER,
Secretary.

FROM DR. JOHN T. SAWYER.

Dear Doctor Meek: I have been reading very carefully what you published in the last Advocate anent the Unification matter. There is no need for me to write at length what I think about it all, as you have had my unqualified endorsement of all you have written about Unification from the start of the movement to the present. I may say, however, that your editorial on the front page and continued on page five is clear, strong and logical. As you truly state, by the plan as thus far proposed, "the territory of the Southern Church is to be literally chopped to pieces in the heart of the South and no adequate and stable protection for the minority has been provided." The statement which you quote as made by "a distinguished Southern Commissioner at Traverse City," and which "was not contradicted by anybody," shows plainly that the General Conference would "invariably have a heavy Northern majority." You say: "All of these matters we shall lay bare later," and that is right. Judging by what you have already done along that line, we are sure our Southern Methodists will have all the needful information in order to wisely determine their final action. Keep right on, Doctor, just as you have been doing, and may God guide you in it all!

Yours fraternally,
JOHN T. SAWYER.

NOTES.

The pending prohibition amendment to the Federal Constitution has been ratified by the following states: Mississippi, Virginia, Kentucky, South Carolina, North Dakota, Maryland, and Montana. Two of these, Maryland and Kentucky, were classed as wet States.

The Governor of Texas has called a special session of the State Legislature to deal with important matters, prominent among which are certain phases of the liquor problem. Texas is expected to take, without further delay, some decidedly forward steps looking to the suppression of the whiskey traffic.

While in New Orleans last week, Rev. A. W. Turner, Superintendent of the Louisiana Anti-Saloon League, expressed the confident belief that the Louisiana Legislature, which is to convene on May 13, will ratify the National prohibition amendment. His co-worker, Rev. Claude L. Jones, concurred in this view.

WHY?

Why is it that breadstuffs must be rotted into beer? Is it for the benefit of the soldiers? No, we will not allow a drop of beer in any fort or cantonment. But why do we discriminate against these soldiers? If beer is a good thing, are not our soldiers denying themselves enough already in comforts, safety, isolation, to desire that we give them beer, if it is a good thing? But if it is a bad thing why do we allow it to ourselves—that is to say, to the rest of the citizenship—will America gulp down a known poison while she denies the poison to them? There is nothing in it anywhere, except that for some occult reason the voice of the brewers and the brewers' friends seem to have a louder voice at headquarters than the rest of the nation has. It ought not so to be.—Central Christian Advocate.

GUILTY!

One has well stated the case against the liquor traffic in summing up the testimonies of various witnesses as follows:

"The law: That the liquor traffic has 'no inherent right' to exist.

"The courts: That drink is the chief cause of crime and pauperism.

"Physicians: That drink is the chief cause of disease.

"Business: That drink produces incompetency and inefficiency.

"The home: That drink destroys happiness and prosperity.

"The Church: That drink is the chief foe of religion.

"The school: That drink is the greatest enemy of education.

"Motherhood: That drink poisons the fountains of life.

"Economy: That drink wastes food and robs labor.

"Conservation: That drink is always destructive, never constructive.

"Patriotism: That drink has disqualified a large percentage of the young men called to the colors, and, as General Leonard Wood says, 'is the soldier's worst enemy.'"—Midland Methodist.

MRS. MATTIE WREN PATTERSON.

"Sometimes the Master takes a human life
And clothes it with the beauty of His grace
And sets the radiance of His peace to shine
With its clear light on some beloved face.

And, hand in hand, with His own saints we stray,
While day by day their voices tenderer grow;
Till, sudden, at the parting of the way
His chariot meets them, and they smile and go."

So it was that the sweet spirit of Mrs. Mattie Wren Patterson winged its flight from earth to heaven on January 16, 1918. Her going was not unexpected by her loved ones, as she had been an invalid for two years, during which time she had suffered with sweet patience and beautiful resignation to God's will. This devoted Christian woman was born in Putnam County, Ga., on November 8, 1845. When she was a small child, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Wren, moved to Louisiana and settled near Minden, where they became identified with the Methodist Church and the religious life of the community. In this Christian home, Mattie early gave her heart to God and at twelve years of age joined the Methodist Church, to which she was ever loyal and devoted. She was a graduate of the Minden Female College, and on Jan. 15, 1868, was happily married to Rev. J. F. Patterson, a beloved and valued member of the Louisiana Conference. For fifty years, love and harmony ruled supreme in this religious home, which eight children came to bless and brighten. Four of them were waiting to welcome the mother in heaven, and, reunited, rejoiced in a more golden day than that which had been celebrated the day before on earth—her golden wedding day.

As a mother, Mrs. Patterson was firm but tender; as wife, she was sympathetic, helpful and true; as a woman, she was noble and good. In her going the Church has lost a loyal and consecrated worker, and the world a true woman.

"So she passed on; the loving and the loved
We cannot see—our eyes are dimmed with tears—
But in some realm, from sadness far removed,
She wears the beauty of unfading years.
With us, with God unseen, yet near at hand,
Not loving less, for that sweet heavenly birth—
She has but joined the glad immortal band
Of those who do the Master's will in heaven or earth."

A FRIEND.

MISSES EARLE AND LEOLA GREER.

The two young ladies shown in the picture below are recent graduates of the Louisiana Industrial Institute, of Ruston, La., and are girls from the Louisiana Methodist Orphanage. Their mother died about six years ago leaving four little girls (entire orphans), who, at her request, were placed in our Orphanage. The Superintendent promised the mother he would not give the girls away or separate them, but would keep them in the home and educate and equip them for life. These girls have shown their merit and worth by making the best of their opportunities, and by diligent application have finished the prescribed courses of study, and are now out teaching in the public schools of our State.

We feel sure the friends of the Orphanage are glad to see in these two young ladies some of the results of their benefactions to the work that is being done for homeless children at Ruston.

It is stated that probably an airplane mail service will be established between Washington, Philadelphia, and New York this summer, the service beginning with a round trip a day, with the expectation of its extension later. First-class mail only will be carried in the outset.

The Memphis Commercial Appeal is probably the most widely read daily paper in the South. Its average week-day circulation is about 85,000, and that of its Sunday issue about 125,000. Nor do we know of any paper in the Southern States that we think is more ably edited. Mr. C. P. J. Mooney, its Managing Editor, is a really great journalist.

The United States Senate passed on Feb. 22 the administration bill providing for government control of the railroads. The feature of the original measure suggested by the President, that they might be held after the close of the war until Congress should determine otherwise, was changed, and the enactment requires that they shall pass back to their owners within eighteen months after the cessation of hostilities.

Russia has at last officially announced her withdrawal from the war against Germany, Austria-Hungary, Turkey, and Bulgaria, but she has yet made no treaty with these powers. It is affirmed that the Russian troops will be demobilized on all fronts, and that a vast number of German and Austrian prisoners will be liberated, as will also doubtless be the captured Russians. The effect of this denouement will manifestly be to strengthen greatly the forces of the Central Powers in the West.

President Woodrow Wilson appeared before Congress on February 11 and discussed the recent peace addresses of Count Czernin, the Austrian Minister of Foreign affairs, and Count von Hertling, the German Chancellor, contending that there was a marked difference between the two utterances that of the former being much more reasonable and straightforward. The President stated emphatically that the entire resources of the American Nation would be mobilized to defeat Germany's present autocratic purposes, if necessary. England's two foremost statesmen, Mr. Asquith and Mr. Loyd-George, the Prime Minister, did not seem to take the same view of Mr. Wilson's pronouncement that there is a difference in the attitudes of Germany and Austria-Hungary toward peace. The former agrees with the President, while the latter thinks that the two countries understand each other and are only working toward the same end by somewhat different methods. We think it was well for our Chief Executive to let it be known that the United States will not be diverted from its course by the pacific talk that has been in the air, and that if the Central Powers want the war to cease they must make up their minds to accede to just and proper terms.

PUSSY WILLOWS.

Baby Tommy stroked them gently,
All his tiny arms could hold,
"Cuddle close to me," he whispered;
"Dear tree-kittens must be cold."

'Twas that hateful old dog, Violet,
Scared you up into the tree."

A BOY WORTH WHILE.

Little "I Will" was a very small boy with the sweetest face any one could wish to see, and under his white blouse, with its big sailor collar, beat the sweetest little heart that ever grew.

Of course, "I Will" had another name. His "really truly" name he would have told you was Louis, but those who knew him thought the "I Will" suited him better.

"Dear," mother would say, "will you run upstairs and get my scissors? You will find them on the sewing machine."

"I will, I will," would sing out the pleasant little voice, and in a twinkling the scissors would be put in mother's hand.

Or father would say, "Louis, gather up your toys; it is almost supper time."

"I will," would come the smiling answer.

Dear little "I Will." He is a big boy now—big enough to study Latin and all sorts of other hard things, but the sunshine of his merry baby ways has never faded from his mother's heart.

What a pity there is not a little "I Will" in every home!—Author Unknown.

BETTY'S VALENTINE.

Everybody loved Betty, because she loved everybody, and the trees and birds and flowers, too. Her happy, sunshine heart spoke out in her cheeks and eyes—all over herself. When she was in the Junior meeting her sweet voice sang like a bird's, just as if she could not help singing. But there came a day when, although she still smiled, it was a sad, little smile, and she rather choked when they were singing a song she loved very much.

She lived alone with her mother in a very little home, just about big enough for two, but it had vines on the porch in the summer, and pinks and pansies in little beds on each side of the walk leading up to the front door. But it was winter now, cold February, and the vines were gone, and snow covered the little flower beds with a white blanket. The mother, too, was not well enough to work and at times there was hardly enough to eat, or fire to keep them warm.

It was the Junior meeting, where Miss Cameron had been talking to the boys and girls about helping "O-t-h-e-r-s." Betty did not stop to speak with them that afternoon as they gathered around the stove to get warm before going out into the cold, and they watched her as she went out, so different a little Betty she seemed. Jack was the first to speak.

"Say, what can we do about this? Miss Cameron has been talking about helping "O-t-h-e-r-s," and it seems to me here is a mighty good chance to begin with Betty if we know how."

"Yes, that is the trouble," said Winifred; "we must do it in just the right way, for we know just how Betty and her mother are loved and respected, and they have not been in such trouble before."

They all thought hard for a minute or two, and then Donald surprised them by speaking up—big, tall Donald who never had much to say.

"I tell you, let's send Betty a Valentine!" They were all too surprised to speak for a minute, and then they came to understand his meaning, they clapped their hands and cried, "Good!" "Good!" "Just the thing!" "Hurrah for Donald!" "A Valentine worth having it shall be!"

Then they told Miss Cameron about it, and as Valentine Day was on Saturday they had a whole week to work.

Very early Saturday morning, two big boys walked on tip-toe up to Betty's door, carrying a wonderful, big basket. It was truly "a Valentine," for it was all covered with white, lacy paper, and decorated with red hearts. Inside there were just the things that Betty and her mother needed, besides a check the fathers and mothers insisted on giving to buy things that would not go in the basket!

And in a beautiful little envelope, tied with red ribbon to the handle of the basket they hung very carefully to the door-knob before they knocked and ran away as fast as their legs would carry them, was this message:

"Dear Little Betty, kind and true,
Whose love shines out in your eyes so blue,
We ask you to take from our hearts this sign,
Of our love for you.
Your Own Valentine."

JERRY'S BUBBLE PARTY.

"I'm going to have a party to-day," announced Jerry on the morning of his sixth birthday.

Uncle Jimmy stared at him in surprise. He and Jerry were alone in the house. Jerry's mother and father had been called away to grandmother, who had been taken ill.

"I guess not," said Uncle Jimmy at last. "Who is to give the party for you? Not your Uncle Jimmy!"

"I'll give it myself," said Jerry. "I've got the pipes from last year, and I'll have another soap-bubble party. But it won't be a real party without anything to eat," he ended wistfully.

Jerry invited his six best friends, and they all came, even though he told them there would be nothing to eat. They blew bubbles until Rosemary blew one as big as a five-cent balloon. Then they laid aside the pipes and went into the woods.

They had been gone only a few moments when they came running back, Jerry leading.

"Come quick, Uncle Jimmy," he called. "There's something in the tree that's trying to make soap-bubbles or else it's trying to bust itself."

Uncle Jimmy hurried back with the excited children.

"There it is," whispered Jerry.

"It" was a grayish-brown object about three inches long, with a lumpy body and a pair of beautiful, bright eyes. Every other second its breast puffed out until it did look a little like a soap-bubble, in shape at least. And all the while there was a shrill note thrown upon the air.

"Do you hear that noise?" asked Uncle Jimmy. "That is the tree-toad's song. And the soap-bubble is his chest expanding when he takes in a breath to sing."

"I didn't know toads sang!"

"You're listening to one now, Rosemary," said Uncle Jimmy. "The tree-toad's song is about the first spring note heard in the woods. They beat the birds to it. Now, if I know this fellow, I believe I can give you another treat, though it seems a shame to disturb him. Watch him and tell me if anything happens."

Uncle Jimmy stood on the stump of a tree and gently prodded Mr. Tree-Toad with the end of his finger. Instantly he stopped singing, the soap-bubble chest became quiet, and after a moment's watchful waiting, he hopped up the branch until he came to a shelter of green leaves. Not for a second did the eager eyes of the children leave him.

Suddenly Billy cried out, "He's changed his clothes!"

Sure enough, he was wearing a green suit!

"He changes to match his surroundings," explained Uncle Jimmy. "When his brown coat did not hide him on the limb of the tree he hurried to the leaves and took on their color. He thinks he is hidden now. And he won't sing for a while, either. So let's go back to the house. I believe I smell a birthday cake, and who knows but there might be some roses made out of pink ice cream to eat with it?"

"Oh! oh!" cried seven voices.

"It's a real party, after all!" shouted Jerry. "And I've had a special singer at my party, just the way mother has at some of hers!"—Janet Thomas Van Osdel.

IN MEMORY OF A DEAR SISTER.

Myrtle Purcell was born at Black Hawk, Miss., on August 11, 1880, and died at Shreveport, La., on December 3, 1917. When a small child, Myrtle was converted at the family altar. As the family sang that gospel hymn, "Amazing Grace," she was convicted of sin there, and was led to Christ by the help of her parents and others of the family circle. She never doubted her relation to Christ. She was a close student of the Bible, and therefore made a useful member of her beloved Church. She was always glad to do anything she could for the cause of Christ.

Myrtle became a trained nurse and underwent many hardships. In fact, she contracted typhoid-pneumonia from exposure while caring for the sick. Her spirit of self-sacrifice was known to all her friends and loved ones. Her service in the Church and Sunday school at Bolinger, La., was a means of much and lasting good to that community.

She was laid to rest in the cemetery at Plain Dealing, La., near the grave of her father, J. S. Purcell, Sr. The funeral service was one of the most beautiful I have ever attended. It was conducted by Rev. T. J. Holladay and Rev. C. A. Powell. The remains were accompanied to the grave by a host of relatives and friends. Young lady friends, who had served with the deceased in nurse-training, acted as the pallbearers. It was a beautiful scene as the young ladies, dressed in white, each carrying white flowers, stood near the lovely white casket of our departed sister. Nature itself seemed to be at its best that December day. The sun shone softly and dimly, and the wind moved not a leaf, while we, with tearful eyes, and sad hearts, placed her body in the tomb, feeling assured that we would see her again some sweet day. She leaves a mother, seven sisters, and four brothers, who expect to meet her again.

Her brother, J. S. PURCELL.

PROHIBITION IN MISSISSIPPI.

This book contains 230 pages, is printed on No. 1 book paper, and neatly bound in cloth. It contains the last word on the prohibition situation in Mississippi from territorial days down to September 1, 1917. It will be found of indispensable value to preachers, lawyers, Sunday School workers, and teachers in our literary schools. Indeed, no library in Mississippi, either public or private, will be complete without it, as it records in a vigorous, authoritative way the history of one of the greatest social, moral, and economic problems which has ever demanded solution at the hands of Mississippi patriots. Mailed, postage prepaid, for $1.25 cash.

WAR CONDITIONS
—REFLECTED IN—
TELEPHONE SERVICE

Among the unforeseen conditions which the war has imposed upon us is the necessity of practically suspending the commercial development of our business.

Confronted with an unusual increase in the use of the telephone and a strong demand for new and additional service, we cannot accept or fill orders except subject to practically an indefinite delay.

This situation is due to the importance of conserving our supplies so that the government's requirements may be promptly met by giving the War Department service anywhere and at any time the request is made.

METHODISM IN LOUISIANA AND MISSISSIPPI.

The late Minutes of the Louisiana and two Mississippi Conferences, which make up the Advocate's patronizing territory, have been on our table for some time; but until now we have not had an opportunity to examine them. These Annuals show that the Church prospered within the bounds of these Conferences last year in all respects except as to an increase in members. The net gain in membership in the Louisiana Conference was 974; in the Mississippi Conference, 436, and in the North Mississippi Conference, 263. We cannot believe that these figures correctly represent the numerical growth of Methodism within the limits of these three organizations. When hundreds of men participate in handling figures and making up statistics there is much room for inaccuracy, and, as is well known, not a few inconsistent things can be pointed out in the statistical exhibits of almost any Annual Conference. However, this showing is not creditable to the Methodism of Louisiana and Mississippi, and there is need to discover wherein the trouble lies and to take steps to correct it. If the cause is in the manner of making reports, we should find some way of remedying that weakness; or if we are really having so little numerical growth as is indicated, we need to increase the vigor of our efforts in the work of soul-winning and of shepherding our flocks that there may be a larger ingathering into the fold.

There are now in the Louisiana Conference, according to the latest figures, 39,914 Methodists; in the Mississippi Conference, 58,432; in the North Mississippi Conference, 59,067.

The numerical strength of the three Conferences by districts is as follows:

Louisiana Conference — Alexandria District, 4991; Baton Rouge, 6103; Lafayette, 5064; Monroe, 5319; New Orleans (including the city and a number of outlying points), 4739; Ruston, 7438; Shreveport, (including the city and some adjoining parishes), 6260.

Mississippi Conference—Brookhaven District, 8884; Hattlesburg, 8269; Jackson, 8558; Meridian, 9147; Newton, 9011; Port Gibson, 6813; Seashore, 7750.

"THE SUPREMACY OF LIFE."

This is the subject of an attractive volume, in blank verse, from the gifted pen of the late Rev. W. S. Harrison, of Starkville, Miss., an honored superannuate of the North Mississippi Conference, which has come from the press since his lamented death, a few weeks ago. It is tastefully bound, and numbers 239 pages. It is really in many respects a remarkable production. Its sets forth impressively the author's views concerning many of the vexed problems of creation and the Sacred Scriptures. He was an earnest student and a vigorous thinker, and the conceptions which he lays before the reader in these pages are quite interesting and are well worth consideration. The book also is one of considerable poetic merit, some of its passages being strikingly beautiful, while others rise majestically into the realm of the sublime. No person of ordinary intellect could have written this noteworthy epic. It deserves to have a wide circulation. The Publishers are Sherman, French & Company, 6 Beacon Street, Boston, Mass.; and the price is $1.25, net.

We quote below a statement by the Publishers, giving some idea of the character and scope of this excellent publication:

"A poem in Miltonian vein, contemplating the wonders of life, of God, creation, the earth and its numberless counterparts, sin, salvation, heaven and hell.

"In Book One the author would grasp something of the magnitude of life, and of the infinity of time and boundlesness of space as giving some conception of the greatness of God, who is Life to all things. In the second book, he beholds in a vision the glories of space, and philosophizes upon the overwhelming vastness of nature and the necessity for redemption to precede the creation of any life capable of sin. In the third book, worlds in the making are viewed, from an unused void to a newly completed world. At the end a glimpse of heaven is given.

"Book Four follows the progress of creation through the six days to the coming of man and woman and the first wedding. In Book Five is considered the first of the three great primal laws —'Multiply and fill the earth,' which to the author means the conservation as well as the production of life. In this connection much attention is given to war. The second primal law—'Subdue the earth'—is seen in Book Six to be the greatest and best gift to man. The Sabbath law, the third, complements the second, and looks to growth of soul. Book Seven tells of the Garden of Eden and the Flood: the life of the people both before and after the Flood is interestingly suggested.

"The author next seeks to know why man was made to sin. The atonement is found necessary as the source of new laws of love which convert all life to means of good,, and present life in all its phases is accepted as best for the divine purpose.

"Book Nine tells of the last judgment, with the human race turned out upon a great plain for the assize. There God's honest deal to every man is shown.

"The last book of all tells of heaven. This is a place for work, but work here is pure joy, for each one is doing the task he likes best and for which he is best fitted, with every opportunity to develop in doing it. Growth of mind and soul are still constant in heaven, and here the wealth of soul stored in life gone by unfolds as the ages pass.

"A highly imaginative and deeply thoughtful volume, written for those pressed by the problems of the beginning and the end of all things, as well as by the eternal, present problems of life."

BREADTH OVERMUCH.

The following recently appeared as an editorial in the New Orleans Daily States:

"Christian Scientists won fresh recognition of their Church the other day with the appointment by Secretary Daniels of a Scientist to be a chaplain in the Navy. Two already had been appointed in the Army. The event is interesting when considered in connection with what was once the attitude toward this Church. It is not so many years ago when all other denominations were hostile to it, when the general public was indifferent if not contemptuous and when even in Louisiana powerful forces moved to put it under a legislative ban. But the faith has grown apace. Its followers now represent a not inconsiderable element of the population in every State, the old intolerance has largely disappeared and Christian Science is firmly established in every community as a permanent, growing and respected institution. It will be immensely helped by this latest recognition by the Government, which is in part responsive to the spirit of religious freedom created by the war."

The foregoing utterance is strikingly illustrative of the spirit of the times. There is a widespread notion abroad that one kind of religion is as good as another and that there are no differences of consequence in Churches. Indeed, there seems to be quite a propaganda of this kind under way, with plenty of money behind it. It has been effecting various sorts of combinations in the mission fields, and its fruitage is becoming increasingly manifest in the homelands of Christendom. Nor are such ideas confined to secular newspapers and politicians. As proof of this statement, we submit the following, taken from a recent issue of a Northern Methodist weekly, in which it appeared with obvious approval:

"The temper of the age was lately seen in Brookline, Mass., when the pastor of every church in the community, except the Roman Catholic, was present and assisted in the administration of the Lord's Supper. Rev. Dr. Willis P. Odell, pastor of St. Mark's, had been invited by the other clergymen to conduct this service according to the ritual of the Methodist Episcopal Church, all participating as communicants. Nearly five hundred persons were in attendance, including Protestant Episcopalians, Congregationalists, Presbyterians, Baptists, Unitarians and Universalists, and the service, says Zion's Herald, was one of much tenderness and spiritual import."

If Unitarians and Universalists may join with the orthodox, evangelical Churches in administering the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper, why may they not with equal propriety preach from their pulpits? If such recognition is given them, how can the people be safeguarded from their unsound teachings? In this day when we are hearing so much of "breadth," would it not be well to meditate somewhat upon these words of Jesus:

"Enter ye in at the strait gate; for wide is the gate, and broad is the way, that leadeth to destruction, and many there be which go in thereat; because strait is the gate, and narrow is the way which leadeth unto life, and few there be that find it. Beware of false prophet's which come to you in sheep's clothing."

Shall we follow the divine Christ, or the "temper of the age?"

WRITE FOR IT.

"The Three-Fold Secret of the Holy Spirit," is the name of a little volume of 123 pages, which may be had, free of cost, by writing the Silver Publishing Company, 1013 Bessemer Bulding, Pittsburgh, Pa. It is highly commended by the Sunday School Times, Robert E. Speer, J. Campbell White, and others. Dwight L. Moody pronounced it one of the two best books in existence on the subject of which it treats. We regard it as a treatise of much merit, calculated to profit greatly every earnest reader.

OF GENERAL INTEREST.

Mississippi has led all the States in the Union in ratifying the National Prohibition Amendment. The history of the temperance movement in that commonwealth is a remarkable one, and the story of its origin and growth is well told by Rev. T. J. Bailey, of Jackson, Miss., in his interesting volume, entitled "Prohibition in Mississippi." This work ought to be in every up-to-date library in the Magnolia State. It may be ordered of the author. The price is $1.25.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

Rev. W. N. Ware, of Walnut Grove, Miss., in a letter bringing us 5 additional subscriptions, which brings his total of new names up to 17, says: "I haven't stopped working for the Advocate yet, and I don't think I shall." Such words cheer us not a little.

From Lecompte, La., Mrs. Augusta Davis Crichlow, Feb. 23, writes: "My father, Rev. R. A. Davis, is now with me here. He would appreciate any messages from friends among the Carrollton and Epworth Church people, of New Orleans, or elsewhere."

Rev. G. A. Morgan, of Jonesboro, La., thus reports: "The outlook for this charge is fine. The attendance upon public worship is good, and the assessments for the pastor and presiding elder have been considerably advanced over those of last year."

Rev. J. S. Purcell, of Crystal Springs, Miss., affirms that he has a fine people to serve, and states that his work is making good headway. His kindly letter brought us 16 subscriptions, 13 of which were new. Our hat is off to this brother beloved and faithful toiler.

Brother A. S. Brisco, our diligent pastor on the Nettleton (Miss.) Circuit, has our thanks for 4 subscriptions to the Advocate, 3 of which are new. He has been cordially welcomed back for another year by the people, and is encouraged to expect a good showing in the months ahead.

Rev. W. F. Baggett wishes us to state that henceforth his address will be Picayune, Miss.. He reports that the work of the year has started off well, and that the prospect pleases. Assurance is given that the interests of the Advocate will be faithfully looked after in his field.

Writing from Oak Ridge, Miss., Rev. J. A. Wells, in a letter bringing us 5 subscriptions, says: "I desire to secure more subscribers to our Conference organ. I find my members very much interested in the question of unification, and they should inform themselves about it." So they should.

We have on our desk a leaflet, entitled "Seven Reasons Why I Am a Methodist," from the pen of Rev. R. G. A. Carlisle, of Longview, Miss. Brother Carlisle presents his case in a very striking manner. Since it is brief, we hope to let our readers see these "Reasons" in our columns in the near future.

Rev. L. E. Crooks, pastor of the Greensburg charge, La., was in New Orleans last week and paid the Advocate office an appreciated call. He said that his name was omitted in the list of appointments in the Conference Annual, and desires us to state that his post-office address is Greensburg, La.

Rev. J. E. Thomas, of Amory, Miss., Feb. 18, writes: "I noticed in last week's Advocate a list of the sons of North Mississippi Methodist ministers who are in the Army and Navy. My only son, Dabney A. Thomas, is a yeoman on the U. S. S. Dolphin. He volunteered and was accepted on June 17, 1917."

Mrs. Blanche Thibodaux, in renewing her subscription, thus writes: "Enclosed, find $1.50 to pay for the Advocate for another year. I think that your paper is fine. I should surely hate to give it up, and I would deprive myself of almost anything before doing so." Such friends of the Advocate are appreciated.

Rev. W. F. Rogers, our faithful pastor at Oakland, Miss., has brought us under obligations to him for 15 subscriptions, forwarded on Feb. 20, ten of them new. In his letter, Brother Rogers said: "I expect to send others soon. Everything is moving on nicely with us. The prospects for a successful year are encouraging."

Rev. J. F. Campbell, of Benton, Miss., sends us 4 subscriptions to the Advocate, and thus remarks: "We think that we have made a good start on the Benton charge for the third year, and I am resolved to do my best to make it surpass the two preceding years." We trust that success will crown the efforts of our brother.

Rev. A. Joe Beasley, of Camden, Miss., who last December was transferred from the North Mississippi to the Mississippi Conference, reports a royal reception and a bright prospect in his field. He has called for a list of our subscribers in his charge, and states that the claims of the Advocate will be pressed. Thank you, Brother Beasley.

Rev. K. W. Dodson, of Minden, La., writes us as follows: "We had a very impressive patriotic service in our church here on Feb. 17. A flag was given the church by Mrs. W. J. Brown, the wife of Captain Hubert Brown, of Camp Pike." Brother Dodson's letter brought us a copy of the program arranged for this occasion, which we found to be quite interesting.

From Jonesboro, Ark., Rev. J. W. Hall, formerly of North Mississippi, and more recently of Memphis, Tenn., writes: "I have charge of the Jonesboro Circuit. I have one church in Jonesboro, a city of 12,000 people, and 6 churches on the railroad near-by. They have agreed to pay me $1050." We are pleased to know that things are going well with this friend of former days.

In a note dated Feb. 23, Rev. W. D. Wendel informs us of the recent death of Captain D. G. Pepper, one of the oldest members and Chairman of the Board of Stewards of our church at Sardis, Miss. We extend sympathy to the bereaved family. A suitable memoir will be furnished us in due time.

In a communication bringing us 4 names for our subscription files, Rev. T. D. Lipscomb, of Greenwood, La., appends the following note: "The work in this charge seems to be moving on very well. We expect soon to begin using our nice, new brick church at Greenwood, which is nearing completion. It is my purpose to send in more subscriptions to the Advocate in the near future."

Rev. T. J. Holladay, of Plain Dealing, La., states that the year, so far, has been with him one of hard labor. He says: "I have never seen so much cold weather during a winter and so many sick people. I have had to bury two of my brightest and most cheerful members." We sympathize with our brother, and we trust that brighter skies will soon be bending above him and his flock.

We are in receipt of the following fine message from Rev. O. P. Armour, of Houlka, Miss.: "I am sending you herein a list of 9 new and 3 renewal subscriptions. My allotment of new ones was 7; so I have given you 2 in excess. But as yet, I have only canvassed Houlka; so I expect to send you another list pretty soon. My work is moving on nicely here. I have an excellent people to serve."

Mrs. C. McDonald, of Pelahatchie, Miss., writes: "My son, H. H. McDonald (his father was the late Rev. C. McDonald) is a sergeant in the Ambulance Corps of the Army, and is now at Camp Pike. He was a pharmacist and enlisted in a company raised by Dr. Nolan Stewart, of Jackson, Miss. He has just been home on a furlough. Pray that, if it be the Lord's will, he may return from the war safely."

Rev. George S. Sexton, D. D., of Shreveport, La., attended the meeting of the Southern Pine Association at the Grunewald Hotel in New Orleans last week, and on Wednesday, Feb. 20, delivered an address bearing upon the great war that stirred the gathering to a high pitch of enthusiasm. Dr. Sexton's speech was extensively reported in the Times-Picayune. The Doctor lacks a good deal of being a friend of the Kaiser.

Dr. H. C. Morrison, of Kentucky, who has been preaching at St. Mark's Church of this city, of which Rev. W. E. Thomas is the efficient pastor, addressed a very large audience at the First Methodist Church last Sunday afternoon on "Prophecy and the Present World War." Dr. Morrison has made a deep impression in New Orleans by his earnest and spiritual messages. Such preaching is much needed in the Crescent City, as indeed it is in most places.

Rev. W. L. Duren, presiding elder of the Columbus (Miss.) District, in forwarding his second round of appointments, says: "Owing to the weather conditions and other things, the first quarter's work in our territory was difficult and disagreeable, but notwithstanding our handicaps I think fair progress was made." Brother Duren stated that he had requested Rev. S. L. Pope, of Columbus, to send us the news from his district during the year.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Williamson, of Memphis, Tenn., prominent members of our St. John's Church of that city, have been spending some time in New Orleans. Mr. Williamson's health is not robust, and it was thought that the milder climate of South Louisiana might prove helpful to him at this season. We are glad to report that he seems to be steadily improving. Mr. Williamson was formerly a distinguished citizen of North Mississippi, and once served with conspicuous ability in the Legislature of that State.

While in the city last week, Dr. G. S. Sexton, of Shreveport, La., in company with Rev. F. M. Freeman, paid the Advocate office a call. Dr. Sexton reported all our pastors in Shreveport, "The Hub" of Louisiana Methodism, as having begun the new year unusually well. He stated that the Noel Memorial officials had considerably increased the pastor's salary and that Rev. W. W. Drake was leading his forces steadily forward. Rev. A. G. Shankle, he said, had made a fine impression at First Church, and has received up to the present time about 90 members.

A man who lives right, and is right, has more power in his silence than another man by his words.—Brooks.

Prosperity is a painted window, which shuts out much of the clear light of God, and only when the blue, and the crimson, and the golden tinge are removed, is the glass restored to its full transpareney. Adversity thus takes away tinge, and color, and dimness, and we see our God far better than before, if our eyes are prepared for the light."—Spurgeon.

Our Advocate Campaign.

Our Advocate campaign continues to make pretty good headway, which is most gratifying. Both the Publisher and the Editor highly appreciate the excellent work that many of our pastors are doing in behalf of the Conference organ, and we extend to them our hearty thanks. March has usually been a good month for the Advocate, and we trust that it will break all records this year. Let us continue to strive to place our paper in the homes of our people. The General Conference will soon be in session and the Methodists of this section should keep up with what is going on in these stirring times. This is a good point to make in soliciting for the Advocate. The Editor will be in Atlanta and will send a letter to it every week.

Some Messages from the Brethren.

From Rev. C. E. Fike, of Rayne, La., along with 3 subscriptions, comes this message: "I expect to work for the Advocate a great deal this year."

Rev. G. D. Anders, of Indian Bayou, La., forwards us ten names for our mailing files, and adds: "All these are new subscribers except one. More to follow."

Rev. O. W. Bradley, Tupelo, Miss., sends us 20 subscriptions, and remarks: "This makes 21 from here up to date. May have others later." Thank you, Brother Bradley.

Our gifted young friend, Rev. C. A. Parks, of Ackerman, Miss., sends us 30 subscriptions from his good charge, and assures us that the Conference organ shall have due attention in his parish. Hurrah for the Choctaw County Capital!

Rev. G. A. Morgan, Jonesboro, La., sends us 5 subscriptions, and says: "Please send me a list of your subscribers at this place, Hodge, Dodson, and Wyatt, La., and I will look after the renewals." This is the way to go about this needed task.

Dr. I. W. Cooper, Whitworth's fine President, who, we believe, was the originator of the present Advocate campaign, expresses in a note his great interest in the movement. He enclosed a letter from Rev. W. B. Jones, presiding elder of the Hattiesburg District, from which we take the following: "The figures for the 200 new Advocates from this district were duly apportioned. Some subscriptions have already been secured and we expect to succeed in bringing up our share."

Some Receipts of Subscriptions.

We are indebted to the following friends, to whom acknowledgment has not been elsewhere made, for two or more subscriptions sent in within the past few days: Rev. W. D. Kleinschmidt, Athens, La., 7; Rev. W. D. Bennett, Sardis, Miss., 3; Brother T. M. Babington, Franklinton, La., 3; Rev. M. E. Scott, Black Hawk, Miss., 3; Rev. W. W. Drake, Shreveport, La., 2; Rev. A. M. Broadfoot, Fernwood, Miss., 3; Brother W. D. Heidelberg, Shubuta, Miss., 2; Rev. L. H. Floyd, Okolona Circuit., North Mississippi Conference, 3.

TO OUR SUBSCRIBERS.

The little pink or yellow address label on the copy of the Advocate which you receive weekly shows your name and address, and the date of expiration of your subscription. Dec1917 indicates that your subscription expired Dec. 1, 1917, and that it is past due, and should be renewed Subscribers will please examine the labels on their papers, and if it is found that the subscriptions are past due, they should remit at once. Conditions are such that we cannot afford to continue sending the paper to those who are in arrears. If a subscriber does not want the subscription to continue, we expect him or her to pay that which is due us, and notify us to stop sending the paper. Attention to this matter will be greatly appreciated by the management of this Advocate, and it will be the means of helping us to avoid losses by discontinuing the paper to those who do not desire it.

Obituaries.

Obituaries not over 200 words in length will be published free of charge. All over 200 words must be paid for at the rate of 1 cent a word. Count the words and be sure to send the amount necessary with the obituary. That will save trouble all around. We cannot make discriminations. Memorial resolutions are subject to the same rule as obituaries.

A. R. BRYAN was born on July 23, 1851, and died on Nov. 28, 1917. He joined the M. E. Church, South, in July, 1875, and lived a consistent Christian life until death. He was not demonstrative, but, nevertheless, he was true and loyal to the Church of his choice. He was frail in body, but sincere in spirit. He was married to Miss E. O. Nix on May 14, 1874, who, with three daughters, one nephew, and a host of friends is left to mourn his passing away, but not without hope. His was a happy home, but it is now sad and lonely, though the grief-stricken hearts are sustained by the hope that they will meet their loved ones again in a land that is fairer than day. THOS. J. MARTIN, Sr.

MRS. SUSAN J. MORRIS (nee Payne) was born in North Carolina on August 3, 1834. She came to Mississippi early in life and settled in Union County, near the town of New Albany. On Jan. 8, 1860, she was happily married to Mr. Jesse Morris. To them were born seven children—four boys and three girls. In the year 1880 she moved with her family to Chickasaw County and settled near the town of Okolona. On Oct. 5, 1902, her husband died, and since his death Sister Morris had been making her home with her daughter, Mrs. C. B. Evans, of Egypt, Miss. Sister Morris professed religion and joined the Methodist Church about the year 1858. She was a devout Christian, believing fully in the doctrine of regeneration and also in that of the witness of the Spirit. She rested her faith upon the eternal promises of God. She was loved by all who knew her. Earth has been made better by her life. Heaven has been made richer by her death. Sister Morris died January 17, 1918. We laid her body to rest beside her husband in the beautiful little cemetery at Buena Vista. May husband, wife, and all the children meet in a higher and a grander life, where youth and beauty never fade, and where there shall be neither sickness nor death! Her pastor,

W. R. WILLIAMS.

MRS. SALLIE HUNTLEY, wife of C. C. Huntley, who was one of the best women in the Noxapater charge, passed from earth's sorrows to her reward in our Father's house on Dec. 19, 1917. She was born on Jan. 3, 1853, and was married to C. C. Huntley in 1894. Early in life she was converted, and, uniting with the Missionary Baptist Church, she remained a faithful member of the same until after her marriage, when she, with her husband, joined the M. E. Church, South. Sister Huntley was a good, true woman and was faithful in every relationship of life. She loved the Church and was liberal in her support of its institutions. I have never heard a disparaging word spoken of her. The old and the young of all denominations, as well as those who are not members of any Church, speak of her only in words of praise. She was a capable woman. In the Sunday school, both as a teacher and as a scholar, her familiarity with God's Word was clearly seen. She possessed a kind and lovable nature which drew all to her. As a wife, she was true. It has never been my privilege to enter a happier or a more delightful home than was hers. We miss her much. This is especially true of her devoted husband. Having no children to lean upon, he is indeed left sad and lonely. He said to me after her departure: "I owe all that I am to God and to my ascended wife." May God tenderly care for him and at last give him a happy meeting with his precious wife in our Father's house!

G. W. GORDON.

Feb. 19, 1918.

Mrs. ELEANOR RUSSELL (nee Everitt), wife of Dr. Virgil Russell, was born on Jan. 8, 1862, and died on Dec. 20, 1917. Her husband preceded her by several years to the better land. She leaves several noble boys and girls to mourn her departure. Sister Russell was truly a most exemplary Christian character. Her beautiful life was an "epistle of Christ," an eloquent sermon incarnating the truth of the gospel and commending the Savior to lost and needy souls. She had been a life-long Methodist and a devoted Christian, having joined the Church early in life. But she was not narrow, for she loved and visited all Christian churches. Of her life we can say in the Master's own words, "She was among us as one who served." "She hath done what she could." In her going the home and community lost a noble mother, for truly she was a mother to all. The church lost one of its most substantial members in every respect. We shall never fail to miss her face in the congregation, for she was always there. Truly, in her passing there was no death, no tragedy, but a happy translation, a joyous entering into rest, an arrival, after a weary journey, home, where she "is no stranger," for she intimately knew her Lord, and many loved ones and friends were awaiting her there. She reared a noble Christian family, whose devotion to her in life was touchingly beautiful and who will "rise up and call her blessed." The writer counts it a great privilege to have been her pastor for three years and recalls many a profitable and delightful visit, when he enjoyed the rarest Christian fellowship and felt always the stronger for the visit. Friendly hands laid her away after the funeral service, conducted by the writer, assisted by Rev. C. H. Strait, of the Shiloh charge, and Rev. J. D. Wiley, the Baptist pastor. Let us all be faithful and join with her again where partings are no more.

T. B. WINSTEAD.

On Feb. 8, 1918, we laid to rest the body of little MERL RAY WILKINSON, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Wilkinson, of this vicinity.

"There's not a blossom of beautiful May,
Silver of daisy or daffodil gay,
Nor the rosy bloom of apple-tree flowers,
Fair as the face of wee Merl Ray."

Our hearts realized, alas! all too soon that she was placed here by our Heavenly Father, for only a short while, to radiate sunshine in the once happy home.

Little Merl Ray was stricken about four weeks ago, and although only fifteen months of age, she bore her suffering with a fortitude characteristic of one of more mature years. She was the pet of the neighborhood, and her sweet, winsome ways won the love of every one—but God loved her more, and sent His messenger to pluck the little bud and transplant it, to blossom in His beautiful garden above. All was done for her that loving hands and kind physicians could do, but to no avail. The warm clasp of the baby fingers and her winsome smile will ever linger, in the memory of those who loved her most.

To-day I visited her grave. As I stood gazing at the newly turned mound, covered with the beautiful floral tokens placed there by loving hands, I called to mind the words of the poet:

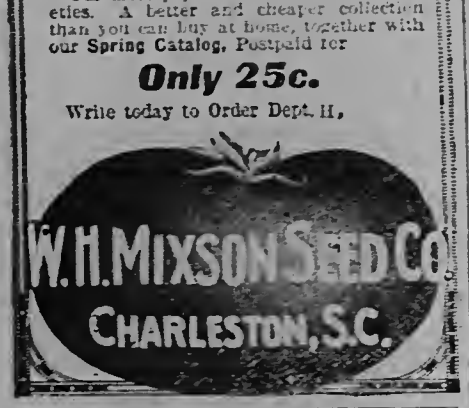
"All that's bright must fade, the brightest still the fleetest;
All that's sweet was made but to be lost when sweetest!"

Our hearts go out in deepest sympathy to the bereaved parents. Time, the only balm for such a wound, will allay the pain and give us greater fortitude to bear, with nature's laws, what, at times, is difficult to understand.

"We see through a glass darkly now,
But then we shall see face to face."
Father, mother! brush away those bitter tears,
And strive to say, "God's will be done;"
And live through all life's coming years,
To meet in Heaven thy angel one.

A FRIEND.

Wilson, La.



PEACE.

Mental satisfaction alone does not bring peace, if the heart remains unsatisfied. And that which satisfies the heart is beauty—that uncreated and eternal beauty of which all earthly beauty is but the shadow. Sooner or later trouble and death make havoc of temporal peace. Only one Being satisfies the affections in such sort, that the soul's peace is insured beyond risk of forfeiture.—Canon Liddon.

DARKEN GRAY HAIR, LOOK YOUNG, PRETTY

Grandma's Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur Darkens so Naturally that Nobody Can Tell.

Hair that loses its color and luster, or when it fades, turns gray, dull and lifeless, is caused by a lack of sulphur in the hair. Our grandmother made up a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to keep her locks dark and beautiful, and thousands of women and men who value that even color, that beautiful dark shade of hair which is so attractive, use only this old-time recipe.

Nowadays we get this famous mixture improved by the addition of other ingredients by asking at any drug store for a 50-cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which darkens the hair so naturally, so evenly, that nobody can possibly tell it has been applied. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also brings back the gloss and luster and gives it an appearance of abundance.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite to impart color and a youthful appearance to the hair. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

TAKES OFF DANDRUFF, HAIR STOPS FALLING

Save your Hair! Get a small bottle of Danderine right now—Also stops itching scalp.

Thin, brittle, colorless and scraggy hair is mute evidence of a neglected scalp, of dandruff—that awful scurf.

There is nothing so destructive to the hair as dandruff. It robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life, eventually producing a feverishness and itching of the scalp, which if not remedied causes the hair roots to shrink, loosen and die—then the hair falls out fast. A little Danderine tonight—now—any time—will surely save your hair.

Get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store. You surely can have beautiful hair and lots of it if you will just try a little Danderine. Save your hair! Try it!—Adv.

WEBSTER, FLA.

Dear Doctor Meek: I have entered upon my third year's pastorate on the Webster charge. I would appreciate holding two meetings within the bounds of my old Mississippi Conference during the latter half of July and in August, if any wish my services. I gave eight years to the pastorate there, and have given twelve here in Florida. During this time I have served three pastorates of four years, and at each place I have done most of my own revival preaching. Last year, after having served a church for 20 months and in the first year having preached seventeen days in a revival, I held a four weeks' meeting, doing the preaching myself. We had more than 40 professions of faith and 20 accessions to the Church. I mention this to indicate that I have some reasonable appreciation of pastoral evangelism.—F. L. Crowson, P. C.

FIFTY MILLION MARK PASSED.

This telegram was recently received by Dr. Paul H. Saunders, State Director of the war savings stamps campaign of Louisiana, and Mr. J. T. Thomas, State Director of Mississippi:

"Washington, D. C., Feb. 15, 1918.—The War Savings Stamp sales to-day passed the fifty million dollar mark and sales have been running at the rate of more than two million a day. The steadily growing volume of savings placed at the service of the nation by millions of citizens is splendid evidence of your effective work. Business as usual is a wholly wrong theory in war times. It is only by teaching the people to save and not to compete for labor and materials with the Government that we can put the whole strength of the nation into this war. This is not only our most important contribution to the war, but it is the sure way to raise the required money. In the next few weeks we and our entire organization of nearly two hundred thousand workers must make it our common purpose and resolve to spread this gospel so that there will be a militant army of war savers to put War-Savings Certificates and the next Liberty Loan over the top.

"F. A. Vanderlip."

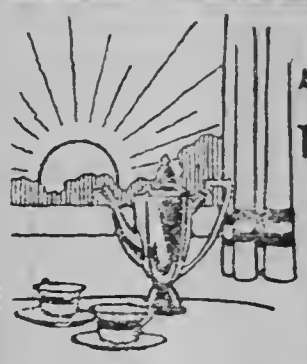
"Who Will Win This Battle?"

Your kidneys are the filters of the body. If they become inactive and fail to eliminate the waste matter, they are apt to throw the whole mechanism of the body out of order, thus toxic poisons can accumulate in the system and be as deadly as snake venom.

Besides causing the minor ailments of rheumatism, sciatica, lumbago and backache, neglect of the kidneys is apt to develop into more serious diseases, such as diabetes or stone in the bladder.

Rid the body of toxic poisons—clean the bladder and kidneys and cure the twinges of rheumatism with Anuric and you win the battle of life.

Anuric was first discovered by Dr. Pierce, and has benefited thousands of sufferers as well as appeased and eliminated the ravages of the more serious kidney diseases. Now procurable at any good drug store, or send Dr. V. M. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., 10 cents for trial package.



HARTFORD, ALA.—"When I commenced the treatment of Anuric I was in bad shape. My back ached all the time and oh! how my back would ache at night until I would have to get up. I could never sleep all night. But since I have taken the Anuric Tablets my backache is all gone and I can lie down and sleep good and sound all night. Oh! how much better I do feel—no one knows but myself. My adviee to all sufferers of kidney troubles is to give Anuric a trial and they will find relief from their trouble."—MRS. B. G. COKER.

Order Fertilizers Now
or You May Have to Do Without Them This Season

The freight congestion is serious. You will help yourself, us, the railroads, and the Government by giving your order for Fertilizers NOW to your dealer. If all the farmers do this, the dealer can then "bunch" his orders, and be able to order his cars of fertilizers loaded to full capacity. The Government urges that all cars be so loaded.

When the goods arrive haul them home, and put them into your barn until you are ready to use them. If the movement of railroad cars becomes any more serious you may not get a pound of fertilizer at any price.

Our 50 factories, and distributing points are so well located geographically as to enable us to get fertilizers to you with minimum amount of hauling.

GOOD-WILL AMONG MEN.

What kind of thing was that good-will which the angels' song said His coming was to bring? We learn that best, perhaps, from the after life of the One who came to bring it. It was certainly not any mere mild benevolence or general and diffused sentiment of kindliness. We see that from the way He lived, from the passion and only enthusiasm with which He sought to bring it about. There was a stern and virile and uncompromising strength of the whole program and spirit of His life that showed that the good-will among men that He sought to establish rooted itself in righteousness and justice and goodness. It was the very passion of His soul to achieve it, and the way to its achievement lay through suffering and persecution and ended at last in a Cross. It was no light, surface, soft-hearted thing that was to be won that way, and the world in our day is learning, as it did not know before, that the good-will of the Master's program is set in righteousness and is flanked by justice, brotherhood, equality and love.—The Christian Guardian.

FULLY SURRENDERED.

"Not as I will, but as Thou wilt." Words which have perplexed many a troubled soul! Yet as we speak of them to those whose life is an unbroken walk with God, we find that, unlike ourselves, they are not troubled by them. And if we go on to ask the reason for this unclouded faith, the saints will tell us just this: that once, long ago, they, too, were perplexed; but that there came a day when they ceased to wonder at the words, and began to pray them, and that from that day the light broke upon their souls.—F. A. Iremonger.

HEAVY MEAT EATERS HAVE SLOW KIDNEYS

Eat Less Meat if you Feel Backachy or have Bladder Trouble—Take Glass of Salts.

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which excites the kidneys, they become overworked from the strain, get sluggish and fail to filter the waste and poisons from the blood, then we get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, dizziness, sleeplessness and urinary disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts or if the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, stop eating meat and get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate the kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.

THE BLUE PRINTS OF GOD.

The builder must have the blue prints of the architect in order to build according to specifications. So the builder of a true individual life or of a great Christian enterprise must have the blue prints of the Divine Architect in order to erect the structure designed by Him. It is from this point of view that an eminent Bible scholar in a recent address urges: "We ought to get the blue prints of God and study them." And then we ought to build according to the specifications contained therein.—Unidentified.

INEXPRESSIBLE.

What it is to find God or to be found of God every devout man knows, but the secret cannot be told. We feel His touch and we know that the unseen Hand can be only His. There is a power upon us, and we need no visible sign or symbol to assure us that it is the power of the Eternal. A light shines: we know that it is divine.—R. W. Dale.

SAVED TO SERVE.

We are saved to serve. The Christian life cannot be lived in isolation. Here, too, we follow the example of Christ, for to be a Christian is, as the word implies, to be a Christ-one. It is the reversal of the old selfish life, for it shifts to a new center. * * * The Christ-centered man finds all things new. He now lives, not to get but to give, not for selfishness but for sacrifice.—G. Sherwood Eddy.

TO THE POINT.

"It is curious to note how many people insist on having all the Christian doctrines and sacraments explained before they will accept them. And the fact that the explanations are often partial and dim seems to them a reason for disbelief. But who rebels against using electricity? And who has explained its nature and laws?"

WITHOUT MONEY AND WITHOUT PRICE.

A revival of religion, the most precious thing on earth, may be had anywhere without money and without price. The expense of an evangelist or even of a pastor is not necessary. Wherever a company of believers in Christ unites in humble prayer the Holy Spirit is promised.—Unidentified.

A Warning—to feel tired before exertion is not laziness—it's a sign that the system lacks vitality, and needs the tonic effect of Hood's Sarsaparilla. Sufferers should not delay. Get rid of that tired feeling by beginning to take Hood's Sarsaparilla to-day.—Adv.

"I am not much of a mathematician," says the cigarette, "but I can add to a youth's nervous troubles; I can subtract from his physical energy; I can multiply his aches and pains; I can divide his mental powers; I can take interest from his work, and discount his chances of success."—The Watchman-Examiner.

The real purpose of every home is to shape character for time and for eternity. The home may be one of poverty, the cross of self-sacrifice may be required, suffering may sometimes be necessary, but whenever a home fulfills this purpose it is overflowing with joy.—Dr. J. Wilbur Chapman.

Iron Is Greatest of All Strength Builders, says Doctor

A Secret of the Great Endurance and Power of Athletes

Ordinary Nuxated Iron Will Increase the Strength of Delicate, Nervous, Run-down People in Ten Days' Time in Many Cases.

MOST people foolishly seem to think they are going to to get renewed health and strength from some stimulating medicine, secret nostrum or narcotic drug, said Dr. E. Sauer, a Boston Physician who has studied widely, both in this country and in great European Medical Institutions, when, as a fact, real and true strength can only come from the food you eat. But people often fail to get the strength out of their food because they haven't enough iron in their blood to enable it to change food into living matter. From their weakened, nervous condition they know something is wrong, but they can't tell what. If you are not strong or well, you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of ordinary [illegible] for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see for yourself how much you have gained. I have seen dozens of nervous, run-down people, who were ailing all the while, most astonishingly increase their strength and endurance simply by taking iron in the proper form and this after they had in some cases been doctoring for months without obtaining any benefit. But don't take the old forms of reduced iron, iron acetate or tincture of iron simply to save a few cents. You must take iron in a form that can be easily absorbed and assimilated, like nuxated iron, if you want it to do you any good, otherwise it may prove worse than useless. Many an athlete or prize fighter has won the day simply because he knew the secret of great strength and endurance which comes from having plenty of iron in the blood, while many another has gone down to inglorious defeat simply for the lack of iron.

NOTE—Nuxated Iron which is prescribed and recommended above by Dr. E. Sauer, and other physicians, is not a secret remedy but one which is well known to druggists everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products, it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money. It is dispensed by all good druggists.

NUX IRON PEPSIN and

SARSAPARILLA — Effective Spring Medicine Combination.

As comprised in Hood's Sarsaparilla and Peptiron, taken in conjunction, these valuable remedies possess unequalled value for the quick relief of a long train of ailments common in the Spring season. You know well the great tonic propertles of iron. They are much increased and improved in this combination—Hood's Sarsaparilla before meals and Peptiron after.

In these days of rushing and pushing, beyond the endurance of even the most robust, nearly every man and woman needs this blood-purifying, cleansing, up-building in the Spring. If it is not supplied, the depletion of the blood and the broken-down nerves may soon give way to permanent ill-health.

If a cathartic is needed, as where there is billousness or constipation, Hood's Pills should be taken. They are purely vegetable, do not irritate.

A SUGGESTION.

Dear Mr. Editor: In view of the fact that our nation is reading the darkest pages of its history I feel that we should not only be much in prayer all the time, but that we should set aside one day to be given over to fasting and prayer that God will safely lead us through this great conflict to a just and lasting peace—a peace that shall bring freedom to millions. I believe that it should not only be observed by all Churches, but that it should be a "National Day," as we stand forth as a "Christian Nation." I know of no better day for this than Good Friday—a fitting commemoration of the anniversary of Christ's death to bring freedom to us.

10-CENT "CASCARETS" FOR LIVER AND BOWELS

Cure Sick Headache, Constipation, Biliousness, Sour Stomach, Bad Breath—Candy Cathartic.

No odds how bad your liver, stomach or bowels; how much your head aches, how miserable you are from constipation, indigestion, biliousness and sluggish bowels—you always get relief with Cascarets. They immediately cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour, fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry off the constipated waste matter and poison from the intestines and bowels. A 10-cent box from your druggist will keep your liver and bowels clean, stomach sweet and head clear for months. They work while you sleep.—Adv.

MOTHERS TO BE

Should Read Mrs. Monyhan's Letter Published by Her Permission.

Mitchell, Ind.—"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound helped me so much during the time I was looking forward to the coming of my little one that I am recommending it to other expectant mothers. Before taking it, some days I suffered with neuralgia so badly that I thought I could not live, but after taking three bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was entirely relieved of neuralgia, I had gained in strength and was able to go around and do all my housework. My baby when seven months old weighed 19 pounds and I feel better than I have for a long time. I never had any medicine do me so much good."—Mrs. PEARL MONYHAN, Mitchell, Ind.

Good health during maternity is a most important factor to both mother and child, and many letters have been received by the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., telling of health restored during this trying period by the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

HIS GIFT AND MINE.

"Over against the treasury
He sits, who gave himself for me;
He sees the coppers that I give,
Who gave his life that I might live;
He sees the silver I withhold,
Who left for me his throne of gold.
Who found a manger for his bed.
Who had not where to lay his head.
He sees the gold I clasp so tight,
And I am debtor in his sight."

MISSISSIPPI ANNUAL MEETING.

The Seventh Annual meeting of the Mississippi Woman's Missionary Society of the M. E. Church, South, will be held in Brookhaven on March 12-15.

Please send names of delegates to Mrs. C. S. Butterfield, Brookhaven, Miss., Chairman of Committee on Entertainment.

Mrs. H. L. McCLESKEY,
Conf. Rec. Sec.

A CHANGE IN PLACE OF COUNCIL MEETING.

The Woman's Missionary Council convenes on April 3-11. Because of the crowded conditions of hotels and boarding houses in Louisville, it has been deemed wise to hold the Council meeting elsewhere. Knoxville, Tenn., graciously invited the Council to meet there when it was understood that there must be a change. The Council is most fortunate in having so central a location offered.

AN EXPLANATION FROM RIPLEY, N. MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

We, the Methodist women of Ripley, deem it best to explain why we could not entertain the North Mississippi Conference.

Ripley is a most hospitable town, but a small one, and if it had been possible to postpone the Annual Meeting to a later date, we would rather have entertained from fifteen to twenty delegates in each Methodist home than to have missed the great blessing which would have come to us in the entertaining of such a band of Christian workers.

But, as we wrote our president, Mrs. Conger, the full situation was such a serious one that we did not have enough coal in our town to heat our church or to make our homes comfortable, and in a large per cent of the Methodist homes there was serious illness.

Miss Murry went into detail in the letter to Mrs. Conger, and I could do so here in justice to ourselves; but we know Christian women everywhere will realize the true situation and our keen disappointment.

Since writing our President, the sickness here has not abated, but rather grown worse; and at this date, a supply of coal has not been received, and we could not have entertained the Conference under these circumstances, much to our great sorrow and regret.

Mrs. J. A. SMALLWOOD,
Pres. Ripley Auxiliary.

OPIUM GROWING IN CHINA.

Rev. E. W. Thiving, of the International Reform Bureau in Peking, went to Korea in the summer to investigate a rumor that opium was being grown there, to be sold to the Chinese. He reports that he found it true, and that he was told that Japanese officials had provided the seeds, and had encouraged the Koreans to plant opium, saying that they could make much money. Mr. Thiving had an interview with the responsible Japanese officials in Seoul and tried to show them the ruin that would come from this new policy. They said that the Government was very strict in regard to the sale and use of opium in Korea, and they gave him copies of the anti-opium laws. They claimed, however, that opium was still needed for medicine; that in China it was still planted; that the Chinese wanted it, and that opium was bringing high prices. They seemed somewhat ashamed when Mr. Thiving explained how hard China had worked to suppress it, and, in spite of revolutions and a weak government, had accomplished wonders. Japan, with a strong central government, could easily put down this evil.

A new anti-opium campaign is needed. The public opinion of the world must speak. Organizations that stand for international justice are asked to take action on this subject, and to bring it to the attention of the press. —Missionary Review of the World.

THE GOAL SET BY COUNCIL MORE THAN MET BY THE NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

Our slogan for the year 1917—"A ten per cent increase in auxiliaries, funds and membership," was so thoroughly heralded throughout the North Mississippi Conference that the goal set by the Council was more than met. Mrs. Conger, the President, writes that the financial gain of 1917 over 1916 is $1972. The rate of gain is 15 per cent more than was asked by the Council. Last year North Mississippi made a splendid gain in membership, and now they have this new record to place beside the one of 1916.

Much of the success of the work is due to the untiring efforts of the efficient President, backed by the cooperation of a splendid corps of officers. What this Conference has accomplished, others can accomplish. It means the devoting of every energy to this one thing. A strong determination, permeated by a spirit of sincere, earnest prayer, can be a means in God's hands of revolutionizing the work of a Conference missionary society.

These women deserve honor and praise for reaching this goal, especially now when every day sees some new demand made upon our resources. That they have put "first things first" is self-evident, and His promise that His presence shall go with them has been richly verified.

A CHINESE FINDS PAGANS IN AMERICA.

A letter written to a friend in China by a Chinese Christian who has come to the United States to study, is suggestive of some of the things that need remedying in America. This Chinese says:

"What a nation is America! Full of good and full of vices. What a tempting place for the young men of China who come to study! It is my sincere hope that they will get the best out of America and put themselves in the way of Christian influence. Before I came to America, I thought the Church members knew more about Christianity than the Chinese. Now I know that most of them do not know what Christianity is. A Christian nation, yet full of pagans! You may think I make too bold a statement, yet the fact is there." —The Living Church.

OUR WORK.

We may strive by that devotion to the spiritual element in national life which even pure secularity of public methods still leaves possible, to hasten the day, which must come if Christ be what we know He is, when the idea of Jesus shall be the shaping and moving power of the Christian state; and among the happy sons of God the Son of God shall evidently reign, as the old phrase describes, "king of nations as king of saints."—Phillips Brooks.

Scientific Treatment For Rheumatism.

Rheumatism is caused by uric acid in the blood. In order to be cured of rheumatism it is necessary to neutralize this acid. RENWAR is a salt combination scientifically prepared to neutralize the uric acid in the blood. There is nothing in Renwar to injure the stomach or affect the heart. It acts solely upon uric acid, completely eliminating it from the blood and thereby relieving your rheumatism. It is harmless but effective. Positively guaranteed by money-back offer. It is a godsend to sufferers from rheumatism. Renwar also corrects constipation. Mr. J. M. Willis of the Nashville Railway and Light Company says: "I must say that Renwar far surpassed my expectations, for it gave me almost immediate relief; too much can not be spoken in behalf of 'Renwar' for rheumatism." Sold by druggists; price 50 cents, or by mail from WARNER DRUG COMPANY, NASHVILLE, TENN.

FELLOW-COUNTRYMEN.

In a traveling menagerie the lion died suddenly. The proprietor proposed to an Irishman out of work that he should allow himself to be sewn up in the lion's skin and take the lion's part, so as not to hinder good business. "All went well until the entertainment began, when the proprietor commenced his speech, by announcing that he proposed to bring together in one large cage the cat, the monkey, the dog, the lion and the tiger. Upon this the lion began to protest, but was silenced by the tiger raising his paw and remarking, in a well known accent, 'You needn't mind me. Sure, I'm from Roscommon myself.'"—Christian Guardian.

IF YOUR CHILD IS CROSS, FEVERISH, CONSTIPATED

Look, Mother! If tongue is coated, cleanse little bowels with "California Syrup of Figs."

Mothers can rest easy after giving "California Syrup of Figs," because in a few hours all the clogged-up waste, sour bile and fermenting food gently moves out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again.

Sick children needn't be coaxed to take this harmless "fruit laxative." Millions of mothers keep it handy because they know its action on the stomach, liver and bowels is prompt and sure.

Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which contains directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups.—Adv.

Coarse Hair

doesn't become you and it is as unruly as it is unbecoming. The hair should be soft and light and should hold its original luster when it is healthy. The quickest and surest way to deprive the hair of its original luster is to leave it alone to look out for itself. Each separate hair is an individual, delicate structure in itself and every hair on your head, in order to contribute its share of beauty should be perfectly fed with the natural hair oil, which comprises its food. Starve your hair and, like anything else, it will die. Feed your hair with nature's hair food, "La Creole." This excellent hair food, first discovered by the Creoles of Louisiana fifty years ago and preserved by them, proved a treatment from which sprang their reputation for beautiful hair. It has since been offered the public and has served to beautify the hair of thousands of the tasteful and fastidious.

Calomel To-Day, Sick To-Morrow

Dose of nasty calomel makes you sick and you lose a day's work.

Calomel salivates! It's mercury. Calomel acts like dynamite on a sluggish liver. When calomel comes into contact with sour bile it crashes into it, causing cramping and nausea.

If you feel bilious, headachy, constipated and all knocked out, just go to your druggist and get a 50-cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone, which is a harmless vegetable substitute for dangerous calomel. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't start your liver and straighten you up better and quicker than nasty calomel and without making you sick, you just go back and get your money.

If you take calomel to-day you'll be sick and nauseated to-morrow; besides, it may salivate you, while if you take Dodson's Liver Tone you will wake up feeling great, full of ambition and ready for work or play. It's harmless, pleasant and safe to give to children; they like it.

Okolona, Miss.

Dear Dr. Meek: We are very much pleased with our new charge, and we have the prospect for a good year. We have had 11 accessions to date, and the stewards have advanced the assessment for the pastor's salary $200 and have agreed to pay it monthly. They have already paid the first two months, and more.—J. B. Randolph, P. C.

South Mansfield, La.

Dear Doctor Meek: Two large boxes of good things to eat and household essentials arrived by express this morning at the parsonage from the people of the Harperville and Sena charge, which we served last year. May we use this means for expressing our sincere appreciation? We are pleased to leave our brother to the keeping of these faithful people.—Leland Clegg, P. C.

D'Lo, Miss.

Dear Dr. Meek: Our pastor, Rev. G. G. Yeager, is a fine man, being kind and Christlike. He is getting the church waked up, and our Sunday school is growing in interest and in numbers. Brother Yeager is doing a splendid work, and we are expecting a great year. We will send you a few lines now and then throughout the year and let you know how we are progressing.—(Rev.) D. C. Farmer.

Ringgold, La.

Dear Brother Meek: I will write a few lines in regard to the Advocate. The pastors of the Louisiana Conference should be diligent in the canvass for increasing the circulation of our Conference organ. I never have had much difficulty in securing a nice list of subscribers. I am filling a wayside appointment where there are but few people who belong to our Church. It is my purpose to make an effort to secure all the subscriptions that I can. Weather conditions have been so very unfavorable that little church work has been done up to the present time. —Thos. J. Martin, Sr., P. C.

Longview, Miss.

Dear Brother Meek: I am getting along with my work as well as I could expect. I have been hindered by bad weather and by the fact that I have not been well. I have been suffering with a cold, and I have had catarrh and also something like sciatica in my right hip. Therefore, I have not been able to go about much, but I am some better at this writing. I hope that I will be all right in a few days. I am anxious to get busy with my work. This is my second year here. Our people received us gladly when we returned from Conference. We pray that we may be able to do a greater work this year by the help of God.—R. G. A. Carlisle, P. C.

Wesson, Miss.

Dear Mr. Editor: Our work has begun well on the Wesson charge. We serve a loyal people who are growing in spirituality and in the grace of giving. This is my second year as pastor of this people. The year 1917 was one of progress along all lines. We are grateful for the many favors shown the parsonage home by quite a number of people in the charge, but special mention should be made of the Missionary Society. I do not think that you could find any more earnest workers among the women of our Conference than this noble band at Wesson. Our first quarterly conference was well attended and the interest shown in things was satisfactory. The pastor's salary was raised to $1000, and the stewards took the responsibility of raising all collections. Our presiding elder gave us a most excellent sermon. We are praying for and expecting a great year.—J. W. Thompson, P. C.

Doyle, La.

Dear Advocate: I am very glad to say that, as Brother Murphy comes back to this little community for his fourth year, we are expecting to do a greater work than ever before. There is a great mission before us, and we have our trials; but we are pleading very earnestly with God to make us victorious. We have a very progressive Sunday school at Red Oak now and are making every effort possible to reach the banner standard, which I believe we will do soon. We are very grateful to know that some of the good Christian workers who have served their time out here with us are trying to instruct us still further on our way to glory and are yet interested in the welfare of our Livingston people. While we feel a great need of help, we are trying to bring the lost ones into the fold and make ready for the second coming of Christ, which will be very dear to many. One in the work.

LELA M. MOORE.

Cockrum, Miss. (North Miss. Conf.)

Dear Mr. Editor: I have never seen people more concerned for the Church and for that which pertains to the kingdom of God than these among whom I am laboring. And oh, how this stimulates a pastor to do his best! We are going at full speed now in order, if possible, to make up for lost time. My congregations are surprisingly good. I preached to 150 people on the second Sunday at old Greenleaf, in the country. Think of this in the country where there are no concrete walks, not even shell-roads! Our beloved Brother Holder was with us last week on Wednesday, holding our first quarterly conference. He is full of the Spirit and he preaches with ease and ability. Rev. N. G. Augustus, the pastor at Coldwater, Miss., was with him and preached at eleven o'clock a great and helpful sermon. A good audience of attentive hearers were present to hear the discourse. After preaching, there was a bountiful spread of baskets which made it good to be there and enjoy the dinner. I have never seen a larger attendance or greater interest manifested on a like occasion in the winter season. The five churches of the charge were all represented, with reports almost in full to date, and without a dissenting voice each made a liberal advance on the pastor's salary. The parsonage building committee is to meet this week, and we hope ere long to have the old house removed and a new and modern building erected in its place. The good women of the charge are planning to buy new furniture for the parsonage as soon as we have it constructed. Praise God from whom all blessings flow!—W. A. Bowlin, P. C.

END STOMACH TROUBLE, GASES OR DYSPEPSIA

"Pape's Diapepsin" makes sick, sour, gassy stomachs surely feel fine in five minutes.

If what you just ate is souring on your stomach or lies like a lump of lead, or you belch gas and eructate sour, undigested food, or have a feeling of dizziness, heartburn, fullness, nausea, bad taste in mouth and stomach, headache, you can get relief in five minutes by neutralizing acidity. Put an end to such stomach distress now by getting a large fifty-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin from any drug store. You realize in five minutes how needless it is to suffer from indigestion, dyspepsia or any stomach disorder caused by food fermentation due to excessive acid in stomach.—Adv.

Editorial

FAITH THE GREAT ESSENTIAL.

One sometimes wonders why God does not so express himself to-day in visible manifestations, by vocal communication and in other phenomenal ways, that no man could possibly doubt his personal care and watchfulness over every individual. The reason for his attitude is that he has allowed with great purpose the free play of the will either to believe unto salvation or doubt unto condemnation. It is a matter that concerns each individual whether he will see with the eyes of faith the opening gates and the standing walls of the Holy City, or whether through lack of this precious essential there confronts him no more than a barren plain with no eternal home for the soul.

One of the chief characteristics of this faith is its simplicity. The sum of the whole matter is, "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ and thou shalt be saved." There can be added nothing to this admonition which would be helpful to the entering into the riches of this faith; but, on the contrary, the appropriation of this advice may be greatly complicated and hindered by long explanations and meaningless directions. The way to Jesus is not to be found by wading through ponderous tomes or listening to trying theological vagaries. The great apostle to the Gentiles knew that it was possible to preach in many ways which would be attractive to people, but he was determined to know nothing but Christ in his ministry. Holding up Jesus, as the serpent was lifted up in the wilderness, and crying out "Believe!" is the chief business of an evangelistic ministry. The reason we hear of some of the heathen so easily accepting Jesus and enjoying the blessings of close relationship with him is because they have taken him at his word without question. How often do we of this enlightened country becloud our spiritual vision by many "logical" complications that eternally keep us lukewarm in faith and slow of action for the Master! Peter could walk upon the water as long as he had faith, but when he began to suffer with introspection it failed him and he sank. Let us come back to the real meaning of Jesus in our preaching and our practice and show the people how simple Christ meant it to be to believe on him.

It may also be seen from the attitude of Jesus that he was no respecter of persons in spreading his teachings and accepting men for this new relationship. A centurion whose servant was ill from leprosy told Jesus that he knew he was able to heal and all he must do was to speak the word. The certainty of the centurion concerning the power of Jesus led him to marvel and explain that he had not seen so great faith, even in Israel. The quickness with which he criticised the Jew and commended this man of an alien race evidenced that not for one moment would he hesitate to preach his gospel, and cause it to be preached by others, among any people whatsoever who would believe on him. The trusting faith of the centurion was that which gained the immediate attention of Jesus. It brought forth results from him in the healing of the sick man.

Just as certain as people believe on Jesus to-day he will attend to their needs and forgive their sins. But if they refuse him, or delay in accepting him, the rich heritage of the kingdom of God will pass on to others. Whenever a nation loses its power of personal faith in Jesus he will pass on to others who will accept him. Mexico and Brazil have a nominal Christ, but that possession is of comparatively little value to them. How strange it would be to see the power of America wane because it refused to admit Jesus and to behold China, the great sunflower kingdom, spring into the dazzling light of glory in its purposes toward the Savior. There could be no more engaging spectacle than to see the vast hordes of Church members in America really turn to Jesus with a simple faith and begin to work consistently for the one great cause. C. A. B.

A HIGH-PRICED MAKESHIFT.

The cumbersome scheme of unification which has been put forth "tentatively" does not meet the approval of even the friends of unification, and does not merit their approbation. Dr. H. M. Blair, the Editor of the North Carolina Christian Advocate, has been an advocate of unification, but in his issue of Feb. 28 he says:

"It is well known that the editor of the North Carolina Christian Advocate has been favorable to the union of the Methodist bodies in the United States, and that he has studiously avoided any aggressive attitude on the subject. We have not been a party to any bitter agitation, believiug that the only safe method of approach to this great matter is that of frank and brotherly counsel such as could take place in a body of representative men from both sides. Such a body of men we think it has been the good fortune of the Churches concerned to have in this Joint Commission. They have held three meetings and have discussed all questions, looking at them from every conceivable standpoint. The most gratifying report that comes from these conferences is that the deliberations have been conducted with much prayer and with the finest spirit of Christian brotherhood. Surely we can not go astray if we continue our quest in such a spirit. Nevertheless we must confess to a degree of disappointment that here, within about sixty days of the convening of our General Conference, we should be so far from the haven; for, while the Commission gives this clear-cut statement as to the principles upon which they are agreed, they are far from having worked out the details of a reorganization of the Churches. We regret that we could not find space for printing the full report of the plan which is before the Commission, but will do so next week. Our candid opinion is that when our readers see this plan they will agree that is altogether too complicated, and that it is open to the fatal objection that it will perpetuate divisions and sectionalism rather than cure these things. True, it might do away with "altar against altar," thus eliminating a rivalry which has been both expensive and irritating; but, the price paid for such an achievement would be altogether too high. If we must set up the hard and rigid partitions of these Regional Conferences, why not let things stand as they are? Is not such a makeshift for union evidence in itself that we are not ready for union? When a boy, accustomed to the duties of farm life, we always found that animals wont to kick and nag each other, necessitating poles and rails to separate them, were better and safer stabled apart. Until the melting-pot has fused us all into the mass of a common brotherhood it would seem better that we mend up the fences we already have rather than build more and thus increase, rather than diminish, the amount of rubbish to retard the Kingdom of our Lord."

If we were the most ardent advocate of unification, we should agree with Dr. Blair that this scheme of "unification" is "a makeshift for union" and that the price required to secure it "would be altogether too high."

The plan of the General Conference held at Oklahoma City has been thrown overboard, and the plan proposed is a cumbersome, awkward, and injurious thing.

Why do certain Southern Commissioners—notably Dr. John M. Moore—rush into print after each meeting of the Commission to proclaim that the whole plan of unification has been worked out, and will be speedily adopted by the Churches? Is the wish father to the thought, and is this method adopted to try to rush the Church into a thing before most of our people know what it means?

There has been too much of the shouting business about this matter. It was put through the General Conference at Oklahoma City in 1914 towards the close of the session and without any discussion or deliberate consideration.

In the same way the evasive and adroit answer of the Northern General Conference was put through their General Conference at Saratoga in 1916 without discussion.

Now it is proposed to hold a meeting of the Commission in St. Louis on April 10, and certain Commissioners are apparently trying to prepare the way for shouting through what may be compounded there. Seemingly this is the purport and purpose of these articles. We do not believe the General Conference to be held in Atlanta in May can be thus rushed.

The Northern General Conference of 1912 refused to touch the subject, although the scheme of unification must have been known to practically all the members of that body, as it had been published in the Northern Methodist papers. Our Northern brethren waited for our General Conference to act on it first, which our General Conference guilelessly did. Now they seek to have our General Conference speak first again, and that too, on the shortest possible notice. We do not believe the General Conference will again act with such haste. This time doubtless the matter will be carefully examined.

We may say that other Southern Commissioners than those we have mentioned say that nothing was really done at Savannah except to talk. The report of the Secertaries seems to show that these latter Commissioners represent the case more truly than the others, and the facts do not seem to us to justify the sanguine predictions of the rushers and shouters. Dr. R. E. Jones, Editor of the Southwestern Christian Advocate, and one of the two colored members of the Northern Commission on unification, does not seem to be very hopeful as to the final outcome. In his paper of February 21, among other things, he said.

THE GODLIKE SOUL.

The eternal destiny is in you and you cannot break loose from it. With your farthing bribes you try to hush your stupendous wants; with your single drops to fill the ocean of your immortal aspirations. O this great and mighty soul! were it something less, you might find what to do with it; house it in a safe with ledgers and stocks, take it about on a journey to see and be seen. But it is the Godlike soul, capable of rest in nothing but God; able to be filled and satisfied with nothing but His fulness and the confidence of His friendship. What man that lives in sin can know it or conceive it? O Thou Prince of Life! Come in Thy great salvation to blinded and lost men and lay Thy piercing question to their ear: "What shall it profit a man to gain the whole world and lose his own soul?"—Horace Bushnell.

OUR LORD'S HABIT OF PRAYER.

I wonder if we have sufficiently observed our Lord's love of the heights, and of the ministry of the heights upon his spirit. Have we all experienced the subtle ministry of hill and mountain? There is something even in physical altitude which helps the elevation of the soul. There is something in wide spaces which aids the expansiveness of prayer, and redeems it from narrowness and meanness. And then a mountain by night! There we have height and depth, with the allied ministry of mysterious silence. There is an absence of glare and glamor, and in the deep hush the primary voice becomes audible. And then, again, "all night in prayer for God!" Think of it—the night, the ceaseless communion! Let us not suppose that the Master spent the night in speech. There would be seasons of quiet listening, perhaps seasons when familiar Psalms were sung, and seasons when he just comfortably realized the enwrapping presence of the Father in heaven. Now and again there would be the cry of a sheep or a lamb, and the lone plaint would make his own purpose emerge, as the Shepperd whose mission it was to seek and to succor wandering sheep. And I wonder what the dawn would have to say to him, and whether in its growing radiance he would foresee the gradual illumination of the whole world with the evangel of his love and grace. Be that as it may, the night was thus spent as a preparative to the choice of the morrow. He sought to be perfectly attuned to his Father's will, in order that all his decisions might be one with the mind of the Father in heaven. "The Son can do nothing of himself, but what he seeth the Father do."—J. H. Jowett.

JUDGE NOT.

Would that we could read others' minds as we know our own! Think of the misunderstandings this would prevent—the jealousies, the heartaches, the silent, angry reproaches! Men do not think nearly so ill of us as we imagine they do. There is much more of kindness and love among us than we give men credit for. The world is not nearly so unsympathetic as we in our feverish mental processes often paint it to ourselves.

One's gloating, ungovernable thoughts conjure up the worst that might be possible until he believes it to be true. He hides a fancied hurt and turns it over and over in his thoughts until his mind is stagnant with it, and no good seems possible, while all the time his trouble is merely, or at least mainly, the result of his imagination.

We know a man who never could think or write or speak an unkind thought of any other, for he continually practiced the plan—when suspicion or fancied hurt sought harbor in his mind—of burying it deep under kinder thoughts. If his friend seemed to have failed in his friendship, it was not the slight or the snub or the hurtful word that this man remembered. He painted his mind white with the remembrance of all the kind words, loving deeds, winning acts of his friend. And in the worst of us there are these virtues.

And after we have done all this—brought our souls to God and asked him to purify them of the angry or captious thought—how frequently do we find that we ourselves were in the wrong rather than the other, or at least that our hurt was purely of the imagination!

"Judge not, that ye be not judged." The world is full of trouble and sin, but it is fuller still of kind thoughts, loving intentions toward others, and a universal desire to do good to all men. The man who seems indifferent to you, or hateful, may even think more highly of you than you deserve.—Unidentified.

THE NEGRO QUESTION AS RELATED TO THE PROPOSED UNION OF THE METHODIST CHURCHES, NORTH AND SOUTH.

(This very able address was delivered at the recent meeting of the Joint Commission on Methodist Unification at Savannah, Ga., by Judge H. H. White, of Alexandria, La. Judge White is one of the most distinguished lawyers in this State and was an influential member of the last Louisiana Constitutional Convention.—Editor of the Advocate.)

Dear Mr. Editor: I am in favor of Unification, see many powerful reasons for bringing it about, and hope that it can be accomplished; and I am willing to go a long way in seeking to achieve that end. I am, however, not willing to surrender, for the purpose of Unification, what I consider to be the settled and proper policy of the South as regards the race question. I, therefore, stated my views as to that policy before the Joint Commission at Savannah in the following speech:

Judge White's Address.

Brethren:

Pretermitting any discussion as to the desirability or feasibility of union of our two great Churches, were all other causes for division removed or satisfactorily adjusted, I shall address myself to a short discussion of the proposition as related to what should be the proper status of the Negro Methodists, either in or out of the proposed united Churches.

This question should be viewed from the standpoints of desirability and of feasibility, taking account both of ethical and of practical considerations. The time and place are met when in Christian brotherhood frank statements should be made, and the exact status of both thought and feeling should be made known.

We raise no question here as to the relative superiority of races, nor as to whether such racial differences as exist are due to education or to nature; but speaking from what the South believes in its heart of hearts to be true, both from the teachings of ethnology and from the instincts of six thousand years, the question must be considered to be one of race and not of caste, and one of the mass and not one of the individual.

Leaving argument to biologists, ethnologists, philosophers and theologians, I shall state what I believe the South and the Southern Church will stand for, and will regard as a sine qua non. What I state may sound brutally frank, but it is stated in kindness and in brotherhood, in order that we may see each other "face to face" and not as "through a glass darkly."

I believe that our position may be condensed into the following statement:

The South and our grand division of the Methodist Church believe:

(a) That the color line must be drawn firmly and unflinchingly, in State, Church, and society, without any deviation whatever; and no matter what the virtues, abilities, or accomplishments of individuals may be, there must be absolute separation of social relations. If the color line is disregarded in relations so intimate as those necessitated by the equal status theory, demanded, as I understand it, by the strongest Negro members of the Methodist Church, North, it will be impossible to long continue the fixed status of separation in affairs governmental, civic, and social.

(b) We further believe that in this matter the South is but fighting the preliminary battle of the North, and is but now further advanced along the path which the North has already entered upon and will unfalteringly follow. At any rate, to use the language of another:

"But he who supposes that the South will ever waver a hair's breadth from her position of uncompromising hostility to any and every form of social equality between the races, deceives himself only less than that other who mistakes her race instinct, the palladium of her future, for an ignorant prejudice, and who fails to perceive that her resolution to maintain white racial supremacy within her borders is deepest rooted and most immutable precisely where her civic virtue, her intelligence, and her refinement are at their highest and best."

Of course that highest and best of civic virtue, and intelligence, and refinement is found in her Churches.

We further believe that the leaders of Southern thought and policy should keep step in Church and in State; and it is but well known history to state that for forty years the South struggled, with an eagerness surpassing that of war, to throw off and to keep off the burden and the shadow of Negro influence in political affairs; and only now are the labors of the men who led in that struggle being crowned with a moderate degree of success. It was only yesterday that constitutional provisions such as the understanding clause in Mississippi, and the grandfather clause in Louisiana, took the place of harsher and more dangerous means of correcting the evils turned loose upon the South by the adoption of the Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments of the Federal Constitution.

But why has the South demanded and endured the storm and stress of reconstruction? We answer that it was to attain and maintain Caucasian supremacy, unadulterated and untainted in political and civic affairs.

But can the South, or what we fondly consider its leading Church, admit Negroes on the plane of perfect equality in its religious councils and law-making or law-interpreting bodies, while it denies, or helps to deny, correlative rights and privileges in those so much less intimate relations of official and legislative life?

There is no use to blink the question: Until we are ready to admit that we and our fathers have perpetrated and assisted to perpetrate civil wrong in the re-establishment of purely Caucasian government in the South, we cannot permit the admission of any tincture into the pure Caucasian control of our ecclesiastical Councils and Conferences or Courts.

But our Northern brethren now propose that there shall be only a modicum of Negro representation in our Conferences; or that the Negroes shall be set off into some special or Regional Conference where they will have a quasi-territorial form of government.

Again let us not blink the facts. All such propositions are subterfuges, unwittingly proposed and in kindness of heart, but nevertheless subterfuges, to fool "the brother in black"—to amuse him with the shadow of equality while the substance is denied him. The grandfather clause of the Louisiana Constitution is a paragon of frankness and clarity, as compared with such schemes. And nobody knows this better than the Negro. Witness the prompt, energetic, and unanswerable reply of Dr. Jones to Dr. Blake's proposition, that for the sake of harmony the Negro surrender some portion of his present rights and privileges.

If I understand the position of the Negro members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, as voiced by their press and by Dr. Jones and Dr. Penn of this Commission, they claim as a vested right the full pro rata share for each member of power, influence, opportunity for advancement, office, and property, with every other member—Caucasian, Mongol, or Malay.

Let us now view the question from another angle: The proposed union of the two Churches would take care of, say only about 300,000 or 350,000 Negroes, and would leave practically out of consideration the remaining, say 1,500,000 or 2,000,000 Negro Methodists, more or less, who are in other Churches, including our own Negroes, the C. M. E. Church. No solution that considered only a small fraction of the tremendous host of Negroes would be wise or acceptable. If I read the signs aright, the Negroes who are in independent Churches are as determined to stay there as are those now in the Northern Church to stay there.

There is still another important fact to be considered, viz.: the relations of the races wherever they exist in the same community in large numbers.

There is no doubt that the Negro improves more by contact with and under the influence of the white race, than by any independent amount of Negro academic training or theological tuition. Therefore some arrangement should be made which would provide for close relations between the white Church and the whole body of Negro Methodists rather than a small segment, say 350,000 of them.

Just as the presence of the Negro was obnoxious to Southern white men at the polls; just as he has been an irritant in Republican National Conventions; and just as he has been an element of uncertainty and weakness in the General Conferences of the Northern Church, so will he unceasingly and in increasing ratio become a source of disquietude and danger in the Northern Church as his number increases.

Already the Negro question is more a problem for the Northern than for the Southern Church.

But say the Negro leaders, there are but three ways to get out of the Church—to die out; to resign; or to be expelled; but say they, "the Negro race is not dying out, but is increasing; we will not resign from our Church, and we will do nothing to justify our expulsion." This is all true, still "men of light and leading" in the Northern Church can bring powerful moral pressure to bear on the Negro mind by several arguments—among them these: That the Negro race can as a race, separate, though in kindly relations with the whites, work out a higher destiny than they can in the overwhelming numerical, intellectual and moral superiority of the whites; the Negro Methodists as a whole would have a far better opportunity for agglomerating into a great Church and working out a great destiny as an independent body than as individuals in a larger mass; the white Church, North and South, would act in greater sympathy with, and would contribute more materially to an independent Negro Church than they now contribute; and there would be greater scope for individual leadership than there now is. This is only a brief outline of a few of the many arguments.

I take the liberty of trying to draw some general conclusions from the foregoing statements, which while they have been presented in the form of conclusions, could in my opinion be supported by sound argument. Among those conclusions are these:

1. That the Southern Church will not be willing to go into any arrangement by virtue of which the colored delegates sit either in a General Conference or supreme court, and take part in its deliberations, on any basis whatever.

2. That the colored ministry and congregations of the Northern Methodist Church would resent very determinedly and even bitterly any proposition to assign them any sort of a minimum or modified representation in the General Conference. They are demanding, as I understand, full, absolute, and unqualified equality as members of the Church with all other members. This view on their part has been recently expressed very forcibly by Dr. Jones, who is on the Commission which is meeting here, and who edits the leading Advocate for the Northern colored Methodists in the Southwest, published at New Orleans.

3. The Southern Methodist Church would not feel justified in going into a union which would take care of, say 350,000 colored members, now belonging to the Northern Church, but would not fully and adequately take care of or provide for the other, say million and a half or two million Negro Methodists belonging to other organizations, such as the African Methodist, C. M. E., and others.

4. The only way in which a union of the Northern and Southern Churches can be brought about will be by the immediate or gradual elimination of the Negro membership and the good faith attempt on the part of both Churches, North and South, to cause all Negro Methodists to unite in one great body, which should be brought, in so far as may be, under the tutorship, and which should receive the encouragement, of the white Church. Some of the Negro leaders would probably object to this, but I am inclined to think that if they were assured:

(a) That the Northern Church would be forced to lessen its contribution to Negro Churches, unless the Negroes acceded to the view of the Northern Church;

(b) That if they did accede to that view and bring about the organization of a big Negro Church, appropriations would be continued and increased, they could then be brought to adopt the white view. I do not mean by this to insinuate that these Negroes are venal, but they are human beings, and I think that they could be brought to see that the Negro race, under their leadership, fostered by the advice of a strong white Church, and supported by the liberality of such a Church, could better work out its destiny as a separate organization than it could as members of some other Church, always necessarily being in a subordinate position.

5. If this can not be done, I am inclined to think that we had better abandon all ideas of union as far as the home Church is concerned, consolidate such missionary and cognate enterprises as possible, especially in the foreign fields, and that the line of division, whether it be the Mason and Dixon's line projected, or some other, be rigidly adhered to. Let the Southern Church withdraw from the Northern territory, and turn over its congregations and church property in the Northern territory to the Northern Church, and let the Northern Church do the same as to Southern territory, reserving to the Northern Church the right to still take care of, and for that matter, increase, if it desires to do so, its colored membership.

I have thought over and studied these matters for something like thirty years; was a member of the Constitutional Convention of Louisiana, which gave to the white people of the State the right to control the State, without the necessity of resort to force or fraud, against the Negroes. I am satisfied that even the best men of the Negro race really in their hearts look forward to and cherish the hope that some day what Professor Dubois refers to as the "veil which separates the white and the colored races" shall be removed.

I belong to the class of white men who believe that the relations of the races should be governed, and is occasioned, by race differences rather than by matters of artificial caste. I champion Negro education, and the safeguarding of the rights of the Negroes both as to property and person, but I have not been able to persuade myself that they ought to have been admitted into partnership in the political government of the country, or that it would be wise to give them such position in the Church as we feel we must withhold from them in the realm of politics.

THE PLACE OF OUR UNIVERSITIES IN THE EDUCATIONAL SYSTEM OF OUR CHURCH.

By Bishop W. A. Candler.

The educational system of our Church would be incomplete without our universities.

Some would have us believe that the Church does not need, should not own, and cannot control an institution of university grade, and they would exclude our Church from the field of university work. It is interesting to note, however, that they do not propose to exclude the Catholic Church from this field or to deny that a State may own and control a university. What infirmity inheres in a Protestant Church which makes it unable to do work allowed to the Catholic Church and undertaken by American States? Is it proposed that in the final line-up the contesting forces in this field shall be Romanism on the one side and secularism on the other?

Just as a State perfects its educational system by placing its university at the head of the system, so the Church needs its universities to complete its educational system. Our Methodist brethren of the Church, North, have about ten such institutions, among them being universities which rank high among the educational plants of our country. Surely our Church needs at least two—one for the region east of the Mississippi River and one for the region west of the River.

Our universities are necessary to our colleges; for, as the case now stands our colleges must secure their faculties by engaging such men and women who have received their postgraduate training in northern or European institutions. We cannot but adopt a method which would more surely transform our civilization than to build colleges in which the faculties are composed of teachers educated elsewhere than in our own section and trained under influences antagonistic to, or diverse from, our traditions. If there are those who wish to change our Southern type of life, they could hardly devise a better way to do it than to induce us to furnish the money to support colleges in the South while they supply the teachers. By such a process we pay others to change our civilization and conform it to their own.

We should have really great universities in which the best postgraduate work can be done, and in which teachers for the faculties of our colleges can be thoroughly prepared for their work. In the matter of education our Church is at present somewhat like Israel was with respect to agriculture in the days of Saul. We read: "Now there was no smith found throughout all the land of Israel: for the Philistines said, Lest the Hebrews make them swords or spears: but all the Israelites went down to the Philistines, to sharpen every man his share, and his coulter, and his ax, and his mattock." (1 Sam. xiii. 19, 20.) Can we afford to occupy longer a position so dependent and humiliating?

We must have at least two universities supplied with such libraries, laboratories, etc., that they may furnish instruments and opportunities for research work of the most thorough character. Southern students should have in our section institutions at which they can make original investigations. We can scarcely hope to adequately equip at any early day more than two educational plants of this character; but we are abundantly able to provide for two without unreasonable delay. The South is prosperous as never before, and our people, during these days of their prosperity, ought to win their educational independence.

At present there is only one astronomical telescope in the South which is worthy to be compared with any of the great instruments which several Northern institutions own. Why should Southern students of astronomy be required to go elsewhere to study God's heavens above them?

This lack of means for the pursuit of the science of astronomy is an example of our educational destitution with reference to other sciences. The laboratories of the South are far from what they ought to be, and we no longer have any excuse for allowing them to remain thus inferior to the laboratories of institutions in other lands and in other sections of our own land.

Our universities should offer also professional courses to all Southern students who desire such advantages. Their schools of theology especially should be strong in their faculties, their libraries, endowments, and sustentation funds. If our Church is to fulfill its mission, it must have a ministry "thoroughly furnished unto every good work."

Our universities should have also schools of law and medicine and pedagogy. The last mentioned are of supreme importance. The Southern States are making increasingly large appropriations for the maintenance of the common schools and municipal high schools. But the civil government, under our political system, cannot impart to these schools any religious character whatsoever. Hence it behooves the Church to send forth thoroughly trained teachers, who are filled with the Spirit of Christ, in order that a saving influence may permeate these institutions of the State and thereby prevent them from becoming injurious to both Church and State. The increase of knowledge without a corresponding increase of piety is a perilous experiment to society.

Of course, our universities must and will maintain their collegiate departments; but these should not and will not compete with the colleges of the Church maintained by our Annual Conferences. The collegiate departments of the universities will serve the needs of students resident in the regions near them, as they ought to do. But the emphasis of our universities, when they have been fully equipped, will fall upon their postgraduate and professional schools.

The whole Church should unite in making these schools the equal of any in the land. There need be no fear upon the part of our colleges that they will suffer by reason of anything done for our universities. The colleges of the Churches, North, have not thus suffered on account of their universities; on the contrary, they have been benefited by the universities. We may confidently expect the same results to follow in the case of our own universities. Indeed, as has been indicated in a previous paragraph of this article, our colleges need our universities, and our whole system of education will be imperfect, and more or less ineffective, until we have at least two really great universities.

Surely among the more than two million members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, there are enough men and women of broad minds and generous hearts who will unite in supplying the funds to enable us to meet this urgent need. Such institutions will require millions of money for endowment and equipment; but it will cost us a great deal more if we fail to make these institutions what they ought to be. Already the South has expended millions of money on the education of its sons and daughters in institutions outside our section. And this financial expenditure is the least part of the loss sustained by us on account of our educational destitution.

To all of this some will say, "Education is not a sectional thing;" and in a sense this is quite true. But educational institutions reflect the spirit and propagate the traditions of the people who found and maintain them. The universities of Scotland are different from the universities of England, and in turn the English universities are different from those of Germany.

The greatness of any country is not promoted by effacing any of its sectional characteristics, but by raising the excellencies of each section to their highest power, and thus enabling each section to make its best contribution to the whole country. The glory of the United Kingdom would not be advanced by making the Irish, Scotch, Welsh, and English all alike; its glory arises from their combined excellencies. In like manner the welfare of our country would not be promoted by Southernizing New England, or New Englandizing the South.

The South has played a great part in the history of our country. The place it has occupied in the national life of the past has been very large and honorable, and it has a mission to the future of not less importance. But this mission cannot be fulfilled unless we make, without delay, our educational institutions equal to those of any other section.

These considerations are emphasized further by the fact that during the last two years the educational center of the world has been shifted to our country. Prior to the war now raging in Europe, the German universities drew to themselves students from all lands; but now these currents of student life have been turned to American institutions. At this moment more than fifty thousand students are attending the colleges and universities of the United States. If all these institutions were thoroughly evangelical in their character, these students would return to their own lands as an irresistible religious force. But, unfortunately, the wealthiest educational establishments in America are permeated by liberalism. Foreigners coming to our land naturally go to the institutions which bulk most largely in a financial way. It is to be feared that most of the foreign students now in American institutions of learning will imbibe the spirit of liberalism and go forth opposed to evangelical Christianity.

Now, the Christianity of the South is preeminently evangelical; and if our evangelical Christianity were defended by strong educational bulwarks, our section would be able to do at this time a missionary work of transcendent importance. Our educational institutions would be especially attractive to students from the warm climates of Latin America, Southern Japan, and Southern China.

Alas! how ill prepared are we to meet the vast opportunity which has been brought to us! Is it too late for us to awake to our duty and meet our opportunity?

THAT "OPEN LETTER."

By Rev. John W. Ramsey.

It seems impossible for me to write an article for the Advocate without lubricating some one's linguistic adhesiveness and stirring him into vocabulary activity, thereby involving myself in controversy.

Now comes my old friend, like a chivalrous knight of the olden times, with flashing blade, and I must cross swords with him in self-defense. I do so, however, with pleasure, not only because I regard him as a Christian gentleman, but also because I believe him to be my friend and worthy of the steel of any controversialist. He accuses me of indulging in insinuations, when I confess I was congratulating myself with the thought that I had spoken in plain English. In all my acquaintance with him, I have never known him to do or say an unkind thing intentionally. So when he speaks of my Open Letter as being "suggestive of political maneuvering" and "smacking of the secret caucus," I attribute it to a possible misconception rather than to any purpose of his to be unkind, and enter a disclaimer on my part of the slightest intention of "political maneuvering."

Conceding that my Open Letter was perhaps easy of misinterpretation, I regret that my friend did not apprehend its wider applicability. It is true that it was addressed ostensibly to the Mississippi Conference delegation, but was intended to be Church-wide in its application. For instance, had my friend been in need of demonstrating his ability to read between the lines, he would not have restricted the meaning of my allusion to the failure of the delegates to the last General Conference to succeed themselves as the Mississippi Conference delegates, but would have comprehended the content of the statement in its wider applications to the whole Church. There were 323 delegates to the last General Conference, of which only 102 were re-elected—39 lay and 63 clerical. Now, whatever reason may be assigned for the small percentage of re-elections, these figures are significant. Certainly, there is room for difference of opinion. I suppose my friend has his opinion. I have already given mine; and as long as this country remains a country of free speech, I shall feel myself at liberty to express my opinion on any vital question and give utterance to my convictions. It may not be a popular thing to do, but I have never sought popularity. And why should one not speak of the delegates to the General Conference? Does their induction into that relation to the Church by the votes of their peers render their representative position too sacred to be touched, like the Ark of the Covenant?

Like my friend, I voted for three of the delegates-elect of the Mississippi Conference on every ballot, as some of them know, and I have reason to believe that the majority of them, if not all, are my friends; yet, when the unification question is considered, to be frank, I cannot say, as does my friend, that I am perfectly satisfied with the entire delegation. Excluding unification, I could easily sanction the words of my friend. These may be plain words, and they are, but in a crucial hour such as this, when the very life of Southern Methodism is imperiled, plain speech is demanded. My love for my Church is so profound that if my sainted father were living and his attitude on the unification were such that, in my opinion, it would destroy the autonomy of Southern Methodism, I would not be satisfied with him on the delegation. I voted for three of our present delegates-elect because I had reason to believe that on this vital question they would stand four-square to every wind that blows. In my opinion, I could not bestow on them higher praise than that. Here, again, my friend failed to read between the lines of my Open Letter and apprehend its wider application.

In my friend's reply, after an attempt to show that there is merit in the cause of unification, there follow these words: "If there be merit in the case, where is the reason in practically saying to our delegates: no matter how fair the proposition, no matter what concessions, no matter though our own terms are accepted, you are bound by iron-ribbed instructions not to accept—in other words, play the farce in the whole matter." There is but one defect in this paragraph—it is shot through with sophism. Its premises are untrue, and its conclusions false. So far as I know, no one has denied that there is merit, more or less, in unification, and no one has said that the delegates are bound by "iron-ribbed" instructions not to accept unification, and "play the farce." In fact, my friend knows, as does every one else, that embodied in what is called the "Oklahoma Plan" are specific instructions for our Commissioners concerning the precise principles upon which we will accept unification. As I see it, neither Commissioners nor delegates have a right to go beyond that.

Now, with these preliminaries out of the way, the main, and in fact, the only issue, between my friend and myself, is the representative principle of government. I believe in that principle; hence, as a member of the M. E. Church, South, as well as a member of the Mississippi Conference, I believe I have a right to say to my representatives how I think they should vote on questions which are jeopardizing the very life of my Church. Since my friend speaks of "muzzling" these men, I presume he thinks they should be left free to vote their own convictions, although their convictions should be directly opposed to the convictions of those who elected them. In that case, the question arises, When is a representative a representative, and when is he not a representative? Can my friend answer that question while he entertains his present ideas of government?

I stand squarely for the representative principle in State and Church government. The reason that the drift of things to-day in the Church is in the wrong direction is to be found in the fact that there is in the thought of the authorities—those higher up—too little sense of responsibility to the people whose wishes ought to be consulted more freely and whose will ought to govern. The reason that there is restlessness among the pastors, and the movement for an elective presiding eldership is gaining attention, is because too many presiding elders, the representatives of the pastors in the cabinet, do not freely consult with the pastors about their appointments. If they would be less secretive, and consult more freely with the pastors there would be less dissatsifaction, and far less demand for an elective presiding eldership The reason that the autonomy of Southern Methodism is now endangered is because too many of our Commissioners, relegating to the scrap-heap the representative principle, have exceeded their instructions contained in the Oklahoma Plan, and have assumed the right to place upon it their own interpretations.

My friend, in an exclamatory manner, calls upon the shades of Mr. Lamar in support of his position. It is not strange that my aged friend should appeal to the ghosts of dead men since he has reached the retrospective period of life when men no longer face the future, but their faces are toward the past, all their dreams being dimly illumined by the fading light of the past, and their thoughts feeding on the memories of other years. They find themselves unable to keep step with the progress of the age. I cannot but wonder if the memory of my friend had extended over a century or so of the past, whether he would have appealed to the doctrine of the "divine right of kings."

However, if my friend insists on an exploration of the past for the purpose of stirring among the ashes of the dead, I shall not object. Over against his reference to Mr. Lamar, I quote Mr. Jefferson Davis, the President of the Southern Confederacy and Mississippi's foremost statesman. He said in touching upon the very matters referred to by the good Doctor (Mayes' Life of Lamar, page 363): "It has been the practice of Democracy for men either to obey instructions or resign the office held from the people, so that their constituents might, if they so desired, select some one else who would more truly represent them. The statesman (Mr. Webster) who has been called the Expounder of the Constitution, when the wild waves of abolition were beating against the bulwarks of the Constitution and threatening its subversion, in view of the prospect of receiving instructions, said he hoped the event would not arise, and clearly indicated that in such a contingency he would vacate a seat which he could not consistently retain." Now, granting that Mr. Lamar believed that he had a right to vote his own convictions rather than the wishes of his constituency, as my friend boldly asseverates, but, as I shall prove, he did not, here is Mr. Davis declaring that he would vacate his seat before he would vote contrary to the wishes of the people whom he represented. Since our government is a democracy, Mr. Davis was right, of course.

Referring to Mr. Lamar's position on this question, my friend says that that chapter in the life of that great statesman should be read again. If he thinks that Mr. Lamar believed in disregarding the wishes of his constituency, his declaration should find personal application, for it is not true that Mr. Lamar held the view that the will of the people should not weigh much with a representative. Here is his own statement of his position (Life of Lamar, page 398): "We believe in the right of the Legislature to instruct the United States Senators on any question of public policy; and that no Senator should depart in his votes from an opinion expressed or given, unless in case of a clear and conscientious conviction that in following such instructions he would be violating the Constitution or injuring the interests of the whole country." It will be seen from this quotation that Mr. Lamar held that the will of the people should govern, except in certain extreme cases growing out of the peculiar relations of a United States Senator to the Federal Government, the Constitution of which he had sworn to support.

But had Mr. Lamar believed in disregarding the will of the people, and I have shown that he believed no such thing, still that should have little weight with us now. The times change, and the opinions of men change also. The hands of dead men should not guide in Church or State. Changes indicate progress. Kings once ruled, and their edicts were law, but an unlimited monarchy could not exist now, and even democracy is expanding into a more direct rule of the people. The judiciary was once appointive, it is now elective. Some officials once elected by the Legislature are now elected by the direct vote of the people. Some States have adopted the Referendum and Recall, and when an officer disregards the will of the people he is put out of office. When a man is appointed as a Minister of the United States, he is expected to represent his country, and if he fails to do so he is recalled. Recently the Outlook contained some criticisms of the Bulgarian Minister at Washington. The Editor of that periodical said: "If he is not pro-German, he has no right to hold the office of Bulgarian Minister. If he is pro-German, he should not hold an official position at Washington." With which horn of that dilemma does my friend propose to gore himself?

My position is that a representative is bound by every code of honor to carry out the wishes of the people who elected him by their votes. Otherwise, he is not a representative, but a law unto himself, and if he is a man of honor he should resign. A Methodist preacher is a representative of the Methodist Church, and if he should come to the point in his experience when his convictions are not in harmony with the fundamental doctrines of Methodism, every principle of morality and honor demands that he surrender his credentials. The attitude of my friend is anachronistic, while, in this day when democracy is supreme, the arguments in support of the representative principle—the principle that the people should rule—are irrefutable.

I repeat, if possible with added emphasis: There are REPRESENTATIVES and MISREPRESENTATIVES. A REPRESENTATIVE votes the wishes of his constituency. A MISREPRESENTATIVE votes his own convictions. I wrote my Open Letter because I believe, as a member of the Methodist Church, I have a legal and moral right to speak. I believed, therefore have I spoken, and I challenge the right of any man to castigate me for exercising that God-given and constitutional privilege. "Vox populi" may not always be "Vox Dei," but with every energy I possess and with every mental gift with which God has endowed me, I shall maintain the divine right of the people to rule. What is that for which this great nation is now engaged in the bloodlest war the world has ever seen? Mr. Wilson has said that it is to crush autocracy and make the world safe for democracy. Down with autocracy and up with democracy—the rule of the people in both Church and State!

REV. W. C. LESTER DIES.

Tutwiler, Miss., March 2.—Rev. W. C. Lester, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, at this place died last night of heart failure. Mr. Lester was one of the oldest Methodist preachers in the North Mississippi Conference and had been a faithful Christian worker all of his life. He had held several positions of distinction in his Church during his long service as a minister and was reverenced by all whose pleasure it has been to know him.

Rev. W. S. Lagrone, pastor of the M. E. Church at Drew, and Rev. T. M. Brownlee, Commissioner of Grenada College, are already here and will accompany the remains out to Ackerman, Miss., where interment will he had to-morrow.

Mr. Lester leaves a widow and several children. John P. Lester, now a prisoner of war in Germany; Dr. Lester, with the hospital corps in France; K. P. Lester, assistant cashier of the Progressive State Bank of this place; Miss Daisy Lester, Mrs. Dr. Bradford of West Point, Miss., and another daughter living in Texas.

Mr. Lester had an attack of heart trouble a few weeks ago and it is thought that grief for his son, John P. Lester, who is now a prisoner of war in Germany, had a great deal to do with his death, as for several months his son was reported among the missing and he only learned a few days ago that he was still living and held a prisoner.

The number of telegrams pouring in from all over the country attest to the high esteem in which this good man was held by all who knew him, and the entire community mourns his loss.—Memphis Commercial Appeal.

MEETING OF GENERAL BOARD OF EDUCATION.

The annual meeting of the General Conference Board of Education of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, will be held on April 29 and 30, at Atlanta, Ga. The first day, April 29, will be devoted to the work of the several standing committees.

Further announcement concerning the place of holding the sessions, and place of entertainment, will be made later.

STONEWALL ANDERSON,
Corresponding Secretary.

TO THE PREACHERS IN LOUISIANA.

Dear Brethren: Will you please take steps to secure a meeting of citizens of your community and get them to adopt resolutions calling upon the Louisiana Legislature to ratify the National Prohibition Amendment at its next regular session in May, 1918? This is as little as you can do to help us out, and if you really mean to help us, do this at once. Don't agree with the liquor people by taking the position that this matter should not be discussed in the Church. This is not principally a political question—a great moral issue is involved. Secure two or three laymen to speak, have your resolutions ready, and present them at the close of the meeting. A union meeting would be in order where it can be satisfactorily arranged.

PROHIBITION IN MISSISSIPPI.

This book contains 230 pages, is printed on No. 1 book paper, and neatly bound in cloth. It contains the last word on the prohibition situation in Mississippi from territorial days down to September 1, 1917. It will be found of indispensable value to preachers, lawyers, Sunday School workers, and teachers in our literary schools. Indeed, no library in Mississippi, either public or private, will be complete without it, as it records in a vigorous, authoritative way the history of one of the greatest social, moral, and economic problems which has ever demanded solution at the hands of Mississippi patriots. Mailed, postage prepaid, for $1.25 cash.

CHURCH EXTENSION NOTICE.

Dear Doctor Meek: Please announce that the Executive Committee of the Church Extention Board will meet at Monroe, La., on March 18. All who desire to apply to the General Board for aid must have their applications in good shape and in the hands of the Secretary of the Board, Rev. E. K. Means, Monroe, La., by that time.

K. W. DODSON, For Committee.

A LIBERAL CONTRIBUTION OF THE WASHINGTON (GEORGIA) CHURCH TO EMORY UNIVERSITY.

Hon. I. T. Irvin, of our church at Washington, Georgia, has recently given $2500, and Mr. F. H. Ficklen, of the same church, has given $500 to Emory University. They were college-mates at Emory during the presidency of Bishop Candler. Two finer young laymen can not be found in Southern Methodism.

Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Pharr, who recently gave $5000 to Emory University, are members of the church at Washington, as was also the late Thomas C. Hogue, who left a bequest of $2000 to the University.

In addition to these gifts to Emory University, other members of the Washington church have made contributions of various amounts, which bring up the sum given by that church to about $11,000. It is a splendid congregation, and is doing fine work along all lines under the leadership of its gifted young pastor, Rev. G. S. Frazer.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE TRAINING SCHOOL HOME-COMING COMMENCEMENT.

Plans are being arranged for a delightful Commencement season at the Mississippi Conference Training School, which is located at Montrose, Miss. All who have ever attended the institution are invited to be present. Dr. Sullivan, Vice-President of Millsaps College, will deliver the baccalaureate address. The other leading parts will be taken by those who have been students of the institution. The sermon on Sunday morning, April 21, will be delivered by Rev. W. L. Blackwell, and Rev. J. T. Abney will preach at night. Dr. Sullivan's address will be delivered on Monday, April 22. The Alumni Association will meet on Feb. 22, at which time a special program will be rendered. There will be memorial exercises in honor of Second Lieutenant Tillman Gray.

THE MINISTER'S SIX-FOLD BIG CALLING.

By Rev. J. Tillery Lewis.

Now, as never before in the history of the world, big-brained and big-hearted men are needed in the ministry. This is true because what the world now needs and demands is LEADERS, rather than DRIVERS. The world is now a thinking world, though much of the thinking is of the chaotic kind. The next generation of men will be truer thinkers, perhaps, than are the present generation of men. The men of the Church who are to wield the greatest influence, or rather the men who have the largest opportunity for exerting the greatest influence, are the pastors. Many ministers and laymen make the mistake of believing and teaching that the men in the Church with the greatest opportunity for influencing humanity are the Bishops, or Superintendents in Churches other than the Methodist. As I see the situation, any man of God who is called out of the pastorate, for any service whatsoever, not even excepting the Bishopric, is called upon to make an untold sacrifice as to his opportunity to personally influence men for God; which, by the way, is the highest calling of the ministry. Of course to that man of the Church, both in and out of the ministry, who is AUTOCRATIC and SELF-OPINIONATED in his nature, it is the Bishopric that appeals to him. But to the man of God who is Christ-like in his nature, it is the pastorate that appeals to him, because of the opportunity there given him to help God mould Christian character in the sons of men. The poor old AUTOCRATIC and SELF-OPINIONATED man is like the ostrich with his head in the sand. May the good Lord have mercy on his little, selfish soul!

No ordinary man, however, can fill the bill as to the requirements necessary for the ministry in the present generation. The call to the work of the ministry presents a six-fold obligation, which, if measured up to, will require the exercise of a will-power approaching that exercised by Luther, Wesley and other religious leaders who believed that they were commissioned of God to do a certain work for humanity. My thinking leads me to put the ministry's duties under the following six heads:

I.

The first thing a minister is called on to do is to SUBDUE his own lower nature with its fleshly lust, its worldly ambitions, and its purely material aspirations, and bring same under the dominating influence of the Spirit of almighty God. To desire that thing done, yea to purpose that that thing shall be done, is not enough. A minister, like all other mortals, must stay on the job eternally with Jesus Christ, in the subjugation of the lower nature and in keeping Christ on the throne of the life, else the wicked one, the devil, will subtly slip back into the life and be found controlling the same, while the minister is acting under the pretext of doing the will of God. Many have been the deeds that have been done in the name of the all-loving Father which, in the light of after developments, were seen to be done for the glory of hell. Yet some of the mortals were honest in what they did. Their mistake was their failure to studiously trust to Jesus for leadership, rather than trust to the judgment of their material minds.

II.

The minister's second task is that of growing a big brain and a big heart. The thinking men and women of the world, who are shaping the destiny of our nation and of our world, will not long listen to men of the ministry with medioere minds, nor will they long follow the lead of little-souled men. The day of dogmatism and bigotry is in the past. The eighteenth century endured such like shallow thinking and leadership, but the twentieth century will not. If we are to gain the attention of the leaders of the political, the industrial, and the social world of to-day, we, as ministers, must show ourselves worthy to lead, else we will be ignored. And, in the light of heaven, we should be ignored, if we have failed to prepare ourselves for the work to which God has called us.

III.

The minister's third task is that of inspiring in others an aspiration and a purpose to become the sons of God. All our preaching must look to that end, despite what socialistic tendencies we are compelled to incorporate into the gospel we preach. All our reference to political, social and economic questions must be but as by-products of the great commission of proclaiming the gospel. The chief business of the ministry is to help God persuade men to become reconciled to God, through Jesus Christ. This done, it will be an easy matter to lead men aright as to all other questions. Mankind is lost from God; hence he has a misconception of life from every view-point. The duty of the ministry is first to get man right with God, then lead him into paths of righteousness and justice.

IV.

The minister's fourth task is that of being a pastor. He is God's under-shepherd of the flock. He is called upon to be a true shepherd, and not an hireling. His sympathy and love should go out to every member of his congregation. He will have faithful, unfaithful, appreciative, unappreciative, backsliding, sick, and tempted ones to whom to minister. To fill this delicate place he must have the spirit of the lowly and loving Jesus, else he will fail.

V.

The minister's fifth task is that of being a manager. He must look after every department of the work of the Church. Whether he have a Board who takes all the collections, or whether he looks after the benevolences himself, he must ever keep his hand on the situation and see that everything is moving just as it should move. In the last analysis, both God and the Church must look to the pastor for the carrying forward of the kingdom of God. He should be a manager with capacity to run a bank, a big mercantile business, or some other industry, yet manage the Church at one-fourth, one-third or one-half the pay that the men are getting who are running these worldly institutions; and, too, he must command those under him in such a way that, without earthly remuneration, they will gladly give the service of their lives for the glory of God. Men at the head of other institutions can fire an incompetent person and hire one who is competent, but the minister has not this privilege. He must awaken an aspiration to become competent in self-sacrificing service for others.

VI.

The minister's sixth task is that of keeping the social side of life for his family upon a basis that will not reflect upon the honor of the Church. Here, both he and his family must remember that, as Paul said: "All things are lawful for me, but all things are not expedient; all things are lawful for me, but all things edify not."

When it is remembered that ministers are but mortal men, like the rest of the human family, is it strange that but few of them see the vision herein described? And, further, is it strange that so few ministers measure up to the lofty standard herein set forth, if they see the vision? Your scribe feels that he has fallen, and is falling, so far beneath the ideal herein described that he is tempted to pigeon-hole this article rather than let it go forth on its mission. But here it is for the good that God may help it do. May the good Father help us all to do better!

"OVER THE TOP."

By Rev. W. W. Pinson, D. D.

The year 1917 carried the Board of Missions over the top. It wiped the slate clean of debt. The income overstepped all former records, far and away, and the increase has no parallel in our history as a Board.

General Income for 1917.

The general income for 1917, home and foreign, was $941,621.50 from all sources. This is $224,431.75 more than the annual income was at the beginning of the quadrennium. The increase for the year was $216,000 over the year 1916. There was an unusual increase in income from assessments, from regular specials, independent specials, and from miscellaneous sources. The total general income for the quadrennium was $3,000,459.66, which was $510,266.14 in advance of the total income of the preceding quadrennium. This in spite of the serious loss in 1914 as a result of the outbreak of the war in Europe.

The above figures do not include funds raised by foreign Conferences and expended on the field.

Income for Woman's Work for 1917.

The income for Woman's Work, both home and foreign, for 1917 was $581,910.10. This is $116,740.27 more than the income of 1914, the first year of the quadrennium, and $57,870.74 more than 1916. Total for the quadrennium $2,061,669.51, which is $287,519.87 more than the preceding quadrennium. These figures do not include the City Mission work which is reported to the Assistant Treasurer of the Board of Missions by voucher, amounting for 1917 to $74,710.13, and for the quadrennium $301,996.53.

It is a gratifying fact that the income from the Woman's Missionary Societies has steadily increased, and the report for 1917 gives fresh evidence of the tested loyalty and devotion of the women of the Church.

Looking to the Long Run.

These results have been achieved without a special campaign. Eight years ago we faced a debt of nearly a quarter of a million dollars, with an income insufficient to adequately maintain the work. It was necessary to increase the appropriations, to provide for the opening and support of our new mission in Africa; besides, it was necessary to expend large sums for building and equipment in order to conserve the work already done.

A financial policy was adopted which looked to the long run. It aimed at two things: First, the immediate increase of regular income, and second, the continuous increase of the general income, not by spectacular or whirlwind campaigns, but by methods which might be relied on from year to year. Through all its difficulties the Board has adhered steadily to those aims and its courage and constancy have been rewarded.

A Tide That Does Not Ebb.

There is no reason why the level of income we have reached should not be maintained with normal increase, since the methods by which it has been reached are neither temporary nor extraordinary. Hereafter that which has gone to pay the debt will be available for the extension and better support of the work. This is the result we have steadily aimed at. Rather than ride a tidal wave which must recede, we have preferred to go quietly over the bar where the depth is permanent and safe. What this means is shown by the fact that the regular income has made possible the accumulation of about $250,000 for debt in excess of that expended in support of the work.

The Sources of Success.

The credit is not due to any small group of men. It is due to the loyalty and liberality of the Church. The honor roll includes many noble men and women "whose names are written in heaven." A host of presiding elders and pastors have labored with heroic constancy and courage. The Laymen's Missionary Movement with its lay leaders and committees, the Sunday schools and Epworth Leagues with their efficient educational and financial methods, and the Woman's Missionary Societies with their unceasing efforts, have all helped mightily to put the Board "over the top." This noble response of the Church is a practical and very cheering endorsement of the Board's policies, a token of the determination to make Christ known and loved in all the world.

Above all, these things are not done without the power that waits on prayer. "The kingdom and the power" are not in human hands, and while our prayer is turned into praise, all should hear the call to larger things and lift our eyes unto the hills whence cometh our help.

"And now unto Him who is able to do exceeding abundantly above all that we ask or think, * * * to Him be glory in the Church by Christ Jesus."

"No business is so important to any one as the business of right living."

DAILY MANNA.

Sunday.—Lord, who shall abide in thy tabernacle? Who shall dwell in thy holy hill? He that speaketh the truth in his heart.—Psalm 15:1, 2.

Monday.—God resisteth the proud, and giveth grace to the humble.—1 Peter 5:5.

Tuesday.—The fear of the Lord is the instruction of wisdom.—Prov. 15:33.

Wednesday.—Let us not be weary in well doing, for in due season we shall reap, if we faint not.—Gal. 6:9.

Thursday.—Be thou faithful unto death and I will give thee a crown of life.—Rev. 2:10.

Friday.—A good man obtaineth favor of the Lord.—Prov. 12:2.

Saturday.—He filleth thee with the finest of the wheat.—Psalm 147:16.

FOOTPRINTS.

"What is that, father?" asked Benny.

"It is a footprint, my son; and it is a sign that some one came into our front garden last night."

"It must be," replied Benny; "for there could not be a footprint without somebody had been there to make it."

"That is true, Benjamin; and now show me some of the footprints of the Creator."

"I don't understand you, father," Benny said.

"Well, who made all these beautiful flowers, these splendid trees, the clouds up in the sky, the great round earth, and set the mighty sun flaming in the heavens, and started the bright moon?"

"Oh, God, to be sure!"

"Then all these things are but footprints of the Creator. They are the signs that there is a Creator, and that he has been here. See this nice plant that I hold; man could never have made it. See all the glistening grass, hear all the chirping birds; man did not and could not make them. God made them; and they are all simple 'footprints' of the great Creator, to prove to us that there is a good and great God, whom we love, worship, and obey. Do you understand?"

"Yes, father, I understand very well now, and I thank you for teaching me that lesson."—Children's Friend.

LUCK.

"Some people are born lucky, that's all!" grumbled Dick. "Look at Tommy Andrews' new bicycle. I've been wanting one for a whole year, too. It's nice to be lucky!"

Ruth looked up from her paper dolls, and added a sigh to Dick's grumble.

"Alice Matthews is lucky, too. She's head of the class again, and I'm sixth. It is nice to be lucky."

Little Polly sighed now, thinking of her chum, Patty.

"Patty found a quarter in the gutter," said Polly; "she could not find the owner, so she kept it," and now she has the best rubber ball of any of us."

"The rest of you needn't talk about luck," cried Robert, looking from one to the other with a scowl on his face. "Look at Max Webster if you want to see luck! He's been asked to recite for the School Club this month, and everybody knows I can recite better than he can."

Robert's books went down on the table with a loud bang, and mother put down her pen, and pushed aside the letter she was trying to write.

"Well! Well!" she said. "My four-leaf clover is certainly in trouble. Surely a four-leaf clover ought to be lucky. Let's talk over this wonderful luck which seems to come to Tommy and Alice and Patty and Max. Tommy's bicycle is a beauty, Dick. I do not wonder that you want one like it. Do you remember how hot it was last summer?"

"Yes," answered Dick, gloomily, "but that has nothing to do with Tommy's bicycle."

"Hasn't it?" said mother. "It was very hot, yet Tommy worked all summer long selling papers. He earned that bicycle himself. This spring he is enjoying his wheel—but he is also selling more papers, for now he is working for a football. He told me so yesterday. L-U-C-K spells—"

"Luck!" said all the children, except Dick. He was silent save for a long-drawn-out "O-oo!"

"Now, it's Ruth's turn," said mother, picking up one of the pretty paper dolls which Ruth delighted in dressing. "Ruth stood sixth in her class, and Alice stood first, yet one little girl is just as bright as the other."

"See—it's luck!" cried Ruth. "That's what I said."

"Wait a minute," advised mother. "Does Alice like paper dolls, too?"

"She loves them!" answered Ruth. "Don't you remember what beautiful dresses she made when she was over here last Saturday?"

"When?" asked mother.

"On Saturday," repeated Ruth, looking puzzled.

"Oh, she plays with paper dolls on Saturday, does she?"

"Yes; on Saturday and on Friday night. The rest of the time she is too busy with her—"

Ruth stopped suddenly, and mother smiled.

"L-U-C-K spells—"

"Luck!" said Polly and Robert, but Ruth and Dick were silent.

"Robert is next," continued mother.

"Mother, you know I can recite better than Max," urged Robert, eagerly. "I stood head in my class, and they ought to have let me recite this month. I deserved it."

Mother had hard work to keep from smiling as she asked:

"How often does the School Club meet?"

"Every week."

"How often did you go last month?"

"I didn't go at all, but I was too—"

"Wait a minute," said mother. "How often did Max go?"

"Every time," answered Robert, slowly.

"The teacher depends on Max. He never seems to fail her. What did Max say to you the last time you recited?"

"He said I did 'dandy good work,'" Robert said, more slowly still.

"What did you say to Max when you heard he was going to recite?"

"I didn't say anything. I was too mad."

"Max has improved wonderfully lately," mother continued. "Every one is noticing that, and Robert, I am sorry to tell you, but you didn't recite as well last time as you did—"

Mother did not finish her sentence. Instead she asked:

"L-U-C-K spells—"

There was dead silence in the room, and after a few moments mother said:

"Does Polly want her turn?"

"No, no, mother!" cried Polly. "I was worst of all. I spent two hours hunting a quarter in the gutter, after Patty found hers, and I could have earned one easily, for father said he'd give me a quarter if I picked the weeds out of the path this week. Don't say anything about me, please!"

"All right," laughed mother; "but I'd like to ask my four-leaf clover again:

"L-U-C-K spells—"

"Work!" shouted the children, all except Robert, for Robert had disappeared. The front door slammed, and mother picked up her pen smiling. She knew, and the rest knew also, that Robert was running down the street at full speed toward the house where Max lived. She knew, and they knew, that "lucky" days were beginning for the four-leaf clover.—Anne Spottswood Young.

BESSIE'S INTEMPERANCE.

Bessie hung up the receiver with a sigh. "It just seems as if we can not raise money for the Mission Band," she said to her Aunt Floy, who sat knitting. "Jean hasn't a cent, neither has Katie."

"It all comes from being so intemperate," remarked Aunt Floy.

"Intemperate!"

"Yes; in your amusements. Just let's count up, my dear. How often were you at the movies this week?"

"Three times; but generally I don't go oftener than twice a week. You must have some fun, auntie."

"That makes twenty cents a week, anyway, doesn't it? And twenty by fifty-two makes over ten dollars. Then you come straight home afterward?"

"Why, yes; no we generally have an ice cream somewhere."

"Twenty cents more at the least. That makes twenty dollars a year for movies and ice cream, not counting picnics and parties and all sorts of nice things. How many girls are there in your class all doing the same sort of thing?"

"Ten."

"Ten by twenty—two hundred dollars a year and more! I think you need to do some mental arithmetic, Bessie, in your poverty-stricken Mission Band."

"I believe you're right, Aunt Floy, I never thought of counting it up before. It does seem intemperate to spend so much money that way, when it's so hard to get it for missions."—Unidentified.

A LETTER FROM BROTHER RUFF.

Dear Dr. Meek: Please accept my greetings from "somewhere in France" to you and the readers of the Advocate. I think many times of you and the other members of the North Mississippi Conference, and am hoping that the time may soon come when I may see you again.

I had a pleasant trip over, after several days' delay in the States. I spent a week in Paris and came directly here. This is a typical French village in a wonderful section of the country—wish that time and the censor would permit me to tell you more of it. I was delighted to have a visit last week from Chaplain Randolph. He is a great fellow and has a wonderful hold upon his men.

I would be delighted to hear from any of the preachers who would care to write me. And please—oh, please—send me books, papers, periodicals, anything that will give a touch of home and a reminder of the good old United States. It will mean so much to the boys. My permanent address will be 12 Rue D'Aguesseau, Paris, France.

Sincerely,

ROBERT H. RUFF,
Y. M. C. A. Secretary.

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE WOMAN'S MISSIONARY COUNCIL.

The Eighth Annual Meeting of the Woman's Missionary Council will be held in the Church Street Methodist Episcopal Church, South, Knoxville, Tennessee, April 3-11, 1918.

The Workers' Conference will be held Wednesday afternoon, April 3, at 2 o'clock, and an inspirational service the evening of the same day.

Delegates and visitors should correspond with Mrs. H. A. Evans, Vice Chairman General, who will furnish a list of hotels and boarding houses. An effort is being made to secure reduced railroad rates and if the same can be had, due announcement will be made through the Church papers.

Miss BELLE H. BENNETT, President.
Mrs. FITZGERALD SALE-PARKER, Secretary.

WAR CONDITIONS
—REFLECTED IN—
TELEPHONE SERVICE

Among the unforeseen conditions which the war has imposed upon us is the necessity of practically suspending the commercial development of our business.

Confronted with an unusual increase in the use of the telephone and a strong demand for new and additional service, we cannot accept or fill orders except subject to practically an indefinite delay.

This situation is due to the importance of conserving our supplies so that the government's requirements may be promptly met by giving the War Department service anywhere and at any time the request is made.

A HIGH-PRICED MAKESHIFT.

"We are not quite so optimistic that these differences will he harmonized. After studying the matter carefully durlng the three meetings and lending ourselves in every legitimate way to the consummation of the movement for the organic union of the two Churches, we are of the opinion that any union that does not come about without considerahle force is not worth the name. This we think is the mistake that is heing made hy pronounced unionists. Nothing is settled unless it is settled right. It is easy enough at times for individuals to adjust their differences. It is not quite so easy for large bodies. There are many unanswerahle reasons why the Churches, North and South, should be one. Admitting this, it does not follow that organic union is a necessity for the present. In fact the whole proposition of organic union may be queered too much by high pressure."

MORALITY AMONG WOMEN SOLDIERS IN RUSSIA.

When the men of Russia manifested indifference toward the hetter interests of their country and refused to fight in concerted numhers against the Huns, it is said that Botchkarova, an ignorant peasant woman, sounded a clarion call to those of her sex to rally to the standard of freedom. Those volunteering to die for their native land were formed into "battalions of death," trained at arms and sent to the front and placed in the trenches along with the loyal troops. When two hundred and fifty of these soldier-women left Petrograd one day for the front they were surrounded at the station by thousands of people who came merely out of curiosity or to jeer at these self-appointed defenders of liberty. Perhaps never in history had such a sight actually heen witnessed. It is assumed, according to good authority, that the story of the Amazons is a legend. According to Mr. William G. Shepherd, who wrote from Russia what he had seen and knew to he facts about these women. many of them conducted themselves heroically on the battle line. At one time one of Botchkarova's bands captured a hundred Germans, and when the captives flung down their rifles and threw up their hands, they exclaimed: "Ach Gott! The Russian women." To the amazement of the conquerors there were found among these Germans six German women fully armed and clothed as soldiers and fighting along with men. No one, says Mr. Shepherd, can say how many other women of the Teutons are thus fighting. Of course we in America do not know how many Russian women have taken it upon themselves to fight for their liberty. But we do know that many of those who undertook this ordeal were of the sentiment that it was better for Russian women to die than for their country to he under Prussian rule.

But the most striking truth to moralists about this movement among Russian women is, as Mr. Shepherd reports, that those who were immoral soon proved to be worthless as soldiers and actual drawbacks to the fighting. Botchkarova supposed that any woman who was physically fit and able to carry a gun could make a good soldier. Acting upon this opinion, the only examination she first imposed upon those enlisting in her army was the physical; but it soon developed that wherever a woman was lax in her morals she cared nothing for her country, and that most likely she had been prompted to enlist for the sake of adventure. Unlike the men, the women could leave the firing line and retire to the rear, or go home, as they pleased. It was not long before all those of immoral disposition were back in the cities. Out of two hundred and fifty leaving Petrograd at one time, not many days had passed before eighty of them had returned. In almost every instance those of moral habits, and without the idea of sex developed, made admirable soldiers. They stood the terrific machine fire of the enemy, the thundering artillery duels, the hand-to-hand conflicts, and the severity of trench life with a determination and loyalty equaling hardened and seasoned troops. No one can read of the motherhood of Russia thus sacrificing itself for freedom without feeling that some time God will give her the victory over wrong and cruelty. In that land of darkness there is an element of greatness and a spark of salvation.

It should he noticed that morality is the crying need of any nation. Many have wondered whether the women of America are maintaining their upward and onward moral progress that was apparent in the early days of the nation. To our women, it may be said, that the future of the country depends upon them. If they should fall into unholiness and degradation the nation would be lost; hut if they maintain their purity and saintliness of character it will be safe. C. A. B.

REV. W. C. LESTER CALLED TO HIS REWARD.

Rev. O. L. Savage, of Webb, Miss., writes us as follows:

"Rev. W. C. Lester died at Tutwiler, Miss., last night (March 1), ahout 11:30 o'clock. He was ili only about thirty minutes. Heart failure was the cause of his death."

Another statement pertaining to the demise of this well known minister, taken from the Memphis Commercial Appeal, appears elsewhere in this issue of the Advocate.

It is with sincere sorrow that we chronicle this occurrence. We had known Brother Lester personally for many years, and had counted it a privilege to number him among our friends. He joined the North Mississippi Conference in 1875, and served faithfully in the itinerancy from that time until the Master bade him leave the Church Militant for the Church Triumphant. He was well educated, possessed a clear, discriminating mind, and knew how to feed and strengthen the flock of Christ. He was a man of choice spirit and stainless character, and he has left behind an unsullied and worthy record. It is sad that he should have been stricken down without seeing again his sons, one of whom is in the United States Army, and another of whom, according to report, is in prison in Prussia; but God knoweth best and keepeth watch above his own. Our heart goes out in tender sympathy to the bereaved widow, who is stated to be in feeble health, and the other sorrowing loved ones. May the Heavenly Father sustain them with his strong arms!

We hope that some one will furnish the Advocate with a fitting memoir of the deceased at an early date.

PROF. RICKETTS DEAD.

Dr. A. F. Watkins, President of Millsaps College, under date of Feb. 27, wrote us as follows:

"You will be grieved to hear of the death of Prof. Ricketts, which occurred here on the afternoon of Feb. 25. He had heen in failing health for some months, and, as you know, had recently visited New Orleans to consult a specialist. After he returned, he continued to grow weaker, and on last Friday became much worse, his condition becoming steadily more serious until Monday afternoon, when he passed away at 3:40 o'clock."

Dr. Ricketts had been connected with Millsaps College nearly ever since its establishment, and held a chair in that institution at the time of his death. Prior to his acceptance of a position at Millsaps, he taught for many years in Whitworth College. He had long been regarded as one of the foremost educators in Mississippi. He was well equipped for his life-work, and he wrought nobly for the youth of his State, leaving a lasting impress upon hundreds of young men and women, who will ever cherish his memory. He was a devoted Southern Methodist and a great-hearted Christian gentleman, true, high-minded, and unspotted by the world. To know him was to love him, and to associate with him was to be uplifted. In the 75th year of his age, after having served well his day and generation, he has been gathered unto his fathers; but his influence will go on, helping to make the world brighter and better until the crowning day when the Lord Jesus shall come to take his followers to the place he is preparing for them. May the grief-stricken loved ones be sustained and strengthened by the Holy Spirit in this trying hour!

We have in hand a heautiful tribute to the deceased from the pen of Dr. Watkins, which will appear in the next issue of the Advocate.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

Rev. A. L. Davenport, our pastor on the Corinth (Miss.) Circuit, thus reports concerning his work: "This bids fair to he the best of my three years on this charge."

Rev. H. W. Jamieson, of Standard, La., was a visitor in New Orleans last week and brightened the Advocate office with his presence. He was in his usual sunny mood.

Rev. M. E. Scott, the new pastor of the Black Hawk charge, North Mississippi Conference, has made an auspicious heginning. His people are much pleased with him.

Keep in mind the Louisiana Wesley Bible Class Federation, which is to be held at Mansfield, La., March 13-14, 1918. Bishop J. H. McCoy, Dr. Chas. D. Bulla, and other Methodist celebrities will be there with "thoughts that breathe and words that burn."

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Price, of Indianola, Miss., were in New Orleans Monday of this week and made an appreciated visit to the Advocate office. The Editor, much to his regret, was not in, and missed seeing these citizens of the great Mississippi Delta, a section for which he has a great fondness.

In a business letter to the Advocate office, Brother B. F. Goza, one of the leading laymen in our church at Magnolia, Miss., says: "I am with you on the unification issue. As I see it, if we should enter into the proposed arrangement, we would gain nothing and lose many things that we hold dear."

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Williamson, of Memphis, Tenn., left New Orleans, to return to their home in the Bluff City, the latter part of last week. Mr. Williamson, we regret to state, was not feeling so well when they took their leave. We hope to hear good things concerning his physical condition in the near future.

While in North Mississippi last week, we regretted to learn that the little daughter of Rev. V. C. Curtis, presiding elder of the Greenville District, was quite ill with pneumonia. Brother and Sister Curtis have our sympathy in this time of anxiety, and we earnestly pray that the stricken one in their home may soon recover.

Rev. W. D. Bennett, the stirring pastor of the Sardis (Miss.) Circuit, in a letter bringing us 2 subscriptions to the Advocate, thus remarks: "The unfavorable weather has at last let up and we are beginning to make some progress in this charge. The assessment for the pastor's salary has been considerahly advanced over that of last year."

The Editor of the Advocate has been out of the city much of the time since January 1, and his correspondence has in consequence suffered. We trust that persons who have written us will be patient with us. We shall do our hest to respond to all communications calling for answers at an early date, though we expect to be often out of our office this spring.

Mrs. M. B. Dottery, of Okolona, Miss., has our thanks for two names for our mailing files. She is a loyal friend of the New Orleans Christian Advocate, and strongly commends the Editor for his stand against the absorption of Southern Methodism. Mrs. Dottery divides her time between Mississippi and Illinois, and is well informed concerning the inner workings of the two Churches.

We are in receipt of the following message from Rev. W. N. Ware, of Harperville, Miss., March 1: "I have lately had an attaek of appendicitis and am on my way from Walnut Grove to Jackson, Miss., for an operation. Remember me in your prayers." We are sorry to learn of the illness of Brother Ware, and we hope that he will soon find complete relief from the malady annoying him.

It is with sincere sorrow that we state that Rev. W. W. Mitchell, presiding elder of the Durant (Miss.) District, has recently been confined to his home by illness; but we are glad to know that he is again able to take up his "loved employ." Brother Mitchell preached at Lexington last Sunday morning and at Tchula at the evening hour. He is in great favor with the preachers and people among whom he labors.

The following wedding announcement has reached us: "Dr. and Mrs. John Magruder Sullivan announce the marriage of their daughter, Sue Elizabeth, to Mr. James Clyde Riddell on Saturday, Feb. 16, 1918, Jackson, Miss." The bride is a granddaughter of the late Dr. W. T. J. Sullivan, whose memory is as "ointment poured forth" all over North Mississippi. We extend congratulations and best wishes to the happy young couple.

Rev. A. S. Lutz, the able presiding elder of the Monroe District, in forwarding his appointments for his second round, says: "The work in my district is making steady progress. All of the preachers are hard at work. Two parsonages have been bought, and one new church will soon be erected. Some revivals have been held, and in some sections the men are reaching out into new territory. We are looking for a most gracious year in every way."

Miss Elizabeth Streater, who within recent years has done such excellent work for our Church in Mexico, is now resting for a season with relatives at Black Hawk, Miss. She attended the annual meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society at Greenville last week, where, according to the press dispatches, she made one of the most impressive addresses delivered on that interesting oecasion. She is a worker of unusual gifts and consecration.

Rev. C. M. Chapman, of Waynesboro, Miss., Feb. 25, says: "Rev. J. C. Chambers, our Sunday School Field Secretary, is with us for a four days' institute and is doing very effective work. He is one of the best equipped men in our Church for such a service. His work will abide." It scarcely needs to be said that the Waynesboro charge is making good headway under the capable leadership of Brother Chapman, who has a habit of achieving things worth while.

We have before us a very attractively printed card, which reads as follows: "The Methodist Sunday school of Boyce, La., requests your presence Sunday, March 10, 1918, at 11 o'clock a. m., at a service to be held in honor of our soldiers and sailors. J. W. Faulk, pastor; Mrs. M. H. Kirkpatrick, Superintendent of Honor Roll." We appreciate this kindly invitation, and we trust that the service in prospect will in every respect be a pleasant and profitable one.

Rev. E. B. Sharp, of Schlater, Miss. writes us as follows: "Our work at Schlater is moving on about as usual. Everything is pleasant and we are expecting a good year. As Treasurer of our Conference Board, I wish to say that the brethren are responding nicely to the call of the American Bible Society. Several have sent their full assessments for the year. The banner charge is Amory, from which, under the leadership of its efficient pastor, Rev. J. E. Thomas, $55, nearly five times the assessment ($12), has been sent in."

We have on our desk the second round of appointments of Rev. T. H. Lipscomb, presiding elder of the Aberdeen (Miss.) District. Brother Lipscomb comments as follows on the work in his territory: "The first quarter has been gratifying both as to the assessments and reports. Greenwood Springs and Tremont Circuits each took an $800 assessment last week, agreeing to pay the pastor as much as $60 monthly. Buena Vista has raised its assessment to $1000. I am emphasizing monthly payments and am urging $50 a month as a minimum for the pastors."

From a postal card written to our office by Dr. S. H. Werlein, of Alexandria, La., we take the following: "I am preaching at Camp Beauregard this week, and am delivering two sermons every night: one at 7 p. m., and the other at 8 p. m. The audiences are ranging from 1000 to 1500 men. An intensive evangelistic campaign is being conducted. Five speakers are giving messages to ten large audiences; hence the two sermons by each speaker. We have before us a big and glorious opportunity to help the boys here heavenward. Dr. M. E. Dodd, of Shreveport; Dr. Francis of San Francisco, and Dr. Foster, of Brooklyn, New York, are among the speakers participating in this revival campaign." We are pleased to be informed of this good work. Let the readers of the Advocate pray for these services among our soldier boys.

THE SINGLE HOPE.

Col. Henry Waterson, in the Louisville Courier-Journal, says:

"Surely the future looks black enough, yet it holds a hope, a single hope. One, and one power only, can arrest the descent and save us. That is the Christian religion.

"Demoreracy is but a side issue. The paramount issue, underlying the issue of democracy, is the religion of Christ and him crucified; the bed-rock of civilization; the source and resource of all that is worth having in the world that is, that gives promise in the world to come; not as an abstraction, not as a huddle of sects and factions; but as a mighty force and principle of being. The Word of God, delivered by the gentle Nazarene upon the hillsides of Judea, sanctified by the Cross of Calvary, has survived every assault. It is now arrayed upon land and sea to meet the deadliest of all assaults, Satan turned loose for one last, final struggle.

"The Kaiser boldly threw down the gage of battle—Infidel Germany against the believing world—Kultur agalnst Christianity—the Gospel of Hate against the Gospel of Love. Thus is he, Satan, personified—'Myself and God,' merely his way of proclaiming it—for his 'God' is Beelzebub, the Angel of Destruction; his creed the devil's own, his aim and end a hell on earth. Never did Crusader lift battle-ax in holier war against the Saracen than is waged by our soldiers of the Cross against the German. The issues are indeed identical.

"It the world is to be saved from destruction—physical no less than spiritual destruction—it will be saved alone hy the Christian religion. That eliminated leaves the earth to eternal war. For fifty years Germany has been organizing and laboring to supplant it with Kultur, the genius of infidelity. Her college professors have been obsessed with it. Her universities have seethed with it. In acclaiming 'Myself and God,' the Kaiser has put the Imperial seal upon it. When our armies have run it to its lair—when they have crushed it—naught will have been gained unless the glorious banner of the Cross is holsted—even as Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness—and the misled masses of Germany are bade to gather about it, and beneath it, as sadly they collect the debris of their ruin for the reconstruction of the Fatherland.

"Let every American soldier swear this day—this Christmas morn—that he will link him and his with the Christ-child—the Light of Love—that suffered under Pontius Pilate, was crucified, dead, and buried, that descended into hell, that the third day arose from the dead and ascended into heaven, and sitteth on the right hand of God, the Father Almighty!"

Our Advocate Campaign.

Our Advoeate eampaign made a good showing during the past week. The success which many of the brethren have had in securing new subscriptions demonstrates clearly what can be done for the Conference organ when a faithful effort is made in its behalf. We would assure every worker that what he has accomplished is much appreciated. The weather is now good, and we trust that there will be no let-up in the endeavor to place our paper in all the Methodist homes in Louisiana and Mississippi. The fact also should be kept in mind that it is most important to secure the renewal of all expiring subscriptions. There are many of these at this time. Write the Advocate office for a list of them in your charge, making it a point to give the names of all post-offices from which your members receive mail.

SOME GLEANINGS FROM OUR BUSINESS MAIL.

Rev. R. O. Brown, of Clarksdale, Miss., sends us 6 subscriptions, and says: "Others will follow."

Rev. T. D. Lipscomb, Greenwood, La., thus writes: "I am sending you three new names for your mailing files, and I expect to send more."

Rev. C. F. Emery, Hattiesburg, Miss., in a letter bringing us 7 subscriptions, says: "I will try to add to the list of 7 new subscribers that I have forwarded and to secure the renewal of those that have expired or are about to do so." Thank you, Brother Emery.

Rev. W. C. Beasley, Tishomingo, Miss., gives us a fine list of 10 new and 2 renewal subscriptions. He says: "It will be a pleasure to endeavor to send others. I think that the Advocate was never better than it is now."

Rev. G. D. Anders, one of the Advocate's best friends, was in New Orleans last week and called at our office, bringing with him a list of 27 subscriptions, with a check to correspond. It is needless to say that we are grateful for this fine work in behalf of our paper.

Rev. L. H. Floyd, Holcomb, Miss., who has been doing such excellent work in behalf of the Advocate, has given us another list of 16 subscribers, 12 of them new. Our hat is off to this choice young itinerant.

Rev. G. W. Baker, Sherman, Miss., who has been making glad the heart of our Publisher by what he has been doing for the Advocate, brought another smile to his face last week by an additional list of 5 names. Brother Baker commented as follows: "This makes more than the quota allotted us by the District Stewards, but I am not satisfied yet. I have another church to work, and I think that I shall have another batch to come later." Our esteemed brother has the right idea; the membership of every church should be canvassed.

Rev. John D. Ellis, Canton, Miss., writes: "Please mail me a list of your subscribers at this place and I will try my best to get them to renew and also to secure new subscriptions." We appreciate this message.

From the goodly town of Mt. Olive, Miss., Rev. T. B. Cottrell, who has long been one of the Advocate's best friends, forwards us 8 new and 8 renewal subscriptions. Among other things, Brother Cottrell says: "We will endeavor to put the Advocate in every Methodist home." That is a splendid goal to aim at.

Rev. Albert S. Lutz, the brilliant leader of our forces in the Monroe (La.) District, writes: "On this second round the question concerning the circulation of the Advocate will come up, and I hope that we shall be able to turn in a number of new subscriptions from every charge." We appreciate these words. The quarterly conferences furnish a good opportunity to stress tellingly the claims of the Church paper.

Rev. S. S. Holladay, Mitchell, La., in forwarding some subscriptions, says: "I have now sent in six new ones. My apportionment was 7, and I feel sure that I will secure the remaining one."

Rev. L. M. Sharp, Laurel, Miss., has our thanks for a list of subscriptions (11). He says: "We were asked to send you 8 new subscribers, and we have forwarded 10. We hope to hand you more from time to time." This is a fine showing.

SOME SUBSCRIPTION RECEIPTS.

The following friends, of whose kindness no acknowledgment has elsewhere been made, have our thanks for two or more subscriptions, sent in within the past few days: Rev. Jas. M. Lewis, Prentiss, Miss., 2; Rev. P. H. Fontaine, Bernice, La., 3; Rev. C. H. Ellis, Lintonia charge, Miss. Conf., 3; Rev. W. A. Bowlin, Cockrum, Miss., 6; Rev. C. Y. Higginbotham, Chunky, Miss., 2; Rev. J. M. Wyatt, Shelby, Miss., 3; Rev. L. F. Alford Enterprise, Miss., 5; Rev. J. J. Garner, Sidon, Miss., 5; Rev. J. C. Ellis, McComb, Miss., 3; Rev. D. W. Babb, Crawford, Miss., 6; Rev. B. L. Sutherland, Meridian, Miss., 3; Rev. E. S. Lewis, Greenville, Miss., 2; Rev. T. H. Porter, Lamar, Miss., 6; Rev. L. H. Floyd, Okolona Ct., N. Miss. Conf., 3; Rev. A. W. Langley, West Point, Miss., 3; Rev. R. M. Evans, Isola, Miss., 2; Rev. L. I. McCain, Hammond, La., 3; Rev. S. W. Bryant, Poplar Creek, Miss., 2.

He will certainly fail who hopes to know men deeply and to get only happiness, never to get anxiety, distress, disappointment, out of knowing them; and he has mistaken the first idea of human companionship who seeks companionships, friendships, and contacts with mankind directly and simply for the pleasure they will give him.—Phillips Brooks.

Freezing to boiling without breaking

Pyrex dishes are guaranteed not to break in the oven. They stand even the test shown above.

Those who use Pyrex say it is the most lasting of cooking utensils. It never flakes or crazes—never rusts, dents, burns out or discolors. Lasts a lifetime.

Ordinary pans waste two-thirds of the oven heat. Pyrex uses it all. It makes bread rise an inch higher, gives pies crisp under-crusts, makes meat more tender. Pyrex makes all food more delicious.

Dealers everywhere sell the many different Pyrex dishes. Buy your first one today. Like thousands of others you will never again use an old-fashioned pan.

Comb Sage Tea in Faded or Gray Hair

Look young! Common garden Sage and Sulphur darkens so naturally nobody can tell.

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and attractive with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, all ready to use, for about 50 cents. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural color and looks glossy, soft and beautiful. This preparation is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

EDWARD W. LANE was born in Smith County, Miss. In early manhood he moved to Washington Parish, La., then to Beauregard, Miss. In 1910 he moved to Wesson, and in 1912 to Hattiesburg, where he died on Jan. 2, 1918. Of Christian parentage, Brother Lane gave his heart to God and united with the Church early in life. He loved his Church and was ever loyal to its obligations. For a number of years he served faithfully as steward and Sunday school superintendent. His place in the sanctuary was never vacant when it was at all possible for him to be there. Religion with him was a conscious experience. He could say, "I know whom I have believed." He lived in the faith and died in glorious triumph. A devoted companion and ten children are left to mourn his departure. May they all meet where parting will be no more!

His pastor, PAUL D. HARDIN.
Hattiesburg, Miss., Feb. 27, 1918.

A link in the chain that binds the family circle of W. P. WHITE, of Good Hope, Miss., is missing. On Feb. 5 his spirit took its everlasting flight, and our hearts are made sad indeed, for we are reminded by the "vacant chair" that he has crossed over the river of death and we trust is "resting under the shade of the trees." We mourn not as those who have no hope. He professed faith in Christ and joined the Baptist Church when a young man, and lived a consistent member of the same ever after. When war was declared between the States he shouldered arms in defense of his country, being among the first troops to volunteer. He went into Virginia, where he saw hard service, and at the battle of Franklin, Tenn., he received a wound from which he never fully recovered. He was a devoted husband, a fond father, and a useful citizen, and truly he was the noblest work of God's hand, being an "honest man."

ONE WHO LOVED HIM.

JOHN SARVER, the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Sarver, was born in July, 1884, near Indian Bayou Church, and died on Feb. 23, 1918, after a long illness which lasted 27 days. In 1906 he, with his parents, moved near Abbeville, La., where he remained until death overtook him. His death was due to kidney trouble, though there was some other complication connected with it. Everything that his loving father, mother, and sisters could do was done for him, but to no avail. Money was no object. When they had done all that they could, they left him in the care of a nurse, and his brother-in-law, who was very faithful in looking after him, remained with him. The deceased possessed a kind disposition, and he was never heard to say an uncharitable thing about any one. Though he was not a church member, he was regarded as a moral man. He never was known to dishonor his parents by being in bad company. We were unable to talk to him about his preparedness for death during his illness, for he was unconscious practically the whole time. We hope, however, that he is at rest, and on account of the cleanness of his life we have reason to believe that all is well with him. The funeral services were conducted at the Indian Bayou Church by Rev. G. D. Anders, the pastor. The deceased leaves one brother, five sisters, a mother, and a father to mourn their loss. The surviving brother is a United States soldier stationed in North Carolina, having enlisted on Sept. 19, 1917, and he is liable to be sent to Europe at any time.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT.

Whereas it has been ascertained that Mr. Fred Wasson, the beloved son of our sister, Mrs. M. F. Wasson, lost his life recently when the British transport Tuscania went down at the hands of a German submarine; therefore, we the members of the Woman's Missionary Society of the First Methodist Church, of Kosciusko, Miss., do offer the following resolutions as a testimony of appreciation for the deceased and as an expression of our sympathy for his mother and sisters:

Resolved (1), That, while we deplore his untimely death, we rejoice in the heroic and self-sacrificing spirit which prompted him to spare not himself in such noble service. It has been truly affirmed that "we are as near heaven by sea as by land."

Resolved (2), That we extend to Sister Wasson and her family our deepest sympathy in their bereavement and that we assure them of our love and prayerful interests.

Resolved (3), That we share with the family as far as we may this tremendous loss. The statement that "death loves a shining mark" was abundantly verified when the body of Fred Wasson sank beneath the turbuient waves, but Fred gave his life unselfishly for all that is dear and sacred to us, our homes, our Christianity, and our civilization, and the great Father who doeth all things well has only permitted this life to ascend into the higher and fuller realities where there are happiness and reward.

Resolved (4), That a copy of these resolutions be furnished the family of Sister Wasson, and a copy be sent to each of the papers published in this city and to the New Orleans Christian Advocate.

"He needs no wreath nor marble's sheen
To keep his blessed memory green;
In hearts that loved him 'twill abide Until time's latest eventide."

Signed: Mrs. E. H. Cunningham, Mrs. Clara Atkinson, Mrs. Sam Gilliland, Mrs. R. U. Galloway, Committee Woman's Missionary Society, First Methodist Church, Kosciusko, Miss., Feb. 25, 1918.

The discovery of new truths puts no strain upon the Creed of Christendom; that Creed is not a brittle thing that it should break. What happens to the Creed when larger knowledge comes to man is simply what happened to it in your mind and mine when we passed from childhood into maturity—it takes on a grander meaning, is interpreted by a more worthy standard—in a word, is better appreciated than before. Christianity is a religion of light. It has everything to hope and nothing to fear from more light. Time may irradiate the Creed; it will never annul it.—W. R. Huntington.

Many mean things are done in the family for which moods are put forward as the excuse; when the moods themselves are the most inexcusable things of all. A man or woman in tolerable health has no moral right to indulge in an unpleasant mood.—J. G. Holland.

THICK, GLOSSY HAIR FREE FROM DANDRUFF

Girls! Try it! Hair gets soft, fluffy and beautiful—Get a small bottle of Danderine.

If you care for heavy hair that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine.

Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff. You can not have nice, heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp; the hair roots famish, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast. Surely get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store and just try it.

Try Making Your Own Cough Remedy

You can save about $2, and have a better remedy than the ready-made kind. Easily done.

If you combined the curative properties of every known "ready-made" cough remedy, you would hardly have in them all the curative power that lies in this simple "home-made" cough syrup which takes only a few minutes to prepare.

Get from any druggist 2½ ounces of Pinex (60 cents worth), pour it into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. The total cost is about 65 cents and gives you a full pint of really better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for $2.50. Tastes pleasant and never spoils.

This Pinex and sugar syrup preparation gets right at the cause of a cough and gives almost immediate relief. It loosens the phlegm, stops the nasty throat tickle and heals the sore, irritated membranes that line the throat, chest and bronchial tubes, so gently and easily that it is really astonishing.

A day's use will usually overcome the ordinary cough and for bronchitis, croup, whooping cough and bronchial asthma, there is nothing better.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and has been used for generations to break up severe coughs.

To avoid disappointment, be sure to ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

FROM BROTHER SHEPPARD.

Dear Doctor Meek: With a trembling hand and imperfect vision, I write you some reminiscences. My wife and I have passed our 77th milestone. If we live until August 25, we will celebrate the 54th anniversary of our marriage.

On my way home after four years spent in the Confederate Army I resolved to change my way of living, and on the next Sabbath I united with the church of which my father was a class leader and steward. For two years I remained an inconsistent member of that church. One Sunday evening, just before the hour for service, I stole away to a beautiful group of trees, near the church, where I knelt down and consecrated myself—soul and body—to God. In the very moment of my surrender I felt my heart "strangely warmed." Light flooded my soul, and a calm, sweet, indescribable peace flowed through my being. From that moment to the present I have never for a moment doubted my adoption into the divine family. Soon after my conversion my sainted father died, and I was appointed to fill the places made vacant by his death. For two years I filled these offices in the church, and I doubt whether any two years of my life have been more fruitful. I remember one night during a prayer service which I was conducting that the presence of God was so manifest that I was requested to invite penitents to come forward for prayers. Quite a number came and knelt at the chancel; and several persons were converted. The interest was so great that it was thought best by the leading members of the church to continue the services day after day. The congregations increased, and the interest grew until I insisted on sending for a preacher. A great number were converted before the preachers came, and several afterwards, and the whole country was stirred. Other communities insisted on having me hold services for them, which I did when possible. Soon the quarterly conference licensed me to preach without solicitation on my part. I suppose the brethren thought that they would put the seal of their approbation on what God had already accomplished. I am sure that their action did not increase my efficiency, for the simple reason that people did not expect me to preach sermons, but to "tell the old, old story of Jesus and his love." My, my, how I could sing in those days! I never could make much noise in my talks, but I certainly made up for it in songs. Soon the presiding elders began to employ me to fill vacancies and pastors to assist in meetings, and thus several happy, and I trust useful, years passed before I entered the Louisiana Conference. Since then my life has been full of toil, conflicts, and cares, but I thank God that I have had seasons of great joy and an ever-increasing peace. Paul claimed to have had one "thorn in the flesh, a messenger of Satan to buffet him." I have sometimes felt that I had several such messengers to buffet me; but with Paul I can say his grace is my sufficiency. I have come near to filling appointments of every class in the Louisiana Conference, from the poorest to the most desirable, and I can truthfully say that there is very little difference in appointments. Some of the most fruitful years of my ministry, and in many respects the most enjoyable, have been begun under the most unfavorable conditions. The fact is, there are only two hard appointments in our itinerant system. One is, where you are not wanted and where you do not want to go, and the other is that of superannuation. The latter I am now trying to fill without murmuring. I got on with it fairly well as long as I could preach occasionally, milk the cows, feed the chickens, and work in the garden; but for 18 months I have been under the direction of the most skillful physician in the country, who tells me that "excitement, exertion, or a full meal would prove fatal in my case." So you see my sphere of activity is limited indeed. But I am grateful that my companion for more than half a century is still my ministering angel, and that I am in the midst of people to whom I have ministered for nearly a quarter of a century—people who show by many tokens their tender regard for me. I am often lonely, and long for the companionship of my ministerial brethren, and I do so much enjoy a visit from any of them, or just a line now and then from them to remind me that I am not forgotten. I fear that you will not be able to read this letter. If you care, I will afflict you again.

Cordially,
J. L. P. SHEPPARD.

HOW MRS. BOYD AVOIDED AN OPERATION

Canton, Ohio.—"I suffered from a female trouble which caused me much suffering, and two doctors decided that I would have to go through an operation before I could get well.

"My mother, who had been helped by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, advised me to try it before submitting to an operation. It relieved me from my troubles so I can do my house work without any difficulty. I advise any woman who is afflicted with female troubles to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial and it will do as much for them."—Mrs. MARIE BOYD, 1421 5th St., N. E., Canton, Ohio.

Sometimes there are serious conditions where a hospital operation is the only alternative, but on the other hand so many women have been cured by this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, after doctors have said that an operation was necessary—every woman who wants to avoid an operation should give it a fair trial before submitting to such a trying ordeal.

If complications exist, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., for advice. The result of many years experience is at your service.

Sunday School

NORTH MISSISSIPPI NOTES.

By Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, Sardis, Miss.

The annual epidemic of measles is earlier this year than usual. Let us get down to business and make preparations for observing "Children's Day" on, or before, the fourth Sunday in April. We can get in ahead of the school commencements. Let your Field Secretary know how many programs you need.

It is tbe purpose of the Church to make this one of the best days in the Sunday school year. With the proper management it can be made a means of education to older people as well as children. It affords an opportunity for enlisting a large number of people in some department of the school. Is it worth while to enlist them?

The programs are furnished by the Sunday School Board, but tbe Board pays for them out of the money collected on "Children's Day." Order as many as you need, but do not send for a larger number than can be used profitably. Write a post-card to-day and save trouble and expense.

It might be a good thing to read the law of the Church to the congregation regarding the observance of this day. Read paragrapbs 265, 270, 271, 273, and especially 606. Suppose every congregation should order programs, observe the day and then turn the proceeds of tbe offering over to the orphans or to some form of war-work? Only a small number of congregations did this last year, but if one has a right to do this, all have the same right.

During tbe month of February I helped to put mission study in ten scbools, teacber-training in six, graded lessons for beginners in six. It is not so bard to get people started, but some one must keep in behind the work to keep it going. We will win out in the matter of religious education, missions, evangelism, and the whole matter of the kingdom of God when the tbing gets on tbe conscience of tbe leaders. You get it on the conscience by reading, praying, working. This is the price to pay. Let us pay it in full now.

Have you ordered "Japan, tbe Key to the East" for seniors and adults, or "Heroes of Faith in Japan" for your intermediates? It will not do to put this off until next year. The main reason why people in tbe Church have no conseience on the question of missions is that they have never bcen really taugbt missions. Think a minute. Who is it that gives liberally? It is the Christian that has been taught. Who answers the call to the foreign field, or to any otber field? It is the one that knows something. How can we get missions on the conscience? By giving informaion and then by praying the information in until it sticks.

NOTES FROM THE FIELD SECRETARY.

The month of February has been a very busy month. The weather has hindered a few appointments, but most of the appointments have been met. We have held meetings of the district officers in each district, and havc found a most hearty and ready response. These meetings have been most helpful to me, and the sympathy and kindness of these splendid workers has been most cheering indeed.

The Sunday school of Fifth Street Church, Meridian, has assumed the support of two afternoon Sunday schools in Japan for the year.

The Sunday school at Waynesboro has assumed a scholarship for Japan. They are to study the missionary literature in the whole Sunday school next quarter. They graded the Beginners and have bought the Worker and His Worker series for the teachers.

The "Excelsior Class," of the Newton Sunday school. Mrs. W. L. Hunter, teacher, has adopted the following as their program of work for the year: (1) To furnish substitute teachers. (2) Maintain Home Department. (3) Build up the entire Sunday school. (4) To visit the sick. (5) To visit the strangers. (6) To write letters and cards to the soldiers who get no mail. (7) To send flowers to the sick. (8) Regular visits to be made to the Sanatorium. (9) To assist in pastoral work. (10) To furnish special music for Sunday school and Church and in every way assist in making the Sunday school and Church more attractive. (11) To secure a better attendance at the weekly prayer meeting. (12) The support of a little girl at the Orphanage.

This is a fine forward step, and I hope that it will be an inspiration to others to help them in their work.

The Sunday School Board has asked that the Field Secretary devote himself to the neglected fields. Will the brethren help to make appointments in those communities where there are no schools and where the work is weak and not well organized? All have been so kind; I do hope that they will receive value for their efforts in behalf of the work.

"Children's Day" is the last Sunday in April. This is early and I hope that all the schools will make an effort to have a bigger, better, and more spiritual observance this year than ever before.

Pray for your worker.

JOHN C. CHAMBERS.

Shubuta, Miss.

TIME WILL PROVE IT.

Regardless of the merits of the case, no statements in regard to the merit of any article can be so clearly proven as through time itself. If the article has no value it cannot live. If it has merits, it will be everlastingly in demand. It is just so with Gray's Ointment; for ninety-seven years a family word in every household. Almost a century ago the same claims were made of its merits as to-day: that it is healing and antiseptic, the very best aid in cases of burns, scalds, bruises, cuts, sores, stings and other skin infections. It has won on its merits. A ninety-seven year record is ample proof. Write W. F. Gray & Co., 806 Gray Bldg., Nasbville, Tenn., for sample.—Adv.

Men are to pray not because they hope to change God's plan, but because God's plan is the wisest and most loving. They are to pray not with the idea of inducing God to be kind, but because He is kind. Christ revealed God as everywhere present—working in every life, searching every soul.—E. L. Hull.

The Root of Skin Troubles

Skin diseases are caused by parasitic germs, and unless these germs are killed your skin trouble will last indefinitely, growing worse each day. These parasitic germs may be killed and without any injurious effect by simply applying Tetterine, a frugrant salve. It is commended highly by the best physicians. Sold by druggists. 50c a box, or by mail from SHUPTRINE COMPANY, SAVANNAH, GA.

"When God tells us to rejoice it is a sin not to do it."

Do not wish, but will, to be at one with God.—Huntington.

Abundant Health is assured when there is good blood in the veins. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the medicine to make good blood. Begin taking it now. It is just what the system needs at this time and will do you great good. Sharpens the appetite, steadies the nerves.—Adv.

SHERMAN, MISS.

Dear Dr. Meek: Our work is progressing nicely. The outlook is favorable for a good year. Many good wishes to you. We enjoy the Advocate.

CALOMEL SELDOM SOLD HERE NOW

Nasty drug salivates, makes you sick and you lose a day's work.

Every druggist in town—your druggist and everybody's druggist—has noticed a great falling-off in the sale of calomel. They all give the same reason. Dodson's Liver Tone is taking its place.

"Calomel is dangerous and people know it, while Dodson's Liver Tone is perfectly safe and gives better results," said a prominent local druggist. Dodson's Liver Tone is personally guaranteed by every druggist who sells it. A large bottle costs 50 cents, and if it fails to give easy relief in every case of liver sluggishness and constipation, you bave only to ask for your money back.

Dodson's Liver Tone is a pleasant-tasting, purely vegetable remedy, harmless to both children and adults. Take a spoonful at night and wake up feeling fine; no biliousness, sick headache, acid stomach or constipated bowels. It doesn't gripe or cause inconvenience all the next day like violent calomel. Take a dose of calomel to-day and to-morrow you will feel weak, sick and nauseated. Don't lose a day's work! Take Dodson's Liver Tone instead and feel fine, full of vigor and ambition.

Cured His RUPTURE

I was badly ruptured while lifting a trunk several years ago. Doctors said my only hope of cure was an operation. Trusses did me no good. Finally I got hold of something that quickly and completely cured me. Years have passed and the rupture has never returned, although I am doing hard work as a carpenter. There was no operation, no lost time, no trouble. I have nothing to sell, but will give full information about how you may find a complete cure without operation, if you write to me. Eugene M. Pullen, Carpenter, 862D Marcellus Avenue, Manasquan, N. J. Better cut out this notice and show it to any others who are ruptured—you may save a life or at least stop the misery of rupture and the worry and danger of an operation.

"BLOOD AND IRON"

A Combination That Makes for Better Health This Spring.

Every man and woman who would enjoy good health this Spring, and would have such life and strength as not to be a slacker, but equal to anything, must have an abundance of iron in the blood.

The new iron tonic, Peptiron, combines this valuable metal in medicinal form so that it is easily absorbed and readily assimilated.

Peptiron also includes pepsin, nux, celery, gentian and other tonics,—nerve helps, digestives and carminatives—a health-giving medicine in the form of chocolate-coated pills, convenient and pleasant to take. It has given entire satisfaction in cases of anemia or thin blood, paleness, nerve debility, brain-fag One or two Peptiron after each meal will quickly tell a story of marvellous results.

Peptiron is prepared by its originators, C. I. Hood Co., Lowell, Mass.

HOW SHIVAR MINERAL WATER RELIEVES RHEUMATISM.

According to the standard medical books, Rheumatism is not a germ disease but is the result of imperfect nutrition. The food is either imperfectly digested or imperfectly assimilated. Poisons accumulate and these irritate and inflame the delicate linings of the joints, the heart and other organs. To relieve Rheumatism it is therefore necessary to stop the formation of these poisons and get rid of those already formed.

The celebrated Shivar Mineral Water acts on the stomach and kidneys. It corrects the digestion and washes out the poisons through the kidneys. This is the opinion of physicians who prescribe it. If you suffer from rheumatism, dyspepsia, indigestion, disease of the kidneys, bladder or liver, uric acid poisoning, or any curable conditions due to impure blood, read the following letter, then sign it, enclose the amount and mail it. Only two out of a hundred on the average report no benefit.

Box 17-B., Shelton, S. C.

Gentlemen:

I accept your guarantee offer and enclose herewith two dollars for ten gallons of Shivar Mineral Water. I agree to give it a fair trial, in accordance with instructions contained in booklet you will send, and if it fails to benefit my case you agree to refund the price in full upon receipt of the two empty demijohns which I agree to return promptly.

NOTE.—"I have had the pleasure of serving the little church at Shivar Spring as Pastor for years, and am therefore well acquainted with Mr. Shivar and his associates, whom I gladly commend as an honorable business man and worthy of the confidence of the public. I have personally derived great benefit from the use of the Shivar Mineral Water and have knowledge of its beneficial effects in a great number and variety of cases."—Rev. A. McA. Pittman.

COLUMBUS DISTRICT NOTES.

Dear Doctor Meek: Below I give some items of interest from the Columbus District, and I would like to begin with our presiding elder. Brother Duren is most certainly putting his whole life and strength into the work of this district, and I think with my ear to the ground I can hear a quickening of life in the forces of the district. I have found that he knows well how to get entirely out of one job and how to get entirely into a new one.

Artesia is in one sense the leading charge in the district. In two items, at least, they lead: first, they pay more per member than any other church in the district. They have only 125 members, yet maintain a station. They have increased the pastor's salary $120 this year. Then as a second item they have a Halfacre in the pulpit every Sunday morning.

Brooksville is in deep distress, mingled with joy, over the loss of Brother J. M. Guinn to the chaplaincy in the Army. They are proud that they could send their pastor to this work, but are greatly distressed over the loss. Brooksville is one of the best charges in the Conference.

Cedar Bluff has Brother A. W. Langley as pastor. He has been greatly afflicted with an infection in one of his hands; he almost lost his life with it, but is now well, at work, and sees victory ahead.

Cochrane, along the border of Alabama, paid the pastor one-fourth the year's salary within six weeks after his arrival. Brother Williams is the first pastor of the district to secure his quota of new subscriptions to the Advocate. People and preacher are happy.

Central Church, Columbus, has voluntarily raised the pastor's salary $100. Brother Gregory has had quite a serious illness in his family, but is hustling. He will make his "Every Member Canvass" on the first Sunday in March. Central Church is looking up. The people are enthusiastic in their appreciation of their pastor.

Caledonia Circuit was reduced two churches this year, but Brother W. W. Hartsfield and his stewards made a good report at the first quarterly conference. Brother Hartsfield is hard at work and the outlook is good.

Crawford Circuit, where that prince of men, Brother D. W. Babb, serves, has paid $75 on missions, and everything bids fair for the best of the eight years Brother Babb has served this choice people. Sister Babb has been in poor health, but is somewhat improved now.

Longview Circuit, though a hard field, paid more this year at the first quarterly conference than last year. The people are rallying to the earnest work of Brother Carlisle, the pastor.

Macon, where Brother Broyles serves, is keeping up its usual good record. They are far in advance of last year in their first quarterly payments. Of course, it goes without saying that Brother Broyles has everything in good shape at this important church.

Macon Circuit seems to just outdo all records with Brother Goad as pastor. Their report at the first quarterly conference was 66 per cent in advance of the first quarter last year. Brother Goad is paying off the debt on the parsonage.

Mashulaville is a hard field and covers a large territory. Brother Ray is on the go, and indications are that he will win out in the end.

Mayhew has a very popular pastor in Brother Ellis. Sessums has been added to the charge. They paid three times as much at the first conference as they paid last year. They will have a good year.

Shuqualak has had sickness in the parsonage home of Brother Martin. This has hindered his work, but reports now are that he is winning for the Lord and the Church.

Starkville increased the assessment for the pastor $100 and is keeping ahead in payments. No pastor in the district is giving better satisfaction. No charge has a better leader than Starkville.

Sturgis is about keeping even with last year. Brother McElroy is doing faithful work in that difficult field.

West Point gave their pastor the largest advance in salary I have heard of in the Conference—$300. Brother Wasson is making progress with his new church enterprise. The U. S. Aviation field, recently located here, greatly increases the importance of this charge. Brother Wasson is wide awake to these new opportunities.

The presiding elder has just sent out his second letter to the preachers of the district. In this letter he calls especially for two things to be emphasized—the deepening of the spiritual life of the Church, and the "Advocate Campaign." We are expecting a great year.

SOUR, ACID STOMACHS, GASES OR INDIGESTION

"Pape's Diapepsin" neutralizes excessive acid in stomach, relieving dyspepsia, heartburn and distress at once.

Time it! In five minutes all stomach distress, due to acidity will go. No indigestion, heartburn, sourness or belching of gas or eructations of undigested food, no dizziness, bloating, foul breath or headache.

Pape's Diapepsin is noted for its speed in regulating upset stomachs. It is the surest, quickest stomach sweetener in the whole world, and besides it is harmless. Put an end to stomach distress at once by getting a large fifty-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin from any drug store. You realize in five minutes how needless it is to suffer from indigestion, dyspepsia or any stomach disorder caused by fermentation due to excessive acids in stomach.

FOOT TROUBLES.

No Need of Them, Says Brooklyn Man, Who Has Evidently Solved a Big Problem.

According to the testimony of hundreds of people living in the southland and elsewhere, E. P. Simon of 1589 Broadway, Brooklyn, N. Y., has successfully developed a system of shoe building having for its prime object the conquering of foot and shoe troubles. It appears that Mr. Simon's establishment has become national headquarters for people whose feet require his remarkable comfort shoe, known as the EzWear, but obtainable only of the inventor. Mr. Simon's new catalogue shows several hundred shoes that combine comfort with style at amazingly low prices and is now ready for free distribution.—Adv.

REPORT OF LOUISIANA ANNUAL MEETING HELD IN SHREVEPORT, FEB. 25-28.

When these words appear before you the session of the Eighth Annual Meeting will have passed into the history of the missionary work of the Conference; but God grant that the influence of the days of sweet communion, close fellowship, and deep spiritual uplift may be so abiding that throughout the year its quickening impulse may be felt in every auxiliary.

This is the first annual meeting held since our country has entered the great world conflict and the key note of the conference seemed to be a stressing of greater love, devotion and loyalty to the King of kings, every one realizing that not so much by shot and shell will this war be won but through our loyal allegiance to our great Commander, and an intensive directing of our forces against the forces of evil. The Son of Man must be lifted up as never before, for now is a time when men are needing to be drawn to Him. The love of God shed abroad in the hearts of men will furnish the only sure foundation for a permanent world peace.

The devotional services were like precious gems set in pictures of gold. Each lesson was drawn from the life of some Bible heroine and presented in so beautiful and practical a manner that the truths went right home to our hearts. From Ruth was drawn the lesson of unselfish and loving service; from the life of Deborah were brought out three invincible qualities for successful service—inspiration of vision, dynamic of prayer and venture of faith; from the ministry of the little Syrian maid we learn the lesson of magnifying the little daily services of life.

It was a source of much sorrow to our women that we were deprived of the presence of our beloved Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. A. P. Holt, who was detained at home by serious illness. This child of God has served the conference long and faithfully and her presence is always one of the great inspirations of the meetings. The report of her work was so full of vital facts that a resolution was passed that the portion dealing with foreign missions be printed in leaflet form and distributed throughout the Conference.

Another disappointment came to the Conference in the absence of Mrs. R. H. Harper, the wide-awake and enthusiastic leader of the children. The serious illness of her little boy prevented her from coming to us.

The different reports all showed growth, the greatest being along financial lines. It was a satisfaction to know that the women had been true to their pledge, but it was a time for heart searching to find an adequate answer to the question naturally arising, "Why did we not also increase in auxiliaries and membership?" Are we laying too much stress upon the financial side and neglecting the greater gifts of prayer and self?

It seemed to be the concensus of opinion that the logical time to hold the district meetings was in conjunction with the district meetings of the brethren, feeling that a greater sympathy for the work can thus be created. Where practicable this plan will be put into execution this year, and by next year it is hoped that all the districts shall have fallen into line.

Mrs. Steele's presence was like a benediction, and her Bible half-hours were seasons when the hearts of the women were drawn very close to the Savior, so beautifully and impressively did she lead us to see that the only way the world can see God is through a spirit-filled man or woman, and that it is our duty as Christian women to so manifest Him in our lives.

In her address on literature, Mrs. Steele stressed preparation for our work, and enumerated the various leaflets, bulletins and missionary magazines prepared and printed for our assistance. Weeks and sometimes months are spent in preparation for club work, but the Master's work often receives only a slip-shod preparation, and is it any wonder the women attending our auxiliary meetings pronounce them "deadly dull?" We often ask ourselves the question, "Why have we failed to interest and enlist our women?" Mrs. Steele said it was because we did not make our appeal to them big enough. Think on these words, women!

A most encouraging feature of the Conference was the attendance of so many new women, forty-three attending an annual session for the first time. It means that a larger number of women are going to receive the vision of the pressing needs of the world and that this new material will take the glad message back to the home auxiliary and present it with a fresh enthusiasm and from a new view-point.

In connection with the Social Service report Mrs. E. R. Kennedy read the following important resolution:

Resolved, That the Woman's Missionary Society of the Conference endorse the act which will come before the next session of the Louisiana Legislature providing for the establishment and maintenance of a State school for defective girls and that we work for same.

Mrs. C. F. Niebergall, State President, suggested that a cup be offered the young people's auxiliary and the junior auxiliary making the highest number of points in the Standard of Excellence. It was heartily endorsed and both cups were donated by Shreveport women—Mrs. A. W. Baird for the young people and Mrs. Della Gahagan for the children. We know that these cups will prove an incentive to our young people and juniors throughout the Conference, and to be the proud possessor of either one for a whole year will be an honor worth striving for.

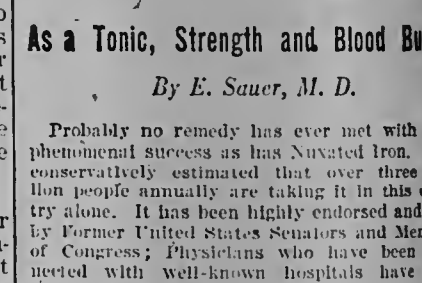
This Conference set as its goal in the supply department last year, "Seven boxes from seven districts" and forty-eight boxes were reported. Mrs. H. L. Baker feels that the women have the love and ability to do even greater things this year.

Miss Gibson presented the work of St. Mark's Hall, telling of their location, their wonderful opportunities for service and the many hindrances in the way of the rapid growth of the work. No discouraging note was sounded, for she feels that slowly but surely they are making their impress upon the community as well as individual life, and several very touching instances were related to add proof to her statements, if, indeed, proof were needed. She spoke of the "greater" needs of the work and we felt she had "hitched her wagon to a star," but knowing her determination and dauntless faith we know she will hold on tight and it will be no matter of surprise when the star is reached in the shape of a new building, day nursery, model housekeeping rooms for the girls, boys' club room, gymnasium and a small playground.

Lest some of us of weaker faith become discouraged and feel it is impossible to assist with these greater needs we mention a few of the smaller ones. In sending your boxes please remember these items: reading table, subscriptions to magazines, some strong chairs, a rug, table linen, cots, mosquito nets and fruits for the pantry. We realize that some of these have outgrown the box stage, but send them along anyway and they can act as substitutes for the box.

Perhaps one of the greatest treats of the Conference was the privilege of hearing Miss Bess Combs of China, but at present Student Secretary for the Woman's Missionary Council. This past year she has spent traveling over our Southern Conferences, visiting our colleges and boarding schools and presenting the needs of our foreign fields, trying to give to our young womanhood a vision of service. Very graphically she portrayed her work, and it was easy to discern that this strong, splendid young woman has already made her place among the Chinese. Having been in China for five years, she felt better prepared to answer the question, "Why am I a missionary?" She knows that God called her and she dare not be disobedient to the "still small voice." Heeding His call, she sees the wonderful opportunities to meet the great needs of China. The "bigness of the job" appealed to her, and having set her hand to the plow, there was no turning back. The more she put into the work the more she got out of it, and it is the service that satisfies her soul.

For the encouragement of those in the homeland she said the work we were doing was "bigger" than hers. We give our prayers and means, hoping they will reach their destination, but to her is given the privilege of making and seeing results.



The pledge hour was a deeply impressive time, and Mrs. Steele prefaced it by asking if we thought our pledge of the past year showed our ability to pay, our willingness to pay, or the love we feel for the work. After the district secretaries had made their pledges, individual and auxiliary pledges were called for, and so insistent was the voice of God in many hearts that pledges all over the Conference were raised. We urge the women who remained at home to stand back of these additional pledges for they were made through prayer and in God's presence. They could not have been true to Him if they had refused to thus honor Him. We were thus enabled to pledge $6000 for the work this year.

What is wrong with so many of our lives is the sense of futility and unproductiveness, the failure to see that it matters or counts for anything. There is nothing like a deepening of real religion for correcting the feeling and conviction of futility and inconsequence. Consecration to the highest things brings the joy of fruitfulness into a life which may have seemed insignificant and barren before. We may be obscure and small, but we stand for what is dear to God, and this is to have life made a worthy thing. It is the great redemption from insignificance.—Thos. Yats.

GIVE "SYRUP OF FIGS" TO CONSTIPATED CHILD

Delicious "Fruit Laxative" can't harm tender little Stomach, Liver and Bowels.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, your little one's stomach, liver and bowels need cleansing at once. When peevish, cross, listless, doesn't sleep, eat or act naturally, or is feverish, stomach sour, breath bad; has sore throat, diarrhoea, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of its little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again. Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which contains full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups.

A Woman's Burdens

are lightened when she turns to the right medicine. If her existence is made gloomy by the chronic weaknesses, delicate derangements, and painful disorders that afflict her sex, she will find relief and emancipation from her troubles in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. If she's overworked, nervous, or "run-down," she finds new life and strength. It's a powerful, invigorating tonic and nervine which was discovered and used by an eminent physician for many years, in all cases of "female complaints" and weaknesses. For young girls just entering womanhood; for women at the critical "change of life"; in bearing-down sensations, periodical pains, ulceration, inflammation, and every kindred ailment, the "Favorite Prescription" is the only medicine put up without alcohol—ingredients on wrapper.

SYLACAUGA, ALA.—"My wife has used Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for trouble from which women suffer and it surely did give good results. All women ought to use this remedy as it is fine. Dr. Pierce's Cough Syrup is good also."—REV. J. N. COOPER.

ALBERTVILLE, ALA.—"Two doctors gave me up—said I had a bad case of dropsy and that my system was all run-down. I could not keep any vituals on my stomach. My husband found one of Dr Pierce's pamphlets and I began taking 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Favorite Prescription.' I took three bottles of each kind and in six weeks I was able to be up. I also used the 'Pleasant Pellets.' I recommend Dr. Pierce's medicines to all suffering women, and am glad to say they saved my life when others failed."—MRS. SARAH C. RAINS, R. F. D. 1.

Why I Believe in Nuxated Iron

As a Tonic, Strength and Blood Builder

By E. Sauer, M. D.

Probably no remedy has ever met with such phenomenal success as has Nuxated Iron. It is conservatively estimated that over three million people annually are taking it in this country alone. It has been highly endorsed and used by Former United States Senators and Members of Congress; Physicians who have been connected with well-known hospitals have prescribed and recommended it; Monseigneur Nannini, a prominent Clergyman, recommends it to all. Former Health Commissioner Wm. R. Kerr, of Chicago, says it ought to be used in every hospital and prescribed by every physician.

Dr. A. J. Newman, late Police Surgeon of the City of Chicago, and former House Surgeon Jefferson Park Hospital, Chicago, says Nuxated Iron has proven through his own tests of it to excel any preparation he has ever used for creating red blood, building up the nerves, strengthening the muscles and correcting digestive disorders.

Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor dep't.) New York, and the Westchester County Hospital, says there are thousands of men and women who need a strength and blood builder but do not know what to take. In his opinion there is nothing better than organic iron—Nuxated Iron—for enriching the blood and helping to increase the strength and endurance of men and women who burn up too rapidly their nervous energy in the strenuous strain of the great business competition of the day.

If you are not strong or well, you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of Nuxated Iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see how much you have gained.

Note:—Nuxated Iron, which has been used by former members of the United States Senate and House of Representatives, and other prominent people, with such surprising results, and which is prescribed and recommended above by physicians, is not a secret remedy, but one which is well known to druggists everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products, it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black nor upset the stomach. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money. It is dispensed by all good druggists.

Harleston, Miss.

Dear Dr. Meek: I am pleased with my work this year. Everything is moving along nicely. I have never been with a better people. We are praying for and looking forward to a good year, and I am sure that we will have it.

Yours in Christ,
M. L. McCORMICK, P. C.

Ackerman, Miss.

Dear Dr. Meek: Our first quarterly conference was held on Feb. 4, and from the way things went off I am more persuaded than ever that we have some of the best people in the Conference to work with. We had a good representative from each church, and the finances lacked but little of being in full for the first quarter. The pastor's salary was voluntarily raised a little, and as much as it is needed in these times of high prices the spirit that prompted it was appreciated more than the raise in dollars and cents. Brother Mitchell preached two strong and helpful sermons for us here at Ackerman. I find him in great favor with the people on this charge. He is a good man, a good preacher, and a good presiding elder.—C. A. Parks, P. C.

Laurel, Miss.

Dear Dr. Meek: We have been received very cordially here at West End, Laurel. Brother Ed Bell, one of our loyal stewards, met us at the train and conveyed us to the parsonage, where we were welcomed by a number of the good ladies of the church. They had warm fires and a splendid supper prepared. Besides this, they left some groceries in the pantry. Notwithstanding the prolonged inclement weather and despite considerable sickness among the people, we have been able to hold all of our services except two. Our first quarterly conference has been held, and a splendid report was made. Our presiding elder, Brother W. L. Linfield, gave us two excellent sermons on Sunday, after conference on Saturday night. We are planning to overhaul the parsonage inside and outside, and give it a good coat of paint, also. We are going to insure the parsonage and the church. The outlook is encouraging for a prosperous year.—L. M. Sharp, P. C.

Guntown, Miss.

Dear Dr. Meek: We are doing fairly well here, considering the fact that we have been snow-bound and ice-bound for so long a time, but I think that good weather will bring an increased activity in our church work and put new life into everything. We have just had our first quarterly conference, which was good. Brother Dorsey came to us in his usual strength and cheerfulness, and preached for us two of his splendid sermons. Dorsey has a way of making people believe he can preach, and most all of them believe it. The assessment for three of the four churches on this charge is the same as it was last year. The Baldwyn church took a $50 raise. We have adopted the monthly payment plan at these churches, and it will work well. The payment made by the stewards was nearly twice what it was at the first quarter last year, the amount being one-fourth of the assessment. We are beginning the work of raising our Conference collections. We also hope to do good work for the Advocate.—J. D. Simpson, P. C.

Okolona Circuit (North Miss. Conf.)

Dear Dr. Meek: Owing to the severe cold weather and sickness in our home we have had a late start on our work. We have found some very fine people within the bounds of this charge. They received us very cordially. The good women of the surrounding neighborhood met at the parsonage and had a hot fire and warm supper awaiting our arrival, and we were in a very receptive mood, it being 10 o'clock at night and very cold. The people have all been very thoughtful of us during all the winter, especially when they have killed hogs. They have been bringing us fresh meat, milk, butter, fruit, potatoes, and such other things as help the dining table at the parsonage. The Ladies' Aid gave us a pounding which brought in about $15 worth of eatables. We have been welcomed at each church, and the people seem to want to co-operate with their pastor. We are looking forward to a good year. The interests of the Advocate will be looked after.— L. H. Floyd, P. C.
Aberdeen (R. F. D. 7), Miss.

Meridian, Miss.

Dear Dr. Meek: Rev. George H. Thompson, our much beloved presiding elder, was with us on the evening of Feb. 26 at Seventh Avenue Church and preached for us an uplifting sermon, after which he held our quarterly conference. The reports were good, but they were not what we would have liked for them to be. In some respects I feel elated over the prospects of this charge for the new year. The Sunday schools seem to be growing in interest at both churches. The interest manifested at the Seventh Avenue Sunday school last Sunday was pleasing to all those who were present. Our congregations at the preaching services are becoming larger, since the weather has become more favorable for the people to attend church. We are praying for and are expecting to have good revivals in our churches in this charge during this year. Some of the good people came to me on my return home from the seat of our Annual Conference and said that they were going to pray for their pastor, that his work in their midst might be much more efficient this year than it has been heretofore. From what I can see and learn, I feel like the work of the church here is on the upward grade. My people are cheerful, and I am happy in the love of my Savior.—Hilary S. Westbrook, P. C.

FOR THE FACE AFTER SHAVING

HERMANVILLE, MISS.

Dear Dr. Meek: We are moving along very well on the Hermanville charge, and are serving a mighty fine people. We had our first quarterly conference last Saturday and Sunday, and we find that Brother Sharbrough is a mighty fine elder, to say the least of it. We are looking forward to a great year. T. A. FERGUSON, P. C.
Feb. 25, 1918.

LAMAR, MISS.

Dear Dr. Meek: We are serving a loyal and appreciative people, and our work is progressing. While some of the brethren of the Conference have been writing about their "poundings," we could write about "tonnings," for the Christmas gifts from our people, in cash and other substantials, amounted to at least $200. We read the Advocate with great interest, and we are seeking to press its claims upon all our people. It ought to be in every Methodist home within its patronizing territory. T. H. PORTER, P. C.

RULEVILLE, MISS.

Dear Advocate: At a stewards' meeting last night the Ruleville church advanced their assessment $160 above previous assessments, and the Doddsville church has sent a free will offering to the mission preachers and superannuates of $100. The people at Doddsville have also made the last payment on their beautiful church—$700. If the brethren of the North do get this country they will certainly have a great country and people; but I tell you, Doctor, you can depend on Mr. Shipman scrapping the Yankee that tries to take this pastoral charge from him. There will be Yankee hair and hide scattered all over this part of the vineyard. Well, any way she may go, I am going to try to keep up my little fight on the devil and all of his, in whatever hide he may be wrapped in. It seems to me that we are living in a time of great fights, for it is no small affair to settle with the Kalser.

GLASS OF SALTS IF YOUR KIDNEYS HURT.

Eat Less Meat if You Feel Backachy or Have Bladder Trouble—Salts Fine for Kidneys.

Meat forms uric acid which excites and overworks the kidneys in their efforts to filter it from the system. Regular eaters of meat must flush the kidneys occasionally. You must relieve them like you relieve your bowels; removing all the acids, waste and poison, else you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment; the channels often get irritated, obliging you to get up two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids and flush off the body's urinous waste get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine and bladder disorders disappear. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys and stop bladder irritation. Jad Salts is inexpensive; harmless and makes a delightful, effervescent lithla-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then, thus avolding serious kidney and bladder diseases.—Adv.

RECIPE FOR GRAY HAIR.

To half pint of water add 1 oz. Bay Rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and ¼ oz. of glycerine. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it at home at very little cost. Full directions for making and use come in each box of Barbo Compound. It will gradually darken streaked, faded gray hair, and make it soft and glossy. It will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy, and does not rub off.—Adv.

A HEALTHY BODY.

Do you suffer from constipation, indigestion, dyspepsia, heartburn, or other forms of liver trouble? A healthy liver means a healthy body. When constipated don't poison yourself by failing to take the proper treatment. Don't force your perspiration to carry off through your skin pores more than its share of the impurities of your body by failing to keep your bowels clean and healthy. Take Van Lax for your liver. It is harmless, contains no calomel or habit-forming drugs, is pleasant in taste and results. It promotes a healthy condition in your entire digestive system. Take Van Lax and keep your body healthy. Sold by all reliable dealers. In bottles 50c. Van Vleet-Mansfield Drug Co., Memphis, Tenn.

Editorial

"Did you this morn devoutly pray,
For God's assistance through the day?
And did you read his sacred Word
To make your life therewith accord?"

* * *

A genuine revival must be both worked up and prayed down, being a result of both Divine power and human effort.

* * *

Nearly every time a new song-book is brought out, some of the great hymns of the Church are mutilated. This is a practice that should be stopped.

* * *

We fear that some of our religious speakers and writers are in danger of becoming overdemocratic. Even in Heaven there is a King upon the throne, and the Bible teaches that there will be gradation of rank there—angels and archangels, with some of the saints having authority over "five cities," and others over "ten cities." The reign of righteousness (justice), rather than the reign of equality, is what humanity needs.

* * *

One of the trials that men who stand for principle often have to endure is to be sneered at by those who ride the passing popular waves. But there is comfort in the fact that the verdicts of the multitude are by no means always the ones that will abide. What reversals of human estimates there will be on the day of "the Great Assize" when the infinite Judge shall appraise the characters and acts of all at their true value! Then, in many cases shall it come to pass that "the first shall be last, and the last shall be first."

THE GOSPEL THAT WORKS.

The January number of The Biblical Review, published by the Bible Teachers' Training School of New York City, contains a most interesting article, entitled "A Study in the Atonement," from the pen of Prof. W. H. Griffith Thomas, D. D., of Wycliffe College, Toronto, Canada. The distinguished writer opens his discussion with these words: "No one can question the centrality of the Cross in the New Testament; it is admittedly the heart of Christianity." In taking up the question of the significance of the atonement, he says: "It is essential to discover whether the use of the term is intended to represent the Biblical idea of vicarious atonement, or merely to designate some thought of reconciliation with God apart from 'the blood of the Cross.'" The former view is ably maintained, the subject being argued from the following standpoints: (1) "The New Testament Revelation;" (2) "The Old Testament Anticipation;" (3) "The Theological Interpretation;" (4) "Practical Observations." It is held that no one analogy can give a full idea of the meaning of the atonement, and that "no theory can be satisfactory which does not include and account fully for three factors:

"(a) The adequate exegesis of the New Testament, both Godward and manward; (b) The proper interpretation of the Old Testament sacrificial system; (c) The full meaning of Christian experience."

In dwelling upon this last point, Prof. Thomas, among other things, says: "There can be no doubt that one of the great essentials is a working theory adequate for the experience of ordinary men and women. In all ages the truth that 'Jesus died for me' had adequately met and perfectly satisfied the conscience of the sinner, and it will always remain a satisfying test of the atonement that it meets the demand for a peace with God and assures the conscience burdened with sin and guilt." Some illustrations are given showing the power of the conception of a vicarious atonement to accomplish this result, one of which we quote:

"It is now a familiar story, but worth telling again and again, which Gipsy Smith and others have passed on regarding the late Dr. Charles A. Berry of Wolverhampton, who was invited to follow Beecher at Brooklyn. Late one night Dr. Berry's doorbell rang. Every one else in the house being in bed, he answered the call. At the door stood a typical Lancashire girl, with a shawl over her head. 'Are you Dr. Berry?' she asked. 'I want you to come and get my mother in.' Thinking that her mother was in some drunken stupor, he directed the girl to the police. 'No,' she said, 'she is dying and I want you to get her into Heaven.' The Doctor did not want to go, but he yielded to the importunity and earnestness of the girl. When they came to the house, Dr. Berry found that it was a house of shame. Drunken carousing was going on downstairs. Upstairs, in a small room, he found the woman dying. It was in the early days of his ministry, and his beliefs were carrying him toward Unitarianism. So he told the dying woman of the beautiful life, the loving ministries, and the noble example of Jesus. He urged her to follow Him, but she shook her head hopelessly, saying: 'That's not for the like of me. I am a sinful woman, and I am dying.' 'It flashed upon me,' said Dr. Berry, 'that I had no message of hope for that dying woman, and like lightning I leaped in mind and heart back to the Gospel my mother taught me. I told her of Jesus Christ, the Son of God, dying on the Cross, that just as she might be saved; of his blood poured out for the remission of sins, and all the blessed truths of the old, old story. And he added, 'I got her in, and I got myself in, too.'"

Following this incident, Prof. Thomas closes his impressive utterance with this poem:

"I sought Thee weeping, high and low,
I found Thee not; I did not know
I was a sinner—even so,
I missed Thee for my Savior.

"I saw Thee sweetly condescend
Of humble men to be the Friend;
I chose Thee for my way, my end,
But found Thee not my Savior.

"Until upon the Cross I saw
My God who died to meet the law
That man had broken; then I saw
My sin, and then my Savior.

"What seek I longer? Let me be
A sinner all my days to Thee,
Yet more and more, and Thee
To me yet more and more my Savior.

"Be Thou to me my Lord, my Guide,
My friend, yea, everything beside;
But first, last, best, what'er betide,
Be Thou to me my Savior."

(The copy of The Biblical Review containing Dr. Thomas' article may be had by sending 30 cents to that periodical at 541 Lexington Avenue, New York, N. Y. It is, we think, worth many times the cost of that number of this excellent quarterly. Editor of the Advocate.)

NEGROES IN THE CHURCH, NORTH, BECOMING MUCH AROUSED.

It is quite obvious to one who reads the Northern Methodist papers that the Negro members of the Church, North, are becoming very much stirred up over the pending plan of Unification. The district superintendents of the South Carolina Conference of the Northern Church recently took the following action:

"The district superintendents of South Carolina Conference of the M. E. Church, in session at Orangeburg, S. C., representing more than one-seventh of the colored membership of our Church, feel that it would be a degradation to our entire colored membership to agree to Unification upon the condition proposed by the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, as we understand it. We feel that the representatives of our Church will not under any circumstances accept any proposition that would subject our colored membership to any humiliation whatever, or that would place our great Church in a compromising position before the Christian world."

The Southwestern Christian Advocate (the leading Negro organ of the Church, North) contained last week several strong articles by prominent colored men against the arrangements proposed at Savannah for the Negro contingent of the Northern Methodists. One of these was by Rev. J. W. E. Bowen, Vice President of Gammon Seminary (a leading school of the M. E. Church), who wrote with much vehemence, saying, among other things: "We cannot brand ourselves and our children, or be branded as inferiors, by a voluntary surrender of the fundamental right of parity representation in the General Conference and full representation on all the Boards of the Church."

Dr. Jones Speaks.

Dr. R. E. Jones, the able colored editor of the Southwestern Christian Advocate, in his paper of March 7 devotes two ringing editorials of considerable length to the existing situation. The following is a portion of one of his strong utterances:

"There is a great deal of concern among our people as to what was proposed at Savannah and as to what may be the ultimate outcome in fixing the status of the Negro in the reorganized Church. In the process of the negotiations up to this time we have indulged in a measure of reserve. This was wise, prudent and necessary. As for our own part, both as a member of the Commission and in some sense as interpreter of the thought of our people, we have not been free to say, even in the most confidential council, everything that might have been said. Since the adjournment of the meeting at Savannah much has been said by representative men of both Churches and by the press of both Churches thoroughly optimistic as to the outcome of the meeting to be held in St. Louis. Certain

A PRAYER.

I asked of God, "Give me a word
Of power, that mortals never heard,
That through the earth like flame shall fly
And quicken souls that sleeping lie.
The old words are outworn, that long
On banners flamed or throbbed in song!
Love traffics, faith is in eclipse,
And silent are the prophets' lips.
Some new, great word of thrilling tone
From out the choirs of heaven loan,
That I may cry it through the earth
Till faith and love shall have new birth."
Then waiting in the silence dim
Where dwell the dreadful cherubim,
I felt a voice say, low and deep:
"The old words still their power keep.
Cry them again, and cry, and cry,
The human heart shall give reply.—
There are in all the heaven above
No mightier words than faith and love."

—Author unknown.

HONESTY WITH WORDS.

Words are sacred things. To abuse them is to sin against good taste, to juggle with them is sin. The use of the superlative, in this day, has gone beyond all bounds. It is the evidence of an hysterical generation. There is very little difference between exaggeration and outright falsehood in their effect upon the listener. He doesn't know what we "mean"; he judges us by what we say.—The Methodist Protestant.

PREACHING THE GOSPEL.

Preaching is not the easiest thing in the world. To preach the Gospel so that at all times the path of real every-day life is followed is difficult. Excursions into literature are so tempting; sociology, phychology, history, philosophy, are so inviting. And yet he must keep close to life. A father said of his son one day; "My boy says he gets all the literary things he wants at the university and all the civic things he wants at the clubs, so he would like to find a church which sticks to the things that help a man through the week." Is your church sticking to that kind of thing? If the people would only encourage their pastor to stay close to Christ, it would often be different.—The Presbyterian.

"THE WHITE FLOWER."

"He wore the white flower of a blameless life with a certain unconscious audacity." In such fine words a friend pays tribute to a friend. To be worthy of such description is perhaps the finest achievement in life. To live without reproach is well; but to live a clean life in the spirit of high adventure is better. "Not a fugitive and cloistered virtue," but virtue militant and challenging, is the world's need. Having done his best, let one be unafraid. Living blamelessly, let us ask no concessions. Goodness is its own argument; courage needs no apology; love never admits defeat. To be Christ-like is to reproduce His holy defiance. He never begged for quarter; He only asked the privilege of giving Himself to man. His was a gallant spirit; may He truly be the Captain of our lives!—George Clarke Peck.

PUSH THROUGH TO GOD.

And where shall we seek to cultivate reverence? We must seek to cultivate it everywhere. Cultivate it in the means of grace. Break through every external thing and make your way to God. Break through all the formalities of prayer, its words, its postures, its customs, and get away home to God! It may be that words and forms will sometimes almost fail you, and you will find yourself just calling, "God, my God, my God!" Hold on your way; push through to God! Break through the formalities of the sacrament; don't halt at the venerableness of the custom; don't stop at the material bread and wine! Bring out all the reserves of your will and break through the letter and push into the presence of God. At the Lord's Supper let nothing tempt you aside; let all your speech gather in the one word, "Lord, my Lord! my God!" And believe me, nay, believe the promise of God, your senses are thus being exercised to discern, and more and more you will know that your Redeemer liveth, and you will fold your wings in adoring contemplation of His grace and glory.—Rev. J. H. Jowett, D.D.

THE WAY IT LOOKS TO ME.

Rev. S. A. Steel, D. D.

Well, the Commissioners have at last given us a look at the plan they have devised for the so-called "Unification of American Methodism." I am not disposed to be ugly, or radical, or pester myself about "piffle," a something I still do not understand; and I am too busy with my garden, and with trying to convince those ultra-democratic white leghorns that a hen has no individual liberty to scratch where she pleases, to attend to the problem of "Unification." But I have read what the Commissioners have put forth over and over, and the more I read and study it the more it looks to me like a complete surrender. They may call it unification, but I call it union by the absorption of the smaller body into the larger. And yet it is an ingenious and plausible document; and I am satisfied it is an honest effort on the part of honest men to solve the unsolvable. For all that, I am against it first, last, and forever.

Look at what we give up. We give up our name, our organization, our property, our right to control ourselves, our episcopacy; in short, everything. Nothing is left. The Methodist Church, North, gives up nothing of consequence, and gains what it has contended for all the time, a practically supreme General Conference; and in gaining that, it gains everything, for it will have the majority there, and can, and will, have its way whenever a difference arises; especially on all questions that involve the perpetuity of our Southern ideals and sentiments, to which the North is implacably hostile. We simply let them tie our hands and blind our eyes.

The first great harm done us is in the division of our Church into separate units called "Regional Conferences." This destroys our cohesion, annihilates at a stroke the solidarity which has been a great source of our strength and a veritable bulwark of our civilization, and makes the spiritual disintegration of our distinctive Southern Methodist type only a matter of time. It creates a wide gulf between Louisiana and Virginia and obliterates the sentiment of unity in a family group that has grown up as the result of a common interest. Whether in Louisiana or in Texas, we have felt all the force of sacred ties binding us to Virginia, and Holston, and the old Conferences in Carolina and Georgia. We have stood side by side in the past. But now we must part. Our only connection with the venerated bodies east of the river is through the remote and vague association in a General Conference. It hurts me to think of having to say good-by to Virginia and feel like a stranger in Kentucky. But that is what it means.

The fatal defect of this constitution is its vagueness. It leaves fundamental questions to be construed. That was precisely the defect of the Constitution of the United States. The fundamental question of the relation of the State to the Union was left to be construed. The North construed it one way, the South the other; the North had the majority and won. Now they present us with a constitution for the Church in which the relation of the Regional Conference to the united Church is left vague and undefined; and in case of any differences arising, as they surely will in the administration of such a large and complex body, these undefined powers of the Regional Conferences will have to be construed by the Supreme General Conference, and in that Conference the North will have the majority. Everything is referable to the General Conference as the court of last resort; and to have the supreme powers of that body limited by constitutional restrictions that are vague and capable of different construction is unwise in the highest degree.

If any one should say that putting the Negroes in a separate body and in a subordinate relation is a concession to the South, I reply, don't you believe it for a moment. One of the chief reasons the Northern Methodists are so urgent for the reunion of the Churches is because it offers the only opportunity they see for getting rid of the Negro. They are tired of him, but they cannot say so. They cannot go back on their fine theory of Negro equality; but they have found out what we know by long experience—that, as the Irishman expressed it, "if you treat a nayger like a white man, he treats you like a nayger." They want to get rid of him; but they have no idea of adopting our view of the Negro, and in every issue that may arise involving a difference between the races they will take the side of the Negro in the Supreme General Conference and vote on us measures that suit them, regardless of what we want. With our Southern Methodists split into "Regional" sections and the Negroes, even if in a separate body, solid allies of the North, we would be helpless.

And what are we to gain by committing this suicide? The chief argument I have seen urged is the practical one, that it will prevent the waste now going on by the two Churches operating in the same territory. This is the great argument of Dr. Spencer, the "piffle" man. He laments the building of altar against altar. Who has built the altar against altar? The Northern Methodists. Who built the rival altars in New Orleans? Who is building altar against altar in Atlanta! There is perhaps no city in the United States so well supplied with Methodist churches as Atlanta. Yet these Northern Methodists, shouting "don't build altar against altar; that is to waste the Lord's money," set themselves right down in the heart of Atlanta, almost within sight of a Southern Methodist church, and spend $50,000, or more, building a rival altar! It is Dr. Piffle's Church that is building the rival altars. And now they come in with a plan which virtually says, the way to stop this waste of altar against altar is for you to turn over your altars to us. You may still worship at them; but we must own and control them through one supreme General Conference! And one of our milk-and-water Methodists said to me: "Steel, if we don't unite, they are going to flood the South with Northern money and Northern men, and where will we be then?" Just where we are now, only a hundred-fold stronger; for I am still foolish enough to believe that back of all these ecclesiastical policies, the real source of Church life and prosperity is the favor of the great Divine Head of the Church; and the Holy Ghost will not bless any such ungodly scheme of conquest.

I have believed all along, Dr. Meek, that if the Northern Methodists have not got the kind of religion that will prevent them from pushing into our territory, and building their churches where they are not needed, they haven't the kind of religion that will unite us. They want to swallow us, and our Commissioners seem to have agreed to it. They may force this mechanical and formal "unification;" but the spirit of unity will not animate the body. Latent elements of antagonism, smothered under a mass of vague verbiage, will be in constant danger of breaking out and wrecking the whole scheme.

This paper is critical and not constructive, finding fault rather than suggesting improvement. That is natural, because I don't want to unite. I can be more brotherly while we are separate than when we are under the control of the Northern Methodists. Some razor-back unionist may say I want to lead; but he is mistaken. I want to read; to lead a "quiet philosopher's life;" to preach about the fundamental truths of the great Gospel; to help my fellow-men in my lowly sphere. If I had had ambition for office my opportunity was when I was Epworth League Secretary; but I did not care to be a Bishop enough to be "prudent;" preferred to be myself, free and untrammeled by the limitations that hedge any office. "Shut that door; were you brought up in a barn?" said the boss in a rough, harsh voice to his man. The man closed the door, sat down, and began to cry. Thinking he had hurt his feelings by alluding to the barn, the man said: "Here, my man, don't take it so hard that I said you were brought up in a barn. There is no disgrace in that." "That's all right," the man replied; "but that is the point. I was brought up in a barn, and it always makes me homesick when I hear a jack-ass bray!" The voice of some people is very suggestive.

No, Meek, the unification scheme is too flimsy. By all means there ought to be some definite check on the powers of that supreme General Conference. A section should be added vesting the title to Church property in the Regional Conferences. I do not see how else you can protect our property rights. The Northern Methodists refused to divide the common fund when we separated until compelled by law. The Northern Methodists took away our churches during the war by the power of the sword, and we could get them back in many places only through the courts. The Northern Methodists never did keep the federation agreements, but, in spite of their engagements, have built altar against altar wherever they could. When the formal union was forced on the Cumberland Presbyterians, the Northern majority took all the property of the Cumberland Church wherever they could. With this record before us, where is the man who is willing to let all our property pass into the control of a union organization in which the Northern Methodists will have a majority?

I hope we will vote the plan down and hear no more about "union" until the millennium, which, according to my idea, is a long way off. Listen—those hens, Meek! And when one starts, the whole neighborhood chimes in. If the Kaiser could hear that music, he would whisper to Hindenburg that they had better quit!

THE PLAN OF UNIFICATION.

By Rev. Ulysses Grant Foote, D. D.

I have entertained some doubts that the Commissioners or the two Methodisms would agree on a plan of Unification. But my doubts are giving way as the work progresses. I sincerely hope that the St. Louis meeting of the Commissioners will result in an agreement so that the report may come before the General Conference at Atlanta to be acted upon.

So far I have not written for publication on this subject, believing the men on the Commission to be competent, sincere, broad-minded, and loyal to their respective Churches and the interests of Methodism as a whole. Yet at times I have been tempted to enter my protest to published statements which seemed calculated to embarrass the Commissioners and put obstacles in the way of the acceptance of the plan upon which the Commission might agree. It would be very unfortunate for any considerable number of either Church to undertake any movement looking toward disruption if unification should be accomplished. I have deprecated any statement that put sectionalism or personal prejudices forward or that seemed to threaten disruption or division over the subject. We are loyal Methodists and Methodism is bigger than any section. We are looking to the future and not the past; we are going forward and not backward. The Church of our Lord has a big work and it requires a big program. It needs all the forces it can command. It is not advanced by appealing to anything less than a world conquest. The misfortunes and divisions of the past must not be allowed to blur our vision to the demands of the present and the obligations we owe the future.

The Commission has done more than I had hoped it could. The proposed Constitution for a united Methodism is a great production. The Commission has taken a world view, and a world view is the Christ view. It has risen above New England and the Solid South. It has grasped the idea of a world Methodism for the future. Methodism has again taken up the slogan of Mr. Wesley and declared: "The world is my parish!" Such a vision is masterful, ideal, gripping in its conception of a world service and fellowship.

Neither branch of Methodism has been hurt in the general plan. It seems that the Methodist Episcopal Church has given more than the Church, South. But that is only apparent, for both are giving up to a larger Methodism. Sacrifice is the law of progress and there can be none where there is no surrender. The Methodist Episcopal Church has gone more than half way and all the talk we have heard about their swallowing up the Southern Church has been wasted. If the lines marking the Northern and Southern Regional Conferences are to be considered as divisional lines, in any sense, between the North and the South, as formerly understood, then the South has the bigger end of it. For Delaware, where we have no members; Maryland, where they have two to our one; West Virginia, where they have three to our two; Missouri, where we have only three to their two; Oklahoma, where we have about three to their two; New Mexico, where we are slightly in the majority, and Arizona, where we are very few, have all been assigned to the Southern Regional Conferences. Altogether they have proposed to deliver to the three Southern Regional Conferences about four hundred thousand white members to about forty thousand which we are to deliver to the three Northern Regional Conferences. This exchange with the loss of their colored members will make the three Northern and three Southern Regional Conferences near equal in numbers of members. This is, however, as it ought to be; for if we are to be one great United Methodist Episcopal Church, then the country should be so regionalized in the distribution of forces that its parts may as far as possible balance. It seems quite evident that the Commissioners have not been sparring for advantage, but have tried to be just and fair in their arrangements, looking more to the future, its fruits and good will, than to immediate advantages. For my part I cannot see how any Southern Methodist can complain of the geographical arrangements. If it may be said that the South has been chopped to pieces, it may be said also that the North has been chopped to pieces.

What should be the status of the Negro in the new organization has been the largest question in the minds of many. There has been a big difficulty; a serious problem. The proposed arrangement seems to be as reasonable as could be expected under the circumstances. Both parties to a contract have rights that have to be considered and both parties must yield some point to secure an agreement. These difficulties have not all been on the side of the Church, South; the Church, North, has had some very serious propositions to solve in the premises. They have agreed to a radical change. The proposed disposition and position of the Negro seems to be reasonable. We cannot expect to get all we might want and get anything. For my part I never could have willingly accepted Unification with the Negro sustaining the same relation to the new organization that he now sustains to the Methodist Episcopal Church. Nor could I wish for Unification that would not make adequate provision for not only the Negro membership of the M. E. Church, but also for the Colored Methodist Church. We owe an obligation there that we cannot but meet. There is a difference between religious obligations and social obligations, a difference some have not been willing to recognize. The Commission has worked out propositions that should commend themselves to our consideration and approval. Some of them have not been approved by the Commission yet. Let us not obstruct by criticism, but await their final action. Whether these conclusions shall be my opinions or not, I shall abide by the final decision. I am hoping and praying that as we have one country and one flag, we may have also one Methodism.

New Orleans, La.

REV. DAVID M. MILLER.

Rev. David M. Miller was born in Cabarrus County, North Carolina, on March 16, 1844, and during the same year his parents moved to Mississippi and settled near Sarepta, Calhoun County, where he grew to manhood. When the Civil War came he joined the army in December, 1861, under Colonel F. A. Montgomery. He was put in Company Z, First Mississippi Volunteers, being attached to Conby's Brigade, and was a faithful soldier, always performing his duty as a true patriot. While fighting against Sherman in a battle near Atlanta, Georgia, he was severely wounded, sustaining an injury from which he never finally recovered, though he improved (temporarily) sufficiently to go back to the ranks, where he remained until the close of the war came with the surrender of Lee at Appomattox. After the war, he came back to his home in Calhoun County, where he labored on the farm helping to support the family.

He was three times married: first, on September 29, 1864, to Miss Sarah E. Hanson, who died on July 22, 1875, leaving five small children. On September 28, 1878, he was again married to Miss Emily North. Ten children blessed this union, their mother dying on March 11, 1899, and leaving the husband with a large family; but he never faltered in his devotion to God, his Church, or family. On January 24, 1901, he was married to Mrs. Ellie A. Lane whom he left with eight children to mourn their loss. His youngest son is in the U. S. Navy, making a brave defender of his country.

Brother Miller was reared by Scotch parents in the Scotch Presbyterian faith; but he could not accept the teachings of that Church, as he understood them, and from a boy he was much inclined to the doctrines and polity of the Methodist Church.

He was converted in 1864, under the preaching of Chaplain Lain, and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. He was licensed to preach at Sardis, Miss., as a local preacher, in which capacity he labored faithfully for more than forty years—serving most of this time as a supply on missions and hard circuits, but showing himself to be true to the doctrines and polity of the Church and a faithful servant of the people. He was a strong preacher and was great in exhortation. Few men of his time could more effectively move a congregation, and hundreds of souls have been converted under his ministry. Thirty-five years of his ministry were spent in this Delta country. He came here when it was almost a wilderness and when it took faith and courage to forge ahead under the difficult conditions then existing.

He perhaps organized more churches, received more persons into the Church, baptized more children and adults, married and buried more people than almost any man of his time. He passed to his reward peacefully on the morning of January 29, and was buried from the Methodist Church in Drew, his body being laid to rest in the presence of a large concourse of people. The funeral service was conducted by Rev. W. S. Shipman, and the pastor of the Baptist Church here, and the writer. On the last great day we shall meet him to part no more. W. S. LAGRONE.

Drew, Miss.

FROM OUR EMORY COMMISSIONER.

Dear Doctor Meek: I have just returned from a ten days' journey through the Delta of Mississippi, talking the BIGGEST thing in Southern Methodism—Emory University.

I am glad to report that I have had some success with the undertaking, receiving some very good contributions. That noble layman, J. H. Sherard, of Sherard, Miss., made the largest contribution, the amount being $1000 in cash, the contribution being in Liberty Bonds. There are many of our strong laymen who could very easily duplicate this amount, and it would tell tremendously in hastening the day when Emory will be built and equipped for the position of service in university education that it is destined to occupy in the educational ideals of the Church to which so many of us belong. It is a mistake for any man to conclude that we should postpone our efforts for Emory at this time on account of the war, for it is being demonstrated every day that what we need is a better qualified ministry and laity. This qualification is to be accomplished by the intelligent and loyal interest we manifest in making the University possible at the very earliest day in our growth. We are making progress in proportion to our interest in our educational enterprises.

I was very much gratified last night to receive a check from Rev. W. G. Henry, pastor at Brookhaven, and this is not the first that has come from this friend of higher education. Many of our pastors might do the same thing for the university and not hamper themselves in their work for the Kingdom. Let us be enthusiastic in this work, since there is so much depending upon co-operation in this great endeavor.

Yours very sincerely,

ROBT. SELBY.

MISS MARY WILKINSON.

By Rev. W. W. Holmes.

Miss Mary Wilkinson lived a remarkably beautiful life and died a happy, victorious death. She was born on the steamer "Southwestern" in Red River, near Montgomery, La., on January 22, 1874, and died at her home in New Orleans, on February 14, 1918. She was the daughter of Rev. John Wilkinson, who, for many years before his death, served in many of the leading churches in the Louisiana Conference. She was the granddaughter of the late Bishop John C. Keener and was his sole companion during the closing years of his life. She gave to him a service and devotion unsurpassed. In her going all of the great Keener family, save one, have passed from the earth.

She was taken to the hospital on January 22, for an operation, the outcome of which was very uncertain—yet she was not afraid. While she wanted to get well, she was wholly resigned. She said: "How fine it would be to go to heaven on my birthday." The operation was followed by long days of suffering, yet in it all she exhibited a Christian fortitude and victory rarely seen. She was conscious of approaching death and faced it without any fear whatsoever. Her "house was set in order" before her going away. She attended to the minutest details; nothing was left in confusion or uncertainty. She even indicated the kind of funeral she wanted—how she should be dressed, what flowers, what songs, etc. It was her desire that there should be no crepe, no black casket, "no sadness of farewell." There was no doubt in her heart; her soul opened to the skies. She went away possessed of an unspeakable joy and an unshaken faith. It was at the close of a beautiful day when God's good angels took her up to the Father's House to join the company of the redeemed.

Miss Mary was a good woman. We loved her and shall miss her much. One of the last acts of her life was to provide a beautiful memorial window for her Carrollton Avenue Church, in memory of her grandfather, Bishop J. C. Keener.

She is survived by three half-brothers: John Wilkinson of San Antonio, George Wilkinson of Chicago, and W. C. Wilkinson of Jackson, Miss. These, with other relatives and friends, gave every service that loving hands could render. May God's blessings rest upon them all!

STATEMENT OF SECRETARIES.

At the annual meeting of the International Secretaries for Ministerial Relief and Annuities, held in New York, February 20 and 21, the following statement was unanimously approved.

Never in the history of the Christian Church has there been a more vital demand for a strong and virile ministry and courageous leadership than now. Not only Christianity, but civilization is being put to the test. World conditions require a living faith in God and the careful practice of the teachings of Christ. It must be shown that the Christian religion involves character and brotherhood; that its very soul is the spirit of true democracy; that it is opposed to injustice, cruelty, frightfulness and the pagan teaching that "might makes right." It is the enemy of sin but not the patron of despair. It reveals the way of salvation, forgiveness and peace. It honors the family. It favors comity and friendship between nations and insists that the rights and privileges of the smaller States shall be recognized and honored throughout the world.

Christianity must show by its life and conduct, as well as by its teachings, that it is here by divine appointment, to establish the Kingdom of God upon earth and to reveal His presence in its membership and institutions. It aims so to promote friendship and fellowship, faith and love, trust and confidence, righteousness and truth, that wars may cease and the peaceful and honorable pursuits of industrial and intellectual co-operation flourish throughout the whole world.

In this great hope and task the ministers of Jesus Christ have a most important function. They are teachers of religion, representatives of the Kingdom of God, examples of faith and godliness. They are leaders among the people in matters of the Spirit and of life. They must give their whole time to the demands and opportunities of their calling. As messengers of hope and comfort, forgiveness and good-will, they sustain the morals of the people and encourage them to valiant endeavor and conquest over the enemies of the soul and of righteousness. In such a sphere they must look to the Church for support both moral and temporal.

The Church has always recognized its obligation in this direction, and believe that those who preach the Gospel must live off the Gospel. But the Church has too much in the past limited this obligation to the period of the minister's years of active service, and has neglected to provide for him in the time of his disability, retirement and old age.

We rejoice to report a growing change in the attitude of the Churches in this particular. In all the Protestant denominations, special care for the veteran soldiers of the Cross is being taken. The great pension and annuity funds which are being raised to supplement, from their income, the regular offerings from the churches and individuals for the care of the aged preachers and their families, are taken out of the realm of charity and put upon the basis of honor and just obligation. The minister who enlists in this calling for life, and serves with heroic, loving and unselfish devotion, on very meagre remuneration, shall not be neglected nor left to suffer when he can no longer labor. And his wife, who outlives him, shall also be provided for.

We record our admiration and hearty approval of the action of our Government in providing, by war insurance and a pension system, for the soldiers and their families.

We insist that the Church cannot and must not be less just than the Government, nor than the great commercial and industrial agencies of the business world which are now making generous pension provision for the old age of their employees.

The Church cannot successfully teach social and economic justice unless she practices these virtues.

In this time of war, when the claims of the Government are so imperative and the care of the soldiers, large numbers of whom are from the families of our Churches, so important and appealing, and to which we must joyfully respond with unwonted generosity and affection, still we must remember and justly care for the old soldier of the Cross. We must maintain the ministry, increase the supply and strengthen the force now in the field of service.

We rejoice that so many have entered the service of the army and navy and responded to the call of the Y. M. C. A. Yet the Church cannot relax her efforts to inspire the workers and make more attractive the appeal for recruits in the ministry, by pressing on in obtaining funds to safeguard the declining years of those who have given their all for the upbuilding of the Kingdom of God in the world.

J. R. STEWART,
Secretary Superannuate Endowment Fund of the M. E. Church, South.

Let no man say, because high noon seems long in coming, that it will never come. Let us rather say as we wait in the gloom, How glorious will that day be, of which the twilight dawn has lasted nineteen hundred years!—Alexander Maclaren.

CAMP BEAUREGARD.

By Rev. S. H. Werlein, D.D.

The quarantine between Camp Beauregard and Alexandria has been discontinued and now soldiers visit the town by the hundreds. The restrictions to which the soldiers were forced were very irksome, and the change in their spirit is very apparent. We are now at liberty to work among the soldiers.

Last week an intensive evangelistic campaign was inaugurated. Five men were selected to preach at the ten Y. M. C. A. huts every night. This necessitated two sermons each night. By alternating the preachers, each one was heard by thousands of the soldiers. Earnest appeals were made and hundreds of the young men signed the "War Roll," pledging themselves to a Christian life. The five men who did the preaching were: Dr. Francis of Los Angeles, Dr. Dodd of Shreveport, Dr. Yates of Brooklyn, Dr. Wall, an army chaplain, and the writer.

Such an opportunity to reach young men was perhaps never before accorded the preachers. The soldiers were ripe for the gospel. They had been living for weeks in a state of suspense. A number of their companions had succumbed to meningitis and other diseases. The monotony of camp life had become very oppressive. So it was that audiences of hundreds and thousands flocked to the out-of-doors places where the meetings were held. Each evening I took over with me a number of choice vocalists, and by word of mouth and song we preached salvation. I would not be surprised to learn that over a thousand young men decided for Christ. This was a noteworthy event in the history of Camp Beauregard.

Ten hundred and fifty young men are now in the hospitals—no new cases of meningitis have developed for some days. I asked the Woman's Missionary Society of First Church to gather all the flowers procurable at stated times each week, and systematically visit these sick boys. The young fellows show the most genuine appreciation of any attention given them. The splendid new road just finished brings me within twenty minutes of army headquarters. A little up-to-date enterprise in the city electric railway management would connect the city and the encampment by the electric car lines.

The Secretaries at the different "Y" huts are wide awake and intensely diligent in trying to make the soldiers' life cheerful and patriotic. I think of the difference in the opportunities of the soldier of to-day and those in the Civil War. Of course, all public places of amusement in Alexandria are doing a flourishing business. To provide the young men with clean and refreshing recreation we are giving at First Church a series of Saturday night entertainments. We are also planning to place a pavilion on our vacant church lot, seat and light it, and make it as comfortable as possible as a place of rendezvous for passing soldiers. The church is located on the street usually traversed by those coming from or going to the Union Station, and we believe as the warm weather approaches that a cool and refreshing spot like this will be appreciated by the boys. We contemplate giving Lyceum entertainments and holding religious services at this place also. The opportunity of ministering to our soldiers is only limited by the measure of physical strength and the financial ability at our command.

Until Rev. R. T. Ware, of Noble, La., sent to me the amount ($14) assessed his charge for the War Emergency Fund, not a farthing, nor a Denarius, nor a copeck, nor a centime, nor a penny had been received at this place of the $3000 voted at the Annual Conference for cantonment work.

Personal letters have been written by me to the presiding elders of the Louisiana Conference requesting immediate attention to the resolution passed at the Annual Conference—to the appeal that this money be collected from the various charges within the first quarter. Only four of the presiding elders responded to my appeal, despite the fact that I asked for a prompt acknowledgment of my letter. The amount assessed First Church, Alexandria, is $66, and it has been paid, and more than as much more has been advanced by this church. Who will be the next to send on the amount assessed his church? Remit to Mr. S. H. Meyer, 116 St. Charles Street, New Orleans, La.

Alexandria, La., Mar. 6, 1918.

A GREAT WORK.

Dear Doctor Meek: Six young preachers have been provided for for eight years. We will have no trouble in going beyond twenty each year for eight years. Laymen think this is greatest work in the history of the Church. I shall, no doubt, close my work on this line by August 1, 1918. No position in the church would give me so much honor as this work of love. I am receiving much spiritual good from the work. You see my plans are to go "West" some day, and I desire the sunset to be golden. With Christian love,

I. W. COOPER.

THE (MEMPHIS) METHODIST HOSPITAL.

(This resolution was unanimously adopted at the recent annual meeting in Greenville, Miss., of the Woman's Missionary Society of the North Mississippi Conference.)

Whereas the North Mississippi Conference, as one of the patronizing Conferences, is vitally concerned about the speedy erection of the great Tri-State Hospital in Memphis, and

Whereas this body of Missionary women recognize the urgent need of such an Institution under the management of, and, supported by the Methodists of the territory involved; therefore, be it

Resolved (1), That we assure the Hospital Commissioners of our heartfelt interest in the enterprise in general, and particularly in the present plan, outlined at a meeting of the Hospital Board early in February, to begin building the Tri-State Hospital this spring.

Resolved (2), That we pledge them our moral support and our co-operation in trying to create interest in the Hospital movement in our respective towns and communities, giving publicity to its needs and aims in every way possible.

Resolved (3), That we urge both the men and women of our Conference to rally to this worthy cause by subscribing to its funds, and by paying up all subscriptions now due in order that the work may go forward to a speedy and successful completion.

Signed: Mrs. J. M. Wyatt, Representative of the Woman's Missionary Society on the Hospital Board; Miss Ellen Murry, Conference Superintendent of Social Service; Mrs. Olin Ray.

NORTHERN METHODIST NEGROES AROUSED.

Commissioners, speaking in such a positive way, as if the whole matter were adjusted, have put, and naturally so, our people to thinking.

"In addition to these optimistic expressions, it is rumored a Commissioner of the Methodist Episcopal Church visited the joint session of the Bishops of the three distinctively colored Churches in their session at Louisville. Whatever his purpose, his visit has been interpreted to mean that he was there in a sympathetic way, representative of the idea that the Negro membership of the Methodist Episcopal Church desired, in some way, affiliation with these colored bodies. Such a representative had no authorization on the part of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and, as far as the Negro membership is concerned, he did not in the slightest degree represent its wishes or desire, and, however good his intent might have been, we resent in a most positive and unmistakable way the implication that we are not men enough to make our own contract with our own people at such a time and in such way as may seem best to us.

"In view of these facts, we hope we may be pardoned, even though it may queer the situation just a little bit, if we indulge in just a little plain speech at this time.

"First, the Negroes in the Methodist Episcopal Church will not permit the white men in our Church, or out of our Church, as such, to arrange any alliance for us with any one or all of the branches of distinctively colored Methodism. This we think ourselves entirely capable of doing, and if the time comes when we should do so we will be our own representatives on such occasion. Our brethren in the distinctively colored Churches would have absolutely no respect for us if negotiations for us were even begun by proxy with them. This should be final, and we hope the occasion will not arise when there is to be a reiteration of this statement.

"Second, no plan which has so far been proposed, whether it favors a Central Conference, Jurisdictional Conference, Sub-Regional Conference or Associate General Conference, can obtain without the consent of the colored Conferences themselves. The Methodist Episcopal Church, without the colored Conferences agreeing, cannot take away from the Annual Conferences their constitutional right to representation in the General Conference, nor can the General Conference reduce to a Missionary Conference or segregate any particular group of Conferences not applicable to every other part of the Church without the consent of such Conferences. We raise a constitutional question on which lawyers may differ, but here we take our stand that the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church and our white Annual and Lay Conferences cannot put the Negro Conferences into a jurisdiction which takes from them pro rata representation in the General Conference and reduces their Annual Conferences in dignity and in strength without the consent of these Conferences. So that our people need not be unnecessarily concerned about any plan that has been proposed and tentatively agreed to.

"Third, let us always keep in mind that we are in the midst of negotiations. The Southwestern Christian Advocate has stood openly and above board for organic union and stands there now. We still would like to see a union of the Methodist Episcopal Church and the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and all other Methodisms. Such a bond in common faith and order would make for larger efficiency. But the Southwestern Christian Advocate has maintained consistently, and we think conservatively, a defensible position both as to the status of the Negro in Church and in State. And now that we are in the midst of the world fight for democracy, the Southwestern Christian Advocate will not lower its standard even for so great a bond as organic union, if the lowering of the standard underwrites the inferiority of the Negro or circumscribes his manhood. We want organic union, but do not want it if we can only get it by agreeing with the ultra-South in fixing the Negro's status.

"We have had occasion to oppose Southern sentiment squarely and openly as to the status of the Negro, educationally and politically, and most assuredly we will oppose any final act in fixing the status of the Negro that will not be equitable or representative of his rights as a citizen and his divine right as a member of the Kingdom of God."

Southern Interference Declared Discourteous.

Both Dr. Bowen and Dr. Jones, in other expressions, show resentment at the efforts of the Southern Commissioners to interfere with and change the status of their people in their own Church—the Church, North—characterizing their course as indelicate and improper. Surely, in the light of this disclosure, the time has come for our Commissioners to define their position and to cease their interference with the Northern colored Methodists. That legitimately is a problem for the Church, North, to settle. With that fine sense of propriety for which he is so distinguished, we have heard Bishop Murrah say more than once that this feature of the Unification question was their affair, not ours. Can our Church afford to pursue further a role which the Northern Methodist Negroes regard as one of persecution—one that is unjust and oppressive to them?

TO THE PREACHERS OF THE MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

This year has been a very hard year for people who are dependent upon a salary, or upon some stipulated amount of money to exist upon. It has been hard enough on an active and vigorous person, who could make something on the outside, if need be; but the superannuated preachers of the Conference and their widows and children have not been so fortunate as to have a salary and not strong enough to work.

The Joint Board of Finance of the Mississippi Conference some years ago instituted a method of paying the claimants every quarter; before that time they had been paid annually.

The amounts paid to the claimants is grossly inadequate to meet their demands, and if the money is not forthcoming to them at the time that it should be paid it makes the burden doubly hard upon them.

There is not a preacher in the Mississippi Conference who has not received some remuneration for the past three months' work. And in the enjoyment of the prosperous condition of his charge he should remember these claimants.

The Board wants to pay for the first quarter the claimants in full, and in order to do that it will take something in the neighborhood of $2700. Please give immediate attention to this matter and see to it that Veterans' Day is observed in your church. W. E. MORSE, Treasurer.

THE MISSISSIPPI ORPHANS' HOME.

An Incubator Needed.

Poultry-raising is being made one of the special departments of our Home. We intend having all the chickens and eggs necessary for our use this year. During the past year it has been impossible for us to have as many as we have really needed on account of the scarcity and high cost of the same. Even the children who were ill were compelled to do without sometimes on that account.

We need an incubator very much and should highly appreciate any help that may be given us in securing one. Our friends have always responded readily to our calls for help, and we feel sure that they will realize how great is our need of an incubator if we are to have the chickens necessary to feed all the children we have in the Home. Will you help us through your paper?

Very truly yours,

(Miss) MAGGIE LLOYD,
President of Poultry Club.

WAR CONDITIONS

— REFLECTED IN —

TELEPHONE SERVICE

Among the unforeseen conditions which the war has imposed upon us is the necessity of practically suspending the commercial development of our business.

Confronted with an unusual increase in the use of the telephone and a strong demand for new and additional service, we cannot accept or fill orders except subject to practically an indefinite delay.

This situation is due to the importance of conserving our supplies so that the government's requirements may be promptly met by giving the War Department service anywhere and at any time the request is made.

NOTES.

Texas, another State ranked as "wet," has ratified the National Prohibition Amendment. Let the good work go on.

The Baptist Record (Jackson, Miss.) says: "The House of Representatives of the State Legislature has passed a bill asking for the co-operation of Louisiana in abating the nuisance on De Soto Island, near Vicksburg. That place has long been a whiskey hole, and Mississippians wish to buy the island, that it may no longer be a source of crime on the border."

BOOZE-SOAKED BODIES POOR GROUND FOR SOUL CULTURE.

(Prepared by Charles Steltze for the National Committee of the Strengthen America Campaign.)

Clarence Darrow—the "labor lawyer" who defended the McNamara brothers, the California dynamiters, a few years ago—threw a bluff into a labor meeting the other day, where he spoke under the auspices of a local bartenders' union against the prohibition movement.

"Has drink ever done you any harm?" he asked his audience, and he waited a moment for a reply.

"It killed my brother!" volunteered a voice in the pit.

"It killed my brother, too!" said another man a little further back.

Darrow was flaggerbasted! He didn't know the real sentiments of his audience. He probably supposed that he was talking to a bartenders' crowd.

"Has drink ever done you any harm?" The working men of America are coming to believe that it has. It isn't safe to recklessly throw into a crowd of working men a challenge which may so easily be answered! For they are coming to know the facts. And the facts are always against the liquor business.

It is bad enough for booze to kill the body of your brother—it is a worse thing for booze to kill his soul.

But what about the man who carries a dead soul in a living body? This is what happens to many a man who has become booze-soaked.

For drink destroys a man's soul before it kills his body—and usually he doesn't know what's happening to him. That's the sad part of it.

We are realizing more and more that soul culture and the things that grow out of the use of booze cannot occupy the same body at the same time—in the end one will drive the other out—and usually booze comes out ahead in the struggle.

If you believe that the traffic in alcohol does more harm than good—HELP STOP IT!

ROBERT SCOTT RICKETTS.

Professor R. S. Ricketts died at his home in Jackson, Monday afternoon, February 25, 1918, at 3:40 o'clock.

Perhaps it would not be extravagant to say that he was the best loved man in Mississippi. By this we do not mean that he was the most distinguished or most widely known citizen of our State; nor, upon the other hand, do we mean simply to express the conviction that among those who knew him he was more universally admired and beloved than any other man in Mississippi. We wish to combine these statements and say that, in view of the wide circle of his acquaintances, and the universal love of those who knew him, no man in Mississippi was more greatly loved. For twenty-eight years he had taught young ladies in Methodist Colleges in Mississippi, and for twenty-four years he had taught young men in Millsaps College. When we consider the thousands of young women and young men who had come within the range of his influence, and of the universal impression made upon them of the singular beauty and sweetness of his character, it is not too much, we think, to say that he was the best loved man in our State.

Robert Scott Ricketts was one of that long list of preachers' sons, who, by their devoted and self-sacrificing service to their fellow-men, and the unquestioned integrity of their Christian lives, have reflected credit upon the calling of their minister fathers. He was born on March 5, 1843, at Vicksburg, Miss., where his father, the Rev. R. B. Ricketts, was living, an honored member of the Mississippi Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church. His boyhood and youth were spent in West Feliciana and Baton Rouge Parishes, of the State of Louisiana. In Baton Rouge he attended the celebrated Collegiate Institute, conducted by Dr. W. H. N. McGruder, recognized by the older Methodist people as one of the greatest educators of the Southwest. He was a student at old Centenary, Jackson, La., when the Civil War broke out, and, though but a youth, he promptly volunteered and served his State and the Southern Confederacy, first in a Louisiana Cavalry Regiment, and afterwards in a Signal Service Corps. He was twice captured by Federal soldiers and imprisoned in Baton Rouge and New Orleans. After serving as a brave and faithful soldier, he was honorably discharged, and began his work as a teacher, the work to which he devoted his long and useful life. He taught first in association with his old preceptor at the Collegiate Institute in Baton Rouge, and later with Dr. Wright, the President of the Port Gibson Female College. In 1875 he went to Brookhaven, Miss., as a member of the faculty of Whitworth Female College, at that time under the distinguished presidency of Dr. Harvey F. Johnson. After the death of Dr. Johnson in 1886, he continued his connection with Whitworth College under the presidency of the late Lewis T. Fitzhugh, where he was associated with Doctor (now Bishop) W. B. Murrah, for many years the distinguished President of Millsaps College. Appreciation of the charm of his personal character, and admiration for his talents as a teacher, caused Bishop Galloway and Dr. Murrah to recommend him for the position of Head Master of the Preparatory Department of Millsaps College. He was elected to this position, and assumed charge of this department in 1894. Here he continued to serve God and his fellow-men with distinguished devotion and success until two months before his death, when he was compelled by failing health to give up his work. On the 17th day of March, 1877, he was happily married to Miss Bertha Burnley, of Brookhaven, and to them were born five children—four sons and a daughter—all of whom, with their mother, survive the father, except one son, Charles Cosby, who died in his childhood. Of these sons, Robert is a prominent lawyer of Jackson; Edwin is a mechanical engineer of distinction, living in New York City; John is an officer in the United States Artillery, and Miss Bertha, the wife of Dr. Charles B. Sumner, is living in Ithaca, New York.

The secret of the peculiarly gentle and beautiful life of Dr. Ricketts is not hard to find. It was not that he was naturally of a gentle and gracious spirit; he was thus blessed, but only a heart dominated by the spirit of the Lord Jesus could have been as nearly faultless as was his. It cannot be doubted that the gracious influence of a parsonage home had much to do with the beauty of his life. He used to say that he did not know when he was converted, and with a suggestion of wistfulness to add, "Sometimes I wish I did know the time and place," but he always reassured his own heart by saying, "I know that I have been converted, and that I love God and my fellow-men, and that God for Christ's sake has forgiven my sins." If the Church were more thoughtful in the religious tuition of its children, such religious experiences would be more typical, and there would be fewer of those great epochal transitions from darkness to light; men would be born, as, please God, men will be born, more and more as children into the Kingdom of Heaven, and they would cross the line from darkness to light with the footsteps of a child, and not know those crucial experiences that have characterized the lives of wayward men. The path that marked his religious life began as a little child and ended at the foot of the throne, and he was all the more beautiful in his Christian life because of this. It has been a common saying with Millsaps boys these twenty-five years that "Prof. Ricketts was the best man I ever knew," and at a memorial service held in the College Chapel the morning after his death one of the students said, "I would rather lose every other influence that has ever touched me since I became a student of Millsaps College than to lose the gracious influence exerted upon my life by Prof. Ricketts since I came to Millsaps five years ago." Another said of him, "I have known him more than forty years, and in all those years I have never heard him speak unkindly of a human being." He seemed to be everybody's friend, and people indulged towards him, apparently, the spirit of proprietorship; for instance, a lady said, "He was our particular friend," and when one said, "O, yes, he was everybody's friend," she said, "Yes, but we have always felt, my husband and I, that we had a sort of proprietary claim on him." And a strong man said, "I have sustained a great loss, for, whenever I was in doubt, or in trouble, I came to him for counsel and my doubts were resolved, and my troubles were lifted;" and the one to whom the statement was made said, "He was everybody's counsellor and adviser." A friend, in speaking of him, said, "He was marked by the brightness of Sydney Smith, and the gracious spirit of Charles Lamb." At its Commencement in May, 1917, during the celebration of the Twenty-fifth Anniversary of the Founding of Millsaps College, the Board of Trustees honored itself by conferring upon him the honorary degree of Doctor of Letters, an honor all the more conspicuous, since it is the only time this institution has ever conferred an honorary degree. Dr. Ricketts was a man marked by a great love of learning, and a very fine literary taste. In his earlier years he was a frequent contributor to the columns of the New Orleans Christian Advocate, and other periodicals of his Church, always writing with an unusual grace and dignity. He was gifted with an unusual spirit of jovialness, and marked by a quiet humor that was almost irresistible in its quaintness and beauty; but he was not a practical joker, and there was never the suggestion of a sting in his wit.

From his youth he occupied official positions in the Church, always taught a class in the Sunday school, and always served on the Board of Stewards, and the preacher himself could not have been more constant and regular in his attendance upon the ordinances of the Church. To the preacher he was a source of inspiration and helpfulness, and to the young preacher, as this writer well remembers, he was a kindly critic and gracious friend. The people of Jackson seemed to realize that to them it had been given to witness the closing of a life of singular beauty and grace, and the great Galloway Memorial Church was thronged with sorrowing friends upon the occasion of his funeral. The services were conducted by the writer of these lines, assisted by Rev. C. W. Crisler, Pastor of Galloway Memorial Church; Dr. J. B. Hutton, Pastor of the Presbyterian Church of Jackson, and Rev. J. M. Morse, Presiding Elder of the Jackson District. The interment took place in Cedar Lawn Cemetery, at Jackson. As we stood in the presence of all that was mortal of our translated friend, we felt that we could wish for no man a greater blessing than this: "Let me die the death of the righteous, and let my last end be like his."

The Home Circle

THE WEATHERCOCK'S MEANING.

A weathercock that once was placed
A farmer's barn above,
Bore on it, by its owner's will,
The sentence, "God is love."

His neighbor, passing, questioned him—
He deemed the legend strange—
"Now, dost thou think that like a vane
God's love can lightly change?

The farmer, smiling shook his head.
"Nay, friend, 'tis meant to show
That 'God is love' whichever way
The wind may chance to blow."

THE LAME BOY.

He was little. He was lame. He was only six years old. His mother was a poor washerwoman, and they lived in a tiny room on a narrow street of a great city.

All day long he sat in his high chair, looking down into the narrow street. He could see by leaning forward a bit of blue sky over the tall warehouse opposite. Sometimes a white cloud would drift across the blue. Sometimes it was all dull gray.

But the street was more interesting. There were people down there. In the early morning men and women were hurrying to their work. Later the children came out and played on the sidewalk and in the gutters. Sometimes they danced and sang, but often they were quarrelsome. In the spring came the hand-organ man, and then everybody seemed happy.

The boy's sad little face looked out all day long. Only when he saw his mother coming did he smile and wave his hand.

"I wish I could help you, mother," he said one night. "You work so hard, and I can't do anything for you."

"Oh, but you do," she cried quickly. "It helps me to see your face smiling down at me from the window. It helps me to have you wave your hand. It makes my work lighter all day to think you will be there waving at me when I come home."

"Then I'll wave harder," said the little fellow.

And the next night a tired workman, seeing the mother look up and answer the signal, looked up, too. Such a little, pinched face smiling down at him from the window, but how cheery the smile was! The man laughed to himself and waved his cap, and the boy, a little shyly, returned the greeting.

So it went. The next evening the workman nudged his comrade to look up at the "poor little chap sitting so patient at the window," and again the gay smile shone out as two caps waved in the air below him.

Days came and passed and the boy had more friends. Men and women went out of their way to send a greeting to him. Life didn't seem quite so hard to them when they thought how dreary it must be for him. Sometimes a flower found its way to him, or an orange or a colored picture. The children stopped quarreling when they saw him watching them, and played games to amuse him. It pleased them to see how eager he was to share in their good times.

"Tell the lad we couldn't get on without him," said the weary laborer to the mother one night. "'Tis a great thing to have a brave heart. It makes us all brave, too. Tell him that."

And you may be sure she did.—Unidentified.

A FORGIVENESS ACCOUNT.

John and Gladys were out at the front of the house. Gladys was making a bead necklace for her doll. The beads were on a little work-table beside her. John was playing at trains. His train was a toy cart, with a funny collection of dolls and animals in it for the passengers. He was the engine himself, and he was steaming and whistling with all his strength.

"Don't come here, John," said Gladys, as he came near the table.

"Puff, puff," went this snorting human engine.

"Take care," cried Gladys again, as he came nearer to the table, "you'll spill my beads." Away John went, and soon forgot his sister's warning. The train came round the corner, and before he knew, the table was upset and the beads scattered in all directions.

"Oh, John," cried Gladys, with an angry face, "what did I tell you?"

"I'm awfully sorry," said John, as he helped to pick up the beads. John was always sorry, but it did not make him careful. Gladys did not answer for a moment, but then she said, "Never mind, John, I'll forgive you." She remembered the lesson she heard on Sunday about Jesus telling Peter how he ought to forgive his brother seventy times seven times. Gladys was a hot-tempered girl, but had resolved to obey Jesus. She had been saying to herself—although John did not know—"I will forgive him 490 times, but after that—" She shut her lips tight. "I'll keep a forgiveness account," she thought, "so as to know when it's seventy times seven." Before she went to bed she wrote at the top of a clean page in a last year's exercise book:

"The Times I Forgive John."

And under this:

"Monday—For spilling my beads."

Then she remembered that very day she had upset a tower John had built with his bricks to show father when he came home and John had not been the least cross with her. "I suppose I ought to count that on the other side," she said slowly. She then wrote on the opposite page:

"The Times John Forgives Me."

"Monday—For knocking down his tower."

That made them even.

One day she had the longer list, and another day John had it—sometimes they were even. So Gladys was beginnig to feel very humble, and after a while said to herself: "I guess if I forgive all I can without keeping any list, it will take me all my life to make 490 times. Perhaps, after all, that was what Jesus meant. I will try."

The Forgiveness Account was not kept any longer; it had done its work.—Messenger for the Children.

START IN NOW.

"If we look about us we will see that everybody has to obey. Grown people have to obey the laws that they know are right; the busiest person you know is obeying, and it is sometimes as hard for grown folks to obey as it is for little children. Until we learn obedience we never can be happy."

A COURTEOUS REPLY.

The last time Washington was in New England, on one of his progresses, so called, he made a visit at the house of Roger Sherman—the Roger Sherman who has been called the author of the Constitution. As he left the house one day one of the little Sherman girls opened the door for him, and he said to her:

"I wish you some better office, my dear."

To which the bright little girl replied:

"Yes, sir, to let you in."

This little girl afterward became the mother of Senator Hoar, who preserved well the traditions and principles of the Revolution.—E. E. Hale.

MAJOR R. F. WHITE.

The many friends of Mr. R. F. White, a son of Judge H. H. White of Alexandria, La., and a member of the law firm of White, Holloman & White of that city, will be pleased to learn of the excellent record that he is making in the United States Army. Mr. White enlisted in the spring of 1917 as a private in Company K, First Louisiana Regiment. Subsequently he was promoted to the position of corporal in the same Company, and while stationed at Camp Nicholls assisted in guarding the New Orleans docks. About July, 1917, he was made second lieutenant of Company K, which was moved to Camp Beauregard. He was transferred to Company L, 156th Infantry, and was promoted to the office of first lieutenant in November, 1917. He was in command of Company L during the meningitis epidemic and the quarantine at Camp Beauregard, where he was greatly exposed, acquitting himself, however, in such a manner that on January 16, 1918, he was again promoted, this time being made Major—Judge Advocate—and is now stationed at Camp McArthur, Waco, Texas.

Mr. White is a graduate of the Academic Department of Tulane University and of the Law Department of George Washington University. He served two years as the private secretary of the late United States Senator J. R. Thornton, of Louisiana. He was regarded at the outbreak of the present war as a young lawyer of more than ordinary ability and much promise. He is about 29 years old, is married, and has one child. He has been an active member of our Church at Alexandria, and, when he entered the military service, he was filling the office of steward and teaching a large class of boys in the Sunday school.

OUR SMALL GAIN IN MEMBERSHIP.

The Nashville Methodist News Bureau has sent out within the past few days the following news-note:

"The Southern Methodist Handbook reports that the net gain in membership for our Church in 1917 was slightly more than 22,000, the smallest gain for some years past. The Sunday school enrollment shows a decrease for the year. The net gain in number of traveling preachers was only thirteen, as compared with an average annual gain of about one hundred for the years 1910-16. The financial statistics show substantial gains in amounts paid for ministerial support and all connectional claims."

By special request, we reproduce below one of our recent editorials, which bears somewhat pertinently on the questions naturally raised in one's mind by the foregoing brief statement:

"A Logical Result.

"We have noticed for some time in some of our papers a disposition to dwell upon the fact that the figures are likely to show a very small net gain for our Church during the year 1917. This would be well enough if the clear purpose of it were to emphasize the need of falling on our knees and getting closer to God, and of then bestirring ourselves to bring more people to Christ and into the Church. But the manner in which the larger gains of the Northern Methodist Church are being set over against ours rather indicates that a predicate is being laid for something else than an appeal to our people for greater consecration and earnestness in reaching the unsaved and bringing them into the fold. We shall be surprised if pretty soon we are not hearing that, because of our meager increase in membership, we need to revise our polity in this or that respect, after the fashion of the Northern Methodists, with whom some are bent upon uniting our Church, apparently at any cost.

"As a matter of fact, it is not surprising that our Church has not had large ingatherings for the past few years. Since the Asheville General Conference, in 1910, there has been a constant disturbance throughout the Connection over the Vanderbilt issue, and to it this year has been added the excitement of the union agitation and the Eleazer-Fritts assault upon our economy. With our papers carrying the most terrific arraignments of our Church government conceivable; with our Bishops denounced as autocrats, of whom our preachers are afraid; with all the talk that we have had about oppression, secret episcopal sessions, the iniquities of the unit rule, and with the flamboyant pronouncements of the extreme unionists that our Church may be expected to cease to exist within the next three or four years, at the farthest—how could members be expected to flock into it? Why, one of our leading Advocates actually carried not long since an article from Dr. John C. Granberry in which he affirmed that the man who rallied around the banner of liberty that Mr. Eleazer had unfurled, to battle against the autocracy of our Episcopacy, would as truly help to make "the world safe for democracy," as if he should go to France to fight in the trenches, or words to that effect! Who would want to unite with a Church governed in part by such an Episcopacy as that?

"There is little the matter with our Church government. Prior to 1911, the year that the last Ecumenical Methodist Conference met in Toronto—only six years ago—we had been for some time far outstripping the Northern Methodists; and if we will stop the hurtful wrangling that is going on among us, seek the annointing of the Holy Spirit, and preach the true Gospel of Christ as in the days agone, we doubt not that we shall do so again.

"But if we keep up the union agitation and other hurtful propagandas, we may expect to see our membership increase yet more slowly, or perhaps actually decline. Persons who desire to do something worth while for the Master want a better foundation to build upon than shifting sands, which may soon be swept away. It is no uncommon thing now to hear Southern Methodists saying that they are tired of the present uproar and that if it continues they will have to seek another ecclesiastical home.

"We are undoubtedly face to face with the question as to whether we shall set up the banner of loyalty and save our noble Church; or whether we shall continue to tolerate, if not encourage, a policy of disaffection and disintegration, and let it go to ruin. Which shall it be?"

DR. WERLEIN'S STATEMENT.

The statement of Dr. Werlein concerning the work at Camp Beauregard deserves a careful reading. What he says about the Louisiana Conference assessment for that cause should stir the brethren to immediate action. We cannot afford to neglect our soldier boys. LET EVERY PASTOR TAKE THIS COLLECTION AND SEND IT IN AT ONCE.

WILL PRINT IT LATER.

Dr. T. N. Ivey, in the Nashville Christian Advocate of March 1, answered our "Respectful Request" concerning the number of Negroes in the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. Because of the pressure for space that is upon us, we are unable to print the reply of our confrere this week; but we hope to let it, along with some observations of our own, appear in our next issue.

NOT NEEDED.

It would be bad to have the Church run by ecclesiastical politicians, but it would probably be much worse to have it run by the secular politicians. To trot to well known public men, because of the positions which they occupy, and have them to tell a Church of Christ what she ought to do, when perhaps they are theater-goers, frequenters of balls, and persons whose lives are far from being holy, is a species of toadyism that ill becomes the disciples of Jesus. Happy is the denomination that is wise enough to take counsel of Spirit-filled men and women, whether they be conspicuous or obscure!

REGRETTABLE.

We notice that New Orleans is to have given the "Passion Play." This, in our opinion, is to be regretted. How any one could presume to try to act out in a public exhibition the last sufferings and death of Jesus, is quite beyond us. Those tragic scenes in the earthly career of our Lord should, we think, be regarded as too sacred and awful to be subject to any sort of human mimicry. There is to us a shocking irreverence in the mere thought of human beings trying to pose and perform as God.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

Rev. W. L. Blackwell, of Terry, Miss., writes: "Things are progressing nicely with us. I have a choice people to serve. The congregations are good, the interest in the work is growing, and we have the promise of a good year."

A leading layman from the Alexandria (La.) charge stated to us last week that Dr. S. H. Werlein is preaching to large congregations, with great acceptability, in that city. This is Dr. Werlein's second pastorate in Alexandria.

In ordering the address of his Advocate changed to Corinth, Miss., Bro. R. C. Huggins says: "I am moving back to 'dear old Mississippi, after about four years spent in Kentucky." We trust that this friend will be happy in the old home State.

Rev. F. M. Freeman, pastor of the Parker Memorial Church of this city, has, we regret to state, lately been ill. We hope that his attack will be of brief duration. Brother Freeman is reported to have made a good beginning in his new field.

Rev. F. R. Power, pastor of the Texas Avenue Church of Shreveport, La., brings us under obligations to him for 3 subscriptions to the Advocate, and thus remarks: "Our work is making good headway. We have received 20 members since Conference, and the outlook promises well."

Rev. W. H. Coleman, pastor of the First Methodist Church of New Orleans, is being greeted by excellent audiences from week to week. Brother Coleman and his fine Wesley Bible Class have been leading in looking after the spiritual welfare of the soldiers quartered at Camp Nichols (in this city).

Rev. J. W. Booth, pastor of the Keener Memorial Church of Baton Rouge, La., has made a good impression in his new field and is pleased with the outlook. Brother and Sister Booth have recently been blessed by the coming of another little one into their home. The Advocate extends to them its congratulations.

Rev. D. H. Crowson, of Potts Camp, Miss., kindly gives us three subscriptions, and thus reports cerning his work: "Everything is moving on well. The pastor's salary was voluntarily raised $100 and the amount due up to date has been more than paid. There seems to be a fine spiritual interest among the people. We have some noble men and women here, but best of all are the children."

From a business letter from Rev. R. I. Collins, of Courtland, Miss., we take the following: "We are getting along nicely with our work. We hope to begin our meetings soon. Brother H. C. Morehead is still confined to his room, but he seems to be improving some." We are sorry to learn of the continued illness of Brother Morehead, and we hope to have good news concerning his condition at an early date.

Rev. M. B. Sharbrough, presiding elder of the Port Gibson District, in sending in his second round of appointments, says: "Every charge in the district, except possibly one, has made or will make some increase in the assessment for the support of the pastor, but, in view of the high cost of living, the advances will hardly be enough to give relief to the preachers, some of whom, with their families, will have to practice self-denial." This is, indeed, a trying time upon men who work for salaries, and who have everything to buy and nothing to sell.

The congregation of the Jefferson Street Church of Natchez, Miss., recently gave their pastor and his wife, Rev. and Mrs. W. H. Saunders, a reception which the local paper termed "a beautiful affair." The Sunday school rooms of the church were attractively decorated and a splendid musical program was rendered. A striking feature of the exercises was the singing of the Star-Spangled Banner by the large company present. We have in hand a note from Brother Saunders concerning his work which reached us too late for this issue of the Advocate, but which will appear next week.

Rev. V. C. Curtis, presiding elder of the Greenville (Miss.) District, thus reports from his great field: "The work of the district is in good condition. There has been quite an increase in the assessments for the pastors' salaries this year, the aggregate amount probably going over $5000. The new men who have come to us are doing well. Rev. S. A. Brown has made a good start at Leland. The people are much pleased with Brother Wyatt at Shelby, and they are delighted with Brother John Robertson at Hollandale, as they also are with Brother Ingram at Evansville. Young Raper is having at Friar's Point the largest crowds that they have had there in years."

We desire to state again (having done so many times before) that the matter for any issue of the Advocate is selected and practically passes out of our hands by noon of the preceding Saturday. The forms for the first half of our paper are closed at that time, and the copy for the second half is either very largely in type or in the hands of the printers. We can only handle brief notices and statements which reach us as late as Monday. The second half of the Advocate is put on the press Tuesday afternoon, and we begin mailing the paper to our subscribers early Wednesday morning. We trust that our friends will note this statement and govern themselves accordingly.

Presiding Elder May, of the Baton Rouge District, who is a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, says: "I am hopeful of large developments in this region. The prospects are bright for a great year."

Rev. B. P. Jaco, of Lexington, Miss., informs us that several of the Protestant Churches of that city will unite in a revival meeting, beginning April 13. The preaching will be done by Evangelist W. M. McIntosh, of Iuka, Miss.

We know of a village in Mississippi where there is an excellent opening for a physician, due to the doctor residing there having entered the service of the Government. Persons interested in this statement may communicate with the Advocate on the subject.

Along with 4 subscriptions to the Advocate, comes the following optimistic message from Rev. W. W. Nelson, sent from Wesson, Miss.: "The Scotland charge is going forward encouragingly. We hope to accomplish much for the Master during the year."

We regret to learn that Rev. T. L. Oakes, of Sallis, Miss., has lately been afflicted with la grippe, along with a painful attack of sciatica. However, we are happy to state that he is now able to be up and about his work. May his efforts be crowned with success!

We sympathize with the congregation of our Church at Redbone, on the Oak Ridge (Miss.) charge, in the loss of their house of worship by fire on Feb. 26. Pastor Wells writes us that there was no insurance. His communication will be published in our next issue.

Writing from Wakefield, Miss., Brother Henry W. Wallace forwards us 4 subscriptions (all new) and kindly promises us more. He says: "Wall Hill is a pleasant charge. We are having good congregations when the weather is good. We have been delightfully received, and are expecting a successful year."

Rev. E. Nash Broyles, of Macon, Miss., Treasurer of the Board of Education of the North Mississippi Conference, sends us the following note: "I have just received a check from Rev. John W. Robertson, of Hollandale, Miss., to apply on the educational assessment of his charge." Good for Brother Robertson and Hollandale!

Dr. E. G. B. Mann, of Lexington, Ky., was scheduled to begin a meeting in Atlanta, Ga., last week, assisting pastor Edmundson of St. Paul's Church. Prof. W. B. Yeates, of Marion, Ky., was expected to lead the music. Dr. Mann is one of Southern Methodism's strong men who know how to conduct a successful revival.

We have received from Bro. Yeager, of Monticello, Miss., a number of subscriptions to the Advocate, for which he has our thanks. He says: "We are trying to put our Church paper in every Methodist home in the Pleasant Grove charge. Things are looking somewhat encouraging. Please pray that we may have a successful year."

Sister W. H. Emerson, of Belzoni, Miss., has sent in 4 subscriptions to the Conference organ, for which we are grateful. Referring to Brother Lockhart, the pastor of that charge, she says: "He seems to be well liked by our people, and our congregations are steadily increasing. We are praying for a revival, which is needed in this section."

The Commissioners of the Methodist Hospital, located in Memphis, Tenn., will hold another meeting in the Bluff City on March 19. We have received from Brother Thomas B. King, the Financial Agent of this institution, an interesting statement which, for the want of space, we are forced to let go over. The Editor feels much interest in this great enterprise.

Rev. A. A. Sims, of Carthage, Miss., sends us the following note: "Rev. W. L. Linfield, our kind and efficient presiding elder, has just held our first quarterly conference. It was the best quarterly conference that I have ever attended. The assessment for the pastor's salary was increased $200. The outlook is bright in this field." Brother Sims' letter contained 5 names for the Advocate's mailing files.

Brother A. B. Barry, the pastor, and Rev. J. V. Bennett have lately been in a great meeting at South McComb, Miss. When Brother Barry wrote on March 5, there had been 43 accessions to the Church, and more were expected. These two choice workers were intending to begin a series of evangelistic services at East McComb this week. It makes us happy to chronicle this fine revival so early in the year.

Rev. Henry T. Young, the Louisiana Conference Evangelist, writes us as follows: "I have just closed a meeting at Gilbert with Brother Roy, which was a success. He will report the result to you. I boosted the Advocate, and am forwarding you 7 subscriptions, with a check to correspond." Thank you, Brother Young. When people are spiritually quickened is a good time to start them to reading the Church paper.

Rev. B. D. Watson, of Pine Grove, La., reports that the year has begun auspiciously in his charge, and that the prospects are encouraging.

Rev. J. H. Sherard, of Sherard, Miss., has given Commissioner Shelby $1000 for Emory University. Brother Sherard is one of the most generous and useful laymen in the North Mississippi Conference. Would that we had more like him!

Rev. C. Norman Guice, writing from Springfield, Mo., says: "I have returned from California and am now engaged in evangelistic work within the bounds of my own Church. I am at present with our St. Paul's Church in this city, and I will go from here to Pensacola, Fla., to open a meeting on March 17. I am living in Siloam Springs, Ark., and I should be glad to assist in revivals any of the brethren who may need my services."

Rev. J. E. Gray, of Logtown, Miss., writes: "Dr. I. W. Cooper spent last Sunday with us and delighted everybody with his preaching. The good people responded liberally to his presentation of his plan to secure a ministerial educational fund. Up to the present, the pledges here amount to nearly $200 per annum for eight years, in accordance with the proposed arrangement. We are serving a liberal and big-hearted people."

Brother F. H. Murphy writes: "We are still at the Brandon (Miss.) depot, but they have changed the name of the post-office to Value. The old town is a mile from the depot, and has its own post-office. I am highly pleased with the stand you take on unification." It may be all right to change the name of the station post-office, but nothing should be done to discredit the town of Brandon, which has given to Mississippi a number of its foremost public men in the years agone.

Rev. C. M. Chapman, in a personal note to the Editor, says: "I received notice this week that my final thesis for the Ph. D. degree has been accepted, and that the degree will be conferred at the Spring Convocation (March 21) in the Lincoln-Jefferson University of Illinois. The completion of this course has been a long and laborous task, embracing two years in college residence, three years in research work, and no end of home and correspondence work." We congratulate Dr. Chapman upon having won this distinction.

We are indebted to the Nashville Methodist News Bureau for the following item of interest: "Bishop W. B. Murrah has returned from Cuba, where he held the session of the Cuban Mission. He reports one of the best sessions in the history of the mission. There was a full attendance of missionaries and native preachers. This was in pleasing contrast to the session of 1917, when Cuba was disturbed by reason of a revolution. There was a substantial increase in membership, and the financial reports were beyond any previous record."

The Bulletin of St. Mark's Hall, this city, for February is on our table. It shows that good work was done during that month. The revival services recently conducted by Dr. H. C. Morrison are stated to have accomplished much good. The election of the following officers at the annual meeting of the Woman's Board of City Missions is reported: President, Mrs. J. B. Parker; Vice President, Mrs. W. W. Holmes; Treasurer, Mrs. D. B. Carre; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. D. O. Myatt; Recording Secretary, Miss Ada Parker; Chairman Committee on Clinics, Mrs. H. F. Baldwin; Building, Mrs. W. W. Carre; House, Mrs. Eugene Simon; Mary Werlein Mission, Mrs. Dewitt; Sewing School, Mrs. John Munford; Worship, Mrs. A. F. Godat.

CHURCH EXTENSION, NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

Dear Bro. Meek: For satisfactory reasons we have changed the time of the meeting of the Executive Committee of the Board of Church Extension at Winona from March 19 to March 21—at 11 o'clock a. m.

I hope the brethren making applications to the General Board will see that their papers are in due form before leaving home. We have been compelled to turn down some needy places because of failure at this point, and it will take but little trouble to have the papers O. K. when they come to us. If the collections were taken and the money placed in the hands of the Conference Board in the early part of the year, we could in some cases do a good work in springing a community to build a church or parsonage. I hope that we will have full collections this year. Our collections were better last year than usual, and a little effort would bring them up in full.

W. S. LAGRONE.

Our Advocate Campaign.

Many of the brethren are continuing to do excellent work in behalf of the Advocate. This is as it should be. We need to inform our people, and there is no better way to do this than to circulate the Church papers. And this is the season to do a telling work in this direction. If all our pastors could do as well as some of them have done, how the Conference organ would boom! Let us keep up the campaign.

SOME CAMPAIGN ECHOES.

Rev. W. S. Lagrone, of Drew, Miss., forwards us 22 subscriptions, and promises us "more soon." Great are Drew and Brother Lagrone.

Rev. W. M. Sullivan gives us 11 subscriptions from Columbia, on the Pearl. We can always count on Brother Sullivan.

Brother J. E. Gray, of Logtown, Miss., brings us under obligations to him for 9 new subscriptions, and adds: "There will be more to follow." We are most grateful for this good work.

Rev. F. R. Power, of Shreveport, La., forwards us three names, and adds, "I hope to do more in the near future." Thanks! The Advocate ought to have a larger circulation at the Hub of Louisiana Methodism.

Rev. W. M. Campbell, of Itta Bena, Miss., who always measures up to a high standard, forwards us 9 new and 4 renewal subscriptions, and thus writes: "Send me the list for this charge, and I will send more renewals and other new ones."

From the South and East McComb charge, Mississippi Conference, Rev. A. B. Barry cheers us with 13 new readers, and says: "This is a total of 13 subscriptions, 2 more than the number allotted us; but we have decided to secure 25 new ones in this charge." Our hat is off to Brother Barry and his worthy flock.

Rev. C. F. Sheppard, of Dubach, La., transmits to us two names, and says: "I hope to add others." We have a good Methodism about Dubach, and we should be happy to have the Advocate to make the acquaintance of more of those embraced in it. Our paper is fortunate to have so good a friend as Brother Sheppard in that field.

SOME SUBSCRIPTION RECEIPTS.

The following friends have our thanks for two or more subscriptions, not acknowledged elsewhere, sent in within the past few days: Rev. James Porter, Mathiston, Miss., 3; Rev. C. M. Chapman, Waynesboro, Miss., 9; Rev. B. W. Lewis, Utica, Miss., 2; Rev. W. I. White, Shannon, Miss., 5; Rev. J. W. Dorman, Water Valley, Miss., 5; Rev. L. E. Crooks, Greensburg, La., 2; Rev. R. O. Brown, Clarksdale, Miss., 5; Rev. M. L. White, Homewood, Miss., 2; Rev. S. H. Caffey, University, Miss., 3; Rev. J. M. Boykin, Bossier City, La., 2; Rev. C. H. Ellis, Lintonia charge, Miss. Conf., 2; Brother W. A. McKenzie, Homer, La., 3; Rev. A. L. Davenport, Corinth, Miss., 2; Rev. R. I. Collins, Courtland, Miss., 8; Dr. S. A. Steel, Mansfield, La., 4; Rev. P. O. Lowrey, Pleasant Hill, La., 3; Brother M. A. Massey, Fannin, Miss., 4; Rev. E. L. Cargill, Gibsland, La., 6.

TO OUR SUBSCRIBERS.

The little pink or yellow address label on the copy of the Advocate which you receive weekly shows your name and address, and the date of expiration of your subscription. Dec1917 indicates that your subscription expired Dec. 1, 1917, and that it is past due, and should be renewed. Subscribers will please examine the labels on their papers, and if it is found that the subscriptions are past due, they should remit at once. Conditions are such that we cannot afford to continue sending the paper to those who are in arrears. If a subscriber does not want the subscription to continue, we expect him or her to pay that which is due us, and notify us to stop sending the paper. Attention to this matter will be greatly appreciated by the management of this Advocate, and it will be the means of helping us to avoid losses by discontinuing the paper to those who do not desire it.

REQUIRED FOR HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

It is surprising that it is necessary to repeat again and again that the health and beauty of the skin require that the blood shall be pure. If the arteries of the skin receive impure blood, pimples and blotches appear, and the individual suffers from humors. Powders and other external applications are sometimes used for these affections, but will never have the desired effect while the causes of impure blood remain.

The indications are very clear that Hood's Sarsaparilla is the most successful medicine for purifying the blood, removing pimples and blotches, and giving health and beauty to the skin. It gives tone to all the organs and builds up the whole system. Insist on having Hood's Sarsaparilla when you ask for it. Don't take anything else.—Adv.

The Woman's Missionary Society of Utica, Miss., mourns the death of one of its best beloved members in the person of Mrs. DR. G. E. ELLIS who peacefully fell on sleep on February 15, 1918. In the death of Mrs. Ellis our Society has lost one of its most efficient members and co-workers. Though ofttimes prevented by ill-health from meeting with us, her pious influence is still felt at our meetings. She will be greatly missed by our Society; therefore, be it Resolved (1), That, since she was a charter member of the missionary society of our Church, the removal of such a life will be a serious loss.

Resolved (2), That, with deep sympathy for the bereaved family of the deceased, we express our hope that even so great a loss to us all may be overruled for our good by Him who doeth all things well.

Resolved (3), That a copy of these resolutions be given the family of Mrs. Ellis and also that a copy be sent to the New Orleans Christian Advocate and the Jackson Daily News for publication.

Little FLOYD, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Harris, died on Feb. 24, 1918, aged 1 year, 2 months, and 24 days. How sad it is for one who knew him to record his early death. Not yet had his little feet become weary of life's journey. His life went out, leaving aching hearts the tender memory of one whose mission was not accomplished. True, it can be said, "Of such is the kingdom of heaven." Little Floyd was a favorite of all who knew him—he was so affectionate, so bright, a real sunbeam. We can scarcely realize that we will never see his smiles or hear the patter of his little feet again. "As he can never come to us," may we be prepared to meet him in the great beyond where parting is no more!

"Weep not, papa or mamma, for me;
For I am in 'Glory' awaiting thee."

A Friend,
S. A. S.

Mr. T. V. THAGGARD was born on June 23, 1862, in Elizabethtown, Bladen County, N. C., and died at his home in McDonoghville, La., on Jan. 16, 1918. He came to Louisiana twenty-eight years ago, and had been in the employ of the Texas and Pacific Railroad Co. for about twenty-eight years at the time of his death. He was married to Miss Anita G. Landry on Dec. 6, 1898. He became a member of the Methodist Church in McDonoghville on Dec. 6, 1908, of which he remained a loyal and consistent member until he was transferred to the triumphant Church above. He loved the doctrines of his Church. He cared very little for preaching that did not feed the soul. He loved heart-felt religion. He often talked to his father about the need of the Church—that the preachers should preach a gospel that would feed the soul, as Jesus fed the hungry souls of people while he was here on earth. He loved the Methodist way of preaching repentance, regeneration, consecration, sanctification, the witness of the Spirit, etc. He gave his money freely to the Church, the Red Cross, and other worthy causes. He said he could not talk much himself, but bought bells for all the churches in McDonoghville, saying these bells will talk for me, for they will call the people to church. The day his body was tenderly laid away all the church bells, including the Catholic Church bells, and the Fire Department bells, tolled in remembrance of him.

He was very much devoted to his family. He studied their interests and welfare and provided for them while he lived in such a way that when he was called to leave them, they were very nicely fixed for the future. He has left a wife and three children—Miss Anita Mable, Thomas Vance, and Amos Joseph Thaggard; and one brother and three sisters—Mr. Edgar Thaggard, Mrs. Fannie Shaw, Mrs. Sudie White, Mrs. E. McGill of Elizabethtown, N. C., and Mrs. Otilla McGill of Lumberton, N. C., many other relatives, and a host of friends, to mourn his departure.

He was a kind and devoted father and husband, a loyal Methodist, and one of the best citizens of McDonoghville, being loved and respected by everybody.

Brother Thaggard was a special friend of his pastor. He stood by the Church and pastor at all times. We miss him. His place will be hard to fill. He leaves a record that will always be an inspiration to his children to live pure and noble lives. It will be very pleasant to them later in life to remember their father and his godly life. Dear loved ones and friends of Brother Thaggard, let us not weep as those who have no hope; but may we get closer to his Savior, and strive harder to do His will and work! We cannot call him back, but we can go to him later; hence, may we not look for and expect a happy reunion over there, where no sin, sickness, or sorrow will come to mar or destroy our health and happiness, and where there will be no death to separate us, but where all will be sweet and pleasant for us, for God our blessed Father, Savior and Comforter, will be there, and the great company of redeemed people and the heavenly host will be there. So with all these and the good things of heaven, which no man can describe, we shall be happy throughout the eternal ages.

His pastor,
W. A. MANGUM.

A TRIBUTE OF LOVE.

A long life of beautiful service is ended, and the soul of Mrs. NANCY E. EUBANKS has entered into eternal rest. On the evening of Feb. 12, after only an hour's illness, so sweetly did she fall asleep, that it seemed all unlike death. It was indeed a fitting close to a life of devotion and service to Him who said, "I will give you rest." Mrs. Eubanks was 72 years old, and since childhood she had been a consistent member of the Methodist Church, and for many years a member of the Woman's Missionary Society. Her deep consecration and joy in the service of the Master made her life an inspiration and benediction in the missionary work. We shall sadly miss her blessed presence, but the memory of her holy life will be an abiding influence with us who loved her, constraining us to glorify our Father, with whom she rests in heaven. Therefore, be it resolved:

1. That, although our Doddsville Missionary Society has sustained the loss of a devout member, we have, by her influence, been made purer and better, and as we bow in submission to this dispensation of Providence, we praise Him for His power over human lives.

2. That we extend to the bereaved family our deepest love and sympathy and commend them to the compassionate Father whom their sainted mother honored and served.

3. That the New Orleans Christian Advocate be requested to publish these resolutions and that a copy be sent to the bereaved family.

Signed: Mrs. W. A. Thorsen, Mrs. Ruth Gardner, Mrs. J. E. Coleman.
Doddsville, Miss.

Spiritual service looks not to the immediate result so much as to a time of harvest to come. There is a joy set before it, which is a positive inspiration to endure all that is involved of present toil and hardness.—J. S. Holden.

Sage and Sulphur Darkens Gray Hair

Brush this through faded, streaked locks and they become dark, glossy, youthful.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this famous old recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, for about 50 cents.

Don't stay gray! Try it! No one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy and attractive.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire dark hair and a youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

NEW ORLEANS DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The New Orleans District Conference convened in Felicity Church, New Orleans, on Tuesday evening, March 5, at 8 o'clock. Rev. W. W. Holmes, the presiding elder, introduced Dr. Hoyt M. Dobbs, his former schoolmate, now Dean of the Theological Department of Southern Methodist University at Dallas, as the leader of the devotional serviee. Dr. Dobbs delivered an inspiring address, which was but one such message of three delivered by him during the session. He preached at 11 a. m. Wednesday, led the devotional service at 8 p. m. Wednesday, and responded to a toast on Southern Methodist University after dinner, delightfully served to all the delegates by the Felicity ladies, at 6:30 p. m., Wednesday.

Tuesday evening the Conference was organized, committees were appointed and the delegates were addressed by Dr. A. W. Turner, Secretary of the State Anti-Saloon League, on the National Prohibition Amendment. Pastors gave in their reports, both verbally and written, at this session.

Wednesday morning Rev. C. C. Wier led a most helpful love feast which invoked many words of praise and devotion from the brethren. The sermon at 11 a. m., by Dr. Dobbs was of a high order, and the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper was administered to a goodly number.

The Conference assembled at 4 p.m. Wednesday and settled down to hard work. Reports were heard from the committees, and many valuable suggestions were offered. The fact that few quarterly conference records were found to be in good condition invoked an exhortation by Brother Holmes, urging pastors to pay attention to the work of their recording secretaries. Rev. N. E. Joyner, Rev. C. B. Carter, Rev. H. W. Van Hook and Mrs. I. N. Niebergall represented in turn the Conference missionary work, the Orphanage, the Seashore Campground School and the New Orleans Dist. Woman's Missionary Society. Miss Helen Gibson represented St. Mark's Hall and Miss Graham reported the conditions about Mary Werlein Mission.

The delegates and visitors were invited to dinner in the basement of the church hy the ladies of Felicity. After a delightful dinner, Mr. C. H. Wasson called the meeting to order and Dr. H. M. Dobbs, Rev. C. B. Carter, Dr. J. T. Sawyer, Dr. George S. Brown, Rev. Deckard Ritter and Rev. A. I. Townsley responded to suggested toasts. Every speech was roundly applauded, and the spicy remarks of the chairman invoked enthusiastic applause.

One round of applause given Brother Wasson indicated the spirit of the gathering when Dr. Dobbs finished his toast to Southern Methodist University. Mr. Wasson expressed the hope that the day would be not far distant when in truth it might be our Methodist University, with sectional lines rubbed out by organic union. This statement was the occasion of an applause that lasted almost a full minute and was participated in by almost every person present.

After dinner the Conference resolved itself into a laymen's conference and the regular conferenee. The regular conferenee heard inspirational addresses by Dr. Dobbs, Mrs. C. F. Niebergall, Hon. A. T. Higgins and Rev. C. V. Breithaupt. At the same time, W. H. Black, District Lay Leader, presided over the laymen's conference and J. H. Carter acted as secretary. That body re-elected Brother Black as District Lay Leader, and elected W. B. Thomson, S. H. Meyer, C. H. Wasson, and Dr. George S. Brown as delegates to the Annual Conference, and C. O. Chalmers and M. B. DePass as alternate delegates.

The laymen then joined the regular conferenee and the Conference entertained a resolution pledging to Algiers that the district would raise $3000 toward the new church building at that place. An offering of $326 was made to this cause before the resolution was finally adopted. Another offering of $57.42 was made toward the expenses of the District Conference and a purse was given to the janitor of the church.

Carrollton Avenue was chosen as the place for holding the next District Conference, and after an appropriate resolutions of thanks and words of exhortation from the presiding elder, the 1918 session of the New Orleans District Conference passed into history.

YOU WILL WRITE A LETTER LIKE THIS.

I wisb I knew which one of the thousands of letters I receive would have the most weight with you, my friend. I can't quote all of them here, but I am going to ask you to read these carefully and tben give me a chance to renew your health and make you write me one very much like them:

Barnard St., Savannah, Ga.
Mr. N. F. Shivar, Shelton, S. C.

Dear Sir: I was suffering with indigestion, stomach and liver disorders and all its train of horrifying phenomena for several months. I had lived on milk, soft-boiled eggs, shredded wheat, a very insufficient diet for an active working man, and, of course, from disease and starvation was in a very low state of nervous vitality and general debility. I ordered ten gallons of your Mineral Water, which I used continuously, reordering when necessary, and in four months gained twenty-nine pounds, was strong and perfectly well and have worked practically every day since. It acts as a general renovator of the system. I prescribe it in my practice and it has in every instance had the desired effects. It is essential to use this water in as large quantity as possible for its properties are so happily blended and in such proportion that they will not disturb the most delicate system. It is purely Nature's remedy.

A. L. R. AVANT, M.D.
Leeds, S. C.

I have tested your Spring Water in several cases of rheumatism, chronic indigestion, kidney and bladder troubles, and in nervous and sick headaches, and find that it has acted nicely in each case, and I believe that if used continuously for a reasonable time it will give permanent relief. It will purify the blood, relieve debility, stimulate the action of the liver, kidneys and bladder, aiding them in throwing off all poisonous matter.

C. A. CROSBY, M.D.

These are not selected cases, nor are the results unusual. I receive thousands like them from physicians, ministers, lawyers, merchants, farmers, manufacturers and every conceivable profession. I want the satisfaction of receiving such a letter from you. No matter what your complaint may be, dyspepsia, indigestion, nervous headache, rheumatism, kidney or liver disease, or any curable ailment that has not responded to drugs. I invite you to match your faith in the Spring against my pocketbook. If the water fails to benefit you simply say so, return the empty demijohns, and I will promptly and willingly refund your money—every cent. Sign below:

Shivar Spring,
Box 17-C, Shelton, S. C.,
Gentlemen:

I accept your guarantee offer and enclose herewith two dollars for ten gallons of Shivar Mineral Water. I agree to give it a fair trial, in accordance with instructions contained in booklet you will send, and if it fails to benefit my case you agree to refund the price in full upon receipt of the two empty demijohns which I agree to return promptly.

NOTE.—"I have had the pleasure of serving the little church at Shivar Spring as Pastor for years, and am therefore well acquainted with Mr. Shivar and his associates, whom I gladly commend as an honorable business man and worthy of the confidence of the public. I have personally derived great benefit from the use of the Shivar Mineral Water and have knowledge of its beneficial effects in a great number and variety of cases."—Rev. A. McA. Pittman.

A VIRGINIAN TOAST.

When Mr. Balfour and the British Commissioners visited Richmond, Va., Governor Stuart proposed a toast to the King of England in water, and this is what he said:

"In this glass I hold that which, by the sovereign will of the people of Virginia, is to-day the wine of the country; clear as the prineiples of liberty and justice in which we make common cause; pure as the union of heart and purpose typified by the three flags entwined before us; strong in that it supplies in this hour the most vital needs of both statesman and soldier; distilled on the hills overlooking the noble James, on whose banks the first permanent English settlement in the Western world was established; spontaneous as the good will toward our distinguished guests which springs from our hearts and our lips—in this and by these tokens I propose the health of His Majesty the King of England."

To which Mr. Balfour, with the same limitations as to liquid, replied:

"I cannot rival the eloquence with which our host to-day has eulogized the legal wine of the country, but I can, with enthusiasm not less sincere than his own, propose a toast which has always heen dear to the hearts of all Englishmen, but never so dear as now—the President of the United States."—National Advocate.

ABOUT BLUSHING.

Some people are rather annoyed at the thought of having blushed. They need to be so no longer, for an eminent specialist has just declared that it requires brains to blush; that the ability to blush is in direct ratio to mental alertness, and that blushing is an achievement of which everyone should be proud, for it is a positive sign of an active hrain.

It is pointed out that idiots cannot blush, and neither can animals. Similarly, infants do not blush, although they learn to do so at an early age, just as soon, in fact, as the hrain begins to exercise its higher functions. Moreover, the hlush cannot he caused by any physical means; it is the mind which must he affected. We may hring the blush of anger to a child by a blow, or the flush of joy to an idiot hy the sight of food; but the true blush, that of shyness, modesty or shame, is purely emotional and has its origin in the hrain alone.

Besides, the further we descend in the seale of civilization, the fewer people we find who have the faculty of blushing. It seems to be the great hallmark of culture, and its peculiarly high development in women should go far to disprove the theory so often heid that they are inferior to men in intellectual powers.—Cork Examiner.

The Cause of Gray Hair.

Hair grows gray by reason of the same cause which produces dwarfed, yellow stalks of corn instead of strong, dark green growthy stalks—lack of nutrition. Hair, like the crops of the field, must he fed, either naturally from the scalp as the stalk of corn is fed from the soil, or artificial hair food may be applied as fertilizer is applied to the soil to enrich it. Unless your hair is supplied with natural oil—the food on which it subsists—you may expect it to cease its flourishing and lose its natural luster, color and beauty. The hair must have food on which to live. Don't neglect it or it will lose its luster, become stiff and coarse and eventually gray. Begin now and prevent tbe appearance of age by using a natural bair oil, "La Creole." It will keep the hair soft, fluffy and beautiful. Ask your dealer and if he can't supply you send $1.00 to the Van Vleet-Mansfield Drug Co., Memphis, Tenn., for a trial bottle.

PAY Loan Accounts With Liberty Bonds

The Executive Committee of the Board of Church Extension has instructed me to say that Liberty Bonds will be accepted in payment on loan aecounts. The order is made for the double purpose of aiding congregations in paying their debts, and to assist the Government in prosecuting the war for freedom.

CALOMEL MAKES YOU SICK, UGH!

"Dodson's Liver Tone" Better Than Calomel and Can Not Sailvate.

Calomel loses you a day! You know what calomel is. It's mercury; quicksilver. Calomel is dangerous. It crasbes into your hile like dynamite, cramping and sickening you. Calomel attacks the hones and should never he put into your system.

When you feel bilious, sluggish, constipated and all knocked out and believe you need a dose of dangerous calomel just remember tbat your druggist sells for 50 cents a large bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone, which is entirely vegetable and pleasant to take and is a perfect substitute for calomel. It is guaranteed to start your liver without stirring you up inside, and can not salivate.

Don't take calomel! It makes you sick the net day; it loses you a day's work. Dodson's Liver Tone straightens you right up and you feel great. Give it to the children because it is perfectly harmless and doesn't gripe.

People gazed at Paul when they found he was a Christian, and they always will gaze at a sure enough Christian, trying to he kind and thoughtful.—Dr. J. H. Eccleston.

END STOMACH TROUBLE, GASES OR DYSPEPSIA

"Pape's Diapepsin" makes sick, sour, gassy stomachs surely feel fine in five minutes.

If what you just ate is souring on your stomacb or lies like a lump of lead, or you belch gas and eructate sour, undigested food, or have a feeling of dizziness, hearthurn, fullness, nausea, bad taste in mouth and stomach, headache, you can get relief in five minutes by neutralizing acidity. Put an end to sucb stomach distress now hy getting a large fifty-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin from any drug store. You realize in five minutes how needless it is to suffer from indigestion, dyspepsia or any stomach disorder caused hy food fermentation due to excessive acid in stomach.—Adv.

Freckles

There is just one way to remove freckles and make the skin clear and beautiful. It is in this way that Kintho Cream gets rid of the old, freckled skin, gradually and harmlessly, and gives a soft, clear, while, youthful and beautiful skin, which of course should have no freckles.

Just get a box of Kintho Beauty Cream at any drug store and apply it night and morning as directed, and your freckles should begin to disappear in a day or two. It is well to get a cake of Kintho Soap also, as this helps to keep the freckles away, once Kintho has removed them.

37 Nevada Avenue
COLORADO SPRINGS, COLORADO.

DEAR FRIENDS:—Let me tell you about my sad misfortune. I am a poor crippled boy, fell and hurt my side and back when I was a little boy out hunting; went to bed and never got up. I have been down in bed 19 years, and it seems so bad to he so I can't walk to go anywhere. I want an automobile so I can be put out in it and taken out; think it would help me. I am going to try to sell enough Deep River Grit Whetstones to get me an automohlle. They are very fine and heautiful stones and put the sharpest edge on knives and tools. Kind friend, just think of what an awful helpless and desolate condition I am in, being here confined to my hed for 19 long weary years, suffering all the time and deprived of ever walking ahout any more in thls world. It breaks my heart, but I will try to trust in God and I hope when you hear about me you will help me get the car, and all I ask is that you send me one dollar for one of these stones, so I can soon get the car, and it will almost mean new legs for me. Please don't forget me, and may God hless you. Yours in misfortune,

JOE MORPHEW,

10-CENT "CASCARETS" FOR LIVER AND BOWELS

Cure Sick Headache, Constipation, Biliousness, Sour Stomach, Bad Breath—Candy Cathartic.

No odds how had your liver, stomach or bowels; how much your head aches, how miserable you are from constipation, indigestion, biliousness and sluggish bowels—you always get relief with Cascarets. They immedlately cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour, fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess hile from the liver and carry off the constipated waste matter and poison from the intestines and bowels. A 10-cent hox from your druggist will keep your liver and howels clean, stomach sweet and head clear for months. They work whiie you sleep.—Adv.

Assist Nature. There are times when you should assist nature. It is now undertaking to cleanse your system—if you will take Hood's Sarsaparilla the undertaking will be successful. This great medicine purifies and builds up as nothing else does.—Adv.

DRINK MORE WATER IF KIDNEYS BOTHER.

Eat Less Meat and Take Salts for Backache or Bladder Trouble—Neutralizes Acids.

Uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish, ache, and feel like lumps of lead. The urinc becomes cloudy; the bladder is irritated, and you may be obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night. When the kidneys clog you must help them flush off the body's urinous waste or you'll be a real sick person shortiy. At first you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, you suffer from backache, sick headache, dizziness, stomach gets sour, tongue coated and you feel rheumatic twinges when the weather is bad.

Eat less meat, drink lots of water; also get from any pharmacist four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity, also neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active. Druggists here say they sell lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

DEPENDABLE PEOPLE.

"Surely the Captain may depend on mc" may not he the hest thing to say before others, but, rightly meant, it is a noble self-commitment. Dependable people!—their price is above rubies. The world would be a dreary piace if there were not some Christians who need no prodding or watching, who can be told and then trusted.—Unidentified.

Renwar Relieves Rheumatism.

It is not necessary any longer for you to suffer those intense pains and aches of rheumatism. Renwar is a salts combination scientifically prepared to neutralize the uric acid in the blood, and thereby cure rheumatism. Don't wait until those rheumatic pains return. Buy a box of Renwar, and forget about that rheumatism. Renwar is an old, well-established remedy. It is prescribed by the best of physicians, and has thousands of friends. President L. A. Bauman, of Varley & Bauman Company, Nashville, says: "Renwar entirely relieved me of my rheumatism." For sale by druggists. Price 50 cents. Positively guaranteed by money-back offer. If your druggist doesn't carry Renwar in stock tell him to order it for you from WARNER DRUG COMPANY, NASHVILLE, TENN.

SPRING TREATMENT

Necessary to Purify Blood and Correct Weak, Run-Down Conditions.

Trying weather, exposure to storms, the grip, hard colds, pneumonia, fevers, diphtheria and other blood-poisoning, prostrating diseases leave the whole system sub-normal—below par—weak and slow—blood depleted and thin, with that tired feeling, poor appetite, backache, rheumatic pains, delicate digestive power or almost none at all. The ideal treatment is

Hood's Sarsaparilla—to be taken before meals—thoroughly to purify the blood and expel poisons, and

Peptiron—to be taken after meals—to put power into the blood, give strength, increase red corpuscles and restore tone, and do it quickly.

If there is biliousness, constipation, bad taste in the mouth, or "the blues," the liver is torpid. Take Hood's Pills—they rouse the liver and relieve all liver ills, are perfectly compatible with Hood's Sarsaparilla and Peptiron.

GILBERT, LA.

Dear Dr. Meek: I will give you a short note from the Gilbert charge. I am in my fourth year at Gilbert. I have spent three pleasant, and I believe profitable years here. Spiritually, we have had a wonderful growth. We have had over one hundred additions to the Church. We have also built one beautiful church. Everything is paid for. We have two of the best Sunday schools in the Conference. Every department is at work. For the support of the ministry we have gone from $540 to $1500. We have just closed a good meeting at Gilbert. We had Brother H. T. Young, our Conference evangelist, with us for the second time at Gilbert. Brother Young is still preaching a good gospel and reaching the hearts of men and women.

Our work was principally in the church as we had a great ingathering of church members last year. Hence, there were but few left on the outside to get. We received three grown people into the Church on profession of faith. Brother H. N. Wilson of Leesville, La., pastor of the Christian (Campbellite) Church, led the singing and did it well. Brother Wilson is a Christian gentleman. I had the pleasure of entertaining him in the parsonage, and enjoyed my fellowship with him. Young is safe and sound in the gospel he preaches and will do a good work anywhere he is given the cooperation of the pastor and people.

Well, Doctor, I will have to move this fall, if they don't move the time limit, and I hope they won't, not because I think this people would be burdened with me longer, but I think it is best for the Church to retain it.

Yours in His name,
J. R. ROY, P. C.

I will place no value on anything I have or may possess, except in its relation to the kingdom of Jesus Christ. —David Livingstone.

IF YOUR CHILD IS CROSS, FEVERISH, CONSTIPATED

Look, Mother! If tongue is coated, cleanse little bowels with "California Syrup of Figs."

Mothers can rest easy after giving "California Syrup of Figs," because in a few hours all the clogged-up waste, sour bile and fermenting food gently moves out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again.

Sick children needn't be coaxed to take this harmless "fruit laxative." Millions of mothers keep it handy because they know its action on the stomach, liver and bowels is prompt and sure.

Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which contains directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups.—Adv.

In connection with the Conference will be held a missionary Institute Wednesday afternoon, and on Wednesday a missionary sermon will be preached. It is important that every charge immediately elect its lay delegates, and that every member of the Conference be on hand at the opening session. Let all reports of pastors be well prepared, comprehensive and brief. To this end written reports are preferable. Every local preacher who can do so should attend, and if unable to attend it is proper that he should send in a written report of his ministerial labors.

TAKES OFF DANDRUFF, HAIR STOPS FALLING

Save your Hair! Get a small bottle of Danderine right now—Also stops itching scalp.

Thin, brittle, colorless and scraggy hair is mute evidence of a neglected scalp, of dandruff—that awful scurf.

There is nothing so destructive to the hair as dandruff. It robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life, eventually producing a feverishness and itching of the scalp, which if not remedied causes the hair roots to shrink, loosen and die—then the hair falls out fast. A little Danderine tonight—now—any time—will, surely save your hair.

Get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store. You surely can have beautiful hair and lots of it if you will just try a little Danderine. Save your hair! Try it!—Adv.

GIRLS! LEMON JUICE IS A SKIN WHITENER

How to make a creamy beauty lotion for a few cents.

The juice of two fresh lemons strained into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white makes a whole quarter pint of the most remarkable lemon skin beautifier at about the cost one must pay for a small jar of the ordinary cold creams. Care should be taken to strain the lemon juice through a fine cloth so no lemon pulp gets in, then this lotion will keep fresh for months. Every woman knows that lemon juice is used to bleach and remove such blemishes as freckles, sallowness and tan and is the ideal skin softener, whitener and beautifier.

Just try it! Get three ounces of orchard white at any drug store and two lemons from the grocer and make up a quarter pint of this sweetly fragrant lemon lotion and massage it daily into the face, neck, arms and hands.—Adv.

THE MAN OF FAITH.

The man of faith is the man who shapes his course by the stars rather than by the current, and who looks at the stars oftenest when the current runs swiftest. Small-minded men regard faith as a theory; large-minded men use it as a practical working power to get things not only done, but done right.—Arthur Hadley.

COUNCIL MEETING.

The Eighth Annual Meeting of the Woman's Missionary Council of the M. E. Church, South, will be held in Church Street Church, Knoxville, Tenn., April 3-11.

All communications in regard to entertainment should be addressed to Mrs. H. A. Evans, Marion Apartments, Knoxville, Tenn.

As the time draws near for the convening of this great missionary body our women should be much in prayer, for many changes have occurred since the last annual session and readjustment is needed along many lines. Our Council body needs as never before the guidance of Him who holds the reins of the world in his hands. The world is still torn asunder; and in many places the call of country is so loud and insistent that God's call is scarcely audible. It is a time when the soldiers of Christ must move steadily forward and hold up his banner, and teach a sin-sick world how to find the way to the great Physician.

As our women plan for the best expenditure of time, service and resources let us be praying that they may have his guiding hand throughout the session so that no mistakes shall be made and that the work may go on to his honor and glory; and through the message given by those in his service may the quickening power of God be revealed unto many and the time of lasting peace be hastened!

OFFICERS ELECTED AT LOUISIANA ANNUAL MEETING.

Our report of the Louisiana Annual Missionary Meeting was sent in before the election of officers took place, so we were unable to get same in last week. The election resulted as follows:

President, Mrs. C. F. Niebergall, New Orleans; First Vice President, Mrs. W. T. Cunningham, Natchitoches; Second Vice President, Mrs. R. H. Harper, Oakdale; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. A. P. Holt, Crowley; Recording Secretary, Mrs. R. E. Bobbitt, Mansfield; Treasurer, Mrs. J. J. Holmes, Minden; Supt. Study and Publicity, Mrs. Geo. Sexton, Shreveport; Supt. Social Service, Mrs. E. R. Kennedy, Lafayette; Supt. Supplies, Mrs. H. L. Baker, Plattenville.

District Secretaries.

Alexandria District, Mrs. R. W. Winstead, Natchitoches; Baton Rouge District, Mrs. C. S. Stewart, Baton Rouge; Lafayette District, Mrs. C. E. Fike, Rayne; Monroe District, Mrs. J. C. Calhoun, Rayville; New Orleans District, Mrs. I. N. Niebergall, New Orleans; Ruston District, Mrs. Joe Miller, Minden; Shreveport District, Mrs. Elmer Drew, Mansfield.

Alternates to Council Meeting, Mrs. R. W. Winstead and Mrs. W. T. Cunningham.

The ninth annual meeting will be held in Mansfield.

A WORD ABOUT THE CENTENARY.

Two years ago now, Dr. Pinson, our General Secretary, recalling that the missionary society of our Church was organized in 1819, asked authority of the General Board to observe the Centennial Anniversary of that event in some appropriate way. That authority was given and Dr. Pinson was directed to invite the Methodist Episcopal Church to a joint celebration. He presented that invitation to the General Conference at Saratoga, and it was promptly and most heartily accepted. Indeed, our Northern brethren mobilized for the celebration very much more promptly than we, and are now well under way.

Some months ago their Committee of One Hundred met in Niagara and decided to spend eight millions of dollars a year for the next five years for foreign missions, all this to be in excess of the present current appropriations.

Well, we of the Southern section felt that it was not best to actually begin the celebration until 1919, which was the anniversary year, and so we are just now getting ready for a meeting of our Committee of One Hundred. That committee is to meet in Memphis, on March 19-21. We have asked a hundred of the leading men and women of our Chruch to serve on this committee, and to outline for us a program for world evangelization. We have had made a survey of all our fields, the seven abroad and the field in America, ascertaining in these surveys both what we have and what we need. When these surveys are digested, we shall present to this meeting in Memphis in the form of an exhibit, the needs and opportunities of our work, as disclosed in these various surveys.

We have given each missionary the opportunity to say not only what he has in the field in which he is working, but what he needs. And these askings of the missionaries, digested and in as striking form as we can arrange, we shall ask this Committee to consider, and on the basis of these askings, to formulate for us a program of advance for five years, that shall be both adequate and practicable.

In the meantime, quietly, but very earnestly, we are seeking to develop the spiritual resources of the Church with reference to this celebration. The emphasis we are laying upon two lines of spiritual advance, namely, intercession and stewardship. Many believe that our Church has never attempted or even thought of anything so far reaching, or indeed, perhaps any Church in this country.

And why should not this large thing come along the line of missionary advance? You will be glad to know that, in spite of the war, this year closing in December has been the greatest year in our history. Our income this year was about $250,000 ahead of last year. This enables us to pay off the balance of $128,000 on our debt, so that now we owe no man anything save the love of Christ that constrains us to such endeavor for world evangelization as our Church has never known.

The women of our sister Church are not participating in the celebration. They have just held their jubilee, and felt that they could not enter into this Centennial plan. The women of our Church, however, will participate with the General Board. This is as it should be, since we have only one Board.

I trust that the women of your Conference, with their characteristic keenness and ability, have begun already to think and talk about the Centenary, and that its proper observance among you will mean no less a blessing to you than to the thousands, yea, millions, in behalf of whom, in many countries as well as in our own, we are seeking by God's help to mobilize our resources, material and spiritual.

E. H. RAWLINGS.

Do not dare to be so absorbed in your own life, so wrapped up in listening to the sound of your own hurrying wheels, that all this vast, pathetic music, made up of the mingled joy and sorrow of your fellow-men shall not find out your heart and claim it and make you rejoice to give yourself for them.—Phillips Brooks.

WOMEN ARE NEEDED TO HELP IN WAR.

Women can be usefully employed in nursing the wounded, in making up the soldiers' kits, and a thousand other ways. Many American women are weak, pale or anemic from woman's ills. For young girls just entering womanhood; for women at the critical time; nursing mothers and every woman who is "run-down," tired or over-worked—Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a special, safe and certain help. It can now be had in tablet form.

NASHVILLE, TENN.—"I have used Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and found it would do what it is recommended to do. It did me more good than the doctors; I had several and none of them did me any good. Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the only thing for weak, broken-down women. I feel like a new woman after taking it. I weigh 155 lbs. and never felt better in my life."—MRS. AGNES TATUM, 175 L. Green St.

WILTON, ALA.—"My little girl, Kathleen, had been sick with La Grippe and when she got over it she was taken with a breaking-out all over. We had the family doctor, but he did not seem to do her any good. I got a bottle of Dr. Pierce's Medical Discovery and gave it to her. One bottle cured her and she has been in better health than ever, and has never been bothered with the breaking-out since. I will recommend the 'Discovery' to anyone."—MRS. MAMIE MCDONOUGH.

"Give thanks with your hands."

Proof that Some Women do Avoid Operations

Mrs. Etta Dorion, of Ogdensburg, Wis., says:

"I suffered from female troubles which caused piercing pains like a knife through my back and side. I finally lost all my strength so I had to go to bed. The doctor advised an operation but I would not listen to it. I thought of what I had read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and tried it. The first bottle brought great relief and six bottles have entirely cured me. All women who have female trouble of any kind should try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."

How Mrs. Boyd Avoided an Operation.

Canton, Ohio.—"I suffered from a female trouble which caused me much suffering, and two doctors decided that I would have to go through an operation before I could get well.

"My mother, who had been helped by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, advised me to try it before submitting to an operation. It relieved me from my troubles so I can do my house work without any difficulty. I advise any woman who is afflicted with female troubles to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial and it will do as much for them."—Mrs. MARIE BOYD, 1421 5th St., N. E., Canton, Ohio.

FROM OUR NEW NAVAL CHAPLAIN.

Dear Doctor Meek: For eight years I have been serving charges in the Mississippi Conference. The last three years of this period were spent as pastor of the Summit charge. After being sent to Summit for the fourth time at the Mississippi Conference last December, I was called to service as a chaplain in the United States Navy. Since January 19, I have been engaged in this work. No pastor has left his charge with more love for his people than that which I have for the people of all denominations in the town of Summit. Nothing but the call of my country could have induced me to make the change.

In the work of a chaplain, I have found the greatest opportunity of my life, thus far, for doing good. The work is not very much like that of the pastorate. The men are moved more by what you do than by what you say. When the chaplain shows himself willing to share in the duties of the ship, whether hard or easy, he is taken as one of the crew, and others listen to his gospel with intense interest. Contrary to the views of some, I believe the religious standard in the U. S. Navy is equal to that of civilians. Verbal expressions of religious zeal and fervor are few, but the deepest reverence for God, honesty, virtue, truth, and discipline are manifest.

Doctor, I covet your prayers and those of my brethren of the Mississippi Conference, that I may have the grace and wisdom to bring men in closer touch with God.

I have missed the Advocate during these weeks when I could not get it because I have had no permanent address. I am now possibly settled for a while and am requesting that you send it to me on the U. S. S. Madawaska, in care of the Postmaster, N. Y. C.

I apologize for the length of this letter. Yours faithfully,

W. N. THOMAS,
Acting Chaplain, U. S. N.

A GOOD LOCATION.

Dear Dr. Meek: "Best report to date," said the "Elder" at the first quarterly conference of the Cochrane three-town charge, Columbus (Mississippi) District.

What happened later I am not informed, but already he had passed several top places of his territory. Fine district, of course, and sensible presiding elder. Few places excel this Tombigbee River location, on the A. T. and N., for good soil and nice appearance. Fine homes and splendid plantations are much in evidence and the people grade high for enlightenment, business enterprise, and for religious interest. Illiteracy is well-nigh an unknown quantity, and the same is true of small people.

"Everything in full" was the record last year for these churches, and the total average was $16 per member, for all purposes, with valuable additions to the church and numerous compliments to the parsonage. Not all either for last year, if plenty in finest firewood may count for this 1918, with choice donations in groceries, dressed rabbits, and duck meat.

A captivating future looks to be in easy reach for this richly endowed section. Unusual skill has been displayed here in fixing the foundations for a great community. The only impediment as seen by a casual observer is simply the mud, all of which crumbles into soil of the best productiveness so soon as touched by the springtime sun. But alas! for the winter. The "rock roads" and latest in walks are not yet at hand. The poet said, "Oh for a closer walk with God," and again "walking in sunlight all of my journey," and that "closer walk" sounds good and is reliable theology in any church, but if transposed to suit, it would be probably read—

"Oh, for a concrete walk to church,
To soothe my heavenly frame,
A street light shining on the march,
That leads me to the Lamb."

"People going to hell for the lack of straw," said a pioneer minister at an early day camp-meeting. But many here are shut away from God's house three months in the year, because of defective pavements and non-resisting soil, during which time business lags, Satan gains, and the problem of losses and progress becomes to be a question of deepest solocitude. "Endure hardness," says the Word, "as good soldiers of Jesus Christ," but nothing is remarked of enduring "softness." With the removal, however, of this slight inconvenience no territory could be finer, for the present big teams pass for much, and the train service and horseback must suffice for the remainder, and "he that overcometh shall inherit all things."

There is a new and elegantly furnished church at each of these railroad towns. And the historic "Hebron" is still intact, though now closed and silent. Multitudes once gathered at that former center to hear the word of life by the circuit man, or the fledgling licentiate, or again by the presiding elder and the Bishop. Near this sacred edifice sleeps the dust of numerous honored and useful Christian workers of a previous generation.

The "salt of the earth" and "the light of the world" are well represented at each of these later-day congregations and the best possible is the rule, even in winter, and it is charming, we are told, in the dry months of summer.

WHAT PRAYER IS.

Prayer is asking God to supply our need. Now, when all need is supplied, the necessity for prayer is, of course, taken away. Prayer is not consistent with a perfect state of being. It is the cry of infancy. In heaven you will be men. Prayer is the call of helplessness and the wail of sorrow. But in "that day" Christ will open Himself to you as a fountain of good, and then ye shall ask nothing. Meetness for that place consists in the spirit of praise, and not in the spirit of prayer.—S. Martin.

BROOKHAVEN AND ELSE.

Our little town is anticipating with eagerness the coming of the "elect ladies" from the various Missionary Societies of the Mississippi Conference. We are sure they will bring information to our own Society and stimulate our activities very materially. The Woman's Missionary Societies have achieved wonders, and their influence for good abounds. On the financial side they have placed in the Church treasury $25,164. This is just a little less than for the year 1916. What they have done in the way of distributing literature, in social service, in prison work, in reform measures, and in evangelistic endeavor would be difficult to estimate. May God continue to bless our splendid women!

On Tuesday, Feb. 26, we closed a meeting for the girls of Whitworth College. Dr. Cooper has more than two hundred girls in the noted college in our midst. Whitworth has a splendid faculty and a most excellent student body. The meeting ran for ten days and at the conclusion six of the girls were received on profession of faith into the Church. Personally, I am one of those who believe that the Christian life should be made conspicuous in education. The moral and religious ideals receive due emphasis here in this college. These fine girls give every token of moral excellence.

We have been keeping "open house" to all of our connectional friends. Brother J. V. Bennett greatly delighted our people with a good sermon some time since. His residence is in Brookhaven, while his evangelistic labors carry him "far hence." You know that our town has the distinction of having a college, and claims among her citizens the Chaplain of the State Penitentiary, a Conference evangelist, a presiding elder, and two delegates to the General Conference which meets in May, 1918.

The General Conference will likely consider the question of unification of American Methodism. I sincerely hope that it may, at some time, be accomplished. Many seem to think that our Northern brethren are not spiritual; that they are the possessors of a worldly spirit. But men like Vincent, Buckley, Mott, Fairbanks, McKinley, Borden P. Bowne, etc., are incontrovertible instances against such statements. There is nothing in geography that determines spiritualty or its absence. Northern and Southern men are sinners alike and they are saints alike. Again, some say that they are so different in ideas and in ideals from the Southern people. In all fairness, I submit that New York City in her moral ideals does not vary much more from "our ideal" of righteousness than does New Orleans, the only difference being chiefly in the size of the cities. The only difficulty, in my mind, in the question of unification is the one which has to do with the race relation. This difficulty is not insurmountable. Unquestionably, unification can be consummated, and I will rejoice in that day. Many, many objections can be registered against unification, but this is nothing new. No doubt many objecitons can be rightly lodged against even our present system of Church requirements. If we all work heart and soul for the bringing together of Methodism in America, as it relates to the purposes of the Commissioners, we will be glad of our stand. Men who seem to know the spirit of Methodists throughout the United States say that we will be one. May we not indulge the hope that our attitude will be such that no bitterness will result?

W. G. HENRY.

Brookhaven, Miss.

MEETING OF THE EDITORS OF THE CHURCH.

There was held in Nashville, February 28, a meeting of the editors of our Church, together with the members of the Missionary Centenary Commission to consider publicity plans of the centenary of missions. The Conference Editors present were: Dr. L. C. Branscomb, Alabama Christian Advocate; Dr. A. C. Millar, Arkansas Methodist; Dr. J. A. Burrow, Midland Methodist; Dr. Arthur Mather, St. Louis Christian Advocate; Dr. W. A. Swift, Central Methodist. Dr. Dan B. Brummitt, of Chicago, who has charge of the publicity work of the Centenary Commission of the Methodist Episcopal Church, was present and delivered several interesting addresses. The editors present at the meeting of last week pledged their co-operation in the publicity work of the centenary, a movement which has in it such possibilities of a real awakening of our people to the need of greater missionary effort. The following resolutions were adopted:

"With an appreciation of the enormous value of the opportunity afforded by the centenary of organized missions in the American Methodist Churches, we, the Conference of Southern Methodist Editors, put forth the following statement of aims and recommendations:

By reason of the magnitude of the subject, the wonder story of missionary growth, the recognized world significance of the work of the Church, especially in view of the challenge of the present crisis, we regard this centenary as unparalleled in the history of the American Church. The occasion, therefore, calls for a movement that shall literally reach every individual in Episcopal Methodism, and that in a way adequate to the enlistment of the whole Church in the service of the great ends in view.

In this centennial we recognize a comprehensiveness that calls for the fullest commitment of the Church to a mighty spiritual enterprise, keeping in the second the mere getting of money, as vastly important as that is, and placing the strongest possible emphasis upon the cultivation of the prayer life, the life of personal service and Christian stewardship.

The needs of the centenary enterprise convince us afresh of the very great value of the Church press as a standing and long-proved means of publicity, and we pledge ourselves to the fullest cooperation in the campaign of publicity and education by which alone the comprehensive program of the centenary is to be carried out. We place ourselves in an attitude of utmost harmony and helpfulness toward the Centennial Commission.

We record our gratification at the presence of Dr. Dan B. Brummitt, editor of the Epworth Herald and now committed to the direction of the Church Publicity Department of the Centenary Commission of the Methodist Episcopal Church, our delight and profit at his utterances and our joy in contact with his fraternal spirit.

We approve the proposal that a thoroughly organized Publicity Bureau be established in connection with our Centenary Commission; that a competent director be employed to give his entire time to the work, and that the Board of Missions be requested to provide amply for the maintenance of the Bureau."

SOME UNIFICATION ECHOES.

The great overshadowing question now before Southern Methodists—the most important since 1844—is that of unification. With the fourth meeting of the Joint Commission in St. Louis and the General Conference in Atlanta so near at hand, and with the future destiny of our beloved Church trembling in the balance, the interest of our people in this momentous issue is deep and widespread; we, therefore, make no apology for taking considerable space in this number of the Advocate to let our readers see what some of our Southern Methodist editors are saying about the pending scheme that has been in part devised for uniting the two Episcopal Methodisms.

Among other things, the Texas Christian Advocate, which has been an ardent supporter of the union cause, in its leading editorial, last week, said:

"With the proposed membership, powers and meetings of the Regional Conferences we express deep disappointment. The proposed plan is a radical departure from the thing both Churches had in mind when it was proposed that there should be Quadrennial Conferences. The proposed jurisdictions, on the one hand, are too large to admit of the efficiency of administration which Dr. Goucher had in mind when he made his celebrated speech at Saratoga Springs, and, on the other hand, the membership of the Regional Conferences is too small to make these conferences truly representative. Instead of ministering to local self-government the diminished membership of these conferences will commit the government of our various regions into the hands of an oligarchy.

"That these words are not too strong will be seen if we trace the evolution of the Regional Conferences into the plan now proposed, as this evolution is expressed in the proceedings of the Traverse City session of the Commission. The first thing which came before the Traverse City meeting of the Commission was reports of committees. Concerning the membership of Regional Conferences the committee reported as follows: 'Each Regional Conference shall be composed of one ministerial and one lay delegate from and elected by each Annual Conference of its jurisdiction for each 5000 church members in full connection; * * * provided that no Regional Conference, after its first session, shall be composed of less than 250 nor more than 400 ministerial and lay delegates in equal numbers.' Concerning the powers of the Regional Conference, authority was granted to do eight specified things: to elect Bishops, direct and control its benevolent organizations, direct and control its educational enterprises, direct and control the local Church press, fix boundaries of the Annual Conferences, promote the temporal and spiritual interests of the Church, provide for the administration of the Discipline and to make rules and regulations for other local affairs, provided, of course, that such rules should not conflict with any rule or regulation of the General Conference. Concerning meetings it was proposed that Regional Conferences should assemble on the first Wednesday of May, 1920, and thereafter on the same day and month every second year.

"We think that our readers will agree with us that Regional Conferences of this character would answer the requirements of local self-government such as the General Conferences had in mind when they adopted the tentative plan which provided for Quadrennial Conferences.

"The first intimation that this plan should be changed was by a Southern member of the Commission, who suggested that the Regional Conferences should be made administrative and electoral in character rather than legislative. And if this be the case, said he, why should these conferences meet oftener than once in every four years and why should not the delegates elected to the General Conference from Annual Conferences in the regional jurisdictions constitute the members of the Regional Conferences themselves? These suggestions swept the Commission from the moorings which had been given it by the two General Conferences.

"The first thing to be done, therefore, in conformity with these new suggestions, was to reduce the membership of the Regional Conferences to a point which makes them no longer truly representative. For, if this were not done, we should have a General Conference which is entirely unwieldy. Hence Regional Conferences having from 250 to 400 members, as contemplated by the committee of the Commission, must be reduced to conferences having little more than 100. According to this plan Regional Conference No. 1 would have 144 members; No. 2, 114; No. 3, 126; No. 4, 154; No. 5, 100; No. 6 (the region in which Texas is placed), 110.

"The next change was to prescribe the time of meetings of these Regional Conferences and the time should be immediately after the organization of the General Conference; other meetings may be held if these conferences so elect.

"Dr. John M. Moore, who spoke in our pages last week, is in agreement with the present plan of the Commission when he takes for granted that the Regional Conferences will have only one meeting during a quadrennium and that at the time and place of the session of the General Conference.

"This means that our Bishops from the region in which is situated Missouri, Arkansas, Louisiana, Oklahoma, Texas, New Mexico and Arizona, for example, shall be elected by 110 men. Even a bare majority, namely 56, may elect for this large group of States and their larger group of Conferences their quota of Bishops. This small number, too, may legislate for this great group of States, if indeed there shall be any legislation on local matters.

"In other words, if the eighteen or twenty Congressmen from Texas should resolve themselves into a body which should undertake the functions of our State primaries, nominating the Governor, Attorney General, Treasurer, Comptroller, etc., and in addition should undertake the functions of the State Legislature, legislating for the widely-separated communities of Texas—if these Texas Congressmen should do this at Washington, then we should have a situation precisely analagous to the plan now proposed by the Joint Commission for the Regional Conferences. And, of course, this will not do. It would largely destroy the principle of local self-government and would commit to an oligarchy the vital matters of government."

In a luminous editorial in his issue of March 14, Dr. L. S. Massey, the brilliant editor of the Raleigh Christian Advocate, speaks in part as follows:

"The plan proposed is so complex and many-sided that it will require considerable discussion to get clearly before the mind of the Church what it is. A casual reading will not get at the inwardness of what it involves, and the Church will do well if it discovers before the actual attempt to operate it (if such attempt ever is made) what the practical effect will be in the life of the Church. One thing is certain: it will be revolutionary. It will break up the existing alignments. North Carolina, for instance, will be tied up with Maryland and Delaware to the north of us and cut off from the institutions and agencies to the south of us with which we have been co-operating. That this would be a jar to our Church work it will be well to realize in advance. It is like pulling up a tree and resetting it—a thing that sensible men do not undertake unless there is some very definite advantage to be gained by it.

"Furthermore, there are some very radical departures in policy and principles of Church government from what was in the mind of our Church at Oklahoma; at least, from what we understood the action of that body to signify. The Regional Conference has very greatly changed type. The number has grown from three to six, but that is the smallest part of the change that has taken place. Indeed, we gather that the purport of increasing the number and reducing the size was to diminish their significance as an integral part of the Church's machinery. We had never dreamed that the membership of the Regional Conferences should be the same as the membership of the General Conference, or that the former should meet at the same time and place as the latter. We had thought of the Regional Conferences as meeting always within their own bounds and having a membership entirely separate from the membership of the General Conference. We had expected them to have some real range of authority within their bounds. We had thought of the Regional Conference as having a much larger membership than the same territory would have in the General Conference, and that its power would control everything within its bounds save the larger activities of the Church. But—the mountain has been in labor, and, behold, a mouse! Aaron's weak excuse to Moses on a certain occasion simply forces itself into our mind: "I cast it into the fire, and there came out this calf." The heart of the Regional Conference has been cut out. We understand that the Northern Church was opposed to the whole idea, and it has carried its point. If the plan should be adopted, we should look for the very name to drop from the Discipline of the reorganized Church within a decade or two, as a useless wheel in the machinery."

THE PASTOR'S SUNDAY NIGHT.

Rest him, O Father! Thou didst send him forth
With great and gracious messages of love;
But thy ambassador is weary now,
Worn with the weight of his high embassy;
Now care for him, as thou hast cared for us
In sending him; and cause him to lie down
In thy fresh pastures, by the streams of peace.
Let thy left hand be now beneath his head,
And thine upholding right encircle him,
And, underneath, the everlasting arms
Be felt in full support. So let him rest,
Hushed like a little child, without one care;
And so give thy beloved sleep to-night.

Rest him, dear Master! He hath poured for us
The wine of joy, and we have been refreshed.
Now fill his chalice, give him sweet new draughts
Of life and love, with thine own hand; be thou
His ministrant to-night; draw very near
In all thy tenderness and all thy power.
O, speak to him! Thou knowest how to speak
A word in season to thy weary ones,
And he is weary now. Thou lovest him.
Let thy disciple lean upon thy breast,
And, leaning, gain new strength to "rise and shine."

Rest him, O loving Spirit! Let thy calm
Fall on his soul to-night. O holy Dove,
Spread thy bright wing above him, let him rest
Beneath its shadows; let him know afresh
The infinite truth and might of thy dear name—
"Our Comforter!" As gentlest touch will stay
The strong vibrations of a jarring chord,
So lay thy hand upon his heart, and still
Each overstraining throb, each pulsing pain,
Then, in the stillness, breathe upon the strings,
And let thy holy music overflow
With soothing power his listening, resting soul.

ALL MAY BE SAVED.

Let none stand back as if their sins were too great to be forgiven, or their case too bad to be cured. Jesus is an Advocate who never lost a cause, a Physician who never lost a patient.—Dr. Guthrie.

THE WORD ENDURES.

The Word of the Lord endureth forever. What is it that is set against the withering grass and the fading flower for permanence? Is it ancient oaks and cedars? Is it everlasting mountains and enduring hills? Is it the unchangeable innumerable stars, which earthly forces cannot reach or touch? What deep-founded, widespreading mass of material strength shall it be? It is a word—the Word of the Lord. What so impalpable—unseen, unfelt, something that trembles only in the air! Yet here the seat of immutability is found. This endures. —Robert Rainy.

FELLOWSHIP BY PRAYER.

Above all other means, prayer is the most efficient in creating and strengthening the consciousness of God's presence. The very act of prayer brings us into fellowship with him to whom we speak. Think of prayer as Christ did when he sought the companionship as well as the guidance of his Father. It is not a duty but a privilege, not a matter of petitioning but of fellowship, seeking the inspiration and strengthening that comes with the sense of being with one who is an unfailing, sympathetic and sufficient friend, in whose love is no flaw and whose wisdom never errs.—The Presbyterian.

ABROGATING THE FOURTH COMMANDMENT.

The great question to be met and resisted by God's people to-day bears upon Sabbath observance. This scribe has referred before to the growing attitude in Britain and Canada (and in parts of our own country) to set aside the Fourth Commandment in favor of agricultural work and workers. The Congregationalist (Boston) deprecates the action taken by some Unitarian churches that have abandoned their morning service, in order that their people may work in gardens; but it follows this deprecation with the question as to why tillers of the soil cannot rise earlier on the Sabbath morning and do their gardening before church time. Yet these New England Unitarians and Congregationalists are both descended from men who braved the wrath of kings in order to hold fast to the teachings of the King of kings. All honor to the Governor of Connecticut, who, we understand, vetoed a bill passed by that Legislature permitting Sunday work!—The Presbyterian.

THE DEADLOCK, AND ELSE.

By Col. E. C. Reeves, a member of the Commission on Unification of the M. E. Church, South.

The embargo on giving to the public what happened in the late session of the Joint Commission on Unification has been lifted. The Secretaries, Drs. Thomas and Harris, have issued a statement giving much information as to what the Commission did during its late session in the city of Savannah. Much more might have been given out by the Secretaries. Some misleading statements have appeared in the public prints: therefore, I deem it advisable to give some unpublished facts that the membership at large of the Church which I represent in part may be the better informed and intelligently reach their own conclusions.

At Savannah, the Negro problem for the first time was taken up and elaborately discussed by the Commission in more than forty set speeches, running through a debate of more than six days, when a special committee of eight was appointed to formulate and report to the full commission a plan for the settlement of the most vexed question of all. That Committee, after a prolonged conference, made a report through Judge Rogers, of New York, a plan containing a basis for the solving of the Negro problem. It was understood that Judge Rogers was the author of the plan submitted, hence it has been called the "Rogers Plan," although he was not the author of all the provisions relating to the Negro question, and not the author of the general plan for unification published in full by the Secretaries. My remarks will be almost exclusively directed to that part of the general plan bearing on the Negro problem now popularly called the "Rogers" Plan.

It will be noted that the Rogers Plan makes a mixed, or negroized, Church. It provides for Negro Annual Conferences which, with certain other foreign Annual Conferences, will constitute Central Conferences. Without going into all the details of the composition of the Negro, or Central, Conference in the United States, when it reaches the number of 150,000 members it shall have power to elect its own Bishops, limited in their work to the jurisdiction of the Central Conference; and among other powers and privileges is to have the right to elect five ministerial and five lay delegates to the General Conference of the Unified Church. Any Central Conference, with the approval of the General Conference, may become a Jurisdictional General Conference, with certain defined powers and privileges, among which are the right to have a member on the Judicial Council, and representation on all the Connectional Boards in which its interests are involved, and to elect not exceeding five ministerial and five lay delegates to the General Conference who are to be allowed to speak on all distinctively connectional matters, but they shall not have the right to vote in a General Conference; but when such Central Conference shall have a membership of 600,000 it "shall" become a Jurisdictional General Conference. (Italics mine).

After considerable debate of the Rogers Plan, it being evident that there was a positive disagreement between the two sets of Commissioners, a separate vote was ordered—the first in the history of the commission—and each Commission retired for consultation and vote. The Southern Commissioners held their meeting and conferred. Of course, it was known "to a dead certainty" that the African M. E. Church, having a membership of more than 600,000; and that the African Zion M. E. Church with its more than 500,000 members; and the Colored M. E. Church, having a membership of more than 240,000—independent Negro Methodist Churches—would never surrender their independence and voluntarily join the proposed unified Church and be dominated by the whites, because to do so they would have to surrender their manhood and self-respect. Therefore, it was self-evident that to adopt the Rogers Plan would be to cut off all Negroes from help by the new Church except the class now members of the M. E. Church, who (they and their ancestors) have for fifty years received millions upon millions of dollars as benefactions from the M. E. Church; that their financial aid would be increased, while the Colored M. E. Church organized by the M. E. Church, South, fifty years ago, and meagerly aided by said Southern Methodist Church through the half-century, would be cut off absolutely from financial help by the new Church. To meet, if possible, such an unfortunate state of affairs, Dr. Lamar formed and presented an amendment to the Rogers Plan, in substance, that the fund that would be raised to aid the Negroes in the territory now covered by the Annual Conferences in the South and West should be directed in its application by the Conferences in that territory. The Rogers Plan, as amended, was put to a vote in the Southern Commission, and was carried by a vote of nineteen ayes over six noes.

The minority votes were cast by Bishops Candler, Denny and Murrah, and Judge White, of Louisiana, General Samford, of Alabama, and by this writer, because the said six believed they were instructed by their General Conference to work for the organization of the Negroes into a "separate organization," and the Rogers Plan was outside of, and unauthorized by, the Oklahoma General Conference; and I believe I am within the facts in saying that the judgment of each of the minority six is in full accord with the action of the General Conference on the Negro question.

The Northern Commissioners, we were informed, were seriously divided on the Rogers Plan, not, however, for the same reasons that divided the Southern Commissioners, but finally agreed to adopt the Rogers Plan tentatively as containing the basis for the settlement of the Negro problem, with the proviso that in joint session amendments would be in order. And thus for the first time separate votes were ordered and taken.

A joint session followed. Two amendments were promptly offered by the Northern Commissioners; one to increase the Negro representation in the General Conference; the other to substitute the word "may" for the word "shall" where it was provided in the report of the Committee of eight that when a Central Conference reached a membership of 600,000 it "shall become a Jurisdictional General Conference." Those proposed amendments brought on a lively and protracted discussion. The Commission again resolved itself into separate sections for conference and action on those two proffered amendments. The Southern Commissioners, after due consideration, determined by a vote without a dissent, one being absent, and one present but not voting, to stand firmly against the two amendments offered. This was the second and last separate vote taken by the Southern Commissioners.

The Northern Commissioners resolved to stand by the proposed amendments. Then followed a joint meeting, and the most spirited debate in the history of the Commission ensued. It was "a battle royal." The two little words, "may" and "shall" were the storm-center. Hot gas, but not poisoned, permeated the atmosphere. Simpson, of Philadelphia, a strong lawyer, in a vehement speech declared that he would never consent for the word "shall" to remain, and "that is my ultimatum." Dr. Lamar, than whom none on the Commission is an abler debater on the floor, fired heavy shot and shell, and declared he would never consent to the substitution of "may" for "shall," and laid that down as his ultimatum. Then ultimatums flew right and left, and almost as thick and fast as brick-bats in a street riot. The minority six took no part in the heated debate. It was no fight of theirs. To them the "scrimmage" was almost funny, and would have been but for the seriousness of the matters involved which are attracting the profound attention of all Christians throughout the country. Besides, the minority six had their little ultimatum, which they were guarding with jealous care, it being the exact size of the Oklahoma deliverance on the Negro problem. The fact that a deadlock had been reached flitered through the minds of all, apparently, and the peculiar feature was that the interlock was between those who were at one to have the Negro incorporated into the proposed unified Church. A caim ensued, and men with hopeless looks gazed into each other's faces as the expression went from one to another, "There is no hope for an agreement, and we might as weli adjourn sine die!" But as a last resort some one suggested that we should meet again at some future time and make one more trial to get together on a plan, and a motion was made and seconded to that effect. Dr. Lamar ied the opposition to the motion in a strong speech, and urged that as no one saw any prospect of an agreement, it would be folly to meet, and that the Southern Methodist Church, not so strong financially as her sister Church, had been taxed to the limit. His earnest speech availed not. A decided majority of the Southern Commissioners, and all of the Northern wing save one, believing we should make one more effort to agree on some plan to put before our General Conference, voted to have another session of the Commission on the 10th of April next, in the City of St. Louis, and so voted. The Commission then adjourned, and its work in Savannah passed into history.

Now, be it remembered that not a single article, nor a single section of any article, in the whole general plan has been passed by each section of the Commission, and then by a majority vote of the whole Commission, as required by the rule adopted. And how a single member voted on any question has not been recorded. What has been tentatively passed, as published, will meet, much of it, with strenuous opposition, especially when submitted to the separate action of the Southern Commissioners. The Lamar amendment to the Rogers plan was never reached before the Joint Commission, and if it ever is it will provoke heated controversy, with almost certain defeat.

I have sought to state the unvarnished facts, and pretty much in the order of their occurrence, that the membership at large of our Southern Church may reach an intelligent conclusion.

Some write as if the key to unlock the deadlock when in the St. Louis session had been found. We shall see what we shall see.

It is a matter for congratulation and comfort, that although the Commission was enveloped in a very storm of debate in Savannah, no unkind word was spoken by any brother; and if every member of the Commission is not a gentleman through and through, he kept the ugly fact securely concealed.

THE PLAN OF UNIFICATION.

Some Aspects.

By Rev. Wm. W. Woollard.

The Commissioners at Savannah, their labors not quite completed, have issued to the Church a statement of the results of their negotiations up to date. By far the greater part of the proposed plan for unification has been "tentatively" agreed on. Some of the important parts of the remainder, principally that of the Negro's new relationship, have been accepted as a basis for later negotiations; the other are detail arrangements awaiting the final adoption of "tentative" or "basic" agreements. But all in all, the final report is in a state approaching completion. It is not likely that the views of extremists or obstructionists, on either side, will hinder a final agreement and report. Of course it is yet possible that the faithful and earnest Commissioners, after all their labors and prayers, may be unable to conclude their work before the General Conference in May. That which is probably the most difficult and delicate of the problems awaits a final fixing, although they appear to be very near an agreement. Let us prayerfully and patiently await the final outcome.

In the meantime, however, the Commissioners desire, as I understand, that the Church express its views on the plan, incomplete as it is. Out of a deep interest, and as an humble member of the Church, I have given their incomplete plan a judicial and careful study; and I submit the following exposition of some of its aspects.

Let it be understood that for brevity's sake I have considered the "tentatively adopted," and the conditional or suggested, parts as of equal force, assuming that the latter has the favor of the Commission, since they embrace it in their report. Modifications in details will scarcely alter accepted basic principles.

1. The Regional Conference.

It is proposed to divide the united Church into six Regional Conferences, self-governing in all regional and non-connectional affairs. In three of these Regions the Church, North, has a preponderating, an overwhelming majority, in the other three the Church, South, likewise has an overwhelming majority. That our Northern brethren have shown a magnanimous faith in our fairness is evidenced by the following facts as to majorities in these Regions. In Region No. 2, embracing from Delaware to Kentucky, our Church has 1583 ministers against their 857; and 529,451 members against their 224,741, or quite twice as many. In Region No. 3, from South Carolina to Mississippi, our Church has 2799 ministers against their 216; and 906,136 members against their 69,693, or more than ten times as many. In Region No. 6, from Missouri to New Mexico, our Church has 2718 ministers against their 751; and 673,819 members against their 145,822, or more than four times as many. These figures include only white members, and I take them from this year's Year Books.

In the other three Regions, Nos. 1, 4, and 5, there would fall, of our members, nearly all in the far west, under their Regional control 217 ministers and 28,801 members. While we would give over to their majorities this comparatively small number, they would turn over to the three Regions where we have these heavy majorities, 1854 ministers and 410,256 members. In the three Southern Regions there would be a total white membership of 2,555,011, while in the three Northern Regions there would be a white membership of 2,914,782. This is not a very great difference after all! Some one has suggested that our Church was in great danger of being absorbed. In the light of these facts, where really is the greater absorption?

It would appear, from many considerations, that the six Regional Conferences are more desirable than the three or four suggested by the Chattanooga meeting. Each Region, electing its own Bishops and other connectional officers, would have them, when elected, nearer at hand for administrative purposes. Each Region would have better opportunity to select their best for these places of large responsibility, and consequently there would be fewer misfits. Having the better chance to get acquainted with the stronger men of the Regions, we would not be forced, by lack of acquaintance, to go so very largely to college men and connectional offices for our Bishops. Others, strong men of the pastorate, fresh from the pastor's duties and understanding his latest problems, would have the opportunity to become known over the Region and have a chance of election to the episcopacy. As it now is about the only men who have the chance to be known throughout the Church are the connectional officers and college men. These brethren are capable men, whom we love and respect, and who would doubtless serve us acceptably; but would it not be well in the reorganization to have an eye to so forming the Regions as that the stronger men of the pastorate shall not be unknown to the members of the elective body?

The Bishop having supervision of, say, North Mississippi would not live in Virginia or Texas, but much nearer to, if not in, his episcopal district. Certainly it is most to be desired that pastors live within the bounds of their charges, whether stations or circuits. Instances have been where the presiding elders were complained of for not living in the bounds of their districts. Why should not a Bishop live in the neighborhood at least of his episcopal district? Small Regional Conferences, such as are proposed, and episcopal districts and parsonages in them (i. e. residential administration as well for the Bishops as for the rest of us), would bring all to a parity and give the Church a more efficient administration. Methodism does not need "absent treatment."

2. The Protection of the Minority.

In the reorganization the Church, South, with a total membership in the United States of 2,121,673, is proposing to unite with the Church, North, with a like membership of 3,680,939. In enacting legislation, in interpreting and administering that legislation, and in directing the general affairs of the united Church, there is a well grounded desire on the part of the minority for adequate protection against the possibly partial judgments of the majority. Sectional feelings are not yet entirely abated. This does not arise, I apprehend, from any distrust of the Christian integrity or probity of the majority, but from apprehension of what may be the consequences of modes of action and habits of thought, that is mental attitudes. Besides it is a safe provision in any organization, and, if not pushed so far as to make possible a tyranny of the minority, may be of the greatest value. In the minds of some of our people the fear of domination by our Northern brethren, expressed in different terms, such as "being absorbed" or "swallowed up," cools their ardor for unification. What protection against such domination does the proposed plan give the minority? Is it amply adequate in every respect and in each department of the new government of the Church? Let us note the following citations from the proposed plan.

(1) The written Constitution defines the departments of government and limits and restricts their powers on a basis equitable to all. In it our connectionalism is thoroughly conserved, yet ample provision is made for local (i. e. regional) self-government. The constitutional provides that it shall not be altered or amended without a two-thirds vote of all the members of the Annual Conferences and a like vote of the next ensuing General Conference. This makes provision for the stability of this magna charta, guarding against the possible encroachments of the majority. Article XI, Section 1.

(2) In the matter of statutory law, the Constitution provides that when two Regional Conferences shall so request, a vote on any pending motion or resolution in the General Conference shall be taken by Regional delegations, and no motion or resolution shall be enacted into law which does not have a majority, four out of six, of the Regional Conference delegations. Article IX, Section 4, Paragraph 4. This is a remarkable concession to the minority.

(3) The reorganized Church in the United States, among the white people, is divided into six Regional Conferences, as indicated above, in three of which the present Church, South, has an overwhelming majority, and in the other three the Church, North, is likewise in the majority. Article VI, Section 1.

(4) The Regional Conferences cannot be divided, or territory taken from any, without the consent of the Region involved, save by the concurrent action of two successive General Conferences. Article IX, Section 2, Paragraph 6.

(5) Each Regional Conference shall have full legislative power over all regional affairs within its area, and can make rules and regulations not contrary to those of the General Conference for the control of connectional affairs. Article VI, Section 3, Paragraph 2, 4. They shall receive, own and control all colleges, benevolent institution, etc., within the territory of each not otherwise (as by charter) legally provided for. Paragraph 3.

(6) Each Regional Conference elects its own Bishops, who shall be confirmed by the General Conference, unless two-thirds of the General Conference oppose. Article VI, Section 3, Paragraph 1.

(7) No Bishop shall be assigned to residence within any Regional Conference without its consent; and no Bishop may have supervision of an Annual Conference without the consent of the Bishops resident within the Regional Conference. Article IX, Section 2, Paragraph 7.

(8) No Bishop may be retired by the General Conference for inefficiency or unacceptability, after due notice and a proper hearing, without the concurrence of the Regional Conference in which his official residence is fixed, saved by a two-thirds majority of the General Conference. Article IX. Section 2, Paragraph 7.

(9) In the composition of the Judicial Council, the supreme court of the Church, each Regional Conference has two members, with three at large, elected by the General Conference. Article X. Section 2.

3. The Negro in the Reorganization.

Does the proposed plan so take account of the Negro as to develop a race consciousness, initiative and independence in him, and at the same time afford him the help the white man owes him, as the weaker brother? Unquestionably it has this clearly in view. Note the following provisions:

(1) The Negro is organized, under the one constitution and the connectional laws, into his own church societies and conferences, apart from the white people. He is to choose his own Bishops (subject, for the present, to the two-thirds approval of the General Conference), who are to preside over only the Negro jurisdiction. The C. M. E. Church, and any other Negro Methodist Episcopal Church, is invited to come into this proposed organization. Article VII and Recommendation 2.

(2) His legislative body, the Central Conference, is to have power to make laws for his jurisdiction, subject to the limitations of the Constitution. Article VII, Section 4, Paragraph 3.

(3) He is not given Annual Conference representation in the General Conference as the white Annual Conferences have. He is granted a fixed number of five ministerial and five lay delegates from the entire Negro jurisdiction. Article IX, Section 1, Paragraph 1b. (To illustrate the difference: The North Mississippi Annual Conference would have in the General Conference a representation of only two less than the entire Negro Central Conference, with its 19 Annual Conferences and 350,000 members.) When the membership of the Central Conference reaches 600,000 it shall become a Jurisdictional General Conference, and the ten delegates will lose the power to vote and retain power to speak only on matters relating to their jurisdiction. Article VIII, note Section 3, Paragraph 3.

(4) The Central Conference is not accorded membership on connectional boards; but when it becomes a Jurisdictional General Conference membership on such boards, where its interests are involved, is permitted. Article VIII, Section 3, Paragraph 2.

(5) He is, under no conditions, accorded membership in the Judicial Council, the supreme court of the Church. Article X, Section 2.

(6) The Jurisdictional General Conference, toward which the ultimate relationship of the Negro looks, will be an associate General Conference for the Negro, with the same powers within and for itself as the white General Conference, yet limited by the Constitution. He will then have the independent government of his own organization. Our General Conference will then have ten delegates to their Jurisdiction, with power to speak, but not to vote, and they will have reciprocal representation to ours. This, with their representation on the boards where their interests are involved, being the binding nexus between the two Conferences. Article VIII, Section 2. The Central Conference, by a majority vote and the concurrence of its Annual Conferences, with the approval of the General Conference, may become a Jurisdictional General Conference at any time. Article VIII, Paragraph 1.

4. The Judicial Council.

Our Northern brethren have come entirely to our point of view on the principle of the General Conference not interpreting the constitutionality of its own acts. A body absolutely independent of the General Conference will have power to arrest any legislation which is believed to be unconstitutional. The provisions for final judicial decisions on both constitutional and statutory law are far in advance of what now obtains in either Church. Article X.

(1) In the membership of the Judicial Council each Regional Conference has two members, being six from the South and six from the North, with three, possibly Bishops, elected by the General Conference. Article X, Section 2. Members of the Council are not eligible to membership in the General or Regional Conference.

(2) It shall "review upon appeal on constitutional grounds the acts of the General and Regional Conferences—hear and determine questions of law and all other appeals coming to it in the course of lawful procedure" from the various conferences when taken by at least one-fifth of the Conference. It does not require, as now, that an appeal must be taken by a majority. Article X, Section 7. It is, of course, the appellate court of all trials of ministers.

(3) It shall have power to arrest the action of any connectional board when appeal is taken by one-fifth of its members, or by the Bishops. Section 7, Paragraph 2.

(4) It shall meet at each session of the General Conference, and may meet as often as conditions require. Section 10.

THE SECOND MILE—A MISSIONARY SPECIAL.

The steady increase in the number and amount of missionary specials is the best evidence of a real interest in missions. The assessment speaks for those who do only what is required. Some churches do well to pay in full, but for most churches this is merely reaching the minimum of duty. We rejoice in the increasing number of churches that "pay out," but more in the growing number that go beyond the minimum; that give not because they must, but because they want to; that let their hearts and consciences guide them, and not the low standard of the assessment.

Specials Dependable.

It used to be thought that specials were uncertain. That accounts in part for the term "special." With us the terms "regular income" and "specials" were understood as indicating respectively permanent and fluctuating sources of income. The General Secretary contended that specials properly handled might be a source of income as dependable and permanent as assessments. At his suggestion the Board adopted "regular specials" and made them a part of the regular income for appropriation. It has been demonstrated that the income from that source is as steady and constant as from any other.

In the past four years the income from specials of all classes has amounted to $695,869. From our regular specials alone we have realized during the quadrennium $495,978. This income from regular specials has enabled us to keep up our appropriations and at the same time pay our debt. Without it we could not have done either. Specials have saved the day.

The Habit Grows.

The increase in specials is most encouraging. This is particularly true of the income from regular specials which, for the past quadrennium, was $166,075 over the preceding quadrennium. Last year was our best year in regular specials. The income from that source was $156,712.01. This was an advance of $31,792.94 over the year before.

The number of specials grows steadily. Four years ago we reported 600. Now we have 1100, and new ones are being recorded daily.

The new specials, regular and independent, assigned in 1917 amounted to $104,569. Only 34 regular specials were discontinued in 1917, amounting to $5895, against 162 in 1916 amounting to $26,659. In the first two months of 1918 we recorded 73 new specials, aggregating $29,985.

It is important that we continue to emphasize this class of gifts. They feed the fires that keep the ship going. They enlarge the annual appropriations. They contribute to steady and normal growth. They keep the commissary close up to the front line.

The Goals for 1918.

We have two goals for regular specials for 1918: First, new assignments, $100,000; second, income, $200,000. These figures are not extravagant. An increase of $38,450 on the first will make it, while $43,000 will bring the income up to the second. They can be reached, but you will be needed. Let all hands lay to and help. There are single conferences that can give us the $43,000, while new specials ought to be coming in from all parts of the Church sufficient to reach the one hundred thousand. Many have already made a fine start, and we are counting on a host of others to join in. RIGHT NOW is the time to begin, and then you will have the whole year in the joy of working out your special, and there is nothing like it for that, either.

Reporting.

REPORT EARLY. The year is passing. There is no time to waste. REPORT FREQUENTLY. Don't hold the money. The Board needs it. REPORT PLAINLY AND EXPLICITLY. Every special should have full credit for all that is paid on it. It is important that our records be kept accurately and up to date. You can help us. When you send money to your Conference Treasurer tell him exactly what it is for. Report to us any errors or misunderstandings. We are here to help. Help us to help you, and we will go over the goals together, and enter the Century year happy in the victory.

BUREAU OF SPECIALS, BOARD OF MISSIONS.

A TOO MUCH NEGLECTED WORK.

The necessity for larger and better hospital facilities in this section of the South is so apparent that it would seem to be a waste of time and energy to present argument to enforce the significance of this fact. The increased demand for room and surgical attention in our hospitals is making it distressing because there are so many who cannot be accommodated. The addition of 500 bedrooms in Memphis would not more than meet the present demand, to say nothing of the increase that will naturally come in the years that are to follow.

There are many, however, who agree concerning the needs, but have not yet looked deep enough into the seriousness of the situation to become alarmed and thoroughly awakened to the actual losses being sustained by Methodist and by Protestant Christianity because of continued procrastination. We are losing in prestige and potency among our broad-minded and successful business men by our failure to make ample provision for healing the diseases and binding up the wounds of mankind as they journey through this life.

The spirit of altruism is indeed abroad in the land and its requirements must be met, else great will be the loss. And this spirit is but the natural fruitage of the preaching of the Gospel of Christ. To continue the sowing of the seed that produces such wholesome and exalted sentiment will ever receive applause and approval from right-thinking people, but what will be said about those, whether as individuals or organizations, who fail to provide all the means at hand for gathering and conserving this fruitage? Christianity in its practical application consists in more than gathering the people together once or twice a week in public worship. It means entering into the ups and downs of every-day life with a view of helping the struggling wayfarer to rightly solve the otherwise unsolvable mysteries that are constantly staring him in the face. Every man must have some help from outside sources in order that he may stand upright amid the jostles and storms that he is called upon to meet in his daily walk. The rich need this help as well as the poor. There are some things money cannot buy. The rich, it is true, can get the best that science and skill have to sell at strictly commercialized hospitals and sanitariums, but they do not have at these the exalted privilege of feeling and realizing the force of the divine touch as it comes from those who daily minister in the name of Christ. Riches do not supply soul-hunger and cannot answer the ever recurring question, "What are we here for and whither are we going?" There is no better time to render this all essential service than when a person is languishing upon a bed of pain. The body, as we all know, is closely related to the soul, which fact the archenemy of mankind uses very effectively.

Again, the Church is losing immensely in her hold on the poor by not being equipped to minister to their bodily needs at a price they are able to pay without incurring additional distress, and in many cases at no cost at all to them. The outstretched hand of Peter had more to do with creating and quickening the faith of the impotent man at the gate called Beautiful in the power of Christ to heal his body and soul than the mere spoken words to arise and walk. The poor read and understand more fully and appreciate more readily a gospel that is embodied in humane deeds than mere abstract theorizing, which is good in its place, but concrete example is always and everywhere the crowning fact in the argument.

And again, the great middle class are sincerely inquiring into the reasons for the slow progress the army of God is making in taking the entire man as well as the whole world for Christ. They are finding out through this investigation that growth in population and the congested condition of the people in certain sections of the country are making a more vital and somewhat different demand upon the leaders of the Church than were made a hundred or even fifty years ago. The long recognized and dependable loyalty of this class is now in danger of waning, if not being entirely lost to the Church, if she does not practice as well as preach a full gospel. They know full well that a half-truth will not suffice in meeting the entire requirements of the human being.

It does seem, therefore, that our Church should, and it is confidently believed it will, fulfill its mission to mankind and, thus save the entire man for a larger and closer brotherhood in Christ. It will take money, personal sacrifice and faith in God and man to accomplish this desired end.

We now earnestly call upon the ministers and laymen to pray as they work and talk, so that the people may open up their hearts wide and their pocketbooks in abundance to this cause. Past due subscriptions are very much needed and new ones must and are coming in to meet the requirements of the building committee of the new Methodist Hospital.

Our Advocate Campaign.

The campaign for the ciruculation of the Advocate has made a pretty good showing during the past week. This is gratifying. There should be no let-up in the effort to get a Church paper in the homes of our people. We have been much pleased by the large number of new subscriptions that have come in, and the brethren who have been so faithfully looking after the interests of the Conference organ may be assured that we highly appreciate their good work. One other thing we wish to say: Many subscriptions are expiring now, and it is a matter of great importance that these be renewed. Otherwise we may lose as many names from our mailing files as we have lately added thereto. PLEASE HELP US AT THIS POINT, DEAR BRETHREN.

FROM OUR WORKERS.

That splendid veteran of the Louisiana Conference, Rev. Robert Randle, of Farmerville, La., gives us 7 subscriptions from his charge. We appreciate his efforts in behalf of the Conference organ.

Rev. J. W. Ramsey, of New Augusta, Miss., reports that he has secured his quota of new subscriptions, and one over. He says that he takes pleasure in working for the Advocate, because it makes the way easier for the pastor wherever it goes.

Still they come! We mean subscriptions from the Ackerman (Miss.) charge, where Rev. C. A. Parks is the hustling young pastor. Brother Parks says: "I was to secure 8 new subscriptions. Up to the present, I have sent in 32 new ones and 5 renewals; and I still hope to be able to give you a few more new names."

Rev. W. H. Lewis, pastor of Capitol Street Church, Jackson, Miss., gives us a fine list of subscriptions, in addition to others previously sent in. He says: "This totals 12 new subscriptions and 1 renewal." Brother Lewis' church is a large one and his duties are many, but he finds time to take care of the interests of the Church paper.

In a letter bringing us 3 subscriptions, Rev. W. M. Sullivan, of Columbia, Miss., who has been doing some fine work for the Conference organ, says: "Please send me a list of your subscribers here, so that I can look after the renewals." This is the way to go about this important matter. Every pastor ought to secure such a list for his charge.

Rev. T. B. Cottrell, who serves our choice flock at Mt. Olive, Miss., forwards us a supplementary list of 5 names, and thus comments: "This makes the 12 new subscriptions assigned me by the district stewards, but I shall try to get other new ones when I look after the renewals in this charge. I believe that I have given you 20 new subscribers within the past 12 months." The interests of the Advocate are safe in Brother Cottrell's hands.

SOME SUBSCRIPTION RECEIPTS.

The following friends, whose kindness has not been mentioned elsewhere, have our thanks for two or more subscriptions, sent in within the past few days: Rev. W. W. Jones, Lula, Miss., 3; Rev. W. D. Bennett, Sardis (Ct.), Miss., 4; Rev. H. J. Moore, Montrose, Miss., 4; Rev. R. P. Neblett, Como, Miss., 7; Rev. H. R. McKee, Rose Hill, Miss., 3; Rev. R. M. Evans, Isola, Miss., 2; Rev. W. W. Woollard, Oxford, Miss., 3; Miss Nyna Pollard, Batesville, Miss., 7; Rev. D. P. Yeager, Monticello, Miss., 2; Rev. J. F. Waltman, Eros, La., 2; Rev. L. F. Alford, Enterprise, Miss., 2; Rev. W. M. Williams, Collins, Miss., 8; Rev. Thomas Cameron, New Albany, Miss., 2; Rev. W. J. Porter, Sicily Island, La., 2; Rev. J. H. Jolly, Seminary, Miss., 4; Rev. S. E. Flurry, Neshoba, Ct., Miss. Conf., 7; Rev. J. J. Garner, Sidon, Miss., 3.

THE WORK IN ALGIERS (NEW ORLEANS).

On February 1 and 2, I was confined to my bed on account of sickness. This is the first time I have spent a whole day in bed since a horse kicked me in 1900. A good health record! During this recent illness, I talked with Mr. E. L. Bordelon, an officer on the Comanche, one of the U. S. vessels. He told me, among other things of interest, that he would sail in a few days for unknown parts. He said he would sail under sealed orders. Now, if a Methodist preacher should leave Conference and get his appointment under sealed orders, I can but wonder what a howl we would all raise about autocracy, the lack of democracy, etc.

Last July a young married lady attended our 11 o'clock services. Before leaving for church she slipped a note under the clock for her husband. On her return, the note was still there and the husband had gone. The whole crew had gone under sealed orders.

I could give more incidents about the touching loyalty of sailing under sealed orders and compare them with our getting our appointments before setting out, but I will not at this time. Incidents like these have made me wonder if we are not more democratic than we claim to be.

Algiers is still in great need of a church building. By resolutions at the District Stewards' Meeting, the New Orleans Preachers' Meeting, and of the New Orleans District Conference, it is the purpose to center on our church as the next great enterprise to be attepted in the city.

The Board of Church Extension will duplicate $10,000 if we will raise that amount, by donating $5000 and lending us $5000, thus giving us a $20,000 church. We have a lot paid for and $6000 in available cash. We need $4000 more. Help us!

Fraternally,
C. C. WIER.

Cut this out, sign and mail it, if you will be one of 100 to help us:

The day you lay the corner-stone of the new church, you may announce $..... as my subscription.

PROHIBITION IN MISSISSIPPI.

This book contains 230 pages, is printed on No. 1 book paper, and neatly bound in cloth. It contains the last word on the prohibition situation in Mississippi from territorial days down to September 1, 1917. It will be found of indispensable value to preachers, lawyers, Sunday School workers, and teachers in our literary schools. Indeed, no library in Mississippi, either public or private, will be complete without it, as it records in a vigorous, authoritative way the history of one of the greatest social, moral, and economic problems which has ever demanded solution at the hands of Mississippi patriots. Mailed, postage prepaid, for $1.25 cash.

ATTENTION, LOUISIANA METHODISTS!

By action of the last session of the Louisiana Annual Conference, and in accordance with our custom for the past several years, Easter Sunday, March 31, is Orphanage Day. Every church and Sunday school are earnestly requested to take collections for the Orphanage, and every Methodist in Louisiana, and every friend to homeless children is asked to make a contribution to the Louisiana Methodist Orphanage at Ruston.

It is sincerely hoped that none will fail us in this time of need. We have 126 children in the Home, and we are absolutely dependent on the collections at this time for the funds necessary to carry on our work during the summer and until our fall collections on "Work Day" in October. We are compelled to pay the high prices prevalent over the country for the necessities of life. Our expenses have increased in proportion to all other necessary expenses, and we are compelled to secure more funds in order to live. We fully realize that our people are being called on to buy Liberty Bonds, War Saving Stamps, and contribute to the Red Cross, the Y. M. C. A., and many other necessary and vastly important things, but we must not forget our own dependents and leave unhelped the homeless and destitute in our very midst.

Let all help in a more liberal way than ever before and make it possible to contribute and carry forward the great work we are doing in caring for, educating, and fitting these children to take their part in the protection and reconstruction of our country.

Remember Easter Sunday, March 31, Orphanage Day, and send your contribution to our Orphanage.

Superintendent, Louisiana Methodist Orphanage.

THE PLAN SUCCEEDING.

Dear Dr. Meek: I am one of the happiest men in Southern Methodism. We have secured more than $7,000 within a week to carry on my plan to educate forty young ministers in eight years. No trouble to get the money. I shall secure sufficient funds for 25 or 30 ministers each year for eight years. If I can be the instrument of graduating fifty young ministers at Millsaps and Emory University within the next ten years, "life will be worth living." Rejoice with me. When I complete this work, I shall begin a plan to give $100 a year each to twenty-five daughters of ministers to aid them in securing a college education. I feel sure that I will get this money. The laymen (God bless them!) are my helpers. Nine young men are provided for to date.

As ever, your friend,
I. W. COOPER.

WAR CONDITIONS
— REFLECTED IN —
TELEPHONE SERVICE

Among the unforeseen conditions which the war has imposed upon us is the necessity of practically suspending the commercial development of our business.

Confronted with an unusual increase in the use of the telephone and a strong demand for new and additional service, we cannot accept or fill orders except subject to practically an indefinite delay.

This situation is due to the importance of conserving our supplies so that the government's requirements may be promptly met by giving the War Department service anywhere and at any time the request is made.

NOTES.

Recent legislative enactments will make Texas practically a dry State. We are glad to welcome this great commonwealth into the prohibition column.

Hon. Richmond Pearson Hobson, the hero of the Merrimac, will deliver some prohibition speeches in Louisiana in the month of April. He will speak at the Athenaeum in New Orleans on April 21.

The large prohibition vote in the New York Legislature in favor of a direct ratification of the National Prohibition Amendment was a surprise to all. The prohibition wave has struck even that strongest of all the liquor States.

The saloons are fast thinning out in New Orleans. On the corner of Camp and Poydras streets, near the Advocate office, where a year ago there were three dram-shops, there is now only one. The Crescent City will yet be redeemed from the liquor curse.

MAKING HEADWAY.

Up to the present time, the following seven States have ratified the prohibition amendment to the Federal Constitution: Mississippi, Virginia, Kentucky, South Carolina, North Dakota, Maryland, and Texas. A fight against ratification seems to be developing in the State of Alabama, the issue having become involved in the gubernatorial race; but we believe that the moral forces of that commonwealth will triumph in the struggle. It is stated that the laws of Tennessee do not permit the ratification of an amendment to the National Constitution except by a Legislature elected subsequent to its submission; but we expect to see the Volunteer State in line for ridding the Nation of the liquor traffic as soon as its citizens have had a chance to register their will.

All in all, the outlook for national constitutional prohibition is most encouraging. Hon. W. J. Bryan and other distinguished speakers are campaigning in the interest of the cause, and the movement is being given a support by the secular press such as the most sanguine prohibitionists would scarcely have dared to hope for a few years ago. Let our temperance forces be up and doing, taking care not to be led into the championing of extreme side issues, and victory will perch upon our banners before the seven years allowed for the ratification of the pending amendment shall have passed.

RESOLUTIONS ON UNIFICATION BY THE BOARD OF STEWARDS OF THE FIRST METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH, SOUTH, BATON ROUGE, LA.

Whereas, having believed in unification according to the plan of our Church adopted at Oklahoma City, we have looked forward with much interest to the work of the Joint Commission on Unification; but since the repudiation of the Oklahoma City plan by the Commission has taken place we feel called upon to express to our brethren of Southern Methodism at large our avowed disapproval of the tentative constitution set forth and our firm belief that unification according to its terms must fail for the following obvious reasons:

1. The tentative constitution leaves the Negro in the Church and gives him a vital hold upon the machinery of the new organization. This is the reverse of the policy of any Church of much size operating in the South, for it is a well known fact that no partly Negro-governed organization could ever hope to thrive among the white people of any section where the Negro race is largely represented. In the proposed new Methodist Church hundreds of thousands of Negroes are to be represented in the supreme General Conference and assist in making laws for the white and colored people; they are to have their pro rata share of representatives upon the various general boards which plan the work of Methodism and help dictate the policy of the new Church in all its activities. The Freedman's Aid Society, the name of which suggests Reconstruction days, will operate in the South for the benefit of those Negroes now of the Northern Methodist Church, unless it be agreed that this Society be allowed to collect money among Southern Methodists for the Colored Methodist Episcopal Church. Though the Negroes of the Northern Methodist Church are not increasing in proportion to the independent Negro Methodist Churches, yet they doubtless would never consent to disconnect themselves from the new organization, even for the sake of uniting the Churches, because they have been the recipients of financial hand-outs and social favors from the Northern people, which they hope to have continued in the future.

2. The tentative constitution of the proposed new organization as propounded at Savannah leaves Southern Methodism entirely helpless in the hands of Northern Methodism, because the General Conference will be practically supreme in power, leaving scarcely any legislative authority to the imaginary Regional Conferences, which may be divided, consolidated, or changed at the will of two successive General Conferences. Representatives to the General Conference are to be elected according to the number of Church members by the various Annual Conferences in the proposed Regional Conferences. It is an evident fact, therefore, that nearly two-thirds of the strength of the legislative body will be composed of Northern and Western delegates, which, aided by the Negro contingent, may make laws and establish policies that would make the disintegration of the Southern white section of the Church not only probable but absolutely certain. We are sure, however, that even before these steps can be consummated, the Southern contingent will be vastly weakened by its members retiring to other denominations. The proposed rule that the General Conference may be required to vote by Regional Conferences upon any vital question is most ineffective, for the reason that in the Regional Conferences where the Southern Church constituency would be predominant the Northern minority in some instances would be extremely large, while the reverse of this would not be true. In some Southern sections the Negro population is greater than the white population, and it so happens that in these sections Southern Methodism is of the best, the highest, and holiest type of Methodism in the world; and it is very probable that these sections may demand policies and laws of a different type from those of other sections even of Southern Methodist territory (now understood by a majority of the Southern Church); but they would remain helpless to wilt and die under the scheme of union now being considered. The fact that the Regional Conference in the unified Church is almost a vagary, just the opposite of the Quadrennial Conference of the Oklahoma City plan, and that even this little protective power may be swept aside by two successive General Conferences, leaves Southern Methodism "like a lamb dumb before his shearer," delivered over completely into the hands of a great organization about twice as large in membership, many times wealthier, and with fully developed social ideas regarding the Negro at absolute variance with the great portion of the membership of Southern Methodist churches.

3. The tentative constitution of the proposed united Methodism means that everything stood for since 1844 by the Fathers of Southern Methodism is to be thrown to the winds; the Bishops may be removed from office at the whim of the General Conference (and to this office our Church is practically indebted for its existence); and the Bishops are no longer to constitute the Judiciary of the Church, which office they have filled so fairly and satisfactorily in Southern Methodism in the past. This proposed constitution delivers into the hands of a practically supreme General Conference—which will be governed by a majority of Northern and Negro Methodists—all of the many millions of dollars worth of blood-bought church buildings, parsonages, hospitals, schools, colleges, church periodicals and printing establishments of Southern Methodism, upon which it will never relinquish its hold, once that hold is securely fastened. We fear another case of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church union with the Northern Presbyterian Church is upon us. We feel that we should not be compelled to express ourselves upon these questions, but the threatening attitude of the Joint Commission on Unification moves us to speak before it is too late, and in thus speaking we believe we are expressing the true sentiments of the vast majority of the laymen of Southern Methodism, upon whom the financial burden of our great Church rests.

In view of these considerations, therefore, be it resolved:

1. That we, the Board of Stewards of the First Methodist Episcopal Church, South, of Baton Rouge, La. (which single organization now has a membership of seven hundred and eighty-five individuals), hereby memorialize the General Conference of said Church, meeting in the city of Atlanta, Georgia, in the month of May of this year, not to accede to any scheme of unification that in any way resembles this departure of the Joint Commission from the Oklahoma City plan, for the good and obvious reasons we have named in this preamble; and to further insist upon the Federal Council of Methodism utilizing its powers to stop the erection of "altar against altar," and to require each Church to confine its activities to the territory agreed upon by the Joint Commission sitting at Cape May so far as those sections are concerned now known as the North and the South.

2. That we highly commend the New Orleans Christian Advocate (and others of our Church periodicals when they have stood for the preservation of Southern Methodism in this hour), for its fearless and uncompromising effort to save our Church from a fatal form of union.

3. That we deprecate the policy of some pro-unionists who seem to feel that they have a monopoly on brotherly love and who censure in the public prints those who stand for the preservation of Southern Methodism; for upon this great and vital question every true Southerner should be allowed to express himself without being curbed; his honest opinion should be had, whether it be clothed in pleasing words or not.

4. That these resolutions under date of March 4, 1918, adopted at the regular monthly session of this body, be sent to all the Advocates of Southern Methodism, for the purpose of informing our brethren throughout the country of our earnest convictions in this serious matter.

BOARD OF STEWARDS FIRST METHODIST CHURCH, BATON ROUGE, LA.

THE EVERY MEMBER CANVASS.

The North Mississippi Conference.

By Rev. Ben P. Jaco.

There are good reasons for believing that this canvass will be made. Some of them are: The Discipline directs us to do so, and nearly every pastor and member of the church has promised to be subject thereto. The Board of Missions asked that it be done and the Conference voted to do it. We all believe that every member should contribute some amount, and some approach, therefore, must be made to each one. The plan has been successfully carried out by some of our pastors repeatedly.

The canvass may be made in any charge in connection with any financial system. This has already been done this year. The reports to me show that it may be done under various conditions. One of our largest stations, having the budget system, carried it out with remarkable enthusiasm and great profit. In another charge the pastor was in bed, but called some laymen in and asked them to direct the canvass, and they went over the assessment. Another charge put the job on the stewards and they raised all assessments. Still another, where the pastor made an urgent appeal for voluntary contributions from each member, the response provides for the full assessment and the support of a preacher in Japan, with one person considering the support of a missionary.

Two more reasons: 1. The money is needed and painfully needed, and more than our assessment must come in, as specials for China, or, in addition to suffering, the work must be left undone.

2. The people have the money. The farmers have it. The renters have it. I know one man who rented land last year and made so much that he had the honor to help Uncle Sam about $17,000 in taxes. Now listen: The Federal law allows one-tenth to be given to benevolence; hence this renter could have given $1500 to missions. There are hundreds of men in our Conference who, if properly canvassed, could, out of their profits, give large sums. Have the courage, faith, and love to ask for it to save the world.

Can the Every-Member Canvass be made, and can the assessment for missions be raised in our Conference? YES. Slackers say, No. Their names will be called at Conference if they come.

WHAT THEY LOOKED LIKE TO HIM.

A train was rushing through some swamps in which thousands of cattails were bobbing their brown heads in the breeze.

Hugh was from the city and had never before seen a cattail. He watched them curiously through the car window a moment, then turned to his mother excitedly.

"Why," he cried, "I didn't know sausages grew that way!"—The Continent.

The Home Circle

I'M SORRY—I WAS WRONG.

There may be virtue in the man
  Who's always sure he's right,
Who'll never hear another's plan,
  And seek for further light;
But I like more the chap who sings
  A somewhat different song,
Who says when he has messed up things,
  "I'm sorry; I was wrong."

It's hard for any one to say
  That failure's due to him—
That he has lost the fight or way,
  Because his light burned dim.
It takes a man aside to throw,
  The vanity that's strong; confessing:
"That's my fault. I know;
  I'm sorry; I was wrong."

And so I figure, those who use
  This honest, manly phrase,
Hate it too much their way to lose
  On many future days.
They'll keep the path and make the fight,
  Because they do not long
To have to say when they're not right,
  "I'm sorry; I was wrong."

JOHN FINNEGAN—A SAMMIE BACKER.

(From the N. W. Christian Advocate.)

The boys in the trenches have no monopoly on real bravery; neither is that precious gift confined to those of fighting age. The term "hero" is being somewhat overworked of late, and one is prompted to exercise care in applying it. But here is a case that could claim the term with considerable propriety. At a recent gathering of club women in the Chicago Woman's Club canteen, Miss Grace Dixon, a member of our First Church, Chicago, president of the woman's board of the Home for Destitute and Crippled Children, read the following letter accompanying a sweater knit for a soldier by one of the little dwellers in the home, who lies all day strapped to his bed with only his hands free. We reproduce it as an indication that brave hearts beat beneath frail breasts and where least expected. Here is the letter:

"Dear Soldier Boy:

"I do not know your name, but I am writing to you anyway.

"I am a little crippled boy, and my name is John Finnegan. But I love my country anyway.

"I hope you will be wearing the sweater I made when you cross the Rhine.

"I just can't help wishing that you may plant the great American flag right on the Kaiser's castle. I think the Kaiser went a little too far when he challenged us. Don't you?

"I cannot go to war and carry a gun on my shoulder. I can knit for the soldiers, and that is what I'll do.

"I will give you my address so that you can write to me. John Finnegan, 1653 Park Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

"I hope that you will give me your address. I have blue eyes and red hair. I am Irish, but I love the American flag best of all. The Kaiser will wish that he had left America alone before long.

"There are a lot more crippled children here besides me who are knitting for the soldiers.

"I bet the Kaiser will be sore when this war is over. He thought that he could beat the world and have it for his very own. He forgot just one thing, and that is that he forgot that the United States Army were good fighters, too.

"I will never be a hero like you will, but I wasn't picked out to be one. I hope you will come back safe from the war.

"I pray for the soldiers and the Stars and Stripes every night. "JOHN FINNEGAN."

THE ONE THAT WOULDN'T FUSS.

Mrs. Peter Marshall was running some long tucks on her machine, and every time she got to the end of a tuck she stopped to fasten off her thread. And while the machine was silent she kept hearing a little voice below her window, talking in angry tones.

"You are jus' horrid," said the voice, "I don't love you a bit."

And another time: "You are jus' as ugly an' stupid as you kin be—so there!" And about the end of the sixth tuck: "I've a great mind to knock you in the head."

"Dear me—dear me!" exclaimed Mrs. Peter Marshall; "who in the world can this be that Daisy Bell is quarreling with? I must call her in."

But when she put her head out of the window and called, "Daisy—Daisy Bell," a smiling little face looked up through the leafy bushes. "Who is that with you, daughter?" asked the mother.

"Nobody, mother dear, except Peggy-from-Paris," answered Daisy Bell, holding up her best doll. "I have been trying to get up a quarrel with her, but she won't say a word, and you just can't keep on fussing with a body that won't answer back."

"No, thank goodness, you can't," laughed Mrs. Peter Marshall.

Another day the lady was writing a letter on the porch, but this time she was disturbed by the same sounds as before, only to-day somebody was answering back. Daisy Bell and her brother Wilfred were fussing over a croquet game.

"Come here, daughter, just a minute," said Mrs. Peter Marshall; "I want to ask a favor of you."

The little girl came at once to her mother's side, and listened to something whispered into her small, pink ear: "Will you try it?" asked her mother, kissing Daisy Bell's cheek.

The little croquet player nodded and ran back to strike her ball. After that there was no more fussing.

Would you like to know what Mrs. Peter Marshall whispered in the small pink ear? I will tell you: "Try Peggy-from-Paris' plan for not fussing!"

My little reader, I recommend Peggy-from-Paris' plan to you!—Sunshine.

CHAINS AND EDUCATION.

Did you ever try to drive a motor car through the snow without tire chains? If you did you know what happens. Your rear wheels buzz around as if they were swimming in grease, your engine roars and coughs and tries to shake itself to pieces, you make a terrific racket—and get absolutely nowhere. You have enough power in your motor to move ten times the weight of your car, but it isn't worth a cent—because your wheels can't take hold. Right then tire chains are more valuable than any other part of your car, because the car is useless without them. * * * Now, then, a boy without an education is like a car without chains. He's got the engine; he's filled with gasoline; the whole equipment is there, but when the engine starts up the wheels simply buzz around because there's nothing for them to take hold of. Education is what gives a boy his traction in heavy going. Be sure you have it in your tool kit. --The American Boy.

CHANGED.

A rich lady dreamed that she went to heaven, and there was a mansion being built.

"What is that for?" she asked of the guide.

"For your gardener."

"But he lives in the tiniest cottage on earth, with barely enough room for his family."

"He might live better, if he did not give away so much to the miserable poor folks."

Further on she saw a tiny cottage being built. "And who is that for?" she asked.

"That is for you."

"But I have lived in a mansion on earth. I would not know how to live in a cottage."

The words she heard in reply were full of meaning. "The Master builder is doing his best with the material that is being sent up."

Then she awoke, resolving to lay up treasure in heaven.

What are we sending up? What kind of material are we building into our everyday life? Is it being sent up?—Zion Outlook.

GIFTS TO EMORY UNIVERSITY.

It was recently announced that Mr. T. T. Fishburne, who gave $25,000 in 1914 to Emory University, had given $20,000 more. The announcement was incorrect, in that this $20,000 should have been credited to Mrs. T. T. Fishburne. This is the largest gift to Emory University from a woman. This elect lady is as generous as her noble husband and well deserves this distinction of leading this list of devoted women who are rallying to the support of our new university. It will be remembered that the late Mrs. T. T. Hillman, of Birmingham, Ala., gave $5000, and a number of other good women have made contributions ranging from $500 to $1200.

A suburban minister during his discourse one Sunday morning said: "In every blade of grass there is a sermon." Next day one of his elders found the good man mowing his lawn. "Well, sir," he said, "I am glad to see you engaged in cutting your sermons short."—Syracuse Post-Standard.

PURE as Southern Sunshine

LIKE the soft, beaming sunlight of Dixieland, Luzianne brings cheer to mealtime—breakfast, dinner and supper. Folks who try it once have a genuine affection for it ever after. Luzianne comes to you in clean, sanitary, air-tight tins. The flavor stays in—impurities stay out. Buy a can of Luzianne. Use the whole can. If you don't honestly believe it is better than any other coffee you ever tasted, tell the grocer to refund your money. But, try it.

A SERIOUS HOUR.

The present hour is undoubtedly one of the most serious in the entire history of the great war now raging. With Western Russia helpless in the hands of the Central Powers and her resources about to be exploited in their interest; with Rumania forced to make a separate peace, laying her treasures at the feet of her former foes, and turning over to them her railways, thus helping to open the way to India and the Far East for the Teutonic forces, the situation is undeniably a staggering one. Mr. Frank H. Simonds, the well known war correspondent, in the March number of the Review of Revlews, declares that "we are bound to recognize the agreement of Brest-Litovsk as one of the most significant in modern history." He further says: "Russia is to lose 50,000,000 of people—more than a third of her European population. She is to surrender an area almost as large as the combined area of all the States making up the Central Alliance in Europe. On their eastern frontiers the Germans and Austrians are to erect at least four States—Finland, Poland, the Baltic Provinces, and Ukrania—two of which, Finland and Ukrania, will certainly be friendly to Austria and Germany, while the other two will be held in complete subjection by Austrian and German garrisons. In addition, Rumania is to be put under Austro-German control, dominated by both Austria and the new Ukrania. Such is the grandiose German plan, which aims at abolishing the age-long Slav menace on the east and making the Germans and their Austrian allies the masters of the Slav seacoasts, both on the Baltic and on the Black. It aims also at making Russia for the future both the political and the economic slave of the Germans."

These conditions are somewhat depressing, but the cause upheld by the nations combating the Central Powers is not by any means to be despaired of. The superlority in numbers and equipment is with our side on the western front, and there is every reason to believe that it will become increasingly so as the months shall pass. It is evident, however, that the task of winning this war is going to be a gigantic one—one which may involve the United States as to her resources in materials, money, and men to an extent that scarcely any yet realize. There may be before us such outlays, sacrifices, and sorrows as our country has never known.

In view of this fact, it behooves us as loyal Americans to cast off everything that may hinder us in the stupendous struggle that lies before us. The liquor traffic has been recognized by all the warring natlons as a tremendous source of weakness—as perhaps the greatest menace to their strength and success. In various ways our own Federal Government has been striking at this widespread evil, seeking to counteract and lessen its pernicious influence. It has made it unlawful to sell intoxicants to soldiers and sailors and has endeavored to create dry zones about our military cantonments. Only last week Mr. Daniels, Secretary of the Navy, issued orders forbidding the sale or giving away of liquors within five miles of our seven permanent naval stations, irrespective of whether such territory embraces an incorporated town or city. Several States hitherto wet have hearkened to this imperative call and demonstrated that they love their country too much to tolerate dram-shops when her priceless interests are in jeopardy. So Kentucky and Maryland have adopted the National Prohibition Amendment; so the Governor of Texas called a special session of the State Legislature, which has taken like action, and which also has enacted legislation placing that great commonwealth in the prohibltion column.

The Louisiana Legislature will soon be in session, and the question is, What will it do? The eyes of the Nation will be upon it. Governor Pleasant, the Chief-Executlve of the State, is a young man of parts and seemingly of much promise. His course since our country entered the great war has in many respects been most admirable and hls utterances in its behalf on some occasions have been impressively patriotic and eloquent. Not a few of our thinking citizens are hoping that his leadership in this critical period will prove him to be a real statesman, with a far-reaching vision and with the courage to summon our people to move forward upon the highest lines, keeping step with the most patriotic commonwealths of the American Union.

All the indications are that the days of the legalized saloon are numbered ln this great Western Republic. Is Louisiana to lag and have no part in achieving this magnificent moral triumph --one of the greatest of the centuries—while at the same time helping America to strike more effectively at the world-wide menace of German militarism? Surely, our people will not consent to play so ignoble a part in these momentous days, which are "big with destiny."

FAILED TO AGREE.

The following dispatch was sent out from Atlantic City, N. J., on March 15:

"The Commissions on Union of the Presbyterian Church, North, and the Presbyterian Church, South, failed to agree upon a plan for the proposed merger of the two great church bodies at the final session of their joint conference here last night. Two plans were worked out and both will be submitted to the respectlve General Assemblies wlth the recommendation that the Assemblies decide the lssues involved. The Church, North, proposes an organic union, while the Church, South, asks a federal union which would include not simply the two Churches represented by the Commissions, but the entire nine Presbyterian and Reformed Churches in the United States, on the theory that there might come out of it a Presbyterian Church covering the whole country, and embracing all who hold to the Reformed Doctrine and Presbyterian government."

This seems to be the same old story of a Northern organization wanting dominance and control, while the Southern one desires such a scheme of co-operation as would allay friction and yet guarantee a goodly measure of liberty and safety. We dare say that it will be a long while before the Southern Presbyterians enter into organic union with their sister Church of the North. Indeed, in naming its Commissioners last year, seemingly largely as a matter of courtesy, the Southern General Assembly declared that it did not consider union practicable at this time.

WANTED NO BOOZE AT HIS WAKE.

The following interesting and suggestive statement is clipped from a recent issue of the New Orleans Daily States:

The will of Kosman Morgan, who conducted a saloon and restaurant at Milneburg for quite a time, was admitted to probate in the Civil Court Friday. It is in his own handwriting, is dated Dec. 26, 1916, and is unique in the provisions it contains relating to his wake and funeral. After providing that the usufruct of all of his share in the communlty property shall be enjoyed by his wife, unless she should contract another marriage, in which event he provides that his share shall go to his son, he wrote:

"I would ask that my brother, Paul Morgan, and Thomas H. Roberts attend to my affairs, with full authority and without bond. I would ask that should I die not a drink of intoxicants be given at my wake. In this request it makes no difference who it may be, I don't want any intoxicants at my wake. I will ask that this be carried out to the letter. If any intoxicants are indulged in at all, I ask that the entire half of property that should go to my son be given to the Lodge of F. & A. M., Osiris No. 300, of which I am a charter member."

This shows that even the saloon men, when the sentiments of their better natures are expressed, know that liquor-drinking is an indefensible evil.

VOTE STRONG FOR THE TIME-LIMIT.

The Canadian Methodists have a time-limit of four years, and they have recently been holding a plebiscite to see whether it shall be repealed or retained. The Christian Guardian, their official organ, in a late issue contained the following reference to this matter:

"It will be of general interest to learn that on March 1 reports of the vote on the time-limit had been received from 726 circuits and missions, leaving 1348 yet to be heard from. On the circuits reporting there are 15,611 official members, but owing to stormy weather the attendance at many of the February meetings of the boards was much less than usual. The vote from the circuits reporting up to March 1 stood: For the present time-limit, 5728; for change, 2438. This vote is largely from Central Canada, many of the circuits in Western and Eastern Canada and Newfoundland not having reached the office of the General Conference Secretary."

We like this idea of referring questions of Church government to a vote of the people. We have many times suggested that the question of Unification should be permitted to go to our congregations to be passed on; but, though claiming to have nearly all the Southern Methodists with them, we have never been able to get the faintest nibble from any of our Commissioners in favor of such a course. Bishop A. W. Wilson, our great ascended leader and constitutional Church lawyer, is known, however, to have expressed the view that this momentous issue should finally be referred to the membership of Southern Methodism for settlement.

A FINE ESSAY.

Dr. S. A. Steel, of Mansfield, La., has lately had published a paper-bound volume of 51 pages, entitled "The Tale of the School in the Sticks: an Essay on Education." This publication is in Dr. Steel's characteristic style of writing, abounding in sound philosophy, interesting incidents, and excellent moralizing. It is worth many times the cost, which is 50 cents. Send for a copy.

"STOP THAT LEAK."

This is the name of an interesting small volume by Dr. Luther E. Todd, of St. Louis, Mo., which has lately come from the press. It deals suggestively with the question of the training and development of the child Church member. Those interested in this great problem would do well to secure and read this book, which numbers 125 pages. Dr. Todd has given to the public several striking publications bearing on the work of evangelism.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

Rev. E. N. Evans, of New Orleans, preached at First Church, Baton Rouge, last Sunday, delivering an impressive discourse.

Rev. W. M. Commander, of Algoma, Miss., gives us 2 subscriptions, and states that the outlook in that charge is quite encouraging.

Rev. D. L. Coale, the well known Texas evangelist, is booked for a meeting with our First Church congregation in Baton Rouge during the month of April.

Rev. W. C. Carlisle reports that his work at Louisville, Miss., is making good headway. His letter brought us 4 new and 5 renewal subscriptions, for which he has our thanks.

See Rev. R. W. Vaughan's statement concerning the Louisiana Methodist Orphanage and Easter Sunday. We must not forget this splendid institution on that day.

Rev. R. G. Moore, our energetic young pastor at Moorhead, Miss., forwards us 2 names for our mailing files, appending in his business letter this note: "The work at Moorhead is quite pleasant. Our church here continues to grow."

From Byhalia, Miss., Rev. A. C. McCorkle thus reports: "Things are going well with us. I will soon be half out on my Conference collections. All our finances are in fine shape. We are having good crowds at the Church services. This is an excellent people to serve."

Rev. T. M. Ainsworth, of Nola, Miss., remembers us with 2 subscriptions to the Conference organ, adding in his communication the following note: "The people of the McCall charge are steadily growing in grace. Never, I think, did a pastor serve a more appreciative people."

Rev. W. S. Lagrone is in clover at Drew, which is the biggest little town in Mississippi. He writes us interestingly of his work, but because of the lack of space we have had to let his cheering message go over until next week, much to our regret. As an effective pastor, Brother Lagrone has few equals.

Rev. T. H. Lipscomb, presiding elder of the Aberdeen (Miss.) District, has sent out a notice of his approaching District Conference on a folding postal card, which presents a most attractive appearance. This gifted leader of our forces in the central part of Northeast Mississippi is making an enviable record in his responsible office.

Mr. H. H. Ahrens, formerly of New Orleans but who for some time has been connected with the Census Bureau at Washington, D. C., will, according to a press dispatch to The Times-Picayune, manage the publicity feature of the Missionary Centennial Campaign of the M. E. Church, South. Brother Ahrens is well equipped for this service.

Rev. R. S. Lawson, of Toccopola, Miss., writes us as follows: "Bro. Papasan, the father of Rev. R. M. Papasan, of the Randolph Circuit, died yesterday, March 14, and will be buried to-morrow at Robb, Miss. I will furnish you with a suitable memoir later." We sympathize with Brother Papasan and the other bereaved loved ones in their sorrow.

Our church at Aberdeen, Miss., of which Rev. J. Tillery Lewis is the popular pastor, had an impressive Service Day program rendered on Sunday, March 10. A number of appropriate addresses were made, the "Roll of Honor" was called, and a copy of the letter being sent to the soldier boys from this congregation was read. The exercises awakened great interest.

The Southern Methodist Handbook for 1918 has been off the press for some weeks. It is styled "A General Conference Edition," and contains a list of the delegates to that body, all the memorials that have been sent up to it from the Annual Conferences, and the rules of order of the last General Conference. The price of this useful publication is 25 cents.

Referring to Rev. J. M. Gulnn, of the North Mississippi Conference, who has accepted a chaplaincy in the Army, Rev. W. L. Duren, his presiding elder, says: "His ministry is filled with the power of a genuine Christian experience, clear thinking and consistent living. I confidently expect him to give a good account of himself in his service to the men in the trenches."

We regret to be informed of the death of Mr. S. D. Roberts, of Zachary, La., which occurred on March 3, 1918. The deceased was the father of Rev. S. D. Roberts, Jr., our pastor at Oberlin, La. Since the death of this good man, his wife and daughter, who survive him, have taken up their residence with Brother Roberts at Oberlin. We extend sympathy to these bereaved ones.

From a letter from Rev. R. P. Neblett, of Como, Miss., we take the following: "Miss Lucile Duncan, daughter of Mrs. Perry Duncan of Oxford, who has been teaching in our public school here, is in a hospital—Bartlett & Ramsey's—in Memphis, Tenn., being treated for a nervous breakdown. Let prayer be made that the health of this choice young lady may be speedily restored."

We hope that correspondents who have lately sent us copy for publication will be patient with us. Our hopper is full and overflowing, and we cannot expand our pages. The Editor himself is a fellow-sufferer in this respect, not being able to take up this week some matters which he was anxious to handle. We are doing the best we can under the circumstances to give all a fair showing.

We acknowledge ourselves indebted to Rev. A. F. Moore, of Fulton, Miss., for 5 subscriptions to the Advocate. We regret to note the following statement in his letter: "Since the cold weather abated our people have been scourged with epidemics until religious activity has been greatly hindered—and the end is not yet." We pray that better days may soon come to Brother Moore and his flock.

Dr. H. B. Carre, who until recently has been connected with the School of Religion at Vanderbilt University but who expects to leave for France soon, where he will be engaged in Y. M. C. A. work, will, it has been announced, occupy the pulpit of the First Methodist Church of this city next Sunday. Dr. Carre is coming to New Orleans for a brief visit to his mother and other relatives before going abroad.

Rev. C. A. Schultz, our choice pastor at Gallman, Miss., forwards us 5 subscriptions to the Advocate, and thus remarks: Everything is moving off nicely with us this year. The charge has increased the assessment for the pastor $300 since I came to it. This has been due, however, to the splendid foundation that was laid by my predecessor, Brother Smith. I hope also to leave this work in such a condition that it will look good to the man who comes after me."

The Memphis Commercial Appeal reports that Hon. H. L. Wilkinson, of Shelby, Miss., has given $10,000 to Grenada College for the erection of a chapel, to be named in honor of his father. Brother M. C. Smith, of Moorhead, Miss., has also made a donation of $5000 to that worthy Institution. These are noble benefactions, which the Methodists of North Mississippi will highly appreciate. We congratulate Commissioner Brownlee upon the success which is crowning his labors.

Rev. A. F. Vaughan began a series of revival services at the Carrollton Avenue Church of this city last Sunday. The pulpit at the evening hour was occupied by Brother W. H. Black, of McDonoghville, the Lay Leader of the New Orleans District. Rev. C. V. Breithaupt, who is to assist in the meeting, arrived Monday and delivered a forceful message Monday evening, Mr. I. N. Niebergall, of New Orleans, leading the singing. Services are to be held daily at 3:30 and 7:45 p. m. during the ensuing fortnight.

Rev. A. J. Gearheard had a special service for policemen at the Louisiana Avenue Church of this city last Sunday evening. The audience is stated to have taxed the capacity of the building, and, following an appropriate sermon by Brother Gearheard, Mr. Mooney, the Chief of Police, delivered a brief address. According to the city papers, Brother Gearheard advocated larger pay for policemen and the carrying of insurance for them by the municipal government. The service seems in every respect to have been quite a success.

Writing from Collins, Miss., March 11, Rev. W. M. Williams says: "You ought to have been with me yesterday (Sunday) at Bethel Church. This is one of the best country churches in Mississippi. Every official takes and reads the Advocate. We have 10 subscribers in a membership of 70. We had a good day—embracing two sermons, Sunday school, a church conference, and dinner on the ground. Congregations were excellent and the services were fine. Our second quarterly conference will be held at Bethel on the second Saturday and Sunday in April. Come and be with us." We really wish that we might. We should like to see this noble little flock.

Rev. H. R. McKee, our pastor at Rose Hill, Miss., writes: "Please state that Rev. Otto Porter, one of our local preachers and a senior at Millsaps College, who was drafted into the Army from Millsaps last October, is at home, after a stay of some five months at Camp Pike and Camp Beauregard, with a Governmental discharge, due to physical disability, his character being certified to as excellent. He is a gifted young man and is able to do good work, in case he should not be taxed too heavily. He is married and expects to join the Mississippi Conference this fall. I heartily recommend him to the presiding elders and other brethren, some of whom I hope can use him."

Sister Brantley, the wife of our pastor on the Vardaman (Miss.) Circuit, writes us as follows: "We came to our post promptly after Conference and Mr. Brantley made one round except one church. Since that time he has been confined to his bed for a period of nine weeks, last Saturday, March 9. However, he is now improving, and we are hoping that he will soon be able to take up again the work which is so on his heart. Our first quarterly conference was held in January, and the reports were far ahead of those of previous years. Our presiding elder is a booster on financial advancement and generally carries his point. The prospect is bright in this field." Sister Brantley requests the prayers of the readers of the Advocate for Brother Brantley's recovery.

Sunday, March 3, was a great day with the Methodist congregation at Macon, Miss. A beautiful flag in honor of those who have been called to the colors from that church was unfurled, bearing upon it 22 stars. The presentation speech was made by Mrs. Charles Strong, whose feeling words touched all hearts. The address of acceptance, a patriotic and brilliant utterance, was made by the pastor, Rev. E. N. Broyles, and an excellent prayer was offered by Mr. Whitman Davis. It is well thus to honor and keep in loving memory our young men who have rallied to our country's call. We note also that Brother Broyles is the chairman of the War Speakers' Bureau for Noxubee County, the object of which is to present the various causes incident to the present great struggle to the people.

SOME FURTHER WORDS.

Dear Dr. Meek: Please allow me space to say to those loyal—yes, and royal—laymen who have written me so appreciatingly of my efforts to do them good, that I have not forgotten one of them, nor the incidents they refer to in those letters. It rejoices my heart that I am still held in such esteem by men who have been true to God and the Church from youth to old age. I am glad that even old Tom, the faithful horse that I drove over fourteen thousand miles, is not forgotten. How I loved that horse! I never struck him but one blow in anger, and to that he retaliated by kicking the dash-board into my face.

We have had a great conference of Wesley Bible classes here. While I was unable to attend its sessions, I caught the spirit of the occasion. Most of the preachers in attendance called on us, even Bishop McCoy paying me a brief visit. From what I have gathered Bishop McCoy captured Mansfield, "foot, horse, and dragoon." His address must have been superb. If the whole church knew the hearts of our Bishop as I do by intimate association with many of them, there would be less criticism and a more hearty co-operation with them in their efforts to lead the Church on to final victory over the powers of darkness.

Write and come again brethren.

Cordially,

J. L. P. SHEPPARD.

Mansfield, La.

A NOTE OF THANKS.

Dear Dr. Meek: Please allow us through the columns of the Advocate, to thank our many friends for the kindness and consideration which they have shown us during our recent bereavement.

Mrs. W. C. LESTER and FAMILY.

Tutwiler, Miss., Mar. 12, 1918.

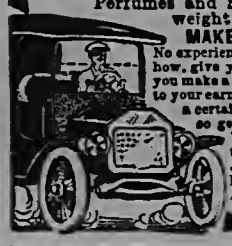
TO OUR SUBSCRIBERS.

The little pink or yellow address label on the copy of the Advocate which you receive weekly shows your name and address, and the date of expiration of your subscription. Dec1917 indicates that your subscription expired Dec. 1, 1917, and that it is past due, and should be renewed. Subscribers will please examine the labels on their papers, and if it is found that the subscriptions are past due, they should remit at once. Conditions are such that we cannot afford to continue sending the paper to those who are in arrears. If a subscriber does not want the subscription to continue, we expect him or her to pay that which is due us, and notify us to stop sending the paper. Attention to this matter will be greatly appreciated by the management of this Advocate, and it will be the means of helping us to avoid losses by discontinuing the paper to those who do not desire it.

Sage Tea Beautifies And Darkens Hair

Don't stay gray! Sage Tea and Sulphur darkens hair so naturally that nobody can tell.

You can turn gray, faded hair beautifully dark and lustrous almost over night if you'll get a 50-cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" at any drug store. Millions of bottles of this old famous Sage Tea Recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, are sold annually, says a well known druggist here, because it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that no one can tell it has been applied.



Those whose hair is turning gray or becoming faded have a surprise awaiting them, because after one or two applications the gray hair vanishes and your locks become luxuriantly dark and beautiful.

This is the age of youth. Gray-haired, unattractive folks aren't wanted around, so get busy with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound to-night and you'll be delighted with your dark, handsome hair and your youthful appearance within a few days.

This preparation is a toilet requisite and is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

Miss BETTIE LOBITHA KELLY was born on Sept. 25, 1851. She was married to Mr. Holcomb on April 2, 1882. Of this union there were born six children—five boys and one girl. Mr. Holcomb died about 20 years ago, leaving Sister Holcomb to rear the children as best she could. Sister Holcomb joined the Missionary Baptist Church in early life and was ever a faithful member of the same until death. The children, through her influence, have all become Christians and are members of the Baptist Church. She departed this life on Jan. 12, 1918, to be reunited with her companion on the other shore, and to be with Jesus evermore. A friend,

C. H. HERRING.

The subject of this sketch, W. PATRICK HILTON, was born in 1840, in Simpson County, Miss.; and died on Dec. 16, 1917. Brother Hilton was twice married. He first married Miss Allie Barlow. Of this union there were born several children, two of which are still living. After his first wife's death, which occurred many years ago, he was again married on Oct. 8, 1885, to Miss Idie Bullock. Of this union were born four children—two boys and two girls. The children and mother are still living to mourn the death of their father. Brother Hilton was converted and joined the Methodist Church in early life, and was ever faithful until death. He was a faithful and devoted father and husband, a quiet and unassuming Christian gentleman. Brother and Sister Hilton were among the preachers' best friends. So, dear friends, do not mourn as those who have no hope. Only be faithful to Jesus until death, and then there will be a reuniting in a world of eternal bliss, never to part again.

His pastor, C. H. HERRING.

Mrs. JULIA WORTHEIM MILLER, wife of W. T. Miller, was born in Panola County, near Batesville, Miss., in February, 1848. She peaceably passed to her home in glory on Jan. 17, 1918, at Alphoba, Miss. Mrs. Miller when in the bloom of womanhood gave her heart to Jesus and lived a consistent Christian life. For more than half a century she walked in loving companionship with her Lord. She was happily married to Mr. W. T. Miller of Tate County. Of this union were born several children, all of whom died in early childhood, except one daughter. Mrs. Miller, however, assisted her husband in rearing his first wife's children. To them she became a mother indeed. Her home was always a center of good influences, where both the young and the old were welcomed. Her neighbors she loved with devotion, and she was always ready to minister to them in time of need. During the latter part of her life, her health was not good. She suffered quite a bit, but was never heard to complain. A noble Christian woman, a fond and cherished companion, a faithful and sympathetic mother, and a true and tried neighbor, has been translated to heaven to await the coming of loved ones. Her last words to her aged husband were: "Husband, it won't be long until you will come on." She leaves behind this faithful companion, a daughter, Mrs. Tom Hudson, and three stepchildren. The world is better because Sister Miller has lived in it and left a good influence behind. Her pastor,

A MEMORIAL OF MRS. W. S. SMITH.

Mrs. Dellie Smith, as she was best known, daughter of Mr. A. J. and L. H. Williams, was born on July 17, 1867, and departed this life on October 28, 1917. A good woman has gone to her reward. She was a great sufferer, but bore it with much patience. She was converted and joined the M. E. Church, South, in 1876, and was ever true to her Church and religion. She was loved best by those who knew her best, and tried to be everybody's friend. As a daughter, she was loving and obedient; as a sister, she was gentle and affectionate; as a mother she was tender, kind, and true; as a companion her traits of character and her loving and sweet, co-operative spirit were excelled by none and equaled by few. For 28 years she went heart and hand with her companion, sharing the hardships and blessings of his life. His troubles were her troubles, and when he rejoiced she rejoiced with him; and she never proved the least unkind or untrue, but was ever faithful to her pledge. She leaves a mother, four sisters, and four brothers, a husband and seven children, and a host of friends and loved ones to mourn their loss. But their loss is her eternal gain. Good-by, dear loved one, but not forever. We expect to join thee some day in the sweet by and by.

HER COMPANION.

NOTES FROM THE JACKSON (MISS.) DISTRICT.

The Fannin charge did not raise the preacher's salary for the year, but they paid their pastor $200 at the first quarterly conference and are going to take good care of him by supplementing his salary with many necessities of life.

The Advocate Campaign is being pushed with real vigor and success by many of the pastors. But we all take off our hats to Rev. C. H. Ellis, of the Lintonia charge, for the best report so far. He has secured 19 new subscribers.

The Sunday school work of the district is making progress. We are pushing forward with energy to attain our goal of a Sunday school in every church in the district. Some of the brethren are also establishing schools in schoolhouse appointments.

Our presiding elder has made his first round and reports that the stewards of most all the charges have increased the salaries of the pastors for the year. Galloway Memorial increased $300; Eden, Yazoo City, and Madison $200 each; Mendenhall $135; Vaughan, Benton, Satartia, Bolton and Edwards $100 each.

Rev. A. S. Oliver, on the Eden charge, has been having many afflictions. Immediately after Conference he and his family proceeded to have the measles. And they had it, or them. Guess Oliver began to feel that he and family were having them mealses. Following this siege, Brother Oliver himself had another severe spell of sickness, and is just lately recovering. But none of these afflictions has dampened his spirit, and he is now gathering his strength for another hard year's work.

Rev. J. B. King and family of Florence are passing through deep waters of afflictions. He has been compelled to give up his work for the time being and he and wife have gone to the sanitarium at Magee, seeking the restoration of their health. Brethren, in these dark hours of his affliction, let us remember him daily at a throne of grace. Rev. B. H. Williams is looking after the Florence charge during Brother King's illness. The presiding elder of the Jackson District is raising a fund of $200 to assist Brother King in his distress.

Galloway Memorial has had an increase in membership of about 50 since Conference.

ISOM.

RECIPE FOR GRAY HAIR.

To half pint of water add 1 oz. Bay Rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and ¼ oz. of glycerine. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it at home at very little cost. Full directions for making and use come in each box of Barbo Compound. It will gradually darken streaked, faded gray hair, and make it soft and glossy. It will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy, and does not rub off.—Adv.
